GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. ARCHER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material in the bill H.R. 4865.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

Mr. ARCHER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of H.R. 4865. This is a bipartisan bill to repeal the 1993 tax on Social Security benefits. Several Democrats have cosponsored similar legislation and four Democrats in the Senate voted to repeal the tax just 2 weeks ago. So like other common sense tax relief bills that this House has approved this year, there is once again bipartisan support.

Seniors should not be taxed on their Social Security benefits, period. Social Security checks should not arrive in the mailbox with a bill from the IRS attached.

President Clinton and Vice President GORE created this tax on Social Security benefits to reduce the deficit. In 1993, the deficit was $255 billion a year. This year the surplus is $233 billion. We have no deficit and it is time to repeal the tax.

Seniors work their whole lives to earn these benefits. They should not have to pay taxes on them when they retire.

In effect, this tax changes the rules of the game in the middle of the lifestream of a worker in this country. They believe they will get benefits of a certain economic value. This takes away the value of those benefits.

There are many reasons to repeal this tax. It is a ticking time bomb that will explode on millions of seniors over the next generation because the income thresholds are not indexed for inflation. Almost 10 million seniors pay the tax today and more than 20 million retirees will be hit soon. This tax is a clear and present danger to their retirement security.

Second, taxing Social Security benefits is not good tax policy. Last week, this House voted overwhelmingly to give Americans tax incentives to save for retirement. What are we telling Americans by taxing these Social Security benefits? We are telling them not to save, because only if they save during their lifetime and have any other income are they faced with this tax. That does not make sense, particularly at a time when we need private savings in this country more than ever before.

Third, this tax serves to undermine Social Security. In a 1995 letter, AARP says the following, and I quote, "The 1993 tax may serve to undermine the program. Dramatic changes that substantially erode net benefits will further undermine public confidence that the Social Security system will provide a fair return on contributions."

At this point, I would include that letter in the RECORD.

AARP, January 20, 1995.

Hon. BILL ARCHER,

Chairman, Committee on Ways and Means, House of Representatives, Washington, DC. DEAR CHAIRMAN ARCHER: In the interest of time, I did not respond to Representative Cardin's question at the January 19th hearing regarding a rationale for taxing Social Security income differently from private pension income. I would appreciate your inserting my written response in the appropriate place in the hearing record.

Some maintain that Social Security is like a private pension, and therefore should be taxed more like a pension. While both programs provide income in retirement, the simple fact is that Social Security is not a private pension. Social Security is a mandatory, government-sponsored, portable program with almost universal coverage. private pension system is a voluntary, employer-established program that is rarely portable and covers less than fifty percent of the workforce. Social Security is based on a progressive benefit formula that provides a greater rate of return for low-wage earners. The private pension system is based on myriad plan designs that more often favor the relatively higher income earner. Social Security is partially pre-funded with generally no access to contributions before retirement (or disability). Private pensions are generally advance-funded, and access to money pre-retirement is common. Social Security is social insurance and is the base of retirement security. Private pensions represent a privately sponsored, tax-subsidized income supplement.

Those who argue that Social Security should be taxed as a pension fail to fully recognize these substantial policy differences. In fact, policy goals often have led to different tax treatment where fundamental differences exist. For example, the tax code treats mortgage interest payments different than rental payments (even though both are for housing), and employer provided health benefits different than wages (even though both are forms of compensation). Similarly, Social Security is appropriately taxed differently than a pension.

The 1993 tax may serve to undermine the program. By adding additional taxes to an already progressive Social Security benefit formula, these changes risk undermining the widespread public support the system enjoys. Dramatic changes that substantially erode net benefits will further undermine public confidence that the Social Security system will provide a fair return on contributions.

Once again, thank you for letting the American Association of Retired Persons testify at the January 19th hearing.

Sincerely,

ROBERT SHREVE, Chairman, AARP Board of Directors.

Finally, let me underscore that this bill protects Medicare because it requires that the annual general revenue transfer to Medicare be increased by an amount equal to revenues generated by this tax.

Every Member of the House knows that Congress routinely transfers general revenues to Medicare. Perhaps in the beginning this was not considered to be appropriate. I myself wish that we had never inserted general Treasury money into the Medicare Trust Fund, but it has happened. All we do is continue the very same process. So this bill would not set any precedent whatsoever.

On the contrary, the bill maintains Medicare's current financing; and Medicare's Office of the Actuary confirms that.

If Medicare were threatened in any way, shape or form by this bill, AARP would certainly be opposed, and they are not. So it is time to repeal this tax on millions of seniors. It is unfair. It is unnecessary, and it harms the retirement security of millions of Americans now and in the years to come.

Now, some may make the argument that this is not fiscally responsible, but I would turn that right back to them and say if they believed that we needed money to pay down the deficit, would they choose to tax senior citizens on their retirement benefits? And the answer would be a resounding no.

If we want to follow that route then perhaps those who believe in it would propose that we tax 100 percent of the senior citizens' Social Security benefits because of their concern about fiscal responsibility.

I think not. This is fiscally responsible, and it is fair and it is right. I urge a strong bipartisan vote for this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. STARK. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to this bill, not in support of taxes but in support of fairness and in support of the Medicare system which this bill gravely endangers for the seniors in our country.

This bill confirms what we Democrats in Congress and the American people have long suspected, that Republicans do not govern with a budget but with a tax-cut-a-day plan. If it is a tax cut, it is in the Republican budget, no questions. But there is a danger in this bill. There is unfairness in this bill, and it is important that the public and my colleagues realize that.

This bill, first of all, takes $10 billion a year or thereabouts out of the Medicare Trust Fund. It removes dedicated revenues. The Republicans say, oh, we are not taking the money out of Medicare; trust us.

It is clear there will no longer be a dedicated tax revenue, but we can trust the Republicans to make sure that they protect Medicare, just as they asked us to trust them to make sure that HMOs did not pull out of Medicare and leave seniors without important coverage.

These may be the same requests to trust the Republicans to lock away Medicare in a lockbox. Aha. Then with this very bill, we broke open the lockbox and we are spilling the contents of that lockbox into the pockets of a very few Social Security beneficiaries, the very richest ones. These are the same Republicans asking us to trust them with Medicare that have asked us to trust them to keep a budget and then invented gimmicks to get around their own budget.

Many Republicans have never liked Medicare from the beginning. Former Leader Robert Dole admitted, I was there fighting the fight, 1 of 12 voting against Medicare in 1965 because we knew it would not work. Our former Speaker, Newt Gingrich, once pledged he would let Medicare wither on the vine, and our own majority leader once called Medicare a program I would have no part of in a free world.

Those are not the leaders to which we should trust the medical care of our seniors

As a matter of fact, if indeed we do want to give $10 billion back to Social Security recipients, and we might very well like to do that, $10 billion would cut all of the seniors' part B premiums in half. $10 billion would give every senior in the country $250 a year in a refundable tax credit which they could use to perhaps pay for a prescription drug benefit, which the Republicans will not bring to the floor. It could be used for a whole host of things, instead of giving just 6 or 7 million seniors all of this generosity. What happens to the other 35 million Social Security beneficiaries? They get nothing, and they risk losing their immediate care benefits if the Republicans continue down the path of draining the Medicare Trust Fund in the name of tax cuts to the very wealthy.

So, Mr. Speaker, I urge that my colleagues look carefully at this bill. It is not what it purports to be. It is a gift, an enticement to the very rich, who may very well be Republicans, but it cuts out 80 percent of the Social Security beneficiaries from any benefits and it puts at risk the viability of the Medicare system just one more way.

We have watched the Republicans try and privatize Social Security. We have watched them try and privatize Medicare. We have seen them vote in our committee. The gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW) voted twice in our committee to deny his senior constituents a discount on pharmaceutical drugs at no cost to the Federal Government. How can we trust leaders like that to protect our Medicare system when they are on the record time and time again of trying to deny seniors access to pharmaceutical drugs?

So this is a ploy. This is a ploy to ignore the President's outreach to say I would take some tax cuts if a pharmaceutical benefit would be agreed to; if a package is put together we can work together and we can talk about something that is reasonable in the light of the spending that will be necessary. But, no, it is all or nothing. It is another huge tax cut to a very few wealthy people and another attempt to destroy Medicare as we know it.

I urge my colleagues to oppose the bill.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. ARCHER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I am sure that my friend, the gentleman from California (Mr. STARK) did not mean to mislead, but the words that he spoke were not accurate. The monies that are currently going into the Medicare Trust Fund are from general Treasury, from income tax revenues.

Now, there was no argument against that by the gentleman in 1993 when it happened. We are simply replacing one stream of income tax revenues with a stream from other sources so that the same number of dollars go into the Medicare Trust Fund. In no way is Medicare harmed. The gentleman knows that. It is not subject to appropriations every year. It is an entitlement under our bill, which will hold fast just as much as any other entitlement program under current law. Because, yes, any Congress can take any benefits away. They can do anything, unless it is written into the Constitution, but this will have the same degree of validity, stability and support as any other entitlement program. I think the gentleman knows that.

Of course, this tax that was unfairly put on senior citizens in 1993 was a product of one vote, done totally by the Democrat majority, and they cannot stand to give up what they put on the books.

They have to defend it. Many of them know it is wrong. Some of them cosponsored our legislation, because they know it is wrong. It is one thing to say we should tax Social Security benefits the same as we tax private pensions; this goes far beyond that and taxes much more adversely than we tax private pensions. It is basically wrong, and it is time to repeal it.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. STARK. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. BONIOR), our minority whip.

Mr. BONIOR. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from California for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, not very long ago I read about a man who won $5,000 in the State lottery, and when he was asked what he planned to do with the money, he said, I am going to go to Vegas.

Well, it is not uncommon, I think, for some lottery winners to do that, to go and gamble the money away; that happens for those who have a propensity to gamble. But it is unconscionably wrong when lawmakers try to do the same thing with public dollars, and that is what I believe the Republican program is all about.

If we add up all of the costs of the Republican programs and tax expenditures, we are coming close to $1 trillion, and then we add in all of the budget issues that revolve around this issue, as the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT) has so eloquently demonstrated. That shows that we are talking about another $1 trillion, we are talking $2 trillion, and what that does is eat up virtually all, in fact, it does eat up all, of the proposed surplus over the next decade. Gone. We do not even know if that surplus is going to be there in the first place anyway, because we do not know what is going to happen in year 4, 5, 6, 7.8 or 9.

Mr. Speaker, make no mistake about it. The Republicans have gone on a gambling junket with America's surplus, and they are telling American families to pick up the tab. The dollars they need for better schools? Spent. The dollars to clean up the environment? Spent. To strengthen Social Security? Spent. To pay down the national debt? Gone, spent.

The fact is, Mr. Speaker, the Republican plan will leave the next generation with little else but empty promises and an enormous, an enormous Federal deficit.

Also, something else. It would saddle them with something else: their parents' prescription medicine bills. Because if the Republicans have their way, America will not have the money it takes to provide the prescription drug benefits that people need, real benefits that are guaranteed, that are part of the Medicare system, and that have decent catastrophic coverage.

Now, why would our friends on the other side of the aisle raid Medicare? Well, Willie Sutton once said when asked why he robs banks, he says, well, that is where the money is; and our Republican colleagues believe that is where the money is, in the Medicare account. But if they look closer, they will realize that Medicare is no cash cow. Since 1997, in my own State, Michigan hospitals have absorbed $2 billion in Medicare cuts. We have closed 29 nursing facilities. We have had 10,000 Michigan health care workers lose their jobs since 1997, 10,000 good jobs.

Now the Republicans are telling us, Medicare ought to be able to make due with less

Mr. Speaker, there is an old proverb that says, "The best throw of the dice is to throw the dice away." Today is a time to stop the Republican gambling junket once and for all. It is time to invest in Medicare, to strengthen Social Security, to pay down this debt, this national debt, this national debt, this national disgrace that we have, and to provide for targeted tax relief for seniors and middle-income Americans.

It is time to decide that we have a responsibility never to lead this country adrift in the red ink that we have recently seen over the previous decades and that we have gotten ourselves out of due to courageous action on the part of this party that I proudly associate myself with.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PEASE). Without objection, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW) will control the time previously allocated to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. ARCHER).

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW).

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. HAYWORTH), a member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. HAYWORTH. Mr. Speaker, I thank my colleague from Florida, the chairman of the Subcommittee on Social Security.

Mr. Speaker, I found it interesting to hear my good friend, the minority whip from Michigan, talk about Las Vegas, because perhaps there are those in this Chamber who contemplate a future career opening for Jerry Vale along the lines of an insult comedian. Because, Mr. Speaker, I am sure, quite unintentionally, the previous words in this Chamber served to insult the intelligence of the American people, and particularly the very seniors, Mr. Speaker, that our friends on the left claim to care so much about.

For the record, what this House will do today, in bipartisan fashion, is to strike a blow for tax fairness and remove the ultimate theft of money from the people who most need it. The gentleman from California (Mr. STARK) a few moments ago talked about how this would only help the wealthy few. Well, I guess there are different definitions for words in this grand land of ours, and people are free to use Orwellian definitions, when, in fact, what we want to do is make sure that the seniors who are single and earning $34,000 a year and married couples who are earning $44,000 a year have their Social Security taxes reduced. These are the wealthy few?

Mr. Špeaker, how sad, the shameful catechism of the left, always embracing emotion and interesting definitions that fly in the face of fact.

The other fact is, there seems to also be confusion not only on the status of the wealthy, since we apparently find that those earning $30,000 are "wealthy" by the definition of our friends on the left, but there is also confusion in terms of the date on the calendar. Apparently our friends believe this is the final day of October, it is the day to scare folks, it is Halloween. So they hope to scare seniors by saying there is a raid on Medicare.

Mr. Speaker, we should not dare believe it. Our friends on the left continue to take revenue streams from the general accounting fund, the general revenue. We do not raid Medicare, we strengthen it, and we strengthen seniors by lowering their taxes.

I stand in support. Mr. STARK. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. MATSUI), the ranking member of the Subcommittee on Social Security.

Mr. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank the gentleman from California (Mr. STARK) for yielding me this time.

So far, in the last 6 months, my Republican colleagues, in all of their tax bills that they have gotten through the House of Representatives, basically have spent $739 billion, almost $1 trillion if we count the debt service that goes with this. The breakdown of these tax cuts is if one makes $350,000 a year, one will be getting about $15,000 annually on these tax cuts. If one makes $40,000 a year, which most Americans do, that average tax cut will be about $350 per year. So everybody gets a little, but we know the wealthy are going to get tremendous tax breaks out of this

Now, what this bill does, basically, is reduces the amount of taxation on Social Security benefits. The problem with this, the problem with this bill is that all of the revenues from this goes into the Medicare trust fund.

Now, the Republicans are saying, well, they are going to make this up with the budget surplus, and all of us have heard that we are going to have over the next 10 years about $2.2 trillion in budget surpluses outside of the Social Security system.

The problem is that my colleagues, our Republican friends, have spent that money already.

If we look at this graph here, we have $2.2 trillion in budget surpluses, we have $361 billion that has to be set aside for the Medicare trust fund. They spent $739 billion on tax cuts, plus another $183 billion for extension of the alternative, changing the alternative tax and changing the expiring tax provisions. Then, if we just talk very moderately and conservatively, since the Republicans have been in control how much they have spent on appropriations bills, we have to add another $284 billion: and we have $54 billion for additional exceptions that we already had, and then we have the prescription drug benefit program my colleagues on the other side of the aisle have proposed, $159 billion, then farm support programs; and then we have additional spending for health care benefits, a reimbursement that everybody is going to agree to by the end of this year. That brings us to a total of $2.2 tril-

They have already spent the surplus. In fact, we have a deficit over the next 10 years of $88 billion.

Mr. Speaker, we cannot do anything for Medicare, we cannot do anything for Social Security, we cannot even pay down the debt. This means that the false promise that they made, that they are going to reimburse the Medicare trust fund with general fund monies will not happen, and that means our senior citizens are going to have to pay more in premiums. That means our senior citizens are going to have to either pay more in premiums or they are going to end up having lower benefits at a time when they are going to need health care the most. This means that probably prescription drugs will be limited to $159 billion over the next decade, and that means seniors will not get prescription drug promises, which all of them anticipate.

Mr. Speaker, this is a false promise. This will not happen. This will do major damage to the Medicare system of America and damage our senior citizans.

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume to point out to my friend from California (Mr. Matsul) that the Matsul Telephone Tax Repeal, I did not see it on the chart, but I certainly support it and congratulate him for his effort.

Mr. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will yield, I will vote against it, though, if it is in a package like this, because that is obviously overspending the surplus; and we will create a real problem for future generations

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, reclaiming my time, I do not believe I yielded. I do not think that any of the Republican tax reductions that were on this chart are part of this package either.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. ENGLISH), an esteemed member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. ENGLISH. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time, and I thank him for his advocacy of the Social Security system.

Mr. Speaker, it is a fundamental principle that Social Security benefits should be tax free and today, with this legislation, we make essential progress toward restoring that principle. Seniors should not have to shoulder a disproportionate share of the burden for the fiscal problems that have existed here in America. Yet under current law, a retired senior with an annual income of $39,600 that includes their savings, a part-time job, and their Social Security benefits, loses $580 that year because of this tax. It is just not fair.

With a non-Social Security surplus that is expected to top $2.17 trillion in hard numbers, our seniors should not have to continue to pay a tax that was established in 1993 when we were operating with record deficits. As a Republican, since the other side has made this such a partisan debate, I should point out that I am pleased to vote to roll back the Social Security tax that was imposed with Democratic votes only.

Mr. Speaker, this legislation rolls back the tax on Social Security benefits from 85 percent to 50 percent. If we do not repeal this tax, more than 8 million seniors will have to pay an average of $1,180 in taxes on their benefits in 2001. We must also remember that if we do not pass this bill, more and more seniors each year will be forced to pay. The income thresholds built into the current law are not indexed to inflation, meaning that additional people will pay the tax each year and people of more and more limited means. By 2010, at least 13 million seniors would expect to pay an average of $1,359.

Now, some on the tax-hungry left, looking to justify their vote against this vital legislation, may claim that we will be bankrupting Medicare by repealing this tax.

This legislation requires the money from the general revenue already earmarked for Medicare be increased to max the amount that would be lost by rolling back this tax. With a surplus of the size that we have, this is no time to argue against repealing this reactionary tax.

I challenge everyone who purports to be an advocate of Social Security to vote today to remove this anvil from the shoulders of seniors and celebrate the fact that Congress has finally balanced the budget and run a surplus. Vote in favor of this legislation.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PEASE). Without objection, the gentleman from California (Mr. MATSUI) will control the time previously allocated to the gentleman from California (Mr. STARK).

There was no objection.

Mr. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Michigan (Mr. LEVIN) from the Committee on Ways and Means, the ranking member on the Subcommittee on Trade.

(Mr. LEVIN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. ENGLISH), the preceding speaker on the Republican side, has joined others at throwing darts at President Clinton and Vice President GORE. About 1993, they are the last ones to do that, the last ones who should be doing it.

Here is what the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Armey) said about the 1993 act: ''It is a recipe for disaster. The economy will sputter along.'' The Speaker then, Mr. Gingrich, talked about that package leading ''to a job killing recession.''

The gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KASICH), the Republican chairman of the Committee on Budget, said about the 1993 act: "We will come back here next year and try to help you when this puts the economy in the gutter."

They were wrong then, and they are wrong now. They are on another deficit splurge, turning gold into lead. The gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT) made clear how they have already exhausted the surplus. Their taxes are over $1 trillion. That is neither conservative nor is it compassionate. It is reckless, and it is cold politics.

I finish with this point. They take Medicare monies, and they say they are going to put them back. The Chair of the Committee on Ways and Means said it is just like any other entitlement, and I quote him. Well, title 20 is an entitlement along the lines that they would do with this. They have cut title 20 by 36 percent since 1995. The last people in the world to be trusted with Medicare is the Republican majority in the House of Representatives.

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, we have heard a lot of rhetoric regarding Medicare. I would like to read a paragraph from a memorandum from the Department of Health and Human Services, from the chief actuary, Richard Foster, that is from the Department of Health and Human Services, in which he says that the proposal would have no financial impact on the HI Trust Fund, no financial impact. That is from Health and Human Services. That is not a question of a Republican administration adding this issue. So I think that it is a bogus argument.

The argument before the House is very, very clear. Do we want to give people or continue to tax Social Security benefits at 85 percent of amount received for people of incomes of $34,000 and more? To talk about this is some kind of a deal for our rich friends is absolutely ludicrous, unless my colleagues think people making $34,000 a year are rich.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. LEWIS), a member of the House Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. LEWIS of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Florida for yielding me this time.

Talk about historical revisionism, the former speaker talking about 1993. Well, I remember 1993. The Democrats had had Congress for 40 years. We had 55 trillion in debt, $200 billion deficits every year. The taxes kept going up. The deficits kept going up. So I do not think they were handling it very well.

It seems to me, over the last 6 years since we have taken the majority in this House, the deficits have been eliminated. The surpluses are going up. The taxes are going down. We have not voted for any new taxes in 6 years.

But let me just say this. The other day, when we were debating the Marriage Penalty Relief Act, many on that side kept saying, oh, gosh, yes, this will destroy the Social Security, it will take money away from that, Medicare, prescription drugs. All this is a disaster. We cannot give any money to married people and their families. Today they are saying we cannot give any tax relief to senior citizens because it will destroy Social Security and Medicare and all this.

But the reality of it is, right after we had that debate on the Marriage Penalty Relief Act, we had foreign aid come up. Every speaker, one right after another, could not give enough money in foreign aid. They did not worry about prescription drugs. They did not worry about Social Security. They did not worry about Medicare. They wanted to pile on more money. Nothing, nothing harmed them there.

When we talk about bigger and more government programs, there is just, you know, it is fine. We can just spend all the money we want. But that is what got us into trouble to begin with. As we are having these trillions upon trillions of dollars in surplus rolling in over the next many years, we need to allow the American people that are living under a debt burden of 40 percent of their income of local, State, and Federal taxes some tax relief.

It is about fairness. It is about letting our senior citizens keep more of their money and our married families, also.

Mr. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. NEAL).

(Mr. NEAL of Massachusetts asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. NEAL of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, we meet once again to debate the tax cut de jour. Some of the proposals the Republicans have insisted on are strictly for the very wealthy, like the estate tax repeal. Some are spread out more evenly, like the telephone excise tax repeal. Some manage to do a certain amount of harm and a certain amount of good, like the pension bill.

But the bill that is in front of us today does real harm to the Medicare trust fund. But all of this legislation is aimed at the November elections.

Let us acknowledge one thing clearly today. The Republicans never liked Medicare to begin with. They certainly did not like Social Security. That is what they attempt to do with this line of reasoning of legislation today. It is to weaken the Medicare trust fund.

Under current law, the revenue generated from this tax that is being repealed goes into the Medicare trust fund. So, in effect, all citizens benefit from current law. Eighty percent of the senior citizens will not get anything from this legislation, and 20 percent of the well-off senior citizens will.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to ask themselves one question: Is this a good trade-off? If it was such a good trade-off, why did they not do it 6 years ago when they took control of this institution? Why was it not proposed 3 years ago when we had the first major tax bill passed into law?

The reason is that this proposal does not look good when massive deficits are staring one in the face. One cannot sell this proposal when it seems clear that there is a need for strong discipline in the general budget to resolve our deficit crisis, as the Democrats did in this House in 1993.

But for the moment, while the projections are rosy, let us remind ourselves, there is no guarantee that those projections are ever going to come through as they relate to budget surpluses. There is an opportunity for all of us to be very prudent today and, even on the Democratic side, being conservative.

Reject this chicanery.

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. NEAL) must not have been on the floor when I read from the text of a July 18 memorandum from the Department of Health and Human Services stating that this proposal would have no financial impact on the HI trust fund. That is Medicare. It will have no effect on it.

I think that is something that we should always, always be very concerned about. We are concerned about it. That is why we are making up the revenue from general revenue, as it comes today, as it comes today.

But the point is, and the only difference is, as to the funding of the Medicare program, the only difference is that the existing law, the 1993 tax pinpoints a source, but it still comes out of general revenue. It comes out of the general fund.

We simply eliminate part of that source, which is taxing people of $34,000 and more per year, determined evidently by my friends in the Democrat Party as our wealthy friends. But I can tell my colleagues, to be a senior citizen living on $34,000 a year, go out and find me one that says that he is wealthy; and I will show my colleagues somebody that must have a trust fund that we do not know about.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL), the ranking member on the House Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I would like to congratulate my Republican friends because they never seem to run out of creative ideas in how to hoodwink the American people. When they had the last tax bill, and it was $792 billion, oh what a big mistake.

But then they learned fast. They did not go to the Committee on Ways and Means and try to work out something in a bipartisan way. They went to someone that could probably send out a message how to pass a bill that never will become law, make certain that the President is going to veto it before you

So knowing how sensitive senior citizens are to anything that would adversely affect their income, I was excited when the Republicans came up with the idea that they were going to reduce the taxes on some people in Social Security. Whether they were wealthy or not, as a Social Security beneficiary, they wanted to get some type of relief.

But I ask the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW), where does the money come from? If one asks any Social Security beneficiary do they want relief, the answer has to be, yes, and I want it fast. But if one asks them, do you want it fast enough to come out of the Medicare trust fund, then they would say let us take another look.

Now, I know that my colleagues have some way to say that the money in the trust fund is the same as general revenues, but no one believes that. No one believes that the Social Security trust fund and the Medicare trust fund should be treated the same way one would general revenues.

If my colleagues wanted to give them a tax break, why did they not go directly into the general revenues and give them a tax break? The reason they did it is because they want to break the whole idea of entitlement. Once they get entitlements out of the way. then they would know that this precious trust fund that they are turning slowly on the tree, maybe, one day would disappear.

Well, it is not going to work with the seniors, and it is not going to work here in this House of Representatives. Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I say to the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL), and he is my friend, that the Republicans would like to take complete credit for this bill, but we do have allies on his side: the gentleman from New York (Mr. NADLER), the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. LOWEY), the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. DOYLE), the gentleman from West Virginia (Mr. RA-HALL), the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. BARCIA), and the gentleman from New York (Mr. FORBES). They have all cosponsored similar legislation.

Let us go over to the Senate for a minute: Senator FEINSTEIN, Senator CONRAD, Senator DORGAN, Senator

JOHNSON.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. McDERMOTT. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW) is out of order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW) controls the time.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. McDERMOTT. Point of parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. If the gentleman will yield, the gentleman from Washington will state his parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. McĎERMOŤT. Mr. Speaker, is it proper to refer to a Member of the other body by name?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. It is in order to refer to individual Members of the other body as sponsors of measures.

The gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW) controls the time.

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, these people have all voted to repeal this tax, this Republican tax, this Republican tax relief bill. I think it is extraordinarily important to look at what we are doing. This is not a question of doing this for any other reason except to get rid of this tax because this tax is wrong.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California

Mr. ROYCE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Florida for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of the Social Security Benefits Tax Relief Act. In 1993, the Clinton-Gore administration increased the taxes on Social Security, arguably because we had a deficit. But I noticed it, I served notice at the time, that it seemed to be helping to pay for new Federal spending programs. I think that is why every Republican in the House and every Republican in the Senate opposed this increase on Social Security benefits. This tax was created when the Federal Government had a $255 billion deficit.

Today, the deficit is gone. We have increasing surpluses. Yet this tax remains. As a result, seniors' benefits are taxed at rates between 50 and 85 percent. Single retirees whose income exceeds as little as $34,000 are punished by this tax. This taxation in terms of fairness is grossly unfair. The income from which these benefits are derived has already been taxed. That is the □ 1530

Taxing once more these benefits amounts to double taxation for these seniors on Social Security.

This tax results in lower benefits and translates into less income for many of America's seniors. The time has come to end this double taxation and restore some fairness for America's seniors.

Mr. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from the State of Washington (Mr. McDermott), a member of the House Committee on Ways and Means.

(Mr. McDERMOTT asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. McDERMOTT. Mr. Speaker, let me begin by stating there is no Member of this body who wants to tax seniors. We are all against that. We would all like to give all the taxes back that we could. But having said that, we also want to give them benefits, Social Security and Medicare.

Now, whatever comes out of this debate, the main point is that this money is coming out of a trust fund for Medicare. The Republicans are operating under a theory that a tax cut a day keeps election defeat away, and we have seen one after another after another. The fact is that they are willing to sacrifice what we did in 1993 to bolster the Medicare trust fund. Now that things are going pretty well, they say, well, we do not need to; we can just take the money out of the trust fund and we will put some general fund in. We will kind of write an IOU on the general fund.

The gentleman from Florida, who is leading this debate on the other side, said, "If you write yourself an IOU, it is not real." Now, here we have written an IOU to the general fund; we owe this over here to the Medicare trust fund, and my colleague says it is not real. That is what we are talking about

When my colleagues get in this election, they will be screaming all over the place when people get ads that say, "You have taken $100 billion out of the Medicare Trust Fund," they will be squealing and hollering and saying, 'Yeah, but.'' Nobody believes the majority and they do not even believe it themselves or they would not have made this statement about the fact that an IOU that we write, we owe it to the people, is not worth anything in the next session if this money does not come in

My colleague from California (Mr. MATSUI) says these issues are not for sure; we are projecting 10 years out into the future. There is not a soul on this floor who believes that those are absolutely real. But if we give away the trust fund, we have given it away. Vote "no."

Mr. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, I yield 21/2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Florida (Mrs. THURMAN), a member of the House Committee on Ways and Means.

Mrs. THURMAN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me

Mr. Speaker, let us start this debate with the words of Federal Reserve Chairman, Alan Greenspan, who said just last week, and I quote, "Anything, whether it's tax cuts or expenditure increases, which significantly slows the rise in surpluses or eventually eliminates them would put the economy at greater risk than I would like to see it exposed to.

Well, today, instead of following his advice, we are being asked to take up one more bill that not only eats away at the projected surplus but also removes an earmark source of funding for Medicare and replaces it with IOUs. Let us go back to June 20, when this House debated lockbox legislation for Medicare. I do not want to embarrass proponents of this bill with their comments, but let me remind them of what was being said in that debate. "Simply adding IOUs to the trust fund in effect mandates that taxes will be increased on our kids and our grandkids.'

We are no longer dealing with a lockbox, we are opening Pandora's box. And this is a box I will not open.

Sunday, the majority whip said, and I quote, "Everybody knows that the House of Representatives has already passed a prescription drug bill, but President Clinton wants universal coverage and government-run Medicare and we want seniors to have choice in the kind of health care they think is important for them." Tell that to the people in Hernando County in my district who just lost their HMO and have no prescription drug coverage. They have no choice. Nine hundred signatures here today saying we want a strong Medicare program with a prescription drug benefit.

But, before we can ever get to that and start looking at the major funding shortfalls in the Medicare program to hospitals and nursing homes and HMOs, we are here debating taking $100 billion out of Medicare. We are going to have to put $50 billion back in from the surplus already. I cannot say to the families in my district that we are going to be destabilizing Medicare. Should this measure become law. I am certain in years to come we will be paying the price.

Yesterday, the General Accounting Office estimated that with the stacking of tax bills, the unified budget deficits will reemerge in the year 2019. The GAO projection also showed, after 2019, the budget deficit and the debt explode, exactly the numbers that have been put out on this floor. We cannot leave this legacy for our children.

In closing, let me remind my colleagues of one more statement made. "If you write yourself an IOU, it's not an economic asset. These notes are going to be paid out of the hides of future taxpayers.

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I vield myself such time as I may consume, and I must advise my colleague from Florida that any monies going into the Medicare Trust Fund is replaced with Treasury bills.

Let me finish. It is replaced with Treasury bills. This is what the gentlewoman is referring to as IOUs. That is what it is under existing law; that is what it would do under this particular bill. If the money is not spent, it is invested in Treasury bills, just as it is today.

So I must correct the gentlewoman. We do not have a bucket of cash that sits in there. That money that is coming out of the senior citizen's Social Security check every month and paying the income tax on it, that we are going to give them some relief from, that money goes into the Medicare Trust Fund and is replaced with Treasury bills and comes back into the general fund. Under the Republican plan here, or I should say bipartisan plan because I have already made it known that there are many Democrats who are supporting this type of legislation, it does exactly the same thing.

Mrs. THURMAN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SHAW. I yield to the gentlewoman from Florida very quickly, because I must retain my time.

Mrs. THURMAN. I will be very brief. In the gentleman's debate he said, "If you write yourself an IOU, it is not a real economic asset. Treasury bills are not real economic assets. Those notes are going to be paid off out of the hides of future taxpayers." This was said by the gentleman in the lockbox legisla-

Mr. SHAW. Reclaiming my time, Mr. Speaker, the gentlewoman hears me but she is obviously not listening. If she would listen, what I am saying is that the same Treasury bills that are put into the Medicare Trust Fund today will be put into the Medicare Trust Fund with this legislation. It is exactly the same. It is exactly the

The gentlewoman can stand here and say this is not a real economic asset, but if it is not a real economic asset under the Republican bipartisan plan that we are arguing today, it is not a real economic asset today because it is the same Treasury bills. That is exactly the point that I am trying to make. So let us not get this confused.

I do not blame the people who are opposing this bill for not wanting to talk about giving seniors some tax relief, the taxpayers who just make a little over $34,000 a year, I am not blaming my colleagues for wanting to talk about something else, but let us keep this record straight and let us be very clear on what we are speaking to.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, may I inquire of the amount of time each side has?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from California (Mr. MATSUI) has 61/2 minutes remaining, and the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW) has 8½ minutes remaining.

Mr. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER).

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, this is a bad proposal. It is not entitled "supply side economics," it is not entitled "voodoo economics," however, this tax bill we are debating today and its reckless siblings threaten to pull the plug on our unprecedented prosperity and plunge us right back into the dark days of budget deficits.

Even worse, this bill today is a direct threat to the Medicare Trust Fund. To the extent we take funds out of the general fund, they are funds we cannot use to pay down the debt. And to the extent that our extrinsic debt does not go down, our intrinsic debt is tougher. Over the next 10 years, it will drain $117 billion from Medicare. Hear me now: This bill would drain over the next 10 years $117 billion from Medicare.

Whatever shell game my colleagues may argue, those are the facts. Every Member of this House knows the real danger of this bill becomes clear when it is added to the tax cuts we have already passed: $900 billion plus. My colleagues, be fiscally responsible, protect Medicare, and vote against this bill.

Mr. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. BECERRA), a member of the House Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. BECERRA. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

In a letter dated July 24, 2000, the National Council of Senior Citizens described this bill that we are debating today as an irresponsible political gesture to upper-income persons which will have severe consequences for the Social Security System and the solvency of the Medicare part A trust fund.

Today, my colleagues, 12 million Medicare benefits lack prescription drug coverage. Twelve million seniors who, on a daily basis, have to decide, "Do I buy my prescription drugs or do I buy my food? Do I pay my rent or do I pay for my medicine?" Twelve million. And today we are talking about a system which right now cannot even provide prescription drug coverage to 12 million of those senior citizens.

Mr. Speaker, we are here today debating a bill that does absolutely nothing for four out of five of those seniors when we talk about tax cuts. Let me say that again because it gets lost in the shuffle of all these words. This is a tax cut bill that will cost $117 billion over the next 10 years; $117 billion that will go to people out in America in a tax cut, who are seniors, but only to one out of every five of those seniors. Four of those five seniors will get nothing because this bill benefits only 20 percent of the most affluent of our seniors who are retired.

On top of that, we do nothing in the future about prescription drug coverage. We do not talk about doing something on education for our kids, we cannot talk about retiring the debt this Nation has, but what we are talking about is pulling out one of these things we see so often. My colleagues probably know about this. When we go to the store to buy some things and our kids say, "Oh, can you get me that, daddy? Can you get me that?" My daughters say that to me all the time. They think I have all sorts of money. So what a lot of people do is say, well, I will charge it. Put it on my card. I will charge it again. And before we know it, we have put so much on this card, that somebody has to pay for it. And if it cannot be us, it will be the fu-

Let us not do this to the future or to our seniors. Let us not get caught up in politics.

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume, and say to the gentleman who just spoke, the gentleman from California, when he talks about prescription drugs, I support making prescription drugs part of Medicare. And I hope this Congress can finally come together in a bipartisan way and approve a plan where we can give our seniors some relief.

The gentleman is absolutely right. There are people out there that are having to make the tough choice between whether to buy groceries or to buy prescription drugs. The problem is a lot of people out there just making a little over $34,000 a year, they do not have a choice as to whether to pay taxes on their Social Security benefits or to buy prescription drugs.

This tax is morally wrong, and that is why we are trying to pass this bill and will pass this bill, and we will get a lot of help from our Democratic friends in doing so.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. COLLINS), a member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

The theme here from the other side is that we are harming Medicare insurance for our seniors. Well, as a Member of Congress and as an individual, that is the farthest thing from my mind. Good Lord willing, one of these days I will be covered under this Medicare insurance myself. Do my colleagues think I want to do something that will destroy it? Heavens, no.

A lot has been said about the fact that this is going to take $117 billion over the next 10 years from the Medicare Trust Fund. It will not. The additional tax or additional income that was subjected to tax in the 1993 tax bill was an income tax. Income tax goes into the treasury, into the general fund.

There was a provision in that bill at that time that required a like amount to be transferred to the Medicare trust fund account or credited to it. This does the same thing. The only thing this does, it repeals the provision of law that was implemented in 1993. But it still requires a like amount to go into the Medicare or credited to the Medicare account, not one red cent less. We are not taking anything from the Medicare trust fund.

If I think back correctly about 3 or 4 years ago, the trustees of the Medicare trust fund stated that the trust fund would have problems in the year 2001, it would have deficit spending, begin to put out more money or pay more in insurance for seniors and money was coming in through the payroll tax and even through this additional fund here and then it is transferred in like amount to the trust fund.

But thank goodness that the majority of this Congress saw that coming and made changes to the Medicare program and Medicare insurance that extended this solvency, the life of Medicare insurance for our seniors.

Now those same trustees say 2015 before we begin to have a deficit in cash flow. No one on this side of the aisle, no one in this Congress from either side of the aisle, Mr. Speaker, wants to do anything that would jeopardize health care insurance for our seniors and the disabled.

To stand here with all of this rhetoric is wrong, just trying to make political points. The fact is we believe in the Medicare insurance program for our seniors. We support. One of these days we will all be facing it, God willing.

Mr. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Texas (Mr. Doggett), a member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. DOGGETT. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time

Mr. Speaker, at a time when the demands for seniors for real relief on prescription drugs are thwarted in this House, at a time when this House does absolutely nothing about the pharmaceutical companies that engage in price discrimination against our seniors that literally treat them worse than dogs, at a time when seniors find one health care provider after another who will not take Medicare patients because the reimbursements are so low, at this time, of all times, for the Republicans to come forward and engage in this cynical ploy is truly wrong.

Having opposed Medicare from its Having opposed Medicare from its outset back in the days when Lyndon Johnson was working so hard to get it, these Republicans are determined to fulfill the pledge of their so recently departed leader to let Medicare wither on the vine.

That is why the National Council of Senior Citizens has condemned this measure as an irresponsible political gesture with "severe consequences for Social Security and the solvency of the Medicare Trust Fund."

The millions of seniors who rely on Social Security for most or all of their income will not get anything from this proposal. The gentleman referred to the person who has to choose between groceries and prescriptions. That person is not going to get any relief out of this bill.

Indeed, four out of five seniors will not get a nickel from this proposal that is up before us today. But I guarantee my colleagues that five out of five seniors, every one of them, will be less secure with regard to Medicare if this measure is approved.

The bipartisan Concord Coalition, cochaired by a Republican, has urged the House to reject this proposal on the grounds of fiscal responsibility and tax fairness. And this is one of those times that making the tough choice for fiscal responsibility goes hand in hand with meeting the needs of our seniors.

They do not want an IOU, I would tell the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW). Do not be the undertaker for Social Security. Stand up for our seniors. It is a trust fund. We do not want to fill it with IOUs.

We say to all of the do-not-wither-onthe-vine crowd to keep their hands off the Medicare trust fund.

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I would remind the former speaker, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. DOGGETT), that what he is referring to, the Treasury bill, as IOUs is all that is in there right now. So this makes absolutely no difference.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. TERRY).

Mr. TERRY. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of our senior citizens. We are here today fighting on their behalf.

Mr. Speaker, let me tell my colleagues, a few months ago when I was elected, I went to all parts of my city, my district, and talked to senior citizen groups. And in the low and moderate area of south Omaha, a group of seniors, I asked them, "What can we do for you?" Repeatedly they told me of their frustration of being taxed on their Social Security benefits.

I heard that they listened to Roosevelt and that they worked hard, they did what they were asked to do, they paid into the Social Security system, but they had their pension from the meat packing plants and the other factories they worked at in Nebraska and they worked hard to save. But yet, today they are penalized for that.

They were promised that they would have their Social Security benefits. But what this does by taxing it at 50 percent or even the 85 percent level that we are here to repeal today is we are confiscating their benefits. That is wrong. That is simply wrong.

What that confiscation of their benefits does, that is a back-door way of means testing. It just astounds me that my friends from the other side of the aisle stand up and say they are against means testing, but they will certainly have an 85 percent tax bracket on half of those benefits based on the amount of income that they have from their pensions and their savings. That is wrong.

So I ask our colleagues from the other side of the aisle, unlike in 1993 when it was nearly unanimous to pass this tax on our senior citizens, join us today to do the right thing, join us for fighting for our senior citizens, letting them keep the benefits that they were promised when they were young workers. Vote for this act.

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. WELLER), a member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

(Mr. WELLER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WELLER. Mr. Speaker, let me remind some of my good friends on the other side of the aisle in listening to the rhetoric that one of their own appointees over at the Department of Health and Human Services, the official actuary that is respected by both, says, "The proposal would have no financial impact on the HI trust fund. Program income would not be affected, and the estimated year of exhaustion for the HI trust fund would continue to be 2025, as under present law." So that is all rhetoric and not fact.

My colleagues, we are talking about lowering taxes on senior citizens. When my friends on the other side of the aisle, and I point out that every Republican voted no on placing this tax on senior citizens in 1993, when they voted to impose this new tax of 85 percent on Social Security benefits, it only affected 5 million seniors. They figured it was not a big deal. But today it now punishes or soon will punish almost 17.5 million Social Security beneficiaries.

When the tax took effect in 1994, one in 10 seniors was punished by this tax. Today one in five is punished. And by the year 2010, one in three will be punished by this tax.

It is all about fairness.

When Congress and the President so long ago created this, they said that if they pay in, they are going to get their benefits as part of the deal. Let us make sure they get their part of the deal.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PEASE). The gentleman from California (Mr. MATSUI) has $1\frac{1}{2}$ minutes remaining, and the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW) has $1\frac{1}{2}$ minutes remaining and the right to close.

Mr. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, I yield the balance of my time to the distinguished gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL), the ranking Democrat on the House Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, there is some talk on the other side that there will be no financial impact on the Medicare trust fund. And this would be so if they could be trusted to put the money back in.

The question has to be, did they take out the money in the first place?

I do not think in their closing statement that anyone on that side of the aisle can deny that if we remove the tax that the Medicare trust fund will be short $10 billion a year. But they say not to worry; trust us.

Have they not played three-card Molly? Do they not know that once we show them what is under the shell, if it is not there, we will go to the general revenues and put it back? And that is what makes it having no financial impact.

I would ask the question, what happens if the Congress decides that it has a priority? Maybe we want to take care of prescription drugs. Maybe we want to take care of the Patients' Bill of Rights. Maybe we want to protect the small businessperson or the farmer.

Suppose the speculated surplus does not show up. One thing we know that my colleagues cannot deny is that there is an irreplaceable source and stream of income coming into the Medicare trust fund now.

What they are saying is, let me just take it out and give relief to one-fifth of them at the expense of the other things we may want to do.

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the remaining time.

Mr. Speaker, we have this afternoon talked about from the other side of the aisle just about everything except the taxpayer, just about everything except what is really going on here.

What we are trying to do is to give some relief to our senior citizens, who, incidentally, the monies that they put into the Social Security trust fund they were taxed on. These were not pretax dollars. The employee's portion is taxed. So why should we have to say it is taxed when they put it in, and it is taxed when they take it out? That is wrong.

The whole idea of having this thing taxed on only 50 percent is because that was the monies that were put in by the employer that were not ever taxed to the employee. We need to go back to that.

A lot has been said about what are we going to do if we are running the Government at a deficit. Well, I have to remind my colleagues from the other side of the aisle, when this tax was put in place, this was in 1993, the Democrats were in charge of the House of Representatives, and there was a deficit. There was a deficit every year. The money was found. It came out of the general revenue stream.

That is exactly where it is going to come from now. We are just not pinpointing that it is going to come out of a tax that is morally wrong. It is wrong to tax people on getting their own money back.

Mr. Speaker, I urge a "no" vote on the Democratic substitute, and I would ask for a "yes" vote on the bipartisan tax relief bill.

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in opposition to H.R. 4865, the Social Security Benefits Tax Relief Act. Although I do not support this bill, I fully support providing much needed tax relief to recipients of Social Security benefits. For this reason, I will be voting for the Democratic substitute proposal.

Mr. Speaker, it is imperative to our national strength and prosperity that tough and prudent fiscal strategies be pursued. These strategies have brought this country the largest surpluses and longest economic expansion in history. Unfortunately, on the basis of inherently uncertain projections about the future surplus. members on the other side of the aisle have chosen to spend the entire surplus on one tax break at a time.

Mr. Speaker, this bill is another in a long series of fiscally imprudent tax cuts passed in this session of Congress which drain our hardearned budget surplus and put at risk any chance of extending the life of Social Security or Medicare. Specifically, this bill threatens to raise interest rates, slow investment and productivity growth, increase dependence on foreign capital, and compromise our flexibility to deal with potential future budgetary problems. Moreover, this Republican proposal provides relatively few benefits for the vast majority of our working families.

H.R. 4865 will provide about as much relief to the top 1 percent of taxpavers as to the millions of working people who make up the bottom 80 percent of taxpayers. Although we are currently in an era of surpluses, we should not forget that Medicare's fiscal future is troubled. Part A will begin running cash deficits again by 2010, according to the most recent trustees report. Beyond 2010, its cash deficits will grow ever larger, totaling nearly $7 trillion by 2040. Despite these looming deficits, the Republican bill would weaken, rather than strengthen, Medicare financing by depriving the program of roughly $100 billion in dedicated revenues over the next ten years and $464 billion through 2024. Without this income, Medicare Part A will go into the red again on a cash basis 5 years earlier than under current law. This bill will only threaten the viability of the Medicare Program for future generations, but it will force an even greater squeeze on hospitals and other health care providers dependent upon Medicare payments.

Mr. Speaker, this bill will cost more than $100 billion over 10 years. Instead of devoting these resources toward a Medicare prescription drug benefit that would benefit all seniors and eligible people with disabilities, this proposal would leave more than four out of five Social Security beneficiaries with no more than they have today. While a budget surplus exists, we must utilize the surplus wisely to balance targeted tax cuts with paying down our national debt.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to vote for the Democratic substitute and reject the underlying bill.

Mr. COYNE. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to H.R. 4865. This bill would jeopardize the solvency of the Medicare Hospital Trust Fund. The revenue from this tax goes directly into the Medicare Hospital Trust Fund. The loss of this revenue would be about $110 billion over the next 10 years or $13.6 trillion over the next 75 years. If this legislation were to be adopted, absent any other action on the part of Congress, the Medicare Hospital Trust Fund would be depleted 5 years earlier, in 2030 instead of 2035. The sponsors of H.R. 4865 tell us that this bill will not jeopardize Medicare because the legislation will require the Federal Government to make up the $14 trillion difference. This is an easy promise to keep while we have record budget surpluses. But when the Medicare Trust Fund gets close to zero, there may be no surplus. The same projections that have produced the estimates of budget surpluses over the next 10 years project annual deficits in subsequent years. At that point, we will have to reinstate the tax or raise the tax burden on working families to keep Medicare going. Even now, the bill will use up some of the surplus. Consequently, this revenue will be unavailable to use for other programs, such as a prescription drug benefit that will help all seniors. This revenue will also not be available to pay down our national debt, leading to billions of dollars in increased interest payments.

Moreover, this is only one of many tax cuts the Republicans have proposed that will benefit wealthier people in the coming years and which will leave working families in the lurch. These tax cuts will crowd out funding for vital programs such as education, housing and medical research. And, unlike earlier proposed tax cuts, this one directly threatens the solvency of Medicare. I urge my colleagues to vote against this bill because it does not benefit the large majority of seniors and risks the future of Medicare.

Ms. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, it is clear that most of the Members of this institution want to provide help to seniors who receive Medicare and Social Security benefits. There are two proposals that we are considering today which purport to help those seniors. One bill will provide seniors with a tax cut, including the wealthiest in our society . . . which is virtually guaranteed to deplete the Medicare Trust Fund and jeopardize the future of this vital program.

This legislation to repeal the 1993 tax provision will make it more difficult for the government to finance adequate Medicare prescription drug coverage, as well as other improvements that ultimately should be included in the Medicare benefit package, such as catastrophic costs and long-term care. This legislation is a hundred billion dollar raid on the Medicare Trust Fund and replaces the money with an IOU.

Although we are currently in the era of surpluses, we should not forget that Medicare's fiscal future is troubled. After several years of deficits in the 1990s, the Part A trust fund is now running a small cash surplus. This is only temporary, however-Part A will begin running cash deficits again by 2010, according to the most recent Medicare Trust Fund trustees report. Beyond 2010, its cash deficits will grow larger, totaling nearly $7 trillion in the next 40 years.

Despite these looming deficits, this legislation would weaken, rather than strengthen Medicare financing by depriving the program of roughly $100 billion in dedicated revenue over the next ten years and nearly half a trillion dollars in the next 25 years. Without this income, Medicare Part A will go into the red again five years earlier than under current law. This will not only threaten the viability of the Medicare program for future generations, but it will force an even greater squeeze on hospitals and other health care providers dependent on Medicare payments. This revenue loss will be permanent, while the projected budget surpluses are temporary.

Fortunately, we have a more fiscally responsible alternative. The substitute measure also cuts taxes for 95 percent of Social Security beneficiaries. Seniors living alone who make less than $80,000 a year and couples with a joint income of less than $100,000 a year would be eligible for the tax cut. In addition, the alternative maintains the financial integrity of the Medicare program by forcing the Treasury Secretary to guarantee that the funds will be available, before depleting the Trust Fund and providing the tax cut.

Mr. Chairman, if we really care about seniors, we must ensure we maintain the financial stability of Social Security and Medicare, while providing responsible tax cuts. The alternative we are considering today does both and I urge its adoption.

Ms. ESHOO, Mr. Speaker, when I was first elected to Congress in 1992, I promised my constituents that I would do everything in my power to abstain from the spending spree that had run up the largest budget deficit in American history. I consistently voted against irresponsible spending bills and for legislation to balance the budget and bring our fiscal house back to order.

Today, we're reaping the benefits of our fiscal restraint. We are now in our third year of budget surpluses and unprecedented economic progress. The United States is enjoying the longest economic expansion in history, the lowest poverty rate in twenty years, and the lowest unemployment rate since the 1970s. Whereas in 1992 we suffered under the weight of a $290 billion budget deficit, today we are buoyed by a $211 billion surplus.

And yet, it seems that our Republican colleagues have forgotten the lessons we learned just eight short years ago and are spending the surpluses as fast as they come in. Last year, the Republicans tried to enact their tax cut agenda at a cost of $929 billion over 10 years. This sweeping bill failed because it was obvious that such a large package shoved aside all other priorities and put the nation's fiscal health in jeopardy.

This year, Republicans have devised a more clever political strategy of breaking up their tax agenda, allowing them to focus attention on the same attractions of each part of their agenda while obscuring the total cost. But the cost is the same. So far this year, Republicans have pushed through tax cuts that would eat up $739 billion of the budget surpluses. When you add this to other tax cuts and spending increases they vow to bring up, the Republicans will have spent $88 billion more than is available once Social Security and Medicare are protected.

Today, Congress is on its way to invading Medicare as well. While we are currently in an era of surpluses, we must not forget that Medicare's fiscal future is troubled. According to the most recent Trustees Report, Part A will begin running cash deficits again by 2010, totaling nearly $7 trillion by 2040.

Despite these looming deficits, the Republicans have introduced yet another tax cut that robs the Medicare program of roughly $100 billion in dedicated revenues over the next ten years and $464 billion through 2024. The Social Security Benefits Tax Relief Act (H.R. 4865), repeals a portion of the tax on Social Security benefits thereby eliminating a dedicated source of revenues to the Medicare Trust Fund. Without this income. Medicare Part A will go into the red again five years earlier than under current law. The result will be a significant threat to the viability of the Medicare program for future generations, and an even greater squeeze on hospitals and other health care providers dependent upon Medicare payments.

H.R. 4865 purports to replace the lost revenue to the Medicare trust fund from the projected on-budget surplus. However, while the revenue loss to the Medicare trust fund is guaranteed, the budget surplus exists only in projections and faces many other competing demands. Furthermore, the revenue loss to the Medicare trust fund would be permanent, while the projected budget surpluses are temporary. Once the projected surpluses run out, the Medicare trust fund will be left with a large hole unless a future Congress is willing to raise taxes or cut other programs.

Perhaps most egregious, like other Republican tax cuts, H.R. 4865 only benefits the wealthiest Americans. The National Council of Senior Citizens calls H.R. 4865 "an irresponsible political gesture to upper income persons which will have severe consequences for the Social Security system and the solvency of the Medicare Part A trust fund." The massive amount of general revenues that would be consumed by this bill will leave fewer resources extending the solvency of the Medicare program and creating a Medicare prescription drug benefit.

The Democratic substitute amendment, on the other hand, provides the same tax relief as the Republican bill but offers it to more seniors at about half the cost. Whereas the Republican bill only benefits the wealthiest 20 percent of Social Security recipients, the Democratic substitute would provide tax relief to 95 percent of seniors. Rather than eliminating the tax for all seniors, the Democratic substitute keeps the tax in place for only the very wealthiest—singles earning more than $80,000 and couples earning more than $100,000 a year.

The Democratic substitute is also more fiscally responsible. Unlike the Republican bill, the Democratic substitute protects Social Security and Medicare by conditioning the tax cut on a certification from the Secretary of the Treasury that the on-budget surplus is sufficient to replenish the lost tax revenue. Thus, it can't go into effect in years in which there is not enough of an on-budget surplus to replace lost revenues.

We are at a historic "fork in the road." If we continue down the path of irresponsible tax cuts for the wealthy, there will be nothing left for shoring up Medicare and Social Security, enacting a Medicare prescription drug benefit, or paying down the public debt. I urge my colleagues to vote yes on the Democratic substitute and no on the underlying bill. Congress must reverse its course and get back on the road to fiscal discipline.

Mr. WELDON of Florida. Mr. Speaker, the "Social Security Benefits Tax Relief Act of 2000" (H.R. 4865) repeals the tax on Social Security benefits created in the 1993 Clinton-Gore budget plan. This tax costs more than 8 million seniors an average of $1,180 a year.

In 1993, Vice-President GORE cast the Senate tie-breaking vote to join with the Democrat-led House that imposed this tax on Social Security. I believe seniors should be able to keep their hundred bucks a month instead of having to send it to Washington.

It's time to repeal the tax on Social Security to let Florida's seniors keep more of the benefits they earned. In an era of budget surpluses, it's wrong to punish seniors with a tax that's outlived its purpose. Social Security checks shouldn't arrive in the mailbox with a bill from the IRS attached.

I am committed to improving the lives of Florida's seniors. Earlier this year, I voted to eliminate the Social Security earnings limit and in favor of a prescription drug benefit. These were done in addition to ending the 40-year Democrat raid on the Social Security trust fund

I am deeply disturbed that the President refuses to help America's seniors and is indicating that he will veto this tax equity bill for our senior citizens.

Mr. REYES. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong opposition to this bill, another in a series of fiscally irresponsible tax cuts. Our current budget surplus has put us in a position to extend the life of Social Security and Medicare, to ensure that we are able to provide a Medicare prescription drug benefit, invest in education, and pay down the national debt.

But the Congressional majority's strategy is not to extend the solvency of Social Security or Medicare by even one day or address other important domestic issues like education. They would rather use uncertain projections about the future surplus to provide irresponsible tax breaks. According to the Department of Treasury, the Congressional majority's tax schemes provide relatively few benefits for the vast majority of working families.

As a result of the tax cuts passed this year, the average family in the top 1 percent would receive a tax cut of over $16,000—compare that to the $220 tax cut that middle income families received. We should provide fair and equitable tax cuts that allow working families to send their kids to college, pay for child care, and care for sick family members while still strengthening Social Security and Medicare and paying down the national debt. President Clinton's tax cut package would have done just that.

In contrast, this reckless bill will deprive Medicare of roughly $100 billion in dedicated revenues over the next ten years and half a trillion by 2024. This bill attempts to solve that problem by replacing the lost revenue with money from the projected surplus. There is no guarantee that we will have years of budget surpluses to work with and replace the lost revenue. Pass this bill and we are guaranteed to drain resources from the Medicare trust fund.

Mr. Speaker, I urge all of my colleagues to stop playing politics and focus on good policy.

Mr. COX. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 4865, long overdue legislation to repeal the 1993 Clinton-Gore tax increase on Social Security beneficiaries.

The media has begun calling this tax the "Gore Tax" because Vice President AL GORE cast the tie-breaking vote in the Senate needed to send the bill to President Clinton for his signature.

The Gore Tax impose a 70 percent income tax rate increase or retired couples making as little as $22,000 each, and single retirees earning as little as $34,000.

These low-income senior citizens don't qualify in anyone's book as "rich." In fact, they earn barely enough to keep them out of the government's official definition of "poverty." Yet AL GORE cast the deciding vote to significantly increase taxes on these low-income senior citizens.

How costly has this tax increase been? This year, the Gore Tax will hit 10 million retirees, and force each of them to pay an average of $1,200 in additional taxes. This tax burden is made all the more devastating because of the fact that so many low-income seniors live largely on their Social Security income.

The Gore Tax is not only terrible tax policy because it unfairly burdens low-income Americans. It's also bad tax policy because it discourages Americans from working and saving for retirement.

Instead of encouraging hard work and thrift, the Gore Tax severely punishes Americans who set money aside for retirement—and retirees who want to stay productive and in the workforce during their golden years—by forcing them to pay thousands of dollars more in income taxes.

This tax is indefensible. I urge my colleagues to vote for H.R. 4865, so that we can at long last repeal the Gore Tax and its unfair and punitive burden on America's senior citizens.

Mr. CROWLEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of the Social Security Benefits Tax Relief Act of 2000. This legislation will reduce the tax burden on millions of older americans who are enjoying their golden years.

In 1993, the Congress and the Administration recognized that in order to shore up our nation's Medicare system and pay down the ballooning deficits caused by the fiscal imprudence of President George Bush, some unpopular decisions would need to be made.

In 1993 and today, I salute the actions of the Democrats in Congress and President Clinton to address the pressing needs of Medicare and our nation's budget concerns. Six years later, thanks in large part to the first Clinton administration budget and the brave Democratic Party that took the right, yet politically unpopular path, our nation is enjoying unparalleled economic growth.

Budget surpluses are projected for the next decade, unemployment rates are at their lowest peacetime rate in American history, homeownership is at a record high, most importantly, and every community in America is benefiting from increased wealth and job creation.

This is a far different picture from the dark days of the last Republican Administration of President George Bush. President Bush provided our nation with high debts, a bankrupted Medicare system and high unemployment rates.

Today, thanks to the great work and keen insight of President Bill Clinton, Vice President AL GORE and the Democrats in Congress, we now enjoy a budget surplus that continues to grow beyond even the wildest and most optimistic scenarios of every credible economist regardless of ideology.

These funds allow Congress the ability to scale back the heavy tax burden on working families, senior citizens and small businesses. For that reason, I am pleased to rise in support of this legislation to provide sensible tax relief to American seniors.

This bill will ensure that those middle class seniors, many of whom also benefited from the repeal of the Social Security Earnings Limit earlier this year, will now be able to keep more of their income.

I am pleased to work in a bipartisan way today to support this legislation and provide the seniors of my Congressional district in Queens and the Bronx, a tax cut on average of $1200 a year.

In the best traditions of the Democratic Party, I will support this legislation to improve the quality of life for our nation's seniors.

Mr. CRANE. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this important legislation to relieve some of the tax burden on our seniors by reversing the mistake made in 1993 by the Clinton/Gore Administration and the Democratic-led Congress.

The 1993 Clinton/Gore tax increase, raising the percentage of some senior's Social Security benefits subject to income tax from 85 percent to 50 percent, was not only unfair to seniors, but it was also just plain bad tax policy. Under current law, when an employer collects his half of the Social Security tax, the employer is allowed to deduct that amount from gross income as an expense. The individual paying payroll tax, however, is subject to individual income tax on the amount of payroll tax directly subtracted from his paycheck. In other words, half of the individual's total payroll tax contribution is subject to tax and half is not. The correct policy then, when considering taxing Social Security benefits, is to tax half the benefits. That assures that we achieve a basic goal of sound tax policy—tax all income once, but only once. The bill before us would once again lower the percentage of income subject to tax back down to 50 percent, where it belonas.

The 1993 tax did much more than raise taxes on the elderly. It effectively reduced seniors' Social Security benefits. Of course, Clinton/Gore and the Democratic Congress didn't cut seniors' benefits by changing the benefit formula. But raising the tax on seniors' benefits certainly had the same effect. Every month, millions of seniors who rely on Social Security benefits had less money to spend. It makes no difference to them whether they have less money because their benefits are cut or because the tax on the benefits is higher. The bottom line—they have less money.

Mr. Speaker, President Clinton is quoted as saying yesterday, "I say to Congress: Stop passing tax bills you know I'll veto."

I say to President Clinton, stop vetoing the tax cut bills we are sending you. You threaten to veto a bill to relieve the patently unfair marriage penalty. You threaten to veto a bill to repeal the grossly unfair and immoral death tax. Now you threaten to veto a bill to relieve an unfair burden on seniors. Mr. President, this is not your money. Let us return it to the people who earned it.

The Administration likes to talk about all the total cost of the bills we have sent to him or plan to send. That is a little like adding up the total cost of all the items on a restaurant's menu. Mr. President, we are hoping that a couple of these tax cut bills at least will look good enough for you to sign them. Then we can start talking bout the total cost. Until you do, we will continue sending up dishes for your approval. Until you do start signing them, it is the height of folly to talk about their total cost as though you had signed them.

Mrs. JOHNSÓN of Connecticut. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased that we are bringing legislation to the floor today to repeal this unfair tax on seniors. Our senior citizens have worked their entire lives to build the savings that will enable them to enjoy a safe and secure retirement. The 85 percent tax created in the 1993 Clinton budget penalizes those seniors who have done what we are encouraging them to do, build their own personal savings for retirement.

The worst thing about this tax is that the income levels that trigger it have not changed since the law was enacted—even though the cost of living has certainly increased since then. Therefore, more and more people become affected by it each year. According to the Congressional Budget Office, this year 10 million seniors (that's one out of every five seniors) will have to pay additional taxes, and by 2010 that number will reach 17 million—or one-third of seniors. With the income levels at $32,000 for individuals and $44,000 for couples, this is not a tax on upper income seniors—it is a tax on middle income seniors. And in Connecticut it hits seniors even harder because of our higher cost of living.

In a letter to Chairman ARCHER, the AARP expresses its concerns about the tax. Their letter states: "The 1993 tax may serve to undermine the program. By adding additional taxes to an already progressive Social Security benefit formula, these changes risk undermining the widespread public support the system enjoys."

This tax was created as part of a deficit reduction program. Now that we are enjoying unprecedented budget surpluses, we owe it to our seniors to repeal the tax. In 1993, the deficit was $255 billion. For fiscal year 2000, the surplus is $233 billion. This tax helped create that surplus, so we owe it to our seniors and working Americans to repay the favor.

Repealing this increase is a matter of fairness and will help senior citizens, especially those with moderate incomes, keep more of their money in their own pockets. I urge my colleagues to support this piece of critical tax relief.

Mrs. BIGGERT. Mr. Speaker, I cannot believe what I am hearing from the other side of the Chamber today.

When the Democrat-controlled Congress passed this tax increase on seniors in 1993, they told them that the purpose was deficit reduction. It was to balance the federal budget.

Now, seven years later, there is no federal budget deficit. There was no federal budget deficit last year. There will be no budget deficit next year or the following year. We look ahead, and as far as any projection ventures forward, there will be no federal budget deficits

Seniors know this. Everyone in this Chamber knows this. So who are we attempting to fool?

And why do we continue to force this budget deficit reduction tax on America's seniors when there is no budget deficit?

The answer is that we owe it to our seniors to repeal this onerous tax. For seven years, ten million American seniors have paid more than their fair share to reduce federal budget deficits. They have succeeded.

The very least we now can do is to repeal this tax.

To do less would be to engage in the worst kind of bait-and-switch tactic.

What are we to say? In 1993, the tax was needed for deficit reduction. In 2000, there is no budget deficit so it is needed for spending? That's dishonest and unfair.

Let's face it, this Democrat substitute is little more than an attempt to do justice for some and not for others.

Let's do the right thing for all seniors—the honest thing—and repeal this tax.

Mr. PASTOR. Mr. Speaker, we are very fortunate to be enjoying the prosperity and fiscal opportunities that come with a strong economy. Americans should be proud of the productive labor force and technological achievement that have led to current and projected budget surpluses. But we must not lose sight of the big picture and squander our opportunity to use current prosperity to safeguard our future.

The tax cut we are debating today does not consider the big picture. This bill would reduce funds that could be used to strengthen the Social Security system for the benefit of our children and grandchildren. It would jeopardize our ability to extend the life of the Medicare trust fund and create a Medicare drug benefit that is long overdue. Whey would we do this at a time when my constituents in Arizona, and Americans across the country, have made it clear that strengthening Social Security and Medicare are among the highest legislative priorities for American families?

Republicans have argued that this proposal benefits seniors by reducing their tax obligation. In fact, this bill is a break for only the top 16 percent of Social Security beneficiaries and a threat to the majority of seniors who favor a Medicare drug benefit. It is a threat to the future of younger generations, who already lack confidence in Congress's ability to ensure that Social Security will be there for them. This bill puts benefits for the wealthiest seniors before the needs of the most vulnerable Americans and puts short term political considerations before investment in our Nation's future.

I cannot support this irresponsible legislation. I am tired of the Republican leadership wasting what little time we have on proposals to benefit the wealthiest Americans when there is so much important work left undone. Let us do the responsible thing. Let us focus first on reinforcing the social foundation on which this Nation's future security and prosperity will grow.

Mr. HOLT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 4865 to repeal the 1993 tax on Social Security benefits. I have spoken to and heard from many residents in Central New Jersey who want to see this Social Security tax eliminated.

Since coming to Congress, I have stood for targeted and reasonable tax reductions, I have crossed party lines to phase out the estate tax, and to eliminate the marriage penalty. I also support ending the 1993 tax on Social Security benefits.

As I do, however, I want to be sure that this body understands and appreciates the context in which this tax was enacted. The 1993 tax on Social Security benefits was a small part of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1993, which paved the way for significant deficit reduction, and the large budget surpluses we enjoy today. OBRA, particularly the 1993 Social Security tax, was initially unpopular. Many Members in fact lost their seats in this House for voting for it. But it was enacted for a good cause—to reduce the deficit and help shore up the Medicare program.

It's important to remember the status of the Medicare Trust funds at that time. Medicare was in far graver condition than Social Security and was rapidly nearing insolvency. In fact, the 1993 Medicare Trustees report projected that Medicare would become insolvent just six years after the report in 1999. Thanks to the cumulative effects of the 1993 package, however, as well as changes made in 1997, the Medicare program is projected to remain solvent through at least 2025. That is a remarkable turn around, and we have a lot of courageous Members of Congress who are no longer with us today to thank for it.

These measures also helped to create a budget surplus that we could never have imagined just a few years ago. We have gone from budget deficits of over $200 billion per year—deficits which, by the way, included Social Security surpluses—to record on-budget surpluses today.

Now that budget surpluses have been created and are projected to continue into the next decade we can make reasonable and targeted tax cuts.

But we must not get complacent about the condition of Medicare or Social Security, or minimize the challenges that will only increase as the baby boom generation reaches retirement. It is crucial that we maintain the strength and long term solvency of Medicare and Social Security through whatever tax reductions are ultimately passed, following the negotiations that will take place with the leadership of Congress and the White House.

I am satisfied that H.R. 4865 provides a general revenue offset to replenish the loss of revenue from repealing the 1993 tax—revenue that is dedicated to the Medicare trust funds. But this also means that these are now funds that cannot be used to meet the many other varied needs a rapidly aging population presents.

I challenge this Congress not to neglect the other essential needs of our seniors and our communities. While passing meaningful tax relief is essential, I also intend, and hope Members on both sides of the aisle will work with me, in seeing that a real prescription drug benefit is provided under Medicare. This is what our seniors want and are asking for. It is especially critical that a prescription drug benefit be a central part of Medicare and not as an add-on. We know Medicare. Medicare works.

Insurance companies, on the other hand, have not demonstrated a dedication to guaranteeing coverage to seniors, and indeed, their business is not geared towards that goal. Their representatives have made that clear.

I also hope we can begin to work in a bipartisan way to establish a long-term care insurance program for older Americans and persons with severe disabilities. By reauthorizing the Older Americans Act and by creating a tax credit for caregivers, we are making promising strides in that area. But there is a long way to go, and meeting the needs of our rapidly aging population will require our utmost attention.

Mr. Speaker, while we take action to provide meaningful tax relief here today, we must not lose sight of the larger overall need to maintain our budget surplus and continue to preserve Medicare and Social Security for today's and tomorrow's workers.

Mr. REYES. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the Democratic substitute and in strong opposition to the fiscally irresponsible Republican tax scheme. The substitute would raise from $44,000 to $100,000 the annual income level at which couples must include 85 percent of their Social Security benefits as taxable income. By raising these levels, the substitute would provide the same tax relief as in the reported bill for approximately 95 percent of beneficiaries.

The tax reductions in the Democratic bill would be contingent on a year-by-year certification by the Secretary of the Treasury that there are sufficient surpluses outside the Social Security and Medicare programs to make the general fund transfers necessary to reimburse the Medicare Trust Fund. Thus, before the Medicare Trust Fund is depleted, the substitute guarantees that the budget surpluses exist to ensure these appropriations will actually be made to the Medicare Trust Fund to replace the lost revenue.

Our proposal can only go into effect in years in which there is enough of an on-budget surplus to replace lost revenues in the Medicare Trust Fund. The Republican bill makes no such guarantees and merely relies on continued surpluses year after year. Furthermore, the Republican bill requires huge transfers of federal funds from general revenues into Medicare. It takes money out of one pocket and puts it back in the other pocket. These transfers jeopardize the program's solvency and could result in increased Medicare premiums.

Our seniors deserve better than political games. I urge all of my colleagues to vote for the Democratic substitute and against the risky Republican tax scheme.

Ms. KILPATRICK. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong and stringent opposition to H.R. 4865, the Social Security Tax Benefits Relief Act. First and foremost I must say that I am for providing tax relief to our nation's citizens. There are seniors and others in our country who are clearly in need of tax relief. However, any tax proposals that we consider should not solely benefit those at the top of the economy who are least in need of a tax break. We, as Democrats, have tried to structure targeted tax proposals that will benefit those in the middle and lowest rungs of the economic latter.

This bill will benefit only the top one-fifth of Social Security beneficiaries. While many of these people are not rich, this regressive distribution of the benefits from the GOP bill is consistent with favor-of-the-wealthy trend of previous Republican tax cuts. According to the Department of Treasury, roughly half of the tax cuts passed by the House this year will go to the wealthiest 5 percent of households. The other 95 percent will share the other half.

I say to those listening, do not be fooled by the misleading title given this legislation. This bill will jeopardize all that we have done to ensure that the budget is balanced in a manner that protects the longevity of Social Security and Medicare while also leaving enough aside to provide the prescription drug benefit that our nation's seniors need. This tax cut will raise the aggregate amount of tax expenditures of nearly $740 billion—rivaling the amount they attempted to pass in the 1999 tax-cut bill vetoed by the president ($792 billion). This amount threatens to liquidate nearly all of the projected budget surpluses.

This latest Republican tax proposal while appearing to be a straight forward tax cut for some Social Security beneficiaries is truly a dangerous scheme that particularly threatens the solvency of medicare. The revenues collected from this tax go directly to fund the Medicare Hospital Trust fund. By depriving Medicare of this dedicated revenue stream, Republicans would create a massive, unfunded promise that explodes in the future years. Medicare actuaries estimate cumulative losses at roughly $13.7 trillion in dedicated revenue over the next 75 years. Republicans would replace a sure-thing with an IOU to be drawn on the trust fund forever. Nothing guarantees that Congress will offset this cost elswehere in the budget, or curtail other tax cuts enough to guarantee this money will be there for Medicare.

Like all of the other tax cuts that the Republicans are pushing through, they are doing so knowing that this measusre is clearly headed to the long line of other bills that the President has indicated he will veto. Instead of working with the President to come up with bipartisan tax legislation the Republicans insist on pushing through thoughtless and unwise tax legislation that threatens Medicare and other important programs only to score political points in an election year. In 1995, this very same drill brought the government to a shutdown. In subsequent years, in an effort to thwart the budgetary goals of the President, they have done the same thing they are doing now, only to see their efforts stall under the weight of presidential vetoes.

It is frustrating to vote against measures like this that proclaim to do good while failing to meet the clear needs of our citizens. Given the frustration we all feel here in Congress, I extend a plea to those on the other side to discontinue their efforts to score political points. I urge Members on both sides of the aisle to reflect on the successes and failures that we have experienced here during the course of the District work period, so that when we return, we can come together and address the pressing needs of the American people.

Mrs. MEEK of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to revise and extend my remarks. I thank the Gentleman from New York, Mr. RANGEL, for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong opposition to this legislation. This is a bad bill which moves us in the wrong direction. It fundamentally weakens Medicare at a time when we still need to be protecting and strengthening it. If the majority party believed in truth in advertising instead of putting attractive names on awful bills, they would call this bill "The Sunset on Medicare Act". For we surely put Medicare at enormous risk by making it more dependent on annual appropriations.

If there is anyone who believes that we are strengthening Medicare by eliminating a dedicated source of $117 billion in revenues over the next ten years ($13.7 trillion over the 75 year solvency period for the program) and substituting general revenues, please see me when this debate concludes and I'll sell you the Brooklyn Bridge! No one can seriously assert that Medicare is made more secure by replacing a dedicated tax source with a promise to make payments to Medicare from the General Fund.

Relying on annual appropriations from general revenues to make up the shortfall that this legislation will create is a very dangerous strategy, particularly given the Majority's insistence on adopting huge, reckless tax cuts for the wealthy, rather than targeted tax relief for the middle class.

This bill will jeopardize our ability to add a much-needed prescription drug benefit to Medicare and will endanger other important domestic priorities. It is especially irresponsible because we know that the start of retirement among the Baby Boomer generation will cause the number of people using Medicare to double from 40 million to 80 million between now and 2030.

We know that good economic times do not last forever. What will happen when there is a downturn in our economy or if the Republicans push through even larger tax cuts? The general revenue "promise" to replace funds taken from Medicare will prove to be worthless.

We have a solemn responsibility to strengthen and secure Medicare and Social Security not just for today's beneficiaries, but for future beneficiaries. I will not be a party to weakening Medicare when we need to strengthen and protect it. Reject this irresponsible bill.

Mr. McCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of H.R. 4865, the Social Security Benefits Tax Relief Act of 2000. This legislation would repeal the burdensome tax on Social Security benefits imposed by the Clinton-Gore Administration back in 1993. The Administration created this proposal during a time when the nation was attempting to reduce the Federal budget deficit, but now that we enjoy a plentiful surplus, it is only right to repeal this unduly high level of taxation on our senior citizens.

Mr. Speaker, in 1993, the Clinton-Gore Administration imposed the Tier II tax on up to 85% of Social Security benefits. Consequently, an individual recipient whose income exceeds $34,000, and a married couple whose income exceeds $44,000, find themselves having 85 percent of their benefits taxed rather than the previous 50 percent of their benefits. This abrupt change in law hurt our senor citizens who have worked hard toward a fiscally-responsible retirement plan based on the 50 percent taxable benefit level. The Administration claims it was necessary to increase this taxable base in 1993 to reduce the Federal budget deficit, but that deficit is gone now and it is time to return to the nation's senior citizens the money that is rightfully theirs.

This is not just a tax on the rich, but rather, a tax that hits the average senior citizen. In this year alone, 10 million beneficiaries are affected by this tax. By 2010, over 17.5 million beneficiaries will be affected. For seniors who fall within range of this income threshold, a great disincentive was created in 1993 for seniors to continue to work or save additional money for fear that an increase in income would cause more of their Social Security benefits to become taxable at this outrageous rate.

Not only is the tax burdensome, the income thresholds are not indexed for inflation, which means that more and more lower income people are affected by the tax each year. Although it may have appeared reasonable to tax an individual's income which exceeded $34,000 back in 1993, without indexing that income threshold for inflation, we are continuing to tax more lower income beneficiaries every year.

When many of us signed the Contract With America back in 1994, we pledged to do away with this burdensome Tier II tax by this year. Well, Mr. Speaker, the time has come to follow through with our promise and to allow America's seniors to keep more of their money.

I thank Congressman ARCHER for his efforts in bringing this measure to the floor. I enthusiastically support H.R. 4865, the Social Security Benefits Tax Relief Act of 2000, and encourage my colleagues to vote in support of this important legislation.

AMENDMENT IN THE NATURE OF A SUBSTITUTE OFFERED BY MR. POMEROY

Mr. POMEROY. Mr. Speaker, I offer an amendment in the nature of a substitute. The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will designate the amendment in the nature of a substitute.

The text of the amendment in the nature of a substitute is as follows:

Amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by Mr. POMEROY:

Strike all after the enacting clause and insert the following:

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Social Security Benefits Tax Relief Act of 2000".

SEC. 2. INCREASE IN ADJUSTED BASE AMOUNT CONTINGENT ON AVAILABILITY OF BUDGET SURPLUSES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 86 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to social security and tier 1 railroad retirement benefits) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(g) INCREASE IN ADJUSTED BASE AMOUNT CONTINGENT ON AVAILABILITY OF BUDGET SURPLUSES.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—For any taxable year beginning after December 31, 2000, subsection (c)(2) shall be applied—

"(A) by substituting '$80,000' for '$34,000' in subparagraph (A) thereof, and

"(B) by substituting '$100,000' for '$44,000' in subparagraph (B) thereof.

"(2) CONTINGENCY.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Paragraph (1) shall apply to taxable years beginning in any calendar year only if the Secretary of the Treasury certifies (before the close of such calendar year) that the condition specified in subparagraph (B) is met with respect to such calendar year.

"(B) CONDITION.—The condition specified in this subparagraph is met for any calendar year if the projected on-budget surplus for the fiscal year beginning in such calendar year (determined by excluding the receipts and disbursements of part A of the medicare program) is greater than the projected appropriations that would be required by section 3 of the Social Security Benefits Tax Relief Act of 2000 for such fiscal year if paragraph (1) had been in effect for all taxable years after 2000."

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2000.

SEC. 3. MAINTENANCE OF TRANSFERS TO HOS-PITAL INSURANCE TRUST FUND.

(a) IN GENERAL.—There are hereby appropriated to the Hospital Insurance Trust Fund established under section 1817 of the Social Security Act amounts equal to the reduction in revenues to the Treasury by reason of the enactment of this Act. Amounts appropriated by the preceding sentence shall be transferred from the general fund at such times and in such manner as to replicate to the extent possible the transfers which would have occurred to such Trust Fund had this Act not been enacted.

(b) REPORTS.—The Secretary of the Treasury or the Secretary's delegate shall annually report to the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Finance of the Senate the amounts and timing of the transfers under this section.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 564, the gentleman from North Dakota (Mr. POMEROY) and a Member opposed each will control 30 minutes.

Mr. POMEROY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 3 minutes.

Mr. Speaker, the Democrat substitute provides tax relief for senior citizens that is fiscally responsible and safeguards the Social Security and Medicare trust funds. The amendment provides the same tax relief as the underlying bill to 95 percent of Social Security recipients but reduces the cost of the bill by $43 billion over 10 years. The amendment replenishes the revenue lost to the Medicare trust fund with revenue dedicated from the general fund surplus. Most importantly, unlike the Republican bill, the Democrat substitute protects Social Security and Medicare by requiring the Treasury Secretary to certify that the Medicare and Social Security trust funds are not being used to underwrite this tax relief.

Nearly 80 percent of our senior citizens will not be affected by either the majority or minority substitute. They do not pay this tax. Now, of those that do pay the tax, the Democrat substitute takes care of all but those 5 percent earning as a household over $100,000.

Now, in doing so, we ensure, first of all, 95 percent of all Social Security recipients are covered, but we save over the course of the bill $43 billion. At that point in time, it becomes a matter of priorities. Where do you want these resources to be allocated? Is the highest purpose for this $43 billion the tax relief purpose of households over $100,000, senior citizens with outside income of $100,000 or greater? Or could it be applied more appropriately? For example, as the chart indicates, that $43 billion saved in the Democrat substitute could go a long way to funding very meaningful prescription drug coverage for our seniors.

Finally, the Democrat substitute protects Social Security and Medicare by requiring that before the tax cut takes effect, the Secretary of Treasury must certify that the budget surplus, excluding the Medicare and Social Security trust funds, is sufficient to cover the projected revenue loss.

This is very important. Because the majority proposal, while it talks about transferring general fund revenues to cover the revenue lost in this tax measure, does not address the circumstance of if there are no general fund revenues available.

Look at this third and final chart. Under the projections that we have now put together of their spending and tax plans, they completely exhaust the surplus within the 10-year period of time, and in fact are $88 billion into the red, right back into Republican deficits of old, no funds available for the type of transfer envisioned in their bill.

Now, the Democrat substitute ensures that the Medicare trust fund will never be raided by this measure and therefore is a preferable way.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PEASE). Does the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW) claim the time in opposition?

Mr. SHAW. Yes, Mr. Speaker.

ognized for 30 minutes.

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume. It is interesting to sit here and if you listen to all of the debate, it is very interesting to note, and I will say that the gentleman who was just in the well certainly, I cannot accuse him of any hypocrisy because he was not a part of the debate on the general debate that we just concluded, so my remarks are not in any way aimed towards him.

Like the Republican bill, he depends on general revenue. Unlike the Republican bill, he has a certification as to certain surpluses. As a former CPA and a lawyer, I have great trouble with that. How would I as a CPA advise my clients as to whether or not there was going to be a surplus? How is the IRS going to even prepare the income tax forms that have to be gotten out? And how can we depend upon guesses every year coming from somewhere as to whether there is going to be a surplus? These are all very difficult questions.

I would like to also point out to my colleagues on the other side of the aisle, how did we make these transfers in the past when we did have deficits? Under the 1993 tax bill that we are trying to nullify here, these transfers were made to Medicare in 1993, 1994, 1995, 1996, 1997 and 1998, even though we had deficits in all of those years. We had a deficit in every one of those years. This argument simply does not hold water. When the money is transferred to Medicare, it stays inside the Government. The size of the surplus or the deficit does not really make a difference

I would like to also mention the question as to whether the dedicated stream of income as coming out of the Social Security recipient's hide is any more reliable than the bill that is before us today that this substitute is trying to change. Any Congress can change what the previous Congress did. There is no question about that. But both bills, both the 1993 bill and the bill that is before us today, does not require any congressional action next year. The underlying bill does not require any congressional action next year. It automatically happens unless Congress decides to change the law. So the whole argument that has been made here that somehow Medicare is put at risk under the bill before the House, the principal bill before the House, simply does not hold water at

I think it has gotten to be the question when you do not want to talk about the facts, you talk about something else. Anyone who has practiced law and had any type of trial practice, if the facts are not with you, you talk about something else. That is exactly what has been happening here today.

I compliment the gentleman on his bill. It is certainly an improvement over existing law. But it does not get by the basic test. Is it morally right to tax 85 percent of the benefits that seniors are receiving under Social Security regardless of their income? If it is morally wrong, it is wrong. If it is wrong; it is wrong. This is what we are trying to reverse.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. POMEROY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 30 seconds to make some brief responses. I imagine the gentleman, my friend and colleague, was a very good lawyer from the way he spun his argument back. The fact of the matter is if there is not a risk that there will not be sufficient general fund revenues to flow into these trust funds to make certain the Medicare trust fund is whole, lawyers and accountants would not have any issue advising their clients. The fact of the matter is, as the third chart I showed earlier demonstrates, very conceivably the plans of the majority would erode the surplus and leave this Nation in the position of having money come from Social Security or Medicare. That is what the substitute wants to avoid.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. GREEN).

Mr. GREEN of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman from North Dakota (Mr. POMEROY) and the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. CAPUANO) for working together on this substitute. I think it offers a sensible and cost-effective substitute for the Republican plan. I share some of the concern of my Republican colleagues because we do have a surplus. Let us give some of it back. The difference is the Democratic substitute does that. It raises the caps from $34,000 to $80,000 for individuals and from $44,000 per couple to $100,000. It retains some of the money in the Medicare trust fund. But even better, even better than just talking about the tax cuts, these cuts will not be taken out of the Social Security surplus.

We have a problem in Washington because oftentimes we pay for tax cuts and spending with Social Security surplus funds. We are no longer doing that, thank goodness. But in adding even more so better than the Republican bill, we make sure that the Medicare trust fund is whole every year. Instead of just a promise that every year it will go in there, it requires that certification

The issue my colleague from Florida brought up, I do my own taxes and my taxes are not due until April 15. The IRS does not send me my form until the end of December. So I would assume during that year somewhere the certification would be made.

Our proposal will relieve middle-income seniors of the burden of the tax without busting the Federal budget. While I did not agree wholeheartedly with the imposition of the tax, I think cutting it now would have an adverse effect on both the budget and the Medicare program as a whole. Rather than eliminating the tax for all seniors, our legislation again only leaves it to the 5 percent of the wealthiest compared to the 20 percent who pay it now. Let me say it again, that our bill allows the tax cut to take place only if there is a surplus to pay for it in the Medicare trust fund.

Unfortunately, at the rate my Republican colleagues are spending it as my colleague showed, there is not going to be any of that surplus left, so this is just a wink for the Medicare trust fund. Between spending $739 billion in tax cuts plus entitlement and discretionary spending, we will be $88 billion in the hole.

Mr. Speaker, I urge a vote for the Democratic substitute.

Mr. POMEROY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. CAPUANO), cosponsor of the Democrat substitute.

Mr. CAPUANO. Mr. Speaker, I would just like to ask a question. It seems to me from all the debate that I have heard in the last several hours that somehow the tax on Social Security is going to disappear. Well, for those people who understand the tax forms, who still do them, who still read the tax laws, I have one question. Will line 20(b) on the 1040 tax form disappear under your proposal?

I will answer the question. The answer is no. The answer is no. Every single person, every single one who is currently paying taxes on any part of their Social Security will still pay taxes on their Social Security after the Republican proposal. I want to say that again. No single person will go to no tax on their Social Security because of their proposal. Not one.

I also want to turn the clock back just a little bit. To hear it today, the world started in 1993. My God, it is amazing. I have to turn the clock back just a little bit further and go to 1983. 1983 was the year, the first time a single penny on Social Security income was taxed by anybody. This Congress voted it under President Reagan and Vice President George Bush's administration. They voted, along with 97 Republicans. Of those 97 Republicans who voted to tax Social Security, the gentleman from Florida was amongst that group, as was a gentleman named Mr. Cheney from Wyoming. They both voted to tax Social Security income. This bill will not do anything about that tax.

My question is, if that is so good, what is so bad about our proposal to raise the tax level so that only the richest people in America get hit a little bit? If it is so morally reprehensible or morally wrong, to quote several comments made today, what is so morally right about a 1983 tax? The answer can only be, because in 1993 we had Clinton-Gore, and in 1983 we had Reagan-Bush. Somehow Reagan-Bush taxes are morally okay, but Clinton-Gore taxes are morally wrong. That is absurd. That is absurd and it is offensive to say it. I understand if you want to slash the tax, cut the whole thing out. After the proposal is passed today by the Republican majority, there will still be, this year, this year if this is ever passed into law, $13.8 billion still raised on the taxes on Social Security. I do not want anyone at home, including my mother who is here today, to go home thinking that they will not be paying taxes on their Social Security. They will be.

This whole discussion is about politics. That is what it is about. It is about a convention coming up next week. People want to say, We voted to cut taxes. It is not true. It is a misnomer. It is as misleading as anything I have heard.

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I would like to remind the gentleman from Massachusetts that none of the Social Security recipients today would be receiving their benefits if it were not for that 1983 tax bill. It was necessary.

Mr. CAPUANO. If the gentleman will yield, I would not have opposed it. I would have voted with him.

Mr. SHAW. I thought the gentleman was trying to make a point there that needed clarification. I am very proud that we have kept Social Security. Line 20(b) on the tax return, is that the first tier on Social Security, the first tier tax?

Mr. CAPUANO. If the gentleman recalls his tax law, he would understand that they are both combined together on page 25 of the instructions.

Mr. SHAW. I congratulate the gentleman on his sense of humor, but if that is the first tier, the tax on the first tier, then that would certainly remain under both bills. I do not have the tax return. The gentleman obviously has one before him. I might say that I would be glad to take a look at it and discuss the tax return with him.

But I think the question is, and we seem to be losing our way here, the question is whether or not we are going to give tax relief to our seniors.

Back when this tax, this 85 percent tax, was passed by this Congress, there was a deficit of $255 billion. If you go back and look at the argument and the reasons for the tax, it was to get rid of the deficit or to cut down the deficit.

Now, I did not support picking out the seniors and going after them for this, but that is exactly what the majority party did at that time; and that is when the Democrats ran the House.

Now, we do not have a deficit of $255 billion under the Republican House; we now have a surplus of $233 billion, $233 billion. If this tax was for the purpose of getting rid of the deficit or getting the deficit down, now is the time to give it back. This was a tax that was supposed to pay down the deficit. The deficit is gone. We picked out the seniors to do it. We now have a surplus of $233 billion, and it is time to get rid of this tax.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. SMITH).

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, for two reasons, what the chairman says is correct. The increased tax on Social Security benefits passed in 1993 was for the purpose of reducing deficit spending, even though the money of the tax was earmarked for Medicare. As far as its justification for deficit reduction, it is appropriate that we repeal this tax increase. We are now experiencing huge surpluses and make up that money to Medicare. Therefore, to continue to justify this tax for deficit reduction is not appropriate.

Let me offer another reason why it is appropriate to reduce this tax. Higher-income retirees tend to be workers who paid in more Social Security taxes than lower-wage earners; and because the Social Security system is so progressive, higher-income wage earners already receive a much smaller percentage of what they paid in in terms of the benefits they receive. It is not fair in a relative sense that they be additionally penalized by this tax.

Now, it is my opinion that eventually, as we lower the tax rate overall, as suggested by Governor Bush, we should tax Social Security benefits the way we tax private pensions. We now tax private pensions, but we only tax the value of the employer's contribution plus total interest as a percentage of the whole. We do not tax the recipient's contribution. That amount in a typical Social Security pension received from high wage earners is 15 percent. In contrast, an average low wage earner retiree has already received in benefits about seven times his or her after-tax contribution.

So our goal should be to lower the tax overall and to treat those higher-income recipients that are already in a progressive state at a fair tax level related to the lower tax level.

Mr. POMEROY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. TAYLOR).

Mr. TAYLOR of Mississippi. Mr. Speaker, I want to compliment my colleague from Florida, the attorney. He said a couple of things that I think are noteworthy. Number one is when the facts are not on your side, talk about everything but the facts.

My colleague from Florida, the facts are not on your side. I am not a lawyer, but I can read the Treasury report. The Treasury report that came out on June 30 of this year has some extremely interesting facts.

Number one, there is still no surplus, other than the trust funds, and the trust funds raised about $170 billion. Yet we have a cumulative surplus of only about $176. Why is that? Because they stole $11 billion from somebody's trust fund to pay the bills.

The second thing is I have heard over and over we are paying down the debt. Again, according to the Treasury's own figures, the debt has grown by $42 billion of public debt this year. This year we have spent, as of today, $300 billion of the taxpayers' dollars down a rat hole called interest on the national debt. It is not taking care of old folks, it is not educating kids, and we are going to keep throwing money down that rat hole until we pay down the debt, and you do not pay down the debt unless you balance your budget.

Again, this is coming from the Bureau of Public Debt. This is June 30, 1999. The publicly held debt was $5.636 trillion. One year later, June 30, 27 days ago, the public debt is $5.685 trillion, an increase of over $40 billion.

Again, I would say to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW), I am not a lawyer, but I can read.

To the point: Where did they steal the $11 billion? Did it come out of Social Security? Did it come out of Medicare? Did it come out of the approximately $10 billion of the Military Retiree Trust Fund? Because they certainly stole $11 billion from somebody's trust fund under this charade of a balanced budget.

I urge Members to reject the Republican proposal. I urge this generation of Americans that has run up $5 trillion of the $5.7 trillion worth of debt which has been incurred in our lifetimes, let us pay our bills and not stick our kids with them.

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman in the well, was he speaking for or against the substitute?

Mr. TAYLOR of Mississippi. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SHAW. I yield to the gentleman from Mississippi.

Mr. TAYLOR of Mississippi. Mr. Speaker, I will not be able to support either of them, because I think this generation ought to pay its bills.

Mr. POMEROY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. KIND).

Mr. KIND. Mr. Speaker, I thank my friend for yielding me time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of the substitute and in opposition to the final bill. I feel that the substitute is much more fiscally responsible than the attempt in the final version to basically bet the entire budget surplus on the hopes that the surplus money projected out in 10 years will in fact materialize. But I have always felt that, given the current economic numbers, we can provide some tax relief to Americans and working families, and even to seniors who need it, as long as it is done in a fiscally responsible way.

The substitute creates an exemption for individuals up to $80,000, up to $100,000 for married couples, and will exempt 95 percent of seniors in our country, and yet it will not bet the entire farm by the complete elimination that the final bill calls for.

I also think it is fair to do it that way as well, because when you look at current earnings and what they are taxed on for FICA purposes, it phases out at roughly $76,000 in the current year. That means those earning more than $76,000 no longer pay FICA taxes, yet working families below that level are taxed on every dollar that they earn.

The other point that I want to make, Mr. Speaker, is this: this body has never been accused of being consistent philosophically on a lot of issues, and we are not in this instance. Earlier this summer when gasoline prices were spiking around the country, there was a lot of talk and excitement out here about repealing the Federal gas tax to provide relief. But when people realized that that would mean taking money out of the Highway Trust Fund to do it, a dedicated revenue stream, they said, oh, no, no, we cannot do that, we should not touch that, because it will jeopardize roads and highways and bridges.

Now, all of a sudden, when we have a dedicated revenue stream that goes into Medicare and a tax cut proposal is on the table to withdraw funds from that, that seems to be acceptable. That seems to be okay if we do it, even if it may jeopardize the long-term solvency of the Medicare program.

We could not do it with the gas tax repeal, which is a more regressive tax than what we are talking about in this instance, but we are willing to jeopardize the Medicare program under virtually the same exact circumstances.

At least the substitute ensures that surpluses in fact materialize to pay for the revenue shortfall in the Medicare Trust Fund that the tax repeal will create.

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to advise the gentleman who just spoke that neither the bill in chief, H.R. 4865, nor the substitute, puts Medicare in jeopardy. There is a replacement of the money coming out of general revenue under both bills. So I think this is very clear.

Mr. KIND. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SHAW. I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. KIND. We could have done the same exact thing with the gas tax with the Federal Highway Trust Fund, but that was not acceptable because there was a dedicated revenue stream for our infrastructure needs, just as there is right now with the Medicare.

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, reclaiming my time, the gas tax is a use tax to pay for highways. What we are talking about now is Social Security. It is quite different. And to say that it is right to tax some folks and it is wrong to tax other folks on the same type of income and moneys that they are receiving under Social Security, which they have paid for, this is not a welfare program, this is an earned benefit. That is what Social Security is, an earned benefit under which all American employees have been duly taxed at the time it was earned and paid into the Social Security trust fund.

We just simply have a difference of opinion. The gentleman from North Dakota wants to give his tax relief to people under $85,000. We think if it is wrong, it is wrong for all people; and that is an honest disagreement

But neither program, and I want to repeat this, neither the Democrat substitute nor the bill that is mainly under consideration here in any way jeopardizes the Medicare fund. That is a blue herring. It is weird that anybody would really come in to say this, when the bills, both bills, in black and white, specifically state that those funds will be put into the Medicare fund.

Mr. POMEROY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE).

(Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. JACKSON-LÉE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I thank the distinguished gentleman from North Dakota (Mr. POMEROY); and I thank the gentleman from Texas (Mr. GREEN), as well as the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. CAPUANO).

To the distinguished gentleman from Florida, I think the issue is a holistic approach to what we are trying to do. Frankly, I think it is important to distinguish why I am here opposing the Republican plan, and supporting, and gratefully supporting, the Democratic substitute, because I cannot in good faith close hospitals, as they would be closing in my community, or throw senior citizens off of Medicare.

What we have in the substitute is a plan that spends $75 billion, but in refuting the comments by the gentleman from Florida, the substitute ties the funding to certifying that the Medicare Trust Fund is solvent.

If you take all of the expenditures that our good friends on the Republican side of the aisle have been spending on tax cuts, of which the American people have said, I want a solvent Social Security, a solvent Medicare, and I want other opportunities, it is almost $2 trillion. If we are trying to get a prescription drug benefit, debt reduction, Social Security and Medicare solvency, this is what the Republican plan leaves us with, a deficit of $88 billion, meaning that we have no way of paying for those items that are so needed.

Let me share with you the fact that the American Association of Health Plans indicates that at least 711,000 Medicare beneficiaries, your parents, my parents, aunts and uncles, 711,000 Medicare beneficiaries will suffer the loss of their current health benefits in January of 2001 because the Medicare choice programs are being forced to exit.

Let me also share with Members, in my own hometown, Aetna U.S. Healthcare has moved out and seniors are being thrown off these plans. My own concerned citizen called me and said, What do I do? I do not have an HMO choice. So more of them are going to need more Medicare.

It is to shore up this program that I support the substitute, and I would hope that we would support the saving of Social Security and Medicare.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of the Democratic Substitute to H.R. 4865, Social Security Benefits Tax Relief Act of 2000. I am urging my colleagues to support this measure so that all, not just a minuscule fraction, of America's seniors get the benefits they are entitled to.

There is an undeniable Medicare/Social Security crisis in America. HMOs are withdrawing from communities across the nation leaving seniors without adequate choices for health care coverage. One of the biggest insurers in my state of Texas will not renew its contract to offer Medicare+Choice HMO for the entire state. According to the American Association of Health Plans (AAHP), at least 711,000 Medicare beneficiaries will suffer the loss of their current health coverage in January of 2001 because Medicare+Choice plans are being forced to exit the program.

For instance, Aetna U.S. Healthcare (Aetna) has announced its withdrawal from certain Medicare markets in the Houston metropolitan area. Mr. Speaker, that is of serious concerns to seniors in my district that are unaccustomed to shopping around for some other plan that may be less than adequate. Overall, Aetna is withdrawing from 11 states and from certain counties in three other states. These withdrawals will affect approximately 355,000 seniors currently enrolled in Aetna affiliated Medicare plans throughout the country.

Allow me to take a moment to share the frustration that seniors in Texas and elsewhere must go through when seniors are forced out of their health coverage. In 1999, about 53 percent of CIGNA healthCare members disenrolled, 32 percent of Texas Health Choice members disenrolled, and 22 percent of Prudential Health Care members disenrolled. Those seniors had to find alternative means to pay their bills with fewer, sometimes higher expensive alternatives.

A concerned senior citizen recently called my office when she was informed that her Medicare HMO was going out of business. She quickly realized—with some discomfort—that she would have to sign up for another plan. She was confused by the suddenness of this call and understandably concerned about alternative health coverage. She is one of many such seniors that are faced with highly uncomfortable choices.

We need to bring some relief to seniors to offset Medicare's escalating costs and to reduce taxes for our seniors. Many of my colleagues here share the goal of reducing the tax burden on middle-income seniors. I do strongly support a fair repeal of Social Security benefits subject to tax. That is why I strongly support the substitute, which seeks to both reduce the tax burden of all income levels while maintaining fiscal responsibility.

At the same time, we must ensure that Medicare's solvency is maintained. Unlike the Republican proposal, the substitute will not jeopardize Medicare's future. That is absolutely vital to the aged population of our nation that rely on these funds.

Under the current bill, the tax repeal for Social Security benefits only benefits the wealthiest 20 percent of seniors. According to the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities, H.R. 4865 would benefit "higher-income beneficiaries while requiring $14 trillion in general-revenue transfers over 75 years." We need to strengthen and modernize Medicare and Social Security, not weaken it.

The substitute would raise from $44,000 to $100,000 the annual income level at which couples must include 85 percent of their Social Security benefits as taxable income. The annual income level for single Social Security beneficiaries would go from $34,000 to $80,000. By raising these levels, the substitute would provide the same tax relief as in the reported bill for 95 percent of the beneficiaries while continuing a dedicated revenue stream to Medicare.

The substitute would also include the appropriations language in the reported legislation that would provide for general fund transfers to the Medicare Trust Fund equal to the tax reductions under the bill.

It is critical that the tax reductions in the substitute depend on a year-by-year certification by the Secretary of the Treasury that there are sufficient surpluses outside Social Security and Medicare programs to make the general fund transfers necessary to reimburse the Medicare Trust Fund. Therefore, before the Medicare Trust Fund is depleted, the substitute guarantees that the budget surpluses exist to ensure these appropriations will actually be made to the Medicare trust fund to replace the lost revenue.

America's seniors are depending on us to balance the need for tax relief with the need for Medicare solvency. If we come together today, we could bring real relief to our most vulnerable seniors. That is the least we can do for our seniors.

I urge my colleagues to pass the substitute to H.R. 4865.

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to address a statement made by the former speaker, the gentlewoman from Texas. The gentleman from North Dakota can correct me if it is in his bill, but I do not believe either bill has anything to do with any certification that the Medicare Trust Fund is solvent. I believe what the gentleman refers to is a projection as to the surplus, and it does not address any projections as to the Medicare Trust Fund. That is not in either bill, as I understand it.

Mr. POMEROY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SHAW. I yield to the gentleman from North Dakota.

Mr. POMEROY. The certification requirement in our substitute does ensure that the Medicare Trust Fund stays solvent, because it requires, before the effect of the tax in a given year, it requires certification there are sufficient general fund revenues to move into the Medicare Trust Fund.

Without that certification, we believe one could find themselves in a situation where there was no general fund revenue available to move into the Medicare Trust Fund.

Mr. SHAW. Reclaiming my time, I would only point out to the gentleman that general revenue, since 1993, has been going into the trust fund and we did not run surpluses until 1998. So the Republican plan, as the gentleman refers to it, or I refer to it as the bipartisan plan, it keeps Medicare funded. There is no question about that. Neither bill addresses what is paid to hospitals. That is another problem.

The gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE) brought this up and that is a problem across the country. We know that and we are looking at it in the Committee on Ways and Means and elsewhere in this Congress. But I would say that this does not in any way increase the funding for Medicare. It does not affect the benefits one way or another. It does not increase it. It does not decrease it. Both bills completely, do completely, replace the money in the Medicare Trust Fund that is taken out to give the Social Security beneficiaries some tax relief, and I am talking about people between $3,000 and $4,000.

Mr. POMEROY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SHAW. I yield to the gentleman from North Dakota.

Mr. POMEROY. On the point of the gentleman, well made but I take issue with it, that in those years when we ran deficits we transferred money from the general fund, I think a more appropriate way to view what was occurring is trust fund dollars were being spent, dollars from the Social Security trust fund, dollars more appropriately allocated to the Medicare Trust Fund. The majority and minority have found a point of consensus that we do not want anymore to spend the Social Security Trust Fund on anything but Social Security.

We believe, therefore, that this certification requirement requiring before that revenue is lost in a given year, there be general fund revenue available to replace it in the Medicare Trust Fund, is the only way that will ensure the solvency of the Medicare Trust Fund without using funds from either the Social Security or Medicare Trust Fund to keep it whole.

Mr. SHAW. Reclaiming my time, I would say to the gentleman that Medicare is going to be funded whether we get into new deficit spending or if we continue to run a surplus. I think the gentleman realizes that. The Congress is not going to cut Medicare funding. There is a stream coming out of both bills that keeps Medicare whole.

So I think we need to redirect the argument as to who is going to get the tax relief.

There are going to be some people in this House, such as the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. Taylor), and he stated his reason for doing that, that he is going to oppose both bills. He stated his reason for it. That is an honest argument. But to say that one bill is going to run up deficits and the other is not is certainly not the right way to debate so that we can get all the facts out here on the table.

I think we need to redirect the debate back to what is before us, and that is who is going to get the tax relief. That is the only question that is before us at this particular moment as to the substitute.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. POMEROY. I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. ANDREWS).

(Mr. ANDREWS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I thank my friend, the gentleman from North Dakota (Mr. Pomeroy), for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong opposition to the underlying bill and in support of the Democratic substitute. The underlying bill violates a hard-won national consensus on fiscal policy. I thought we had learned and agreed in two ugly decades of moral and economic bankruptcy in this country that we should base our governance not upon what we desire and wish to do but on what we can afford. I thought we had agreed that we should base our decisions not on the money that we hoped will be there but on the funds that we know that are there.

The underlying bill, I believe, violates this consensus because it contributes to a proposition in which the majority says that for every extra dollar that we think we are going to have, we are prepared to spend a $1.05. That consensus in this country would say that, first of all, we should not spend $1.05 for every dollar that is brought in and we should not assume that we are really going to have that dollar because it is based upon guesswork, economic sorcery and a desire for funds that may or may not be there.

I thought we had learned that we cannot have everything. I do not like this tax on Social Security benefits. I do not like the tax on gasoline. I do not like the tax on capital gains. I do not like a lot of things that we levy taxes on. But the one thing I really do not like is telling people they can have everything, higher defense spending, debt reduction, save Social Security, a prescription drug benefit, more spending on education, more spending on health care, and an immense tax cut as well.

The real deficit in this country for 20 years was not in dollars and cents. It was in credibility. Let us not renew that deficit. Let us oppose this bill.

Mr. POMEROY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. GEPHARDT), the minority leader of the House.

(Mr. GEPHARDT asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GEPHARDT. Mr. Speaker, this is a bad piece of legislation and I hope it is not passed, and I hope that the alternative that we have before the House could be passed in its stead.

I think this bill should be renamed. It should be the Savage the Medicare Trust Fund bill, because this bill takes $116 billion out of the Medicare Trust Fund.

Now, why is that a concern? We have been worried for months and years about the Medicare Trust Fund. We have been saying how are we going to get enough money into the Medicare Trust Fund to extend its solvency? This bill will cut its solvency by 5 years.

Now remember that we are in a time when we have the need to do something to put more money out of the Medicare Trust Fund to take care of problems from the 1997 Balanced Budget Act. We all have nursing home operators coming to see us because they do not have enough reimbursement out of the Medicare Trust Fund. Half the nursing homes in the country are bankrupt today because of the cut in reimbursements from the Medicare Trust Fund.

The academic health institutions, I am visited by Washington University and St. Louis University in my town. They have been cut by the Medicare 1997 bill. They want restorations.

The home health care people cannot get out to do the home health care visits and so we are probably, before we leave in this Congress, going to restore funding out of the Medicare Trust Fund for them.

If we put it altogether, the savings from the 1997 Act over 10 years comes to over $200 billion. If we did half in terms of give-backs, that would be as much as this bill costs.

So instead of talking about hitting the trust fund for $100 billion, we are going to hit it for $200 billion. That will cut its solvency 10 years.

So this is the Savage the Medicare Trust Fund Act. That is what it is.

Now, the Republicans say, well, we will put the money back from general revenue. We will put it back from the surplus, the vaunted surplus. If we look at this chart, we can see that if we just take their trillion dollar tax cut, and I will get back to that in a minute, and put realistic spending projections in debt service, we already are running a deficit even with present projections. Let us remember these are projections.

How many have heard of Ed McMahon sending the envelope from Publisher's Clearinghouse saying one may have won $10 million? Has anyone gotten one? If they have, I bet they did not go out and spend the $10 million because it might not show up.

Well, these projections may not come true, and then where will we be? That is why our alternative is contingent on the surplus actually being there, so that each and every year we will figure out whether or not what we hope would happen actually happened.

Now, the other problem we have here is that this is just one more tax cut in the tax-cut-a-week program, which is really dividing the big chocolate cake we had out here last year from the Republicans. They had a $750 billion tax cut. They passed it, I think, probably about this time last year and they were going to go home in August and excite the American people about the great things about this tax cut. Guess what? The President vetoed it and when they came back they have never tried to override the veto.

If it was such a great bill, why did they not try to override the veto? No. Instead, they cut that big cake into pieces and this bill today is one of the pieces. Guess what? The cake is even bigger than it was last year. It is a trillion dollars.

Why, in the name of common sense, would we want to go back to the deficits that we suffered in this country from 1981 to 1995, fifteen years of deficits?

There were times in this House many Members felt like trustees in bankruptcy, $200 billion, $300 billion a year, and passage of all these tax cuts together will take us right back to the deficit spending and the red ink we had in those years.

Finally, let me say we can do tax cuts this year. You bet we can do tax cuts this year, if they are sensible, if they are targeted, if they do not spend so much of the surplus that we get back to deficits.

The President talked about expanding educational opportunities by making tuition deductible, tax relief through a for long-term care, a home health care credit, a child care credit, expanding the earned income credit, helping families save for retirement, relief from the marriage penalty and estate tax for family-owned businesses and farms

Under the President's plan, a family of four making $31,000 a year gets over $350 in tax cuts. Under the Republican chocolate cake that cost a trillion dollars, they get $131. Under the President's plan, a family earning over a million dollars gets about $100 in tax cuts but under their plan they get $23,000 in tax cuts. That is the difference.

You bet we can do tax cuts. We can even do a big piece of this tax cut if we do not give it to the high rollers, as we do not do in our alternative.

You bet we can deliver tax relief to the ordinary families of this country if we were not so obsessed with giving huge amounts of money to the wealthiest families in this country. You bet we can do tax cuts.

Finally, let me say this, I say to my friends in the other party we need to do tax cuts this year. This tax cut, if it is passed and sent to the President, will be vetoed. Their marriage tax penalty, which was focused on the wealthy, will be vetoed. Their estate tax relief, again focused on the wealthiest Americans, will be vetoed.

If one is a family out there today watching this, an elderly family, a middle income family, an average family, working hard every day, they want tax cuts now that mean something to them. In the name of sense, why can we not sit down at a table and work out all of these tax cuts so that the President will sign them, so they fit in a budget that is sensible and prudent and let us get the tax relief for the American people this year?

Vetoes and press releases get us nowhere. Let us pass real tax cuts that will help the hard-pressed working American family.

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, just a couple of observations I would like to make, and it is interesting, the minority leader whom I have a great deal of respect for, it is interesting they talk about how the Republican tax cut is going to savage Medicare but the minority substitute will not when they are both tax cuts. We both replace this money. It is absolutely unbelievable that these arguments are being made this way.

I would like to also point out, there is a lot of things that we should sit down and talk about. I would love nothing better than to sit down and talk to the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. GEPHARDT) and members of the minority party. I would contribute my entire August break to sitting down and talking about Social Security and getting this thing done. I would like to also talk to the President about getting Social Security reform done, and do it this year and do it on this President's watch. I think this would be a wonderful thing. It would be a wonderful legacy that the President can leave, but we are getting stonewalled. We are getting stonewalled from the minority side. This type of legislation is not going to go forward and it is not going to go forward unless the leadership and the Democrat party tears down that wall and lets us proceed.

Neither of these bills, and I will say it again, and this is getting so repetitious, neither of these bills in any way jeopardizes Medicare, it absolutely is not going to happen under either the substitute or the bill, main bill itself. Again, I must point out to the House that the letter that we have received from the administration's Department of Health and Human Services says, and it says very forthrightly, that this proposal will have no financial impact on the Medicare trust fund. It is in writing, it is dated July 18.

Mr. Špeaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. ENGLISH).

Mr. ENGLISH. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the chairman of the Sub-committee on Social Security for his fine work and his defense of Social Security and his defense of the legislation we have before us today.

I rise to oppose the substitute, because the substitute is a last gasp attempt by the minority to preserve a tax increase that they passed when there was a deficit and when they were in the majority, and it was passed with their votes alone. The trouble with the substitute that they offer is very simple. It is an attempt to preserve this tax on Social Security benefits against the day when it is inevitably going to be shifted back on to the middle class.

Why do I say that? It is because they have not indexed their provisions for inflation. They have raised the caps on what this tax is going to apply to, they have expanded the exemption, but at the same time, they have not indexed those changes for inflation.

So over time, we are going to experience the same difficulty that we are facing now. The tax will apply to more and more Social Security recipients, and in the end, I think the only solution to dealing with this Social Security tax that they passed is to repeal it outright. If they want to go after highincome Americans and tax them, there are fairer ways to do it than by taxing Social Security benefits because when we tax Social Security benefits, we violate a principle.

Mr. Speaker, Social Security benefits should not be taxed. We should leave in place a healthy Social Security system and leave the benefits completely free from taxation. It is a priority, if we are going to preserve the Social Security system in the long term, to make sure that those benefits are tax free. By preserving this surtax, that they and they alone passed, they are attempting to leave the camel's nose under the tent. We cannot allow that to happen.

Mr. Speaker, what we are passing today is fiscally sound, it is a recognition of the fact that we are now running gigantic surpluses, and that having run those surpluses, the time has come to roll back some of those taxes that we have imposed on the taxpayer back when we were running deficits.

This is common sense legislation; it is one that enjoys broad support, and I hope that we can have bipartisan support not only to pass this legislation, but also to block the substitute which is a last-ditch attempt to preserve this tax.

Mr. POMEROY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM).

(Mr. STENHOLM asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Florida was correct a moment ago when he said, this is all about who is going to get a tax cut, and that is precisely why I oppose both the substitute and, even more strongly, the base bill. Because the gentleman from Florida knows that the Archer-Shaw bill, for the future of Social Security, requires this $116 billion in order to fund it. Therefore, the tax cut they are perfectly willing to give back today will jeopardize the very plan my Republican colleagues have worked very hard for.

The gentleman from Florida also knows that this gentleman is ready to reach out and to work with my colleagues on the other side on a meaningful Social Security fix. However, I would submit to my colleagues, and why I so strongly oppose this so-called tax cut, is because we are misleading the senior citizens of this country. Because no matter how many times the gentleman from Florida stands on the floor and says nothing in his bill will jeopardize Medicare, how can he say that, when the removal of that will require $14 trillion over the next 75 years to replace it.

Now, the gentleman will say that he is going to replace it, and both bills replace it, but let me point out legislating general revenue transfers to the Medicare trust fund simply to tread water in terms of solvency is a dangerous precedent. I have joined with the gentleman from Florida on his side of the aisle for criticizing our President for proposing that, but now the gentleman brings a bill that transfers $4 billion more than the President has proposed, the gentleman criticizes him, but suddenly today, because this is being advertised as a tax cut, he is for it

Now, it is time for us to get serious about legislating. I wish we could do this, but not before political conventions. I understand that, because the short-term political appeal of this legislation is so great. But anyone that looks at the results and anyone that looks at the facts knows better. We remember the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. TAYLOR) standing here just a moment ago and showing all of us, there is no surplus; when we consider all of the trust funds, there is no surplus.

While I understand the short-term political appeal of this legislation, before you cast your vote I would ask my colleagues to consider the long-term ramifications this bill will have for Social Security and Medicare.

Although we are currently in an era of surpluses, we should not forget that Medicare's financial future is troubled. The legislation before us would weaken, rather than strengthen Medicare financing by depriving the program of roughly $14 trillion in dedicated revenues over the next seventy-five years. This will not only threaten the viability of the Medicare program for future generations, but it will force an even greater squeeze on hospitals and other health care providers dependent upon Medicare payments.

While the revenue loss to the Medicare trust fund is guaranteed, the budget surplus that is supposed to replace the lost revenues exists only in projections and faces many other competing demands. Once the projected surpluses run out, the Medicare trust fund will be left with a large hole unless a future Congress is willing to raise taxes or cut other programs.

Legislating general revenue transfers to the Medicare Trust Fund simply to tread water in terms of solvency is a dangerous precedent that will significantly affect our ability to enact fiscally responsible Social Security and Medicare reform. I have joined with many of my colleagues on the other side of the aisle criticizing the President for proposing general revenue transfers to prop up the Social Security and Medicare trust funds without reforming those programs. I would point out to my Republican colleagues that the general revenue transfers in this bill are nearly $4 trillion more than the total general revenue transfers to the Social Security and Medicare trust funds combined under the President's budget.

We should be working to address the longterm financial problems facing Social Security and Medicare instead of voting on the tax cut of the week. Unfortunately, the majority's plan to use all of the surplus on tax cuts will take away the resources that we will need to finance Social Security reform plans such as the Archer-Shaw bill.

I urge my colleagues to preserve the integrity of the Medicare program and vote against this bill.

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume to respond basically to the comments made by the gentleman from Texas. He is quite right, he has reached out across the aisle in order to solve the problems of Social Security, but I would correct him in one statement. For the next 15 years, the Archer-Shaw plan uses the Social Security surplus to save Social Security. After that, there is a period of time when general revenue does come in. That is 15 years out. I believe the gentleman's plan does depend upon general revenue right from the very beginning.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SHAW. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Speaker, according to the scores of Social Security by CBO, both of our plans require the very same dollars that the gentleman proposed to give back today in the long term. We would not disagree on that.

I would just say, we are consistent. What the gentleman has said about our plan is correct, and what I have said about the Republican plan is correct. Let us not split hairs. We need that money. If the gentleman gives it back today, as he proposes, he is going to do damage to Medicare unless we somehow find the magic money somewhere

I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. SHAW, Mr. Speaker, I reserve

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. POMEROÝ. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. WYNN).

Mr. WYNN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

I rise in strong opposition to the Republican tax cut proposal for the rich, and I rise in support of the Democratic alternative.

There are many of us in this House who would like to roll back taxes on Social Security. The problem is, we do not believe we ought to do it for the very rich or the super rich.

The Democratic alternative quite simply says, we can provide tax relief for Social Security recipients, 95 percent of them, and do it in a fiscally sound manner. It seems to me now the Republicans have to answer the question: why should we give tax relief to people who make over $100,000, those seniors who make over $100,000 and who only represent 5 percent of the senior population. There is a fundamental question of fairness here.

Second, there is the question of fiscal prudency. They take $117 billion out of the Medicare trust fund. They tell us well, we will put this money back by taking money out of the general fund and putting it back into Medicare.

However, as has been pointed out time and time again, we have red ink. We will not have, when they get through tax cutting and spending, we will not have any money to put back into the trust fund. So on that score, this plan simply will not work.

The Democratic alternative, on the other hand, saves $45 billion and makes much more fiscal sense, while still providing sensible tax relief.

Second, there is a question of fairness. We will hear the Republicans talk about seniors who make $34,000, and that is not a lot of money. I agree, but why do they give a tax break to seniors who make $300,000 a year? That does not make any sense.

Finally, I think we ought to consider something really important. Prescription drug coverage. We have 12 million seniors in Medicare who do not have prescription drug coverage, and I assure my colleagues, if we have this tax giveaway as propounded by the Republicans, we will not be able to provide a prescription drug benefit.

So when we analyze the entire package, we get an excessive Republican plan and a fiscally responsible Democratic plan. I urge adoption of the Democratic alternative.

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from California (Mr. CUNNINGHAM).

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Speaker, regardless of what both sides are talking about in terms of numbers and fixes, there should be certain principles. The American people are taxed too high, both on the high end and on the low end of the spectrum.

In 1993, when my colleagues on that side controlled the White House, the House and the Senate, they increased the tax on Social Security in their tax bill. They also spent every single dime of the Social Security Trust Fund, and now they argue that they want to save it. They also spent every dime out of the Medicare trust fund for great socialized spending, which drove this Nation deeper and deeper in debt. In 1994, when we took the majority and said, we are going to save Medicare, and we did, some joined us, but most, including the Democrat leadership, fought everything against a balanced budget and welfare reform and Social Security lockbox, because it eliminated their spending.

The principle is that the American people are taxed too much; we want to give some of their money back. It is not our money.

Mr. POMEROY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Bentsen).

(Mr. BENTSEN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BENTSEN. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to H.R. 4865. I want to make a couple of points.

It is interesting that we are seeing this bill again. This particular tax issue has not been on the House floor since 1995, but the Republicans have decided to drag it out of the barn right before the Republican convention and stick it up there so they can go and campaign on it. They do not care that it drains all of this money out of the Medicare trust fund, and they say, we will make that up out of general revenues, even though we have not done that before with respect to the Medicare insurance trust fund. My colleagues will remember, it was not too many years ago that we were concerned that the trust fund was going to become insolvent. Both sides were trying to figure out a way to do it. Now it is solvent until 2027, I think, and now we are going to drain money out of it.

But the thing that is also ironic about it is, on the budget resolution and I worked on the budget, the Republicans said we only had $40 billion of general revenues to spend on Medicare to improve the Medicare program, and we could not put a real prescription drug program on the floor because we could only spend $40 billion over 5 years

Well, they passed their fig leaf plan that had bipartisan opposition to it, that spent $40 billion, they are talking about doing a Medicare give-back bill that will spend $25 billion, and today they are going to spend $44.5 billion of general revenues of the projected surplus for this tax cut bill that they want to do. They are spending the general revenues more times than we spent the spectrum, and they are doing it under false pretenses. That is the problem with this bill. They drain the Medicare trust fund, they do not stick by their budget resolution; they are doing for purely political reasons, and it is a real shame

Mr. Speaker, I would love to get together with the gentleman from Florida and work through these problems, but nobody is ready to legislate and they are certainly not going to legislate before the Republican convention this next week in Philadelphia, so perhaps we can come back in September, sit down, figure out a sound fiscal policy that both parties can agree upon and give senior citizens prescription drug relief, in addition to tax relief, let us give them relief from rising prescription drugs.

Mr. POMEROY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. CAPUANO), a cosponsor of the democratic substitute.

Mr. CAPUANO. Mr. Speaker, again I rise at the end of the day simply to draw the line as I did earlier about what I think this proposal is, this substitute. The difference between the substitute and the main bill is simple, very, very simple.

We believe in the concept that tax

We believe in the concept that tax cuts should first go to those who need it most. I understand there was a philosophical difference of opinion on that, and I respect that; but that is our belief.

When one has to balance out where pennies should go, where dollars should go, where even billions should go, they should go to those who need it most first. That is why our proposal raises the levels to $80,000 for a single person and $100,000 for married couples.

The second most important part of this bill has to do with how this gets done. Under the Republican proposal, it is a political promise; and that is all it is. Under our proposal, it remains a dedicated revenue stream.

There is a distinct difference, and it is a difference that I generally hear from the majority side. The difference is that people do not trust us. I happen to agree. They do not.

Mr. POMEŘOY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Green), another cosponsor of the substitute.

Mr. GREEN of Texas. Mr. Speaker, to follow up on my colleague from Erie, Pennsylvania, where he said this is the last gasp, this is the last gasp to try to make sure we do not raid the Medicare Trust Fund.

I know the argument from my colleagues on the other side said there is no difference in the substitute and the bill. There is a big difference, that each year that the Medicare Trust Fund, they have to be certified that is there is a surplus that can go into the trust fund, not automatically tax cuts and then hope there is money to pay for the trust fund.

The same would apply to the Social Security Trust Fund, Social Security surplus that we are building up now. We would not use the Social Security surplus to take it out of one senior's pocket and put it in the other for a tax cut. That is just wrong. Our seniors in our country know better than that, Mr. Speaker.

That is why the substitute should be adopted. We need to make sure that we give seniors a tax cut, but we do not raid the Medicare Trust Fund or take it out of their social security surplus that not only they paid but we are all paying.

Mr. POMEROY. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW) have any additional speakers?

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, we had a couple Pages that wanted to speak on this side, but I do not think they would be in order. We have one more speaker and that will be to close.

Mr. POMEROY. Mr. Speaker, I believe we have the right to close.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PEASE). The gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW) has the right to close.

Mr. POMEROY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. DAVIS).

Mr. DAVIS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, we are squandering a golden opportunity here today to preserve this surplus, to protect Social Security and Medicare, and pay down the debt.

As has been mentioned earlier, when one adds up all the spending and tax cuts this House is passing, we have already used up the entire surplus. That is why the argument that general revenues replacing this tax cut protect Medicare simply does not fly on the facts.

Now, what does the motion to recommit represent? It represents an honest statement that there should be a legitimate debate about the extent to which seniors should contribute to the cost of Medicare in the years that go forward.

Yes, I say to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. Shaw), I think one can make some legitimate points about reducing this tax once we have the general revenue in place for Medicare. But that should be part of a broader debate on Medicare reform.

We should not be doing Medicare reform ala carte. We ought to be having an honest and open debate about what fairness represents in terms of the share of the baby boomers like myself are going to pay, what share seniors are going to pay, how we are going to structure prescription drugs we all agree upon. Those are the facts. That is why we should defeat this bill and adopt the motion to recommit.

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I yield the balance of our time to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. ARCHER), chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. ARCHER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time, and I compliment him on the outstanding work that he has done as chairman of the Subcommittee on Social Security to protect the rights of seniors. That is what we are about today.

Those Members who have listened to the rhetoric, if they were trying to be objective, sure must be puzzled because they have heard trillions of dollars thrown around. They have heard they are going to jeopardize Medicare. They have heard all types of comments.

Why? Why is there such desperation on the part of the minority to undo a wrong? Is it because they have got to defend what they did in 1993 even though it was wrong? They will defend it at any cost with whatever rhetoric, because it is basically wrong to tax senior citizens on their Social Security benefits, then say we are doing it to balance the budget. That is the wrong way, if in fact that truly is the rationals

We are here to right a wrong today. So what is the response of the Democrat substitute? To do precisely what we do in our base bill in transferring general Treasury revenues into the Medicare Trust Fund. Now, if they really believed in the argument that they have made against our base bill that it jeopardizes Medicare, then why are they doing the very same thing? All they are doing is leaving the tax in place, continuing the wrong, helping some people and saying, well, we are for targeted tax relief. This is targeted tax relief. But the Democrats' idea of the target is leave the bull's eye out. We do not want to truly score for the right thing.

If one was going to find a tax and claim we need this to balance the budget, the last tax one would pick would be to tax the Social Security benefits and destroy the value of those benefits that people work a lifetime to achieve and then say, well, that is okay. It is not okay.

This is not political for me. I oppose this tax vehemently when it was first put in place. I opposed even the original tax to tax 50 percent of the benefits because it is wrong.

No matter how one couches it, no matter how one says, the President is going to veto it, why will he veto this? He will veto it only to defend the wrong that he put on the books in 1993.

But we are going to do the right thing. It is responsible.

But when I look at the Democrat substitute, I realize that it is a typical sleight-of-hand approach. First, you see it, then you do not. It says to seniors, well, we will give some of you some relief, but only if the budget is balanced. So maybe they get it; maybe they do not.

How does one know how to plan what the value of one's Social Security benefits is going to be in advance? One cannot under the Democrat substitute. They put seniors on a yo-yo string and say look what we are doing for you. It is like Peanuts when Charlie Brown is told kick the ball; and just as he gets to the ball, Lucy pulls the ball away. That is the Democrat substitute. I do not think seniors want that with their benefits and the value of their benefits.

In addition, they do what AARP has told us over and over again is in violation of the Social Security contract. They means test the Social Security benefits. They say to seniors, you have not really earned these benefits. You are not really entitled to them. We are going to determine whether you get them or not.

Then they also say to young workers, do not save, because if you save, you are going to lose your Social Security benefits. Only if you save will you lose your Social Security benefits. That is a terrible signal to send to young workers at a time when we need savings more and more and more.

Maybe that is the worst part of it. But it is bad through and through and through.

We are here to correct a wrong and to do the right thing. We will not be deterred by the smoke screen that is put up on the other side of the aisle in defense of the wrong that they put on the books in 1993.

I say to my colleagues, because I know we are going to get votes from people who are objective and know the right thing on the Democrat side, I say to all of my colleagues, vote against this substitute and vote for the bill. It is the right thing to do.

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Speaker, over the past

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Speaker, over the past few month, it has become increasingly clear that the Republicans' only real agenda is tax breaks. I am not against cutting taxes. However, the Democratic approach of targeted tax cuts that go to those who need them most is better for our country.

The reduction of taxes for our nation's seniors is certainly a worthy goal, but we must not reach that goal by placing Medicare in jeopardy. The problem with the tax cut in the Republican bill is that it eliminates a dedicated tax source for the Medicare Trust Fund and replaces it with an IOU from the general fund.

As a result, we will have $100 billion less over the next 10 years to use to extend Medicare solvency, offset Medicare reductions made in 1997, and provide all seniors a true Medicare prescription drug benefit. These are vitally important goals and they should not be sacrificed for tax cuts.

The Democratic alternative targets this tax cut to low and middle-income seniors by raising the income threshold at which Social Security benefits are subject to taxation from $34,000 to $80,000. This provides tax relief while protecting the Medicare Trust Fund from losses. Protecting Medicare and Social Security must be a priority for this Congress. We must avoid losses to Medicare that will force seniors to pay higher out-of-pocket payments for the health care that they deserve.

I urge my colleagues to support the Democratic substitute.

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 564, the previous question is ordered on the bill and on the amendment by the gentleman from North Dakota (Mr. POMEROY).

The question is on the amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by the gentleman from North Dakota (Mr. POMEROY).

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

A message in writing from the President of the United States was communicated to the House by Ms. Wanda Evans, one of his secretaries.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A message from the Senate by Mr. Lundregan, one of its clerks, announced that the Senate has passed with an amendment in which the concurrence of the House is requested, a bill of the House of the following title:

H.R. 2909. An act to provide for implementation by the United States of the Hague Convention on Protection of Children and Co-operation in Respect of Intercountry Adoption, and for other purposes.

The message also announced that the Senate agrees to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 4576) "An Act making appropriations for the Department of Defense for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2001, and for other purposes."

REMOVAL OF NAME OF MEMBER AS COSPONSOR OF H.R. 3703

Mrs. BIGGERT. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to have my name removed as a cosponsor of H.R. 3703.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PEASE). Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

REMOVAL OF NAME OF MEMBER AS COSPONSOR OF H.R. 4892

Mr. LEWIS of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to have my name removed as a cosponsor of H.R. 4892.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Georgia?

There was no objection.

PERMISSION TO INSERT OMITTED REMARKS ON H.R. 4942, DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA APPROPRIATIONS ACT. 2001

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I understand that in my remarks yesterday, some of those remarks were inadvertently left out of the Journal. I ask unanimous consent to insert those remarks in their entirety.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Virginia?

There was no objection.

The text of the remarks as originally delivered is as follows:

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Madam Chairman, perhaps some people take umbrage at the passion of the gentle-woman from the District of Columbia (Ms. NORTON), but I would expect that any of us if facing the same level of frustration and unfairness would not react in the same passionate manner.

She is defending, not only her constituents but a process, a democratic process, that she believes in that caused all of us to get into public service, and the fact is, she is right, Madam Chairman. The mayor of the District of Columbia said he is going to pocket veto this bill. We have to believe. I cannot believe any of us do not believe that he is going to do that. So if we believe he is going to do that, why are we doing this?

He is going to insist that there be a religious exemption clause. People that have moral objections are going to be able to raise them. So why are we doing this, putting this offensive language in this bill? Just to show that we are more powerful than them, just to show them. She is right. This is wrong.

Now, let me also say it is wrong for insurance companies to cover viagra for men and not cover contraception for women. Let us just tell it like it is. What could be more unfair? All this contraceptive equity provision says is that insurance companies ought to be fair and start respecting women, when contraception is the largest single expense, out-of-pocket expense, for women during most of their lives, and that is because of men's irresponsibility that, darn it, it ought to be covered.

So it is the right legislation. They should have passed this legislation, and it is also true that most of these Catholic institutions are self-insured. It does not even apply to them. They are self-insured.

Let me also say something, and I can only say this, I certainly would never say this if my own life were different, but having been educated in Catholic schools all my life, if I were a gay man, I would feel the same sense of frustration and disappointment that Councilman Jim Graham expressed on the D.C. council.

That disappointment and the intolerance and, yes, the hypocrisy of the Catholic church as an institution towards homosexuality ought to be addressed. So I do not blame them for saying that. I know he wishes he had not said that, but these are debates that belonged in the D.C. council. These are debates and issues that should be settled, should be settled by the D.C. government.

The Catholic institutions within the D.C. government have plenty of access. They are well respected, deservedly so. They contribute tremendous benefits to D.C. government and its society. They will be fully reflected in the legislation that becomes law, and that is the way it ought to be. We have no business getting involved in this issue, particularly when we have no legitimate role to play.

The gentlewoman from the District of Columbia (Ms. NORTON) is absolutely right. The mayor is going to take care of that situation. Let him take care of the situation. He will be held accountable. He should be held accountable. He is elected. He understands it. He has a solution for it, and that is the way it should be, and what we are doing on this floor is not what should be done by this Congress. Madam Chairman, I gather we are going to continue this debate tomorrow.

This title may be cited as the "Global AIDS Research and Relief Act of 2000".

SEC. 102. DEFINITIONS.

In this title:

(1) AIDS.—The term "AIDS" means the acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

(2) ASSOCIATION.—The term "Association" means the International Development Associa-

(3) BANK.—The term "Bank" or "World Bank" means the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development.

(4) HIV.—The term ''ĤIV'' means the human immunodeficiency virus, the pathogen which causes AIDS.

(5) HIV/AIDS.—The term "HIV/AIDS" means, with respect to an individual, an individual who is infected with HIV or living with AIDS. SEC. 103. FINDINGS AND PURPOSES.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) According to the Surgeon General of the United States, the epidemic of human immuno-deficiency virus/acquired immune deficiency syndrome (HIV/AIDS) will soon become the worst epidemic of infectious disease in recorded history, eclipsing both the bubonic plague of the 1300's and the influenza epidemic of 1918-1919 which killed more than 20,000,000 people worldwide.

(2) According to the Joint United Nations Programme on HIV/AIDS (UNAIDS), more than 34,300,000 people in the world today are living with HIV/AIDS, of which approximately 95 percent live in the developing world.

(3) UNAIDS data shows that among children age 14 and under worldwide, more than 3,800,000 have died from AIDS, more than 1,300,000 are living with the disease; and in one year alone—1999—an estimated 620,000 became infected, of which over 90 percent were babies born to HIV-positive women.

(4) Although sub-Saharan Africa has only 10 percent of the world's population, it is home to more than 24,500,000—roughly 70 percent—of the world's HIV/AIDS cases.

(5) Worldwide, there have already been an estimated 18,800,000 deaths because of HIV/AIDS, of which more than 80 percent occurred in sub-Saharan Africa.

(6) The gap between rich and poor countries in terms of transmission of HIV from mother to child has been increasing. Moreover, AIDS threatens to reverse years of steady progress of child survival in developing countries. UNAIDS believes that by the year 2010, AIDS may have increased mortality of children under 5 years of age by more than 100 percent in regions most affected by the virus.

(7) According to UNAIDS, by the end of 1999, 13,200,000 children have lost at least one parent to AIDS, including 12,100,000 children in sub-Saharan Africa, and are thus considered AIDS

(8) At current infection and growth rates for HIV/AIDS, the National Intelligence Council estimates that the number of AIDS orphans worldwide will increase dramatically, potentially increasing threefold or more in the next 10 years, contributing to economic decay, social fragmentation, and political destabilization in already volatile and strained societies. Children without care or hope are often drawn into prostitution, crime, substance abuse, or child sol-

(9) Donors must focus on adequate preparations for the explosion in the number of orphans and the burden they will place on families, communities, economies, and governments. Support structures and incentives for families, communities, and institutions which will provide care for children orphaned by HIV/AIDS, or for the children who are themselves afflicted by HIV/ AIDS, will be essential.

(10) The 1999 annual report by the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) states "[t]he number of orphans, particularly in Africa, constitutes nothing less than an emergency, requiring an emergency response" and that "finding the resources needed to help stabilize the crisis and protect children is a priority that requires urgent action from the international commu-

(11) The discovery of a relatively simple and inexpensive means of interrupting the transmission of HIV from an infected mother to the unborn child-namely with nevirapine (NVP), which costs US$4 a tablet-has created a great opportunity for an unprecedented partnership between the United States Government and the governments of Asian, African and Latin American countries to reduce mother-to-child transmission (also known as "vertical transmission") of HIV.

(12) According to UNAIDS, if implemented this strategy will decrease the proportion of orphans that are HIV-infected and decrease infant and child mortality rates in these devel-

(13) A mother-to-child antiretroviral drug strategy can be a force for social change, providing the opportunity and impetus needed to address often long-standing problems of inadequate services and the profound stigma associated with HIV-infection and the AIDS disease. Strengthening the health infrastructure to improve mother-and-child health, antenatal, delivery and postnatal services, and couples counseling generates enormous spillover effects toward combating the AIDS epidemic in developing regions.

(14) United States Census Bureau statistics show life expectancy in sub-Saharan Africa falling to around 30 years of age within a decade, the lowest in a century, and project life expectancy in 2010 to be 29 years of age in Botswana, 30 years of age in Swaziland, 33 years of age in Namibia and Zimbabwe, and 36 years of age in South Africa, Malawi, and Rwanda, in contrast to a life expectancy of 70 years of age in many of the countries without a high prevalence of AIDS

(15) A January 2000 United States National Intelligence Estimate (NIE) report on the global infectious disease threat concluded that the economic costs of infectious diseases-especially HIV/AIDS-are already significant and could reduce GDP by as much as 20 percent or more by 2010 in some sub-Saharan African nations.

(16) According to the same NIE report, HIV prevalence among militias in Angola and the Democratic Republic of the Congo are estimated at 40 to 60 percent, and at 15 to 30 percent in Tanzania.

(17) The HIV/AIDS epidemic is of increasing concern in other regions of the world, with UNAIDS estimating that there are more than 5,600,000 cases in South and South-east Asia, that the rate of HIV infection in the Caribbean is second only to sub-Saharan Africa, and that HIV infections have doubled in just two years in the former Soviet Union.

(18) Despite the discouraging statistics on the spread of HIV/AIDS, some developing nations—such as Uganda, Senegal, and Thailand—have implemented prevention programs that have substantially curbed the rate of HIV infection.

(19) AIDS, like all diseases, knows no national boundaries, and there is no certitude that the scale of the problem in one continent can be contained within that region.

(20) Accordingly, United States financial support for medical research, education, and disease containment as a global strategy has beneficial ramifications for millions of Americans and their families who are affected by this disease, and the entire population which is potentially susceptible.

(b) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this title are to—

(1) help prevent human suffering through the prevention, diagnosis, and treatment of HIV/AIDS; and

(2) help ensure the viability of economic development, stability, and national security in the developing world by advancing research to—

(A) understand the causes associated with HIV/AIDS in developing countries; and

(B) assist in the development of an AIDS vaccine.

Subtitle A—United States Assistance SEC. 111. ADDITIONAL ASSISTANCE AUTHORITIES TO COMBAT HIV AND AIDS.

"(4)(A) Congress recognizes the growing international dilemma of children with the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) and the merits of intervention programs aimed at this problem. Congress further recognizes that mother-to-child transmission prevention strategies can serve as a major force for change in developing regions, and it is, therefore, a major objective of the foreign assistance program to control the acquired immune deficiency syndrome (AIDS) epidemic.

"(B) The agency primarily responsible for administering this part shall-

"(i) coordinate with UNAIDS, UNICEF, WHO, national and local governments, and other organizations to develop and implement effective strategies to prevent vertical transmission of HIV: and

(b) Training and Training Facilities in Sub-Saharan Africa.—Section 496(i)(2) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 (22 U.S.C. 2293(i)(2)) is amended by adding at the end the following new sentence: "In addition, providing training and training facilities, in sub-Saharan Africa, for doctors and other health care providers, notwithstanding any provision of law that restricts assistance to foreign countries."

SEC. 112. VOLUNTARY CONTRIBUTION TO GLOB-AL ALLIANCE FOR VACCINES AND IM-MUNIZATIONS AND INTERNATIONAL AIDS VACCINE INITIATIVE.

(a) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—Section 302 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 (22 U.S.C. 2222) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsections:

"(k) In addition to amounts otherwise available under this section, there is authorized to be appropriated to the President $50,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 2001 and 2002 to be available only for United States contributions to the Global Alliance for Vaccines and Immunizations

"(I) In addition to amounts otherwise available under this section, there is authorized to be appropriated to the President $10,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 2001 and 2002 to be available only for United States contributions to the International AIDS Vaccine Initiative.".

(b) REPORT.—At the close of fiscal year 2001, the President shall submit a report to the appropriate congressional committees on the effectiveness of the Global Alliance for Vaccines and Immunizations and the International AIDS Vaccine Initiative during that fiscal year in meeting the goals of—

(I) improving access to sustainable immunization services;

(2) expanding the use of all existing, safe, and cost-effective vaccines where they address a public health problem;

SEC. 113. COORDINATED DONOR STRATEGY FOR SUPPORT AND EDUCATION OF OR-PHANS IN SUB-SAHARAN AFRICA.

(a) STATEMENT OF POLICY.—It is in the national interest of the United States to assist in mitigating the burden that will be placed on sub-Saharan African social, economic, and political institutions as these institutions struggle with the consequences of a dramatically increasing AIDS orphan population, many of whom are themselves infected by HIV and living with AIDS. Effectively addressing that burden and its consequences in sub-Saharan Africa will require a coordinated multidonor strategy.

(b) DEVELOPMENT OF STRATEGY.—The President shall coordinate the development of a multidonor strategy to provide for the support and education of AIDS orphans and the families, communities, and institutions most affected by the HIV/AIDS epidemic in sub-Saharan Africa.

(c) DEFINITION.—In this section, the term "HIV/AIDS" means, with respect to an individual, an individual who is infected with the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV), the pathogen that causes the acquired immune deficiency virus (AIDS), or living with AIDS.

SEC. 114. AFRICAN CRISIS RESPONSE INITIATIVE AND HIV/AIDS TRAINING.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1) the spread of HIV/AIDS constitutes a threat to security in Africa;

(2) civil unrest and war may contribute to the spread of the disease to different parts of the continent;

(3) the percentage of soldiers in African militaries who are infected with HIV/AIDS is unknown, but estimates range in some countries as high as 40 percent; and high as 40 percent; and

(4) it is in the interests of the United States to assist the countries of Africa in combating the spread of HIV/AIDS.

(b) Education on the Prevention of the Spread of AIDS.—In undertaking education and training programs for military establishments in African countries, the United States shall ensure that classroom training under the African Crisis Response Initiative includes military-based education on the prevention of the spread of AIDS.

TITLE II—INTERNATIONAL TUBERCULOSIS CONTROL

SEC. 201. SHORT TITLE.

This title may be cited as the "International Tuberculosis Control Act of 2000".

SEC. 202. FINDINGS.

Congress makes the following findings:

(1) Since the development of antibiotics in the 1950s, tuberculosis has been largely controlled in the United States and the Western World.

(2) Due to societal factors, including growing urban decay, inadequate health care systems, persistent poverty, overcrowding, and malnutrition, as well as medical factors, including the HIV/AIDS epidemic and the emergence of multidrug resistant strains of tuberculosis, tuberculosis has again become a leading and growing cause of adult deaths in the developing world.

(3) According to the World Health Organization—

(A) in 1998, about 1,860,000 people worldwide died of tuberculosis-related illnesses;

(B) one-third of the world's total population is infected with tuberculosis; and

(C) tuberculosis is the world's leading killer of women between 15 and 44 years old and is a leading cause of children becoming orphans.

(4) Because of trinderi because of transmission of tuberculosis, its international persistence and growth pose a direct public health threat to those nations that had previously largely controlled the disease. This is complicated in the United States by the growth of the homeless population, the rate of incarceration, international travel, immigration, and HIV/AIDS.

(5) With nearly 40 percent of the tuberculosis cases in the United States attributable to foreign-born persons, tuberculosis will never be controlled in the United States until it is controlled abroad.

(6) The means exist to control tuberculosis through screening, diagnosis, treatment, patient compliance, monitoring, and ongoing review of

(7) Efforts to control tuberculosis are complicated by several barriers, including-

(A) the labor intensive and lengthy process involved in screening, detecting, and treating the disease;

(B) a lack of funding, trained personnel, and medicine in virtually every nation with a high rate of the disease:

(C) the unique circumstances in each country. which requires the development and implementation of country-specific programs; and

(D) the risk of having a bad tuberculosis program, which is worse than having no tuberculosis program because it would significantly increase the risk of the development of more widespread drug-resistant strains of the disease.

(8) Eliminating the barriers to the international control of tuberculosis through a wellstructured, comprehensive, and coordinated worldwide effort would be a significant step in dealing with the increasing public health problem posed by the disease.

SEC. 203. ASSISTANCE FOR TUBERCULOSIS PRE-VENTION, TREATMENT, CONTROL, AND ELIMINATION.

Section 104(c) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 (22 U.S.C. 2151b(c)), as amended by section 111(a) of this Act, is further amended by adding at the end the following:

'(7)(A) Congress recognizes the growing international problem of tuberculosis and the impact its continued existence has on those nations that had previously largely controlled the disease. Congress further recognizes that the means exist to control and treat tuberculosis, and that it is therefore a major objective of the foreign assistance program to control the disease. To this end, Congress expects the agency primarily responsible for administering this part

'(i) to coordinate with the World Health Organization, the Centers for Disease Control, the National Institutes of Health, and other organizations toward the development and implementation of a comprehensive tuberculosis control

(ii) to set as a goal the detection of at least 70 percent of the cases of infectious tuberculosis, and the cure of at least 85 percent of the cases detected, in those countries in which the agency has established development programs, by December 31, 2010.

"(B) There is authorized to be appropriated to the President, $60,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 2001 and 2002 to be used to carry out this paragraph. Funds appropriated under this subparagraph are authorized to remain available until expended.

TITLE III—ADMINISTRATIVE AUTHORITIES SEC. 301. EFFECTIVE PROGRAM OVERSIGHT.

Section 635 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 (22 U.S.C. 2395) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

(1) The Administrator of the agency primarily responsible for administering part I may use funds made available under that part to provide program and management oversight for activities that are funded under that part and that are conducted in countries in which the agency does not have a field mission or office.". SEC. 302. TERMINATION EXPENSES.

Section 617 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 (22 U.S.C. 2367) is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 617. TERMINATION EXPENSES.

"(a) IN GENERAL.—Funds made available under this Act and the Arms Export Control

Act, may remain available for obligation for a period not to exceed 8 months from the date of any termination of assistance under such Acts for the necessary expenses of winding up programs related to such termination and may remain available until expended. Funds obligated under the authority of such Acts prior to the effective date of the termination of assistance may remain available for expenditure for the necessary expenses of winding up programs related to such termination notwithstanding any provision of law restricting the expenditure of funds. In order to ensure the effectiveness of such assistance, such expenses for orderly termination of programs may include the obligation and expenditure of funds to complete the training or studies outside their countries of origin of students whose course of study or training program began before assistance was terminated.

(b) LIABILITY TO CONTRACTORS.—For the purpose of making an equitable settlement of termination claims under extraordinary contractual relief standards, the President is authorized to adopt as a contract or other obligation of the United States Government, and assume (in whole or in part) any liabilities arising thereunder, any contract with a United States or third-country contractor that had been funded with assistance under such Acts prior to the termination of assistance.

'(c) TERMINATION EXPENSES.—Amounts certified as having been obligated for assistance subsequently terminated by the President, or pursuant to any provision of law, shall continue to remain available and may be reobligated to meet any necessary expenses arising from the termination of such assistance.

"(d) Guaranty Programs.—Provisions of this or any other Act requiring the termination of assistance under this or any other Act shall not be construed to require the termination of guarantee commitments that were entered into prior to the effective date of the termination of assist-

(e) RELATION TO OTHER PROVISIONS.—Unless specifically made inapplicable by another provision of law, the provisions of this section shall be applicable to the termination of assistance pursuant to any provision of law.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (during the reading). Without objection, the Senate amendment is considered as read and printed in the RECORD.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Iowa?

Ms. LEE. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, first I would like to thank the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. LEACH) and the gentleman from New York (Mr. LAFALCE) for their tremendous leadership on this issue. I would also like to thank my colleagues on the Committee on Banking and Financial Services. I would also, in addition, like to thank the Committee on Banking and Financial Services staff and the committee staff of the Committee on International Relations as well as my own staff for their hard work. But I want to especially thank my senior legislative assistant, Michael Riggs, who has worked tirelessly on this ef-

I must also recognize and give credit really to my predecessor and a great statesman, Congressman Ron Dellums, and members of the Congressional Black Caucus for their strong support. Ron has been sounding the clarion call about this pandemic of HIV/AIDS globally for many years. The drumbeat is now being heard. Today we see the collective work of Members of Congress, the Clinton administration, HIV/AIDS specialists and activists, faith-based communities, Africans, and the business community coming together.

At this moment, the global AIDS crisis is the most urgent humanitarian crisis of our time. It is estimated that 6,000 people die each day of AIDS in Africa. Since I introduced the AIDS Marshall Plan last August, nearly 3 million people have died.

This is not a Democratic issue, nor is it a Republican issue. It is a moral issue that demands a moral response. AIDS, like all diseases, knows no boundaries. There is no guarantee that the scale of the problem in one continent can be contained within that region.

So our message is clear. Today with the passage of this bill we will press forward with our commitment to fight the war against HIV/AIDS and to stem the tide of death. We know that with resources we can fight this war and save lives and prevent the spread of HIV/AIDS

Today we are taking a major step in the right direction. I am confident that the bill that we pass today will push us even further in our commitment to fighting AIDS in Africa. I believe that the quick pace at which we are moving reflects the urgency of this crisis.

Again, I want to thank the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. LEACH) and the gentleman from New York (Mr. LA-FALCE). I want to say that today we are showing America and we are showing the world that Africa and the fate of humanity really does matter and that the United States is prepared to show leadership in the fight against HIV/ AIDS. This is really a defining moment for us all. It is a historic day. I am pleased that we are approving this important piece of legislation.

Mr. LEACH. Mr. Speaker, will the gentlewoman yield?

Ms. LEE. Further reserving the right to object, I yield to the gentleman from Iowa.

Mr. LEACH. Mr. Speaker, I would like to simply thank the gentlewoman for her leadership, also that of her predecessor whom she mentioned, Mr. Dellums; staff, as well as, frankly, Mrs. Fogleman on our staff and Mr. McCormick on our staff and the Senate leadership and staff of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that has worked so closely with us.

By perspective, let me just very briefly say that nothing is more difficult than to provide some sort of perspective to issues of the day, but if we look at the 14th century, 20 million people died of the bubonic plague, and it would be hard to conclude that that was not the most important incident of the century. Today we have almost reached that figure with AIDS. Within a decade we may be at a multiple of that figure. It is anything but inconceivable not to conclude that exterminating this deadly disease is not the most important issue of our age.

This approach that we have adopted is seminal. It is a part of the picture of dealing with AIDS, not the whole picture but a very significant part and with the combination of reduction in debt burdens of the developing world stands as the most significant effort the United States Congress has ever taken for the developing world and one of the most significant efforts the United States Congress has ever taken towards disease control and prevention.

This is an extraordinary, symbolic measure, one that we are going to have to build upon but a firm and thoughtful step in the right direction. Let me thank the gentlewoman again for her help and leadership in this cause.

Mr. LAFALCE. Mr. Speaker, I want to express my thanks to Chairman LEACH and to Chairman GILMAN for the cooperation they have shown in bringing this Senate amended language to the floor on an expedited basis. I also offer my congratulations to Congresswoman BARBARA LEE for her initiative on, and consistent commitment to, this legislation. Without her, this much-needed bill would not be becoming law. Moreover, she has led the fight for appropriations for this trust fund that will help the World Bank tackle the scourges of AIDS and tuberculosis that so tragically threatens the lives of too many people in Africa. No outcome was more gratifying than the amendment to the Foreign Operations Appropriations bill that obtained funding for this legislation.

This country has a proud and longstanding tradition of providing humanitarian assistance-especially in a crisis. HIV/AIDS is an international epidemic of crisis proportions. The HIV/AIDS pandemic could come to rival, in other parts of the world, the destructive bubonic plague of the 1300s that devastated the continent of Europe.

Worldwide, HIV/AIDS has infected millions. Yet worldwide, we spend so very little to fight the disease and contain the pandemic. As we all know, although Sub-Saharan Africa has only 10 percent of the world's population, it suffers roughly 70 percent of the HIV/AIDS cases. We also know that if HIV/AIDS reaches a certain prevalence, it can explosively infect a population, and some areas in addition to Africa are threatened. No country in the world seriously threatened by this disease and unable to fight it alone should be ignored by our efforts.

Taking targeted and expeditious action to begin to fight the AIDS pandemic is both the moral and the sensible thing to do. Although there is as yet no known cure for the disease, we can make meaningful progress in containing it.

This trust fund has many unique features. None is more prominent than that the fund can receive contributions from anyone, not merely governments that are members of the World Bank. Moreover, these contributions will be deductible or expensible for the contributor. Consequently, although our government's share will be significant, the promise is great for leveraging this fund into a very large resource base to combat the worst plague to hit mankind since the Black Death in the Middle

Both the House and the Senate have appropriately provided for oversight of the monies in the fund. Many of the nations where AIDS/HIV is prevalent are also nations where corruption is highest. Consequently, the trust fund is endowed with effective monitoring devices to detect the illicit.

However, these safeguards are not so burdensome that the trust fund will be unduly hamstrung. Indeed, another unique feature of this fund is that its uses are so flexible. AIDS is a cunning enemy. The course and form differs from area to area. In some, education is the most effective weapon. In others, drugs, such as forms of AZT, can do the most good. The trust fund is not locked into one approach but is free to use all of them as circumstances warrant.

This will not be the last bill to come to this floor on AIDS. We now know the raw statistics on how the plague is totally out of control throughout a significant portion of the world. We now also know that even here, where there has been some progress against this disease, that this progress can be reversed. Consequently, for an undetermined number of Congresses to come, this chamber will be grappling with this opponent. However, the legislation we pass today and send to the President is a substantial step in the right direction.

Ms. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Iowa?

There was no objection.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Commitment, bipartisanship hard work on the part of the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SCARBOROUGH), the gentleman from California (Mr. WAX-MAN), the gentlewoman from the District of Columbia (Ms. NORTON), the gentleman from Maine (Mr. ALLEN) and the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA), our congressional staff, the Office of Personnel Management, and the long-term care industry minated in H.R. 4040, the Long-term Care Security Act.

I am pleased that the framework proposed in H.R. 110, my long-term care proposal, allowing OPM to contract with a single carrier or consortia to provide long-term care insurance to Federal employees in permitting OPM to negotiate premiums and benefits on behalf of Federal employees is adopted in H.R. 4040.

This employer group model will allow Federal employees to realize from 15 percent to 20 percent in premium savings. In addition to establishing a program to provide long-term care insurance to Federal employees and military personnel, the Senate amended H.R. 4044 with the text of S. 2420, which included the Federal Erroneous Retirement Coverage Corrections Act.

S. 2420 provides relief to those Federal employees who were placed in the wrong retirement system during transition to the Federal employment retirement system from the civil service retirement system during the 1980s. Under current law, Federal agencies are required to correct a retirement coverage error by forcing the affected employers into FERS.

The Federal Erroneous Coverage Corrections Act will permit the employees who had been victims of an enrollment error to remain in the retirement system they were erroneously placed in.

CSRS ought to be covered by the system they should have been in, in most cases FERS.

Unlike the House retirement corrections bill, if the employee chooses to be placed in FERS, he or she will be responsible for the lost contributions to his or her thrift savings account. The House bill sought to achieve accountability by holding those agencies guilty of making enrollment errors responsible for the lost contributions to the employee's TSP account.

Mr. Speaker, though we would have preferred the House bill, we worked with the Senate to reach consensus on a bill that would result in some, if not optimal relief for employees placed in the wrong retirement system. H.R. 4040 is a lesson in how the legislative process through bipartisanship and compromise can work to better the lives of the American people. I enthusiastically support this legislation and urge my colleagues to do the same.

Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PEASE). Is there objection to the initial request of the gentleman from Florida?

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I do not object, but I do want to celebrate this time when we in this House accept this bill, H.R. 4040, as amended, and send it back for the clarification from the Senate. This long-term care insurance bill has taken a lot of time. It has been long term, but it has been worth it.

I introduced legislation; my colleagues introduced legislation. We all worked together on it. The legislation I introduced was H.R. 1111, and it included not only Federal employees and annuitants, but it included also the military employees and retirees, which made the pool 20 million, which will allow OPM, the Office of Personnel Management, to be able to negotiate to get the very best plan that will have consumer protections and will also have choices within it.

Mr. Speaker, a lot of groups helped out with it, my colleagues; the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SCARBOROUGH), who chaired the committee; the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS), the ranking member; others on the committee worked on it also, as well as organizations, like the National Association of Retired Federal Employees, the Postal Workers, Alzheimer's, retired military, and OPM was engaged also in the process, so all of us will be able to gain from this, the United States will be able to gain from it.

We hope that the premiums would be reduced 15 percent to 20 percent, and people will be able to plan for their futures through this bill. So I urge this bill's approval as amended, H.R. 4040.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Speaker, will the gentlewoman yield?

Mrs. MORELLA. I yield to the gentleman from Florida.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman from Maryland

(Mrs. Morella) and also certainly thank the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Cummings), the ranking member of the committee, he and the gentlewoman from Maryland have both worked diligently on their own versions of this bill, both believed very much that their versions were the best versions of the bill, as did I on mine. Both of them worked around the clock.

The great thing is, I think we have got the best of all worlds from every bill. And I know there are so many people in my district that have a better long-term health care insurance plan because of what the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS) did, and obviously because of what the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA) did.

I have so many Federal retirees, military retirees, in my district that are grateful for the hard work they have done, work they did before I even became chairman of this committee, the work that the gentleman from Florida (Mr. MICA) did. The gentleman from Indiana (Chairman BURTON) certainly helped; the gentleman from California (Mr. WAXMAN), the ranking member, helped a great deal; the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. DAVIS); the gentleman from Texas (Chairman ARCHER).

I would also like to thank our staffs that worked for a very, very long time on this bill, on my staff in particular, Gary Ewing and Jennifer Hemingway, but it is going to help everybody.

Long-term care security is a consensus bill. It is reflective of the hard work of Members on both sides of the aisle, and it is going to provide really assurance to Federal employees and retirees and military retirees, and so many others that they are going to be taken care of, and they are going to be able to get long-term health care insurance. It is important for all us.

The Senate language on long-term care is identical to the language that the House passed just last May. The bill also contains provisions to correct a long-standing inequity for Federal employees who, through no fault of their own, were erroneously placed in the wrong retirement system.

The amendments make several technical changes to the retirement corrections portion of this bill. And, in addition, in consultation, with Senator THOMPSON, I am pleased to include employees of the Tennessee Valley Authority, among the list of those eligible to purchase long-term care insurance. It is not only good for them, it is not only good for Federal employees that work here and throughout Washington, the country, it is good for all of America.

Mr. Speaker, I am confident that this bill is going to be landmark legislation that the private sector will be able to follow and we will be able to provide long-term health care to all Americans.

Mr. Speaker, I urge Members to support H.R. 4040, as amended.

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the initial request of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A message from the Senate by Mr. Lundregen, one of its clerks, announced that the Senate has passed a bill and a concurrent resolution of the following titles in which the concurrence of the House is requested:

S. 2869. An act to protect religious liberty, and for other purposes.

S. Con. Res. 132. Concurrent resolution providing for a conditional adjournment or recess of the Senate and conditional adjournment of the House of Representatives.

PERMISSION FOR COMMITTEE ON SCIENCE TO HAVE UNTIL MID-NIGHT AUGUST 31, 2000 TO FILE A REPORT ON H.R. 4271, NA-TIONAL SCIENCE EDUCATION ACT

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Science may have until midnight on August 31, 2000 to file a report to accompany H.R. 4271.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection.

SENSE OF CONGRESS REGARDING ESTABLISHMENT OF NATIONAL HEALTH CENTER WEEK

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 381) expressing the sense of the Congress that there should be established a National Health Center Week to raise awareness of health services provided by community, migrant, and homeless health centers, and ask for its immediate consideration in the House.

The Clerk read the title of the concurrent resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, actually, I stand not to object, but to end up praising those who have come forth. As the sponsor of this resolution, I want to, first of all commend and thank the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. SHIMKUS); the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. CAPUANO), cochair of the Health Center Caucus; the gentleman from Texas (Mr. BONILLA), cochair of the Health Center Caucus; the gentleman from Florida (Mr. BILIRAKIS), who is also a cochair of the Health Center Caucus; the gentleman from Texas (Mr. HALL); the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. CRAMER); the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. EVANS); the gentleman from California (Mr. BERMAN); and the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. LAHOOD).

Mr. Speaker, this resolution draws attention to the tremendous service that has been provided by the community health centers for the last 35 years. As a matter of fact, these centers have stood in the gap between crisis and health care delivery for hundreds of thousands of individuals over that period of time, especially individuals from low-income, from inner city, from migrant, from rural, individuals who were homeless, individuals who otherwise would have had no health care services that they could have been recipients of.

I believe that we ought to establish a National Health Center Week so that we can point out how important these centers have truly been. I happen to know, Mr. Speaker, that there are several Members of this Congress who themselves have either worked as staff, for example, or board members of these centers, the gentlewoman from North Carolina (Mrs. CLAYTON) at Soul City; the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. THOMPSON) at the Jackson Heinz Health Center in Jackson, Mississippi, and I have had the good fortune and pleasure to work as a training director at the Martin Luther King Center in Chicago and as a special assistant to the president of the Miles Square Center in Chicago.

So the history and legacy of these programs, they bring economic development to their communities. Right now, they have operating budgets of more than $4 billion. They generate more than $14 billion in economic development for the communities where they are. They are a real testament to what can happen, what has happened and what we look forward to them in the future

Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The SPĚAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

Mr. SHIMKUS. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I also want to congratulate the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS), my colleague, he is from the Chicago area, I am a downstater, for helping bring this important resolution to the floor.

Community migrant and homeless health care centers provide cost effective quality care to our country's poor and medically underserved. They act as a vital safety net for our health delivery systems, reduce health disparities that large portions of our population experience.

These centers are nonprofit, community-owned and operated and serve all 50 States. They provide health care to those who otherwise would not have access to health care, serving 1 in 12 rural citizens, 1 in 8 low-income Americans and 1 in 10 uninsured Americans. I represent a rural area and much of my district has limited access to health available to the community. By serving a specific area, the centers can tailor their services to specific needs of the community and work together with schools, businesses, churches, and community organizations to provide the best care possible.

The establishment of a national community health center week will help raise awareness of the wonderful services that these centers provide our Nation. And I urge my colleagues to vote for this legislation. Again, I commend the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS), my colleague and friend.

Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The SPĚAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the concurrent resolution, as follows:

H. CON. RES. 381

Whereas community, migrant, and homeless health centers are nonprofit, community owned and operated health providers and are vital to the Nation's communities:

Whereas there are more than 1,029 such health centers serving more than 11,000,000 people at 3,200 health delivery sites, spanning urban and rural communities in all 50 States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Guam, and the Virgin Islands;

Whereas such health centers have provided cost-effective, quality health care to the Nation's poor and medically underserved (including the working poor, the uninsured, and many high-risk and vulnerable populations), acting as a vital safety net in the Nation's health delivery system, meeting escalating health needs, and reducing health disparities;

Whereas these health centers provide care to 1 of every 10 uninsured Americans, 1 of every 8 low-income Americans, and 1 of every 12 rural Americans, and these Americans would otherwise lack access to health care:

Whereas these health centers and other innovative programs in primary and preventive care reach out to more than 500,000 homeless persons and 600,000 farm workers;

Whereas these health centers make health care responsive and cost effective by integrating the delivery of primary care with aggressive outreach, patient education, translation, and enabling support services;

Whereas these health centers increase the use of preventive health services such as immunizations, Pap smears, mammograms, and glaucoma screenings;

Whereas in communities served by these health centers, infant mortality rates have been reduced between 10 and 40 percent;

Whereas these health centers are built by community initiative;

Whereas Federal grants provide seed money empowering communities to find partners and resources and to recruit doctors and needed health professionals;

Whereas Federal grants on average contribute 28 percent of such a health center's budget, with the remainder provided by State and local governments, medicare, medicaid, private contributions, private insurance, and patient fees:

Whereas these health centers are community oriented and patient focused;

Whereas these health centers tailor their services to fit the special needs and priorities of communities, working together with schools, businesses, churches, community organizations, foundations, and State and local governments;

Whereas these health centers contribute to the health and well-being of their communities by keeping children healthy and in school and helping adults remain productive and on the job;

Whereas these health centers, with a total operating budget of $4,000,000,000, bolster and stabilize communities by stimulating development and investment, generating more than $14,000,000,000 in community economic development each year;

Whereas these health centers engage citizen participation and provide jobs for 50,000 community residents; and

Whereas the establishment of a National Community Health Center Week for the week beginning on August 20, 2000, would raise awareness of the health services provided by these health centers: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That it is the sense of the Congress that—

(1) there should be established a National Community Health Center Week to raise awareness of health services provided by community, migrant, and homeless health centers; and

(2) the President should issue a proclamation calling on the people of the United States and interested organizations to observe such a week with appropriate programs and activities.

The concurrent resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

SENSE OF HOUSE THAT PRESI-DENT AND ADMINISTRATION FOCUS APPROPRIATE ATTEN-TION ON ISSUE OF NEIGHBOR-HOOD CRIME

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on the Judiciary be discharged from further consideration of the resolution (H. Res. 561) expressing the sense of the House of Representatives that the President should focus appropriate attention on the issue of neighborhood crime prevention, community policing and reduction of school crime by delivering speeches, convening meetings, and directing his Administration to make reducing crime an important priority, and ask for its immediate consideration in the House.

The Clerk read the title of the resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

Mr. STUPAK. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, but I shall not object, as I have introduced this resolution to emphasize the importance of crime prevention at the local level and to recognize the efforts of National Night Out.

I am pleased to say that this bipartisan resolution has more than 75 cosponsors. I would like to specifically thank the chairman and ranking member of the Committee on the Judiciary and the chairman and ranking member of the Subcommittee on Crime for their help in bringing this bill to the floor, and the gentleman from Minnesota, Mr. RAMSTAD, the cochair of the Law Enforcement Caucus, who has worked tirelessly with me on these important law enforcement issues.

My resolution calls upon the President to focus on neighborhood crime prevention programs, community policing programs, and reducing school crime. It also highlights National Night Out, which is coming up on August 1, as a successful national program, which exemplifies the goals of crime reduction through neighborhood and community efforts.

National Night Out is a nationwide event which combines a nationally coordinated crime prevention campaign with local communities and law enforcement organizations to take a stand against crime.

This year's National Night Out is the 107th annual event in the campaign by the National Association of Town Watch to fight crime. National Night Out has grown year after year, and now includes citizens, law enforcement agencies, civic groups, businesses, neighborhood organizations and local officials from 9,500 communities from all 50 states, the District of Columbia, U.S. territories, Canadian citizens and military bases worldwide.

In 1999, 32.5 million people participated in National Night Out. Those 32 million people joined together and sent a message, loud and clear, that they do not want crime in our neighborhoods and streets and that they want to keep working together until our communities are safe.

I firmly believe that a focus on neighborhood and community crime prevention is essential. It is for this reason that I have long supported the COPS Program in the Department of Justice, and I am a strong supporter of National Night Out.

As a former police officer who used to fight crime on the local and State level, I can tell you these programs work. Personal involvement in one's community, individual attention to our youth, taking responsibility for ourselves and others, these things make a difference

Each of us will be returning next week to our districts for the August recess. I hope that each of us will take the opportunity to participate in National Night Out events in our communities, and show the strength of our national commitment to stop crime and keep our communities safe.

I also take this opportunity to urge President Clinton to continue to focus national attention on reducing crime and to continue his efforts to promote neighborhood crime prevention and community policing. It is true that crime has been going down under his watch, but we can and must do more.

National Night Out community events need not only happen once a year. I would like to see a time come when our communities get together with the same unity and spirit on these parades, youth events and cookouts, not because they are fighting crime, but because their communities are safe enough, close enough, and involved enough that their cooperation and unity is an everyday occurrence. That is the America of the past, and it can be the America of the future.

Mr. Speaker, I urge unanimous consent of this House resolution.

Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 561

Whereas neighborhood crime is of continuing concern to the American people;

Whereas the fight against neighborhood crime requires people to work together in cooperation with law enforcement officials;

Whereas neighborhood crime watch organizations are effective at promoting awareness about, and the participation of volunteers in, crime prevention activities at the local level:

Whereas neighborhood crime watch groups can contribute to the Nation's war on drugs by helping to prevent their communities from becoming markets for drug dealers;

Whereas crime and violence in schools is of continuing concern to the American people due to the recent high-profile incidents that have resulted in fatalities at several schools across the United States:

Whereas community-based programs involving law enforcement, school administrators, teachers, parents, and local communities work effectively to reduce school violence and crime:

Whereas citizens across America will soon take part in a "National Night Out", a unique crime prevention event which will demonstrate the importance and effectiveness of community participation in crime prevention efforts by having people spend the period from 7 to 10 o'clock P.M. on August 1, 2000, with their neighbors in front of their homes with their lights on; and

Whereas schools that turn their lights on from 7 to 10 o'clock P.M. on August 1, 2000, would send a positive message to the participants of "National Night Out" and would show their commitment to reduce crime and violence in schools: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved. That it is the sense of the House of Representatives that the President should focus appropriate attention on the issue of neighborhood crime prevention, community policing, and reduction of school crime by delivering speeches, convening meetings, and directing his Administration to make reducing crime an important priority.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the resolution was agreed to. There was no objection.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

RELIGIOUS LAND USE AND INSTI-TUTIONALIZED PERSONS ACT OF 2000

Mr. CANADY of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the Senate bill (S. 2869) to protect religious liberty, and for other purposes, and ask for its immediate consideration in the House.

The Clerk read the title of the Senate bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, and I will not object; but I ask the gentleman from Florida (Mr. CANADY) to explain the bill

Mr. CANADY of Florida. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. NADĽER. I yield to the gentleman from Florida.

Mr. CANADY of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from New York for yielding.

York for yielding.

The Religious Land Use and Institutionalized Persons Act is a bill designed to protect the free exercise of religion from unnecessary governmental interference. The legislation uses the recognized constitutional authority of the Congress to protect one of the most fundamental aspects of religious freedom, the right to gather and worship, and to protect the religious exercise of a class of people particularly vulnerable to government regulation, and that is institutionalized persons.

While this bill does not fill the gap in the legal protections available to people of faith in every circumstance, it will provide critical protection in two important areas where the right to religious exercise is frequently infringed.

I want to express my gratitude, especially to Senator HATCH and Senator KENNEDY for their great effort over the last months in bringing this bill forward to passage today in the United States Senate. Without their efforts, obviously, we would have been unsuccessful in our ongoing efforts to protect religious liberty in America.

This does not solve all of the problems that we had attempted to solve with the legislation that the House previously passed, but this is a very important step forward in the protection of religious liberty for all Americans.

I must also express my deep gratitude to the gentleman from New York (Mr. NADLER) for his cooperation and work on this piece of legislation. Without his effort we would not have been able to succeed in bringing this forward. I also wish to thank the gentleman from Texas (Mr. EDWARDS) for his outstanding work on this important legislation.

Finally, I would like to thank a member of the staff of the Subcommittee on the Constitution, Cathy Cleaver, for her long hours of hard work on this legislation.

I would urge that the House proceed to passage of this bill.

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, further reserving the right to object, I am very glad to join my good friend from Florida in urging support for this bill.

This is the third in a series of bills we have considered on the floor in the last 7 years to deal with some Supreme Court decisions from the early nineties. It is extremely important for the preservation of some of the free exercise protections of the Constitution, for the free exercise of religion. It is different, more narrow, than the Religious Liberty Protection Act we considered on the floor last year.

That bill, as you may recall, had some people concerned with some civil rights implications. Those concerns have been allayed. They are not present in this bill. The Leadership Conference on Civil Rights and the American Civil Liberties Union, both of which had concerns about last year's bill, both support this bill. Every religious group that I am aware of supports this bill. I am aware of no opposition from any religious or civil rights or civil liberties group, and I am very glad to participate finally in passing this bill and sending it on to the President.

I want to join the gentleman from Florida (Mr. CANADY) in thanking Senators KENNEDY and HATCH for their work. I want to thank the gentleman from Florida (Mr. CANADY) for his valuable work and leadership in bringing this bill to the floor. I want to thank the staff of the Committee on the Judiciary. I want to thank the gentleman from Texas, (Mr. EDWARDS), who joins me as the lead Democratic sponsor of the bill and has been a staunch supporter of religious liberty.

I particularly want to thank a member of the committee staff on the minority side, David Lachmann, who worked on this issue when he was on my staff, when he was on Congressman Solarz' staff before I was here, and since he has been on the committee staff, and without whose efforts we probably would not be here today.

So I am very glad this is here today. I am glad one of the last things we do before our recess is to reaffirm the commitment of the Congress to religious liberty and send this on to the President. Again, I thank the gentleman.

Mr. Speaker, I certainly am very happy to withdraw my reservation of objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the Senate bill, as follows.

Nothing in this subsection shall be construed to deny, impair, or otherwise affect any right or authority of the Attorney General, the United States, or any agency, officer, or employee of the United States, acting under any law other than this subsection, to institute or intervene in any proceeding.

(g) LIMITATION.—If the only jurisdictional basis for applying a provision of this Act is a claim that a substantial burden by a government on religious exercise affects, or that removal of that substantial burden would affect, commerce with foreign nations, among the several States, or with Indian tribes, the provision shall not apply if the government demonstrates that all substantial burdens on, or the removal of all substantial burdens from, similar religious exercise throughout the Nation would not lead in the aggregate to a substantial effect on commerce with foreign nations, among the several States, or with Indian tribes.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 4285, "Texas National Forest Improvement Act of 1999."

Mr. Speaker, this legislation gives the Secretary of Agriculture the authority to sell or exchange nine parcels of land located in the state of Texas

The parcels listed in this legislation cost the National Forest Service thousands of dollars to maintain and would be better utilized if transferred to private ownership.

More specifically Mr. Speaker, this bill gives the Secretary of Agriculture the authority to convey 57 acres of land located within the Sam Houston National Forest to the New Waverly Gulf Coast Trades Center.

The trade center is doing a great job of training at-risk youth in various construction related occupations. The trade center is using the existing forest service work site as a jobtraining center, which provides these youth an opportunity to gain a useful skill.

Mr. Speaker, this transfer is supported by the USDA and would comply with all environmental regulations as required by law. In addition, this transfer will be transacted at fair market value.

I want to commend my colleague, Mr. TURN-ER, for his work on this legislation. And I ask all of my colleagues to support passage.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

SPECIAL ORDERS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PEASE). Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 6, 1999, and under a previous order of the House, the following Members will be recognized for 5 minutes each.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PALLONE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. PALLONE addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

THE SITUATION IN HAITI IS DESPERATE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. GOSS) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, nobody in the Clinton-Gore administration talks much about the situation in Haiti anymore, even though the situation there is very desperate. I find this regrettable because any reasonable observer will say that the Clinton-Gore policy has failed badly, that there is no democracy in Haiti, and that Haiti's leaders have returned to the old ways of solving problems through violence and intimidation, fear, repression, and even murder.

The Haitian parliament has been shuttered since President Preval dissolved it in 1998. A few weeks ago, Haiti held elections that were supposed to have seated a new parliament and provided a road map out of the government crisis that has been going on so long; but Aristide partisans perverted the election process, producing election count results that no international observer is able to certify as legitimate.

Haiti's friends around the world have weighed in with concern and condemnation, whether it is the OAS, CARICOM, the U.N., Japan, France, and so forth. But to illustrate what is really going on in Haiti, I want to tell the story of Mr. Leon Manus. Mr. Manus is the president of Haiti's provisional electoral council. That is the body that oversaw the recent balloting. It is a body that is meant to ensure full, fair, free, democratic, transparent elections; but one will not find President Manus in Port-au-Prince or anywhere else in Haiti, for that matter.

The fact is that Mr. Manus was chased out of his country in fear of his life and his family's lives. He is here in the United States seeking political asylum.

How did this happen? Why did this happen? According to an accurate report in the Los Angeles Times, Mr. Manus' relatives say that Manus was summoned to the presidential palace after the elections, where President Preval and former President Aristide pressured him to certify the recent fraudulent election count as valid, but Mr. Manus steadfastly refused.

He would not be a party to corruption, and he left the presidential palace and began what turned out to be a several-day flight in fear of his life that eventually led him to the safety here in the United States of America.

I recently had the opportunity to meet with Mr. Manus. I can say he is an absolutely committed man, committed to democracy and to a deep love for his family and his country. I think he wants nothing more than to return to his country and build a true democracy, but he cannot do so as long as the power in Haiti remains usurped by the new dictators there, and these are the very same folks the United States returned to power just a few years ago.

Make no mistake about what is going on in Haiti. Certainly factions of the country have been slowly and deliberately silencing their enemies and laying the groundwork for totalitarian rule, which we witnessed today. These people are not interested in democracy. They are not interested in helping their people find a better life, and they desperately need one in Haiti. They are only interested in preserving their own power; and as all of this has gone on, the Clinton and Gore administration has been inept and in denial.

Time and time again they have

Time and time again they have passed up opportunity to make clear to the Haitian leadership what it means to practice democracy, to build democratic institutions. I cannot fathom why they continue to defend the situation in Haiti or aid and abet the activities of the Aristide crowd. They are not Democrats.

Given this total failure, Congress must act to help stop the move toward dictatorship in Haiti. In this year's foreign operations bill, the House voted to prohibit any aid to the government of Haiti with a few exceptions such as counterdrug assistance and humanitarian food aid for the people and medicine for the sick. This is a good first step, but there is plenty more to be done.

Another good and logical step would be for the United States to revoke visas issued to corrupt Haitian government officials who are credibly alleged to be involved in narcotics trafficking, money laundering, and other crimes. Haiti's leaders have turned their backs on democracy and, saddest of all, have turned their backs on their own people.

The Clinton administration has fumbled U.S. policy toward Haiti at a cost of billions to the American taxpayer and immeasurable suffering to the Haitian people.

Mr. Speaker, I challenge the Clinton-Gore administration to publicly admit their failure in Haiti, and I invite them to join in a policy that supports democracy rather than Aristide and his cronies

NATIONAL FAMILY FARM DAIRY EQUITY ACT OF 2000

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. WHITFIELD). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. KIND) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. KIND. Mr. Speaker, today I am pleased to join the gentleman from New York (Mr. HOUGHTON), the gentleman from Vermont (Mr. SANDERS), and the gentleman from Maine (Mr. BALDACCI) in introducing the National Family Farm Dairy Equity Act of 2000. This legislation will provide countercyclical dairy payments to our Nation's hard-pressed area farmers when the market price falls below $12.50 per hundredweight for milk. As we all know, dairy has been a highly controversial political issue in this Chamber, oftentimes pitting region against region and farmer against farmer regardless of where they are producing in this country. It is time we end this political regional fight and bring our family farmers together with a national approach.

Despite the well-intentioned regional disputes, one thing is clear and indisputable: family dairy farms across the Nation are hurting with prices at over 20-year lows. Thousands of family farmers are forced out of business each year and our rural communities in all regions suffer as well. We are losing four to five family dairy farms a day in the State of Wisconsin alone under these conditions.

In fact, the price for Class III milk. milk manufactured for cheese, has been less than $10 per hundredweight since the beginning of this year. This rock-bottom price has had a devastating effect on family farmers in my home State of Wisconsin, America's dairyland. Despite the disastrously low prices that are plaguing our family farmers, dairy is a stepsister to the other agriculture commodity programs. Unlike wheat and feed grains, which received the lion's share of the $22 billion of emergency relief over the past two years, dairy has received a paltry 1.5 percent of this sum, or roughly $325 million.

While this assistance has been appreciated by many within our dairy industry, it is far from a panacea. Instead of being constant, these payments are subject to political pressure and the whims and demands of the appropriators in Congress.

The legislation we have introduced today is quite simple. It provides for greater income from dairy production by creating a $12.50 per-hundredweight target price for all classes of milk. But this legislation is market reflecting; it is not market distorting. Moreover, this legislation makes the dairy program more consistent with Federal programs for other commodities, similar to the loan deficiency payment which is currently applied to wheat and feed grains, which is strongly supported by Members from both political parties.

Dairy farmers will receive payments only when the market price falls below this certain target price. Hence, in good times when the prices are greater than $12.50 per hundredweight, producers will not receive any payment. In times of poor prices, the size of the payment will be linked to the difference between the target price and the market price. Payments would be made monthly, not annually, as is the case under the dairy transition payment.

This legislation targets Federal assistance to medium-size family farms.

Specifically, under this tripartisan national bill, producers would receive assistance up to the first 2.6 million pounds of milk produced annually, reflective of milk produced by approximately 150 cows on a farm. Unlike past and current agricultural programs, producers would not receive financial assistance if they increased production. Also, new entrants would be eligible to participate.

Healthy, vibrant family dairy farms are vital economic, social, and cultural resources that we have but are now at risk. Sadly, this Nation takes this resource for granted and fails to fully appreciate the vital role that dairy farmers play in every consumer's daily life. Dairy is an important part of our economy. If we fail to safeguard this vital resource entering the new century, America risks losing the family dairy farms that have made us strong. My legislation safeguards this precious resource and this honorable way of life.

Mr. Speaker, as Congress begins to consider alternatives for its next farm bill, I believe the National Family Farm Dairy Equity Act is a right step to provide a safety net for America's dairy families who have experienced so much financial hardship due to misguided Federal policies.

I look forward to working with my colleagues on efforts to assist our Nation's hard-working dairy farmers.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. JONES) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. JONES of North Carolina addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from New Mexico (Mrs. WILSON) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mrs. WILSON addressed the House. Her remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF GUAM ORGANIC ACT

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 6, 1999, the gentleman from Guam (Mr. UNDERWOOD) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the minority leader.

Mr. UNDERWOOD. Mr. Speaker, I yield to our friend and colleague, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. KIND).

RECOGNIZING THE OUTSTANDING CAREER AND CONTRIBUTIONS OF ADMIRAL JAY JOHNSON

Mr. KIND. Mr. Speaker, I thank my friend, the gentleman from Guam (Mr. UNDERWOOD), for yielding me the beginning portion of his 1-hour special order.

Mr. Speaker, I wanted to rise this evening to pay tribute and to express the Nation's gratitude to a man who has served his country with valor and distinction over 30 years, one of the great patriots of our time, Admiral Jay Johnson

Last weekend in Annapolis, Admiral Jay Johnson retired as Chief of Naval Operations of the United States Navy. In that capacity, Admiral Johnson has firmly led the world's largest Navy through challenges and responsibilities rarely experienced by a peacetime military force.

A comparable Navy of such complexity and capability has never before plowed the seas, and Admiral Johnson has been at its helm through tensions in Asia, action in the Persian Gulf and the Balkans, and the humanitarian relief around the world.

Admiral Johnson was raised in West Salem, Wisconsin, a small town in my congressional district, and I know the folks back home are immensely proud of their local hero. After graduating from the United States Naval Academy in 1968, Admiral Johnson flew combat missions in the F-8 Crusader over Vietnam, including missions with Senator JOHN MCCAIN.

After transitioning his flying skills to the now venerable F-14 Tomcat, Admiral Johnson went on to command a carrier airwing, a carrier battle group, and a Navy fleet.

During his long and distinguished career, he also served on shore at the Armed Forces Staff College and the Chief of Naval Operations Strategic Studies Group and received numerous decorations, citations and accolades.

I believe one of the most impressive aspects of Admiral Johnson's service as CNO has been his unwavering commitment to the men and women who serve in the uniform of the United States Navy. During Admiral Johnson's term with the Joint Chiefs of Staff, his Navy served in 45 operations around the world. Yet even while guiding the Navy through extremely complex operations during a period of heightened operational tempo, Admiral Johnson maintained undaunting support for his sailors and tirelessly advocated on their behalf at the Pentagon, the White House, and here in Congress. He has made it clear that military readiness depends greatly on the resources this country brings to bear on the training, pay and benefits and quality of life of its servicemen and women.

I believe his message has been heard loud and clear here in Congress.

At the birth of our Nation, President George Washington once said, and I quote, "Without a decisive Naval force we can do nothing definitive and with it everything honorable and glorious."

In 1961, Admiral George Anderson, then CNO of the Navy, stated, quote, "The Navy has been a tradition and a future and we look with pride and confidence in both directions," end quote.

Mr. Speaker, Admiral Jay Johnson has proven both men right. Admiral Johnson has led the U.S. Navy through incredible trials with great honor. He has upheld the finest traditions of the Navy and our Nation while ensuring the bright future for the men and women who chose to follow the bold course he has set.

Mr. Speaker, throughout his life and his career in the Navy, Admiral Johnson has set a fine example of spirit, dedication, fortitude, and leadership for all Americans, young and old. I urge all Americans to take to heart the vision set out by Admiral Johnson during his confirmation hearing when he said, and I quote, "We will steer by the stars and not by the wake."

On behalf of the residents of western Wisconsin, I proudly commend Admiral Jay Johnson for his illustrious career in the service of our country.

I also commend his wife, Garland, for her loyalty, patience, and steadfastness in the face of the challenges a life in the military poses to every family, and I am sure my colleagues join with me here tonight in wishing them all a very long and happy retirement.

Mr. UNDERWOOD. Mr. Speaker, I, too, would like to add my words of congratulations to Admiral Johnson for very excellent career in the Navy and upon his retirement and his last tour of duty as chief of naval operations.

We in Guam had the opportunity to work with him on a number of issues. I always found him to be supportive. More importantly, he served at a time when the Navy was being asked to do many things. He was able to carry that out successfully with grace and always before Congress and before the Committee on Armed Services making a great case for the Navy.

Mr. Speaker, tonight I take the opportunity to do a special order on the anniversary of something that is very important to the people of Guam and something that will be commemorated next week. I want to take this opportunity to explain a little bit about it to provide the historical background for this event.

August 1, 1950 was the signing of the Guam Organic Act. Next Tuesday on Guam, there will be a commemoration of the 50th anniversary of the Organic Act. Many times, unless one lives in a territory, perhaps the term organic does not really mean much, but Organic Act means it is an organizing act, an act that organizes the local government pursuant to an act of Congress.

So it was that on August 1950, President Harry Truman signed the Guam Organic Act, creating and making permanent a local civilian government providing for a locally elected legislature and providing for an independent judicial system that had a direct linkage into the Federal court system and, most importantly, providing U.S. citizenship for the people of Guam, the people that I represent.

This is the 50th anniversary of Congressional action which brought an end to military government in Guam, a measure of real democracy to a group of loyal people, of loyalty that had been just tested during a horrific occupation by enemy forces during World War II and were, therefore, granted U.S. citizenship.

The Organic Act was preceded by a very sustained effort on the part of the people of Guam, the Island's leaders, and many friends of Guam and supportive persons in the United States here in Congress and in the administration of President Truman, as well as President Roosevelt, and in the national media, who at the time in the late 1940s, people who took a direct interest of the affairs of what were to happen to dependent territories coming out of World War II.

The Organic Act formally ended although it had ended a few months earlier by Presidential action. The Congressional Act, entitled the Organic Act, put an end to military government in Guam, a form of government meant to be temporary but which lasted some 50 years, a military government, a clearly un-American form of government, clearly undemocratic form of government in which the people of Guam basically lived under the control of military officers, whose primary duties were military in nature and whose secondary duties included the civil administration of a people that they saw as a dependent people as wards of the state, clearly untenable and undemocratic form of government.

Unfortunately, many people in the military had continued to justify the continuing nature of this government by saying that Guam had very strong strategic value for the United States and that, therefore, the people of Guam should not enjoy too many civil and political rights.

Under military government, the people of Guam were called U.S. nationals. Under a military government, government was created by fiats mandated by the Naval Governor of Guam called General Orders. Every time he wanted to make a law, he simply called in a scribe. They numbered these laws in consecutive order, ranging from General Order No. 1, first promulgated in 1899, right up until the very end of Naval rule some 50 years later.

One of those rules encapsulated the civil status of the people of Guam, and it was called General Court Martial Order No. 1923 held while the people of Guam owed perpetual allegiance to the United States. They are not citizens thereof, nor is there any mechanism through which they could become citizens.

So as far as the Navy was concerned, the people of Guam owed perpetual allegiance to the United States, but they were not U.S. citizens; and, more importantly, there was no way that they could become U.S. citizens. That is probably the most outrageous General Order in the whole series of General Orders that were prosecuted on the people of Guam throughout naval government.

That led to a citizenship movement. This movement for U.S. citizenship was seen in Guam as the way to eliminate the vestiges of military government. If one wanted to get rid of military government, it was assumed that, if people were declared U.S. citizens, that it would simply be untenable to continue to have military officers run the life of the island.

This citizenship movement was led originally by two men, B.J. Bordallo and F.B. Leon Guerrero. During the 1930s, they made a trip here into Washington, D.C., met with the President, met with a number of congressional leaders to argue for a U.S. citizenship for the people of Guam.

The way that they funded their trip was to go through the villages of Guam with a blanket that was carried at all four points, and citizens and children would throw pennies and dimes and nickels into the blanket. After doing this for a few months, they were able to secure enough funds to fly the then China Clipper to come here and spend several months making their case in Washington, D.C.

They were able to a meet with President Roosevelt, and they were able to prevail upon two Senators, Senator Tydings from Maryland and Senator Gibson from Vermont who subsequently introduced a bill granting the people of Guam U.S. citizenship, and it passed the Senate. That bill went to the House where it died on the basis of a congressional testimony made by Secretary of the Navy Claud Swanson that said the people of Guam were living on too strategic a piece of real estate to be concerned with such things as civil and political rights.

Subsequent to that, of course, the people of Guam endured an occupation by the Japanese during World War II. Coming out of World War II, there was a renewed spirit. Here one had a war that was essentially fought to end tyranny and, at the conclusion of the war, there were a number of territories and dependencies that existed throughout the world.

So the United States and Great Britain and France and other countries that were on the victorious side of World War II had then created the United Nations in order to ensure a peaceful and stable world and introduced as part of the UN Charter Article 73, which was meant to deal with nonself-governing territories, that the countries that were responsible for these areas had a distinct responsibility to promote self-government and self-determination for these nonself-governing territories.

The United States voluntarily placed a number of territories on those lists of nonself-governing territories to dramatize to the world how sincere the commitment was to end the whole nature of colonial government in the world.

Also, commensurate with this effort, which was in the national consciousness and with the local citizenship movement, there was an effort by citizens of the United States who were very friendly to the idea of civilian government for Guam and citizenship for the people of Guam. These people were led by an anthropologist by the name of Dr. Laura Thompson who founded the Institute of Ethnic Affairs. She worked very closely with her husband John Collier and former Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes, and a couple of people in the media, one was Foster Hailey with the New York Times, and Richard Wells, an attorney who had formerly been stationed in Guam right at the end of World War II.

These people, in turn, worked towards generating media stories that appeared in Collier's magazine, Saturday Evening Post, a lot of very popular magazines at the time about what the exact conditions were in the territories, both American Samoa and Guam. But Guam offered the more dramatic story.

In the meantime, the Navy tried to counteract this effort by instituting their own, by assigning a number of officials to point out the blessings of military government. All of this came to a head when the Naval Governor of Guam, the last Naval Governor by the name of Admiral Pownall, was presiding over then a bicameral what was called the Guam Congress, the House of Council and the House of Assembly.

There was a provision in the law at the time that said that, in order to run a business on Guam, 50 percent of the ownership had to be of Guamanian origin so that the people of Guam would not be at the time subjected to undue competition from foreign sources.

But there was a civil service employee who was surreptitiously running a dress shop. The Assembly subpoenaed this individual by the name of Abe Goldstein. He ran a dress shop called the Guam Style Center. They subpoenaed him to appear in front of the House of Assembly. Mr. Goldstein conferred with the Admiral, and the Admiral told him he did not have to appear in front of the Assembly, that the Assembly had no power to subpoena anyone

So the Assembly became very upset and walked out and adjourned and said that they would not reconvene until it was made clear by the Naval Governor what the extent of their authority was.

Information on this particular walkout was front page news in several newspapers, including in San Fancisco and Honolulu, and attracted a lot of attention. This effort was coordinated by a man by the name of Carlos Taitano who is still very much with us today and who will be the principal celebrant of the Guam Organic Act celebration next week. Carlos Taitano at the time was a member of the Guam Assembly.

The leader of the walkout was a man by the name of Antonio Borja Won Pat, who also had spent several months in Washington after World War II advocating U.S. citizenship for Guam. He was the speaker of the Assembly, the author of the walkout, the speaker of the subsequent Guam legislature after the institution of the Organic Act, and eventually the first delegate to the U.S. House of Representatives from Guam. So Mr. Won Pat is probably the single most important political figure in the history of Guam in the 20th Cen-

In November of 1949, there was a hearing in Guam on legislation introduced. This is pursuant to this walkout in March 1949. It was seen that something had to be done. Legislation was introduced in the House. The Public Lands Committee went to Guam in November of 1949, had a hearing; and in that hearing, the main concern presented by the people of Guam, interestingly, was land.

During the intervening time from the reinstitution of the Navy military government of Guam after World War II, the Navy had acquired over a third of the island, probably about 40 percent; and people were told that they were going to get their land back. We have had this difficulty ever since, and we are trying to resolve this in a comprehensive way. That issue is still very much alive today and was part of a bill that was passed in the House earlier this week, H.R. 2462, the Guam Omnibus Opportunities Act.

Now, the actual act that passed Congress, passed both the House and the Senate, was based on H.R. 7273, which was a modified form of the earlier version, and it was introduced by Congressman Hardin Peterson of Florida.

In this final act, it set up a system of government which we would call clearly undemocratic in today's terms but seemed very democratic at the time. One, it provided for a unicameral legislature of 21 Members elected by the people of Guam and limited to two 30-day sessions a year within the Organic Act.

It provided for a local court system. But if one had a felony case or a case involving more than $5,000 in a civil suit, one had to go to a Federal court. So it established a Federal district court. So the scope of the local courts was limited, even though it established a kind of independent judiciary.

Of course the main feature of this Organic Act passed in 1950 was it did not have an elected governor. What we had at the time was a governor that was appointed by the President. So even though it was a civilian and was not a person in uniform, and even though we had disestablished the naval military government of Guam, clearly there was much progress to be made.

But for 1950, now we are talking about 1950, this Organic Act of Guam was seen as very progressive in the entire Pacific compared to all the other territories which France and Great Britain had, and some of the other islands in the Pacific. This looked like a very progressive step.

and widely supported. And, of course, the good feature, the unique feature, about it was the acquisition of U.S. citizenship.

The first civilian governor of Guam that was appointed by President Harry Truman was Carlton Skinner, who was a young, progressive governor, who made a very skillful transition from military to civilian government. He was a very important figure in the development of the Organic Act and the move from military to civilian government, and he also will be joining us in Guam on August 1 to commemorate the Organic Act.

But the politics of the environment changed along with elections to president, and in 1952, with the election of President Eisenhower, a new governor was selected for Guam, a man by the name of Ford Q. Elvidge, who wrote an article, after he finished his term, in the Saturday Evening Post entitled "I Ruled Uncle Sam's Problem Child." It was a very uncomfortable article to read. Nevertheless, Ford Q. Elvidge allegedly had an experience which indicated how strong the military still was in Guam.

He was appointed to be governor of Guam, but up until the year 1962, people could not go to Guam and people could not leave Guam unless the Navy allowed them to leave or unless the Navy allowed them to come in. This was called military security clearance. Unless an individual had security clearance. This act lasted all the way until 1962. It was started right at the beginning of 1940, as the situation between Japan and the United States started to darken. So this military security clearance executive order was declared by President Franklin Roosevelt

Well, Ford Q. Elvidge, as he boarded a plane to leave Honolulu to come to Guam to take over as governor was stopped by military officials who refused to let him go on the plane because he did not have the appropriate security clearance from Naval authorities, only pointing out how deeply rooted military authority was in the lives of the people. After some discussion on the matter, they finally relented and they allowed the governor of Guam actually to go to Guam.

So this situation existed in Guam for another 20 years. Finally, in 1968, an elective governorship bill passed the Congress allowing the people of Guam to elect a new governor. The judicial system was simultaneously changed to expand the scope of the authority of the local court system, and later on in 1970 and 1971, there were laws passed in the House of Representatives to create the office of the delegate for the Virgin Islands and a delegate for the people of Guam.

So after the completion of those elements it sort of completed the cycle and it certainly gave the sense that there was complete local self-government in Guam. The people of Guam elected their governor, but this was still 20 years after the original Organic Act. The people of Guam elected a delegate to Congress, which gave them some opportunity to participate in the affairs of the House, although, of course, in the final analysis, there is no voting representation.

An interesting story. When Mr. Won Pat first came as the first delegate, there was some discussion in the initial House rules as to whether to pay him a full salary or not. There was some discussion about that. Fortunately for all the successors to this office, they agreed that they would pay the same salary as they pay other Members of Congress. But it shows, in a way, the kind of step-by-step process.

But there was still something fundamentally incomplete about the Organic Act, and that is that at the end of the day the Organic Act is not a local self constitution. The Organic Act is an act of Congress. And every time we need to change portions of that act, we have to come back to Congress. There is a provision that allows the people of Guam to create a local constitution, but to date that has only been exercised once, and the proposed constitution was defeated because the people of Guam felt strongly that there was still a more fundamental issue even than the creation of a local constitution, and that is the exercise of self-determination.

As I indicated earlier, the United Nations system, which was organized by the victorious powers coming out of World War II, in order to demonstrate that they were on the right side of democracy and to show that they meant democracy for everyone, created a system called the nonself-governing territory system inside the United Nations. To this date, Guam and American Samoa and the Virgin Islands remain on those lists of nonself- governing territories because there has not been a full exercise of self-determination to decide in what direction they wish to go and what directions are made available to them by what is termed, in the United Nations language of this relationship, the administering power.

So Guam continues to be a nonself-governing territory. It remains a nonself-governing territory because it does not have any voting participation in the laws that are applicable to them in any respect. So an individual living in a territory and a law is passed here on the Endangered Species Act or a law regarding the regulation of land or the law regarding taxation, and that law has some applicability to that person, it violates the very first tenet of the American creed, which is government by the consent of the governed. And there is no consent to governance.

Now, one can argue that there is a sense of participation; that there is some level of involvement, but at the end of the day there is no real consent of the governed. And of course people in the territories do not vote for the President, though, of course, he is our President as much as he is the President of any other American, and we go off to war just like we go off to war with other Americans as well, and he is our Commander in Chief.

Today, at the end of the day and some 50 years having elapsed since the passage of the Organic Act, many see the Organic Act in Guam as reflective of past events and, to some extent, past political traumas; as seen as evidence of continued Federal control of Guam; as seen as passe at worst, maybe transitional at best. But I believe that that is looking backward, forgetting the sweet victory that the Organic Act represented in 1950.

It was the kind of progress that was possible at the time, and it was progress that many people worked hard to achieve. It took many people to get us to that point, and we must not forget the efforts of those very hard working, sincere persons from Guam, as well as their friends here in Washington, D.C. who brought genuine political progress to Guam. We must not forget that they slain real dragons, they overcame real barriers, and they brought down a system of military government that, in the final analysis, did not really want to leave.

So the Organic Act, while it is properly seen in its historical development for the island I represent is certainly not the Magna Carta for Guam or the declaration for Guam or not even the constitution for Guam, but it is an important document that embodied a fundamental shift of government from people in uniform to people in civilian clothes; a document that embodied the principle that there should be some consent of the governed over laws that are made locally; that embodied and most importantly recognized the loyalty of the people of Guam through an horrific occupation and finally de-clared them to be U.S. citizens en masse.

At this time that we recognize this very important anniversary for the people of Guam, we must be mindful of the fact that there are still many tasks ahead of us. But at least let us remember August 1, 1950, and on August 1, 2000 take time and reflect upon our past history, the work of such great people in my own island's history, like Antonio Borja Won Pat, F. B. Leon Guerrero, and B. J. Bordallo, and take the time to honor and pay tribute to those men.

VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN ACT AND NIH FUNDING

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. WHITFIELD). Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 6, 1999, the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the majority leader.

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, I appear before this House in the hopes that we will make a resolution when we return from our district work period, a resolution that adds on to the commitment that we made in 1994 to recognize and fight back against domestic violence and sexual assault by passing the Violence Against Women Act as part of the Crime Bill. That is what happened in 1994.

Now, over the past 5 years, over a billion dollars of Federal money has funded law enforcement training, shelters, counseling for victims, and prevention programs for batterers and children. With so little time left in the 106th Congress, we really must focus on reauthorizing the Violence Against Women Act. H.R. 1248, which I introduced, currently has 215 cosponsors, and it recently passed the Committee on the Judiciary by unanimous consent. Indeed, it should be considered in the full House just as soon as we return. The progress made by thousands of victims and advocates in every State and district could be in jeopardy if we do not.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I want to take this opportunity to talk about the National Institutes of Health, which is in my district, and again the commitment that we in Congress have made to double the funding for the National Institutes of Health over a 5-year period.

Over the last 6 years, we have been very fortunate to have the House appropriations subcommittee that deals with the National Institutes of Health chaired by my very good friend, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. PORTER), who will not be seeking reelection for the next Congress. We indeed will miss him, his support, his interest in the health and the welfare of our Nation's citizens, and his commitment to doubling the funding of NIH over 5 years.

This objective, to which I am committed, to double this budget, began in 1998 when we successfully enacted a 15 percent increase in the NIH appropriation for fiscal year 1999. We succeeded again with another 15 percent increase for fiscal year 2000. And we are now at the third step in achieving our goal of doubling the NIH budget by 2003. I urge the conference committee on the appropriations for the Labor HHS bill to continue this commitment and fund NIH $20.5 billion, which is the full 15 percent increase of $2.7 billion. There is clearly no better time than now to recommit our pledge to doubling this funding.

Recent analyses by the Congressional Budget Office shows that this year's budget surplus is a record surplus of $232 billion. This is a $53 billion increase from the April projection. And over the next decade the CBO expects the surplus to grow between $4.5 trillion and $5.7 trillion, significantly more than what was expected just 3 months ago.

Mr. Speaker, Albert Einstein is quoted as having once said, "The only justifiable purpose of political institutions is to ensure the unhindered development of the individual." As a political institution, we must do just that, to ensure the pursuit of science and unraveling the mysteries of mankind.

By way of science and knowledge, we are ensuring the unhindered development of the individual. The National Institutes of Health is a world renowned institution located in Montgomery County, Maryland. It is considered the leading force in mankind's continued war against all forms of cancer. HIV/AIDS, blindness, autoimmune diseases, mental illness, and so many life-threatening and debilitating dis-

I doubt if there is one person in this Congress whose life or family is not affected by a disease that depends on the research being funded by NÎH.

It is not by chance that the United States is the undisputed world leader in high-tech medical science and drug development. It is in large part because the Federal Government has made a commitment to fund basic biomedical research for over 50 years and create a strong partnership with the private sector to bring new life-saving treatments to patients throughout the world

The Federal commitment to biomedical, behavioral, and populationbased research is responsible for the continued development of an ever-expanding base that has contributed to medical advances that have profoundly improved the length and the quality of life for all Americans.

These are remarkable times, Mr. Speaker. Never before in the history of mankind have we experienced such an explosion of discoveries. Information gained from NIH research is revolutionizing the practice of medicine and the future direction of scientific inquiry.

Recently, the international Human Genome Project partners and Celera Genomics Corporation jointly announced that they have completed a working draft assembly of the human genome. This is a truly significant milestone for science and medicine.

For the first time in our history, researchers have available with just a few clicks on their computer the nearly 3.1 billion letters that make up the human instruction book. All of the sequence data produced by the publicly supported human genome project is deposited daily in GenBank, a freely available sequence database maintained by the NIH's National Center for Biotechnology Information.

Public consortium centers produce far more sequence data than expected. In a matter of about 15 months, 22 billion bases, or letters, of raw sequence data was produced, providing sevenfold coverage of the human genome. As a result, the working draft is substantially closer to the ultimate finished form than the consortium expected at this stage.

This is an NIH success story. Reaching this milestone is just the beginning. The project now turns more of its energy and resources to the development of tools to understand the instructions encoded in the billions of bases of DNA sequence. Alterations in our genes are responsible for an estimated 5,000 clearly hereditary diseases, such as Huntington's disease, cystic fibrosis, and sickle-cell anemia.

They are also believed to influence the development of thousands of others more common diseases, such as schizophrenia, Alzheimer's disease, cancers, heart disease, diabetes, and arthritis.

As a result, decoding this information is expected to lead to powerful new ways to prevent, diagnose, treat and cure disease. This will occupy the time and energy of biomedical scientists for decades to come.

When will there be a better time to invest in biomedical research than now? I do not know of one.

Yesterday, July 26, 2000, was the 10th anniversary of the Americans With Disabilities Act. Fifty-four million Americans have a disability. That is 20 percent of our population.

We have a dire need in this country to focus our efforts on the health of our citizens. The number of Americans over age 65 will double in the next 30 years to more than 69 million. A significant portion will develop some form of a disability.

Research is needed. It is needed to help reduce the enormous economic and social burdens that are posed by chronic diseases such as osteoporosis, arthritis. Parkinson's, and Alzheimer's disease, cancer, heart disease, and stroke.

With so many of these diseases that are debilitating or life-threatening, we are so close, so close to the finish line in finding a cure and being able to provide for a treatment or a cure. We now talk of finding cures for so many diseases in 5 years in our lifetime.

NIH-funded research enter many of these diseases, and that is the foundation underlying the search for answers. Without the essential role that the NIH is playing in our health care equation, we as a Nation will fail to achieve the goal of a healthier, more productive Nation.

The American people want increased funding for medical research. Many polls have shown that the majority of Americans support Federal investment in medical research. With this research, we have learned that disease is a complex and evolving enemy.

Despite the extraordinary progress that has been made in the fight against many diseases, serious challenges still exist. I want to mention several examples of a new preventive strategy against disease which is changing the lives of millions of Americans.

This month, NIH announced a new clinical trial of 10 research centers which will soon begin testing a promising technique for transplanting insulin-producing pancreas cells that may one day allow people with type-one diabetes to stop their insulin shots.

This year a team of researchers funded by the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development has found that infants who die of Sudden Infant Death Syndrome suffer from abnormalities in certain regions of the brain stem. This brings us closer to ground-breaking, NIH-funded study published in the July issue of the proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences, researchers rapidly restored lost vision in a mouse model of Leber's. Leber's is a group of severe, early-onset, retinal degenerative diseases causing rapid vision loss at birth or during very early childhood.

This finding represents the first time researchers have restored vision in an animal model of retinal degeneration. The researchers are now moving toward doing human clinical trials.

Mr. Speaker, scientific advances resulting from NIH-supported research mean improved health and reduced suffering, job creation, biomedical research, and biotechnology, and farreaching economic benefits touching every State through major universities, government laboratories, and research institutes.

In global competition, biomedical research and biotechnology are areas of strong American leadership and commitment. Continued support for the National Institutes of Health will ensure that American scientific excellence continues as we move through this century. We can afford to do no less for this generation and for generations to come.

I urge my colleagues to continue with our objective of doubling the budget for the National Institutes of Health.

"(i) The drugs or combinations of drugs have, under the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act or section 351 of the Public Health Service Act, been approved for use in maintenance or detoxification treatment.

"(ii) The drugs or combinations of drugs have not been the subject of an adverse determination. For purposes of this clause, an adverse determination is a determination published in the Federal Register and made by the Secretary, after consultation with the Attorney General, that the use of the drugs or combinations of drugs for maintenance or detoxification treatment requires additional standards respecting the qualifications of practitioners to provide such treatment, or requires standards respecting the quantities of the drugs that may be provided for unsupervised use.

(D)(i) A waiver under subparagraph (A) with respect to a practitioner is not in effect unless (in addition to conditions under subparagraphs (B) and (C)) the following conditions are met:

'(I) The notification under subparagraph (B) is in writing and states the name of the practitioner.

"(II) The notification identifies the registration issued for the practitioner pursuant to subsection (f).

(III) If the practitioner is a member of a group practice, the notification states the names of the other practitioners in the practice and identifies the registrations issued for the other practitioners pursuant to subsection (f).

(ii) Upon receiving a notification under subparagraph (B), the Attorney General shall assign the practitioner involved an identification number under this paragraph for inclusion with the registration issued for the practitioner pursuant to subsection (f). The identification number so assigned clause shall be appropriate to preserve the confidentiality of patients for whom the practitioner has dispensed narcotic drugs under a waiver under subparagraph (A).

"(iii) Not later than 45 days after the date on which the Secretary receives a notification under subparagraph (B), the Secretary shall make a determination of whether the practitioner involved meets all requirements for a waiver under subparagraph (B). If the Secretary fails to make such determination by the end of the such 45-day period, the Attorney General shall assign the physician an identification number described in clause (ii) at the end of such period.

(E)(i) If a practitioner is not registered under paragraph (1) and, in violation of the conditions specified in subparagraphs (B) through (D), dispenses narcotic drugs in schedule III, IV, or V or combinations of such drugs for maintenance treatment or detoxification treatment, the Attorney General may, for purposes of section 304(a)(4), consider the practitioner to have committed an act that renders the registration of the practitioner pursuant to subsection (f) to be inconsistent with the public interest.

(ii)(I) A practitioner who in good faith submits a notification under subparagraph (B) and reasonably believes that the conditions specified in subparagraphs (B) through (D) have been met shall, in dispensing narcotic drugs in schedule III, IV, or V or combinations of such drugs for maintenance treatment or detoxification treatment, be considered to have a waiver under subparagraph (A) until notified otherwise by the Secretary.

"(II) For purposes of subclause (I), the publication in the Federal Register of an adverse determination by the Secretary pursuant to subparagraph (Č)(ii) shall (with respect to the narcotic drug or combination involved) be considered to be a notification provided by the Secretary to practitioners, effective upon the expiration of the 30-day period beginning on the date on which the adverse determination is so published.

"(F)(i) With respect to the dispensing of narcotic drugs in schedule III, IV, or V or combinations of such drugs to patients for maintenance or detoxification treatment, a practitioner may, in his or her discretion, dispense such drugs or combinations for such treatment under a registration under paragraph (1) or a waiver under subparagraph (A) (subject to meeting the applicable conditions).

"(ii) This paragraph may not be construed as having any legal effect on the conditions for obtaining a registration under paragraph (1), including with respect to the number of patients who may be served under such a registration.

(G) For purposes of this paragraph:

"(i) The term 'group practice' has the meaning given such term in section 1877(h)(4) of the Social Security Act.

'(ii) The term 'qualifying physician' means a physician who is licensed under State law and who meets one or more of the following conditions:

''(I) The physician holds a subspecialty board certification in addiction psychiatry from the American Board of Medical Special-

"(II) The physician holds an addiction certification from the American Society of Addiction Medicine.

(III) The physician holds a subspecialty board certification in addiction medicine from the American Osteopathic Association.

(IV) The physician has, with respect to the treatment and management of opiate-dependent patients, completed not less than eight hours of training (through classroom situations, seminars at professional society meetings, electronic communications, or otherwise) that is provided by the American Society of Addiction Medicine, the American Academy of Addiction Psychiatry, the American Medical Association, the American Osteopathic Association, the American Psychiatric Association, or any other organization that the Secretary determines is appropriate for purposes of this subclause.

'(V) The physician has participated as an investigator in one or more clinical trials leading to the approval of a narcotic drug in schedule III, IV, or V for maintenance or detoxification treatment, as demonstrated by a statement submitted to the Secretary by the sponsor of such approved drug.

(VI) The physician has such other training or experience as the State medical licensing board (of the State in which the physician will provide maintenance or detoxification treatment) considers to demonstrate the ability of the physician to treat and manage opiate-dependent patients.

"(VII) The physician has such other training or experience as the Secretary considers to demonstrate the ability of the physician to treat and manage opiate-dependent patients. Any criteria of the Secretary under this subclause shall be established by regulation. Any such criteria are effective only for 3 years after the date on which the criteria are promulgated, but may be extended for such additional discrete 3-year periods as the Secretary considers appropriate for purposes of this subclause. Such an extension of criteria may only be effectuated through a statement published in the Federal Register by the Secretary during the 30-day period preceding the end of the 3-year period involved.

"(I) Approval of additional credentialing bodies and the responsibilities of additional credentialing bodies.

"(II) Additional exemptions from the requirements of this paragraph and any regulations under this paragraph.

Nothing in such regulations or practice guidelines may authorize any Federal official or employee to exercise supervision or control over the practice of medicine or the manner in which medical services are provided

'(ii) Not later than 120 days after the date of the enactment of the Drug Addiction Treatment Act of 2000, the Secretary shall issue a treatment improvement protocol containing best practice guidelines for the treatment and maintenance of opiate-dependent patients. The Secretary shall develop the protocol in consultation with the Director of the National Institute on Drug Abuse, the Director of the Center for Substance Abuse Treatment, the Administrator of the Drug Enforcement Administration, the Commissioner of Food and Drugs, the Administrator of the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration, and other substance abuse disorder professionals. The protocol shall be guided by science.

(I) During the 3-year period beginning on the date of the enactment of the Drug Addiction Treatment Act of 2000, a State may not preclude a practitioner from dispensing or prescribing drugs in schedule III, IV, or V, or combinations of such drugs, to patients for maintenance of detoxification treatment in accordance with this paragraph unless, before the expiration of that 3-year period, the State enacts a law prohibiting a practitioner from dispensing such drugs or combinations of drug.

''(J)(i) This paragraph takes effect on the date of the enactment of the Drug Addiction Treatment Act of 2000 and remains in effect thereafter except as provided in clause (iii) (relating to a decision by the Secretary or the Attorney General that this paragraph should not remain in effect).

(ii) For purposes relating to clause (iii). the Secretary and the Attorney General may, during the 3-year period beginning on the date of the enactment of the Drug Addiction Treatment Act of 2000, make determinations in accordance with the following:

(I) The Secretary may make a determination of whether treatments provided under waivers under subparagraph (A) have been effective forms of maintenance treatment and detoxification treatment in clinical settings; may make a determination of whether such waivers have significantly increased (relative to the beginning of such period) the availability of maintenance treatment and detoxification treatment; and may make a determination of whether such waivers have adverse consequences for the public health.

'(II) The Attorney General may make a determination of the extent to which there have been violations of the numerical limitations established under subparagraph (B) for the number of individuals to whom a practitioner may provide treatment; may make a determination of whether waivers under subparagraph (A) have increased (relative to the beginning of such period) the extent to which narcotic drugs in schedule III, IV, or V or combinations of such drugs are being dispensed or possessed in violation of this Act: and may make a determination of whether such waivers have adverse consequences for the public health.

(iii) If, before the expiration of the period specified in clause (ii), the Secretary or the Attorney General publishes in the Federal Register a decision, made on the basis of determinations under such clause, that this paragraph should not remain in effect, this paragraph ceases to be in effect 60 days after the date on which the decision is so published. The Secretary shall in making any such decision consult with the Attorney General, and shall in publishing the decision in the Federal Register include any comments received from the Attorney General for inclusion in the publication. The Attorney General shall in making any such decision consult with the Secretary, and shall in publishing the decision in the Federal Register include any comments received from the Secretary for inclusion in the publication.

IMPROVING FUEL ECONOMY

Mr. GORTON, Mr. President, I am here to cheer the announcement by the Ford Motor Company that it will voluntarily improve the fuel economy of its fleet of sport utility vehicles by 25 percent over a period of 5 years. At a time when gas prices are skyrocketing and sales of SUVs are increasing, this announcement couldn't come at a better time. Ford's decision to make SUVs more fuel efficient is welcome news. I have long said that the industry has existing technology to allow cars to go farther on a gallon of gas and to save consumers money at the gas pump. Ford has set an example that other auto manufacturers should follow immediately. I am anxiously awaiting a response from the remaining two of the big three and hope they will join Ford in its pursuit of cleaner, more efficient vehicles.

I hope the manufacturers, now having pledged to improve fuel efficiency, will join me in my efforts to study an increase in corporate average fuel economy standards. As my colleagues know, I have long been an advocate of raising CAFE standards and scored a breakthrough victory earlier this year that paves the way for the Department of Transportation and the National Academy of Sciences, once again, to study fuel efficiency standards and their relationship to such issues as vehicle safety and to recommend the findings to Congress by July 1, 2001. I look forward to working with the automotive industry to ensure that this study is fair and balanced.

Many constituents and colleagues are surprised to learn of my advocacy for CAFE standards. My motivation is a simple one and is based on the success of the original CAFE standards statutes. I have never been swayed by doomsday predictions from automakers that claim they would be forced to manufacture a fleet of subcompact cars if we allowed the Department of Transportation to study and impose an increase in CAFE standards. We have come a long way from absolute opposition to a study of the issue to today's major announcement by the Ford Motor Company that will be of tremendous benefit to consumers who want cleaner, more efficient SUVs. This announcement reaffirms my faith in the ability of American automobile manufacturers to produce fuel-efficient vehicles that are the envy of the world. The debate over raising CAFE standards has come a long way, and I look forward to continuing this debate when Congress returns from its August recess.

BREACHING COLUMBIA AND SNAKE RIVER DAMS

Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, on a third and separate subject, during the course of this past week, four Northwest Governors, two Republicans and two Democrats—the Governors of Montana, Idaho, Washington, and Oregon—released a framework that shows great promise toward the recovery of endangered salmon on the Columbia and Snake Rivers. They have done so without recommending that any dams on the Columbia and Snake Rivers be breached and destroyed. I agree wholeheartedly with the following statement from their plan:

The region must be prepared in the near term to recover salmon and meet its larger fish and wildlife restoration obligations by acting now in areas of agreement without resorting to breaching the four Snake River dams.

That is a reasonable statement. Unfortunately, it is not one which Vice President Gore and the Federal agencies now concerned with salmon enhancement endorse in their countervailing recommendations of today to keep moving forward with plans to destroy those dams.

I agree with the bipartisan Governors' plan in many of its elements, including the principle that performance standards must be scientifically based, subject to scientific peer review, reasonably obtainable, and measurable. I agree with the Governors that the National Marine Fisheries Service should work together with local, State, and tribal governments and private landowners on what specific improvements are needed for recovery. I agree with the Governors that we need real leadership and that the President of the United States should appoint one official in the region who will be accountable and who will efficiently oversee Federal agency fish recovery efforts.

Over the past decade, we have squandered more than a billion dollars and commissioned dozens of studies that have done little to promote a consensus on how best to save salmon. The Governors and I agree that local salmon recovery plans that avoid Federal methods of duplication and top-down planning are a much more effective method of saving salmon. I agree with the Governors that States should move ahead to designate priority watersheds for salmon and steelhead plans that are to be developed within 1 year and that the Federal agencies should have clear numerical goals so that success may be measured in those watersheds.

The appropriations subcommittee of this Congress last year directed the National Marine Fisheries Service to provide numerical goals for all of the listed fish in the Puget Sound and Columbia River regions and a schedule for all other areas and to provide this information to Congress by July 1 of this year. Instead of fulfilling this request, those agencies have said they will not have any goals until the fall of 2001 and that they have only begun the technical recovery planning for any species of fish they seek to recover. In other words, once again the administration says what we ought to do without knowing what those steps are designed to accomplish.

I agree with the Governors and their recommendation that the Army Corps of Engineers, the National Marine Fisheries Service, and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service must develop a long-term management plan to address predation by fish-eating birds and marine mammals, including seals and sea lions, and do so by the end of the year. I agree with the Governors that the National Marine Fisheries Service should work with the region to conduct an intensive study to address the role of the ocean in fish recovery and ask that the management of fish and fresh water reflect new information about the ocean as it is developed.

• This "bullet" symbol identifies statements or insertions which are not spoken by a Member of the Senate on the floor.

In short, I believe the Governors have a plan that will work. I have supported millions of dollars in salmon recovery money to be given to the States and to local volunteer groups and will work with them.

On the other hand, today the National Marine Fisheries Service has come out with its top-down recommendations, recommendations that, I want to point out, once again call for very specific measures and steps to be taken but do not state any goals for recovery and do not allow us to know what they believe success will be or how that success will be measured.

In the course of the last week or 10 days, the newspapers in the Pacific Northwest have been filled with statements that the Federal Government had abandoned the idea of dam removal as an element in salmon recovery at least for a decade. And the implication was that they had abandoned it forever.

Not so, Mr. President. What does the biological opinion that was issued today say in that respect?

It says:

The reasonable and prudent alternative requires that further development of breaches as an option is necessary, and it requires the Corps of Engineers by fiscal year 2002 to seek appropriations to complete preliminary engineering and design work by 2005 for potential removal of the four lower Snake River dams.

It does that in spite of the fact that: There is considerable uncertainty in assessing the status of listed fish under current conditions, and the alternative of breaching dams is highly dependent on the degree to which there is delayed mortality associated with juvenile fish passage at the dams and whether breaching would help even to answer these uncertainties.

Well, we have a set of Federal agencies that have disagreed with one another. The Corps of Engineers, a year ago, reached the conclusion that dam removal was a poor idea. It did so in spite of vastly underestimating, according to the General Accounting Administration, the adverse impacts on the society, the economy, and the environment of the Pacific Northwest. That recommendation was deleted from its formal opinion by orders of the White House.

Vice President GoRE has visited the State of Washington on three or four occasions during the course of this year. Each time he has been asked to state his opinion on dam removal, including a specific request by one of his supporters, the Governor of Oregon. He has ducked, dodged, and defied any attempt to get him to reach a conclusion on that particular subject. But I think this biological opinion released by the administration today shows what that opinion is. It is very simple: We will fool the people of the Pacific Northwest by saying we have probably abandoned the idea between now and the 8th of November, and then under these recommendations we can change our mind very rapidly when they won't have a direct say over who will manage the next national administration.

Contrast that position with the forthright and unconditional pledge of Governor Bush that the removal of our dams, the destruction of our physical infrastructure, is not an option; that we can and will recover the salmon resources in the Pacific Northwest by the use of our imaginations and by following the advice of the people whose lives are affected by these decisions—a view that I believe is entirely consistent with the recommendations this week of the four Governors-two Republicans and two Democrats, as I have already pointed out-from the Pacific Northwest itself.

Well, we do have something to say about this issue. I pledge I will do everything I can between now and the adjournment of this Congress in late September or early October to see to it this administration is not allowed to waste any more money-not a single dollar—on further studies to remove dams on the Columbia-Snake River system. We will call them to account for their own policies. Their own policies now say this decision should be moved down the road. Fine. We will move the whole decision down the road and hope that we will have a President who will be mindful of the views of the people of the Pacific Northwest and, in the meantime, we are not going to let them waste money to build a case for removing dams that ought to stay in place.

Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the bill by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (S. 2386) to extend a Stamp Out Breast Cancer Act. $\,$

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I am pleased that today the Senate is taking up, as an amendment to the reauthorization of the Breast Cancer Research Stamp, the Semipostal Act, an amendment I sponsored with Senators Feinstein and Hutchison.

My amendment is very similar to the McHugh bill that we sent to the President yesterday, which establishes the authority to issue semipostals in the U.S. Postal Service. However, it is different in that it requires the Postal Service to recoup the full costs associated with the stamp. This bill will ensure that the Postal Service recovers its costs before funds are made available to the agency to carry out the designated program. We do not want the Postal Service using its own budget to fund contributions to causes designated by semipostals. Only the true net profit from the sale of the semipostals will be made available to the appropriate agency. This bill also gives the Congress the power to reject a stamp proposal chosen by the Postal Service, if for example, the stamp subject is deemed inappropriate.

Mr. President, I am pleased that we are giving the authority to issue semipostal stamps to the Postal Service, which is where these decisions belong.

AMENDMENT NO. 4029

(Purpose: To grant the United States Postal Service the authority to issue semipostal stamps, and for other purposes)

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows: The Senator from Oregon [Mr. SMITH of Oregon], for Mr. LEVIN, for himself, Mrs. FEINSTEIN, and Mrs. HUTCHISON, proposes an amendment numbered 4029.

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(The text of the amendment is printed in today's RECORD under "Amendments Submitted.")

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, today the Senate will pass the Shivwits Band of the Paiute Indian Tribe of Utah Water Rights Settlement Act and send this legislation to the President. This is an important day for the citizens of Washington County, Utah, and the members of the Shivwits Band. This legislation will finally provide a settlement of water rights issues of the Santa Clara River in Washington County, the driest county in the second driest state in the Union.

The Santa Clara is a fairly small river running through the Shivwits Band's reservation near the city of St. George, Utah. This water is shared by the Washington County, the Washington County Water Conservancy District, St. George, the town of Ivins, the town of Santa Clara, and the Shivwits Band. Last, but not least, Mr. President, this water is also used by the Virgin Spinedace, an endangered fish species residing in the river. This water settlement meets the needs of all of these interested parties.

This legislation will also establish the St. George Water Reuse Project. This project will provide 2,000 acre-feet of water for the Shivwits Band. It will also create the Santa Clara Project. This project will provide a pressurized pipeline from the nearby Gunlock Reservoir to deliver 1,900 acre-feet of water to the Shivwits Band.

I was pleased to be the sponsor of this bill in the Senate, and I would like to express my deep appreciation to Chairman CAMPBELL and Vice Chairman INOUYE of the Senate Indian Affairs Committee for their outstanding support for this legislation. Without their help and the help of their staffs, this legislation would not have progressed as smoothly as it has. I also express my appreciation to my good friend, Senator BENNETT, a cosponsor of this bill, for his support.

Finally, however, I want to give due credit to the Administration, the local officials of Washington County, and the members of the Shivwits Band for constructing this agreement. I am a firm believer in a collaborative process and the inclusion of local officials and citizens in it. I believe that legislation—both before and after passage—can be far more successful than when local input is missing from a bill's development.

Again, I want to thank all Senators for their support of this legislation.

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the bill be read the third time and passed, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and that any statements relating to the bill be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The bill (H.R. 3291) was read the third time and passed.

25TH ANNIVERSARY OF HELSINKI FINAL ACT

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Mr. President I ask unanimous consent that the Senate now proceed to the immediate consideration of Calendar No. 697, S.J. Res. 48

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the resolution by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A joint resolution (S.J. Res. 48) calling upon the President to issue a proclamation recognizing the 25th anniversary of the Helsinki Final Act.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the joint resolution.

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. I ask unanimous consent that the joint resolution be read the third time and passed, the preamble be agreed to, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and any statements related to this resolution be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The joint resolution (S.J. Res. 48) was read the third time and passed.

The preamble was agreed to.

The joint resolution, with its preamble, reads as follows:

S.J. RES. 48

Whereas August 1, 2000, is the 25th anniversary of the Final Act of the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe (CSCE), renamed the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe (OSCE) in January 1995 (in this joint resolution referred to as the "Helsinki Final Act");

Whereas the Helsinki Final Act, for the first time in the history of international agreements, accorded human rights the status of a fundamental principle in regulating international relations:

Whereas during the Communist era, members of nongovernmental organizations, such as the Helsinki Monitoring Groups in Russia, Ukraine, Lithuania, Georgia, and Armenia and similar groups in Czechoslovakia and Poland, sacrificed their personal freedom and even their lives in their courageous and vocal support for the principles enshrined in the Helsinki Final Act;

Whereas the United States Congress contributed to advancing the aims of the Helsinki Final Act by creating the Commission on Security and Cooperation in Europe to monitor and encourage compliance with provisions of the Helsinki Final Act;

Whereas in the 1990 Charter of Paris for a New Europe, the participating states declared, "Human rights and fundamental freedoms are the birthright of all human beings, are inalienable and are guaranteed by law. Their protection and promotion is the first responsibility of government";

Whereas in the 1991 Document of the Moscow Meeting of the Conference on the Human Dimension of the CSCE, the participating states "categorically and irrevocably declare[d] that the commitments undertaken in the field of the human dimension of the CSCE are matters of direct and legitimate concern to all participating States and do not belong exclusively to the internal affairs of the State concerned";

Whereas in the 1990 Charter of Paris for a New Europe, the participating states committed themselves "to build, consolidate and strengthen democracy as the only system of government of our nations";

Whereas the 1999 Istanbul Charter for European Security and Istanbul Summit Declaration note the particular challenges of ending violence against women and children as well as sexual exploitation and all forms of trafficking in human beings, strengthening efforts to combat corruption, eradicating torture, reinforcing efforts to end discrimination against Roma and Sinti, and promoting democracy and respect for human rights in Serbia;

Whereas the main challenge facing the participating states remains the implementation of the principles and commitments contained in the Helsinki Final Act and other OSCE documents adopted on the basis of consensus:

Whereas the participating states have recognized that economic liberty, social justice, and environmental responsibility are indispensable for prosperity;

Whereas the participating states have committed themselves to promote economic reforms through enhanced transparency for economic activity with the aim of advancing the principles of market economies:

Whereas the participating states have stressed the importance of respect for the rule of law and of vigorous efforts to fight organized crime and corruption, which constitute a great threat to economic reform and prosperity;

Whereas OSCE has expanded the scope and substance of its efforts, undertaking a variety of preventive diplomacy initiatives designed to prevent, manage, and resolve conflict within and among the participating states:

Whereas the politico-military aspects of security remain vital to the interests of the participating states and constitute a core element of OSCE's concept of comprehensive security:

Whereas the OSCE has played an increasingly active role in civilian police-related activities, including training, as an integral part of OSCE's efforts in conflict prevention, crisis management, and post-conflict rehabilitation; and

Whereas the participating states bear primary responsibility for raising violations of the Helsinki Final Act and other OSCE documents: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That Congress calls upon the President to—

- (1) issue a proclamation—
- (A) recognizing the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Final Act of the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe;
- (B) reasserting the commitment of the United States to full implementation of the Helsinki Final Act;
- (C) urging all signatory states to abide by their obligations under the Helsinki Final Act: and
- (D) encouraging the people of the United States to join the President and the Congress in observance of this anniversary with appropriate programs, ceremonies, and activities; and

(2) convey to all signatory states of the Helsinki Final Act that respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms, democratic principles, economic liberty, and the implementation of related commitments continue to be vital elements in promoting a new era of democracy, peace, and unity in the region covered by the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe.

CONDEMNING PREJUDICE AGAINST ASIANS AND PACIFIC ISLAND ANCESTRY

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of Calendar No. 698, S. Con. Res. 53.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the concurrent resolution by title.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the concurrent resolution, which had been reported from the Committee on the Judiciary, with an amendment to the preamble, and an amendment to the title; as follows:

Whereas individuals of Asian and Pacific Island ancestry have demonstrated their patriotism by honorably serving to defend the United States in times of armed conflict, from the Civil War to the mesent:

Whereas recent allegations of espionage and illegal campaign financing involve allegations of misconduct by certain individuals, such allegations should not result in questioning the loyalty and probity of individuals of the same or similar ancestry in the United States, simply due to such ancestry; and

Whereas individuals of Asian and Pacific Island ancestry have suffered discrimination and unfounded accusations of disloyalty throughout the history of the United States, resulting in discriminatory laws, including the former Act of May 6, 1882 (22 Stat. 58, chapter 126) (often referred to as the "Chinese Exclusion Act") and a 1913 California law relating to alien-owned land, and discriminatory actions, including internment of patriotic and loyal individuals of Japanese ancestry during the Second World War, the repatriation of Filipino immigrants, and the prohibition of individuals of Asian and Pacific Island ancestry from owning property, voting, testifying in court, or attending school with other people in the United States: Now, therefore be it

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That—

(1) Congress condemns all prejudice against individuals of Asian and Pacific Island ancestry in the United States; and (2) it is the sense of Congress that—

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. I ask unanimous consent that the substitute amendment, the concurrent resolution, the amendment to the preamble, and the amendment to the title be agreed to en bloc, that the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and that any statements relating thereto be printed in the RECORD.

Whereas the 501st Parachute Battalion participated successfully and valiantly in achieving victory in World War II;

Whereas the airborne achievements during World War II provided the basis for continuing the development of a diversified force of parachute and air assault troops;

Whereas paratroopers, glidermen, and air assault troops of the United States were and are proud members of the world's most exclusive and honorable fraternity, have earned and wear the "Silver Wings of Courage", have participated in a total of 93 combat jumps, and have distinguished themselves in battle by earning 69 Congressional Medals of Honor, the highest military decoration of the United States, and hundreds of

Whereas children are this Nation's most valuable resource:

Whereas the most important responsibility for this Nation's lawmakers and citizens is the protection and care of children:

Whereas in order to ensure the future success of this Nation, children must be taught values that will help them lead happy, healthy, and productive lives;

Whereas the family unit is most suitable to provide the special care and attention needed by children;

Whereas this year, many children will suffer from child abuse, neglect, poor nutrition, and insufficient child care, all of which jeopardize the well-being of young children and the opportunity for a fulfilling and successful adulthood;

Whereas extended family members, willing to open their hearts and homes to children whose immediate families are in crises, play an indispensable role in helping those children heal by providing them with a stable and secure environment in which they can grow and develop;

SUPPORTING RELIGIOUS TOLERANCE TOWARD MUSLIMS

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the Senate now proceed to the immediate consideration of Calendar No. 699, S. Res. 133.

PRESIDING OFFICER. The The clerk will report the resolution by

The legislative clerk read as follows: A resolution (S. Res. 133) supporting religious tolerance toward Muslims.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution.

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, I am pleased to cosponsor S. Res. 133, a resolution supporting religious tolerance toward Muslims. I wholeheartedly believe that anti-Muslim intolerance and discrimination should be condemned and must be fought at every opportunity. As Americans, we enjoy the right to speak and think freely. With that right comes a responsibility to ensure that free speech does not foster intolerance and lead to an atmosphere of hatred or fear. It is wrong when entire religions are made to be a scapegoat because of ignorance or spite, and I will continue to do all I can to promote thoughtful understanding and appreciation of the Muslim faith.

I am proud of the accomplishments and contributions made by Muslims in South Dakota and across America. I am hopeful that the Senate and entire Congress will approve this resolution in order to highlight the important role Muslim Americans play in our society.

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. I ask unanimous consent the resolution be agreed to, the preamble be agreed to, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and any statements relating to this resolution be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The resolution (S. Res. 133) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

The resolution, with its preamble, reads as follows:

S. RES. 133

Whereas the American Muslim community, comprised of approximately 6,000,000 people, is a vital part of our Nation, with more than 1,500 mosques, Islamic schools, and Islamic centers in neighborhoods across the United States;

Whereas Islam is one of the great Abrahamic faiths, whose significant contributions throughout history have advanced the fields of math, science, medicine, law, philosophy, art, and literature;

Whereas the United States is a secular nation, with an unprecedented commitment to religious tolerance and pluralism, where the rights, liberties, and freedoms guaranteed by the Constitution are guaranteed to all citizens regardless of religious affiliation;

Whereas Muslims have been subjected. simply because of their faith, to acts of discrimination and harassment that all too often have led to hate-inspired violence, as was the case during the rush to judgment in the aftermath of the tragic Oklahoma City bombing;

Whereas discrimination against Muslims intimidates American Muslims and may prevent Muslims from freely expressing their opinions and exercising their religious beliefs as guaranteed by the first amendment to the Constitution:

Whereas American Muslims have regrettably been portraved in a negative light in some discussions of policy issues such as issues relating to religious persecution abroad or fighting terrorism in the United States:

Whereas stereotypes and anti-Muslim rhetoric have also contributed to a backlash against Muslims in some neighborhoods across the United States; and

Whereas all persons in the United States who espouse and adhere to the values of the founders of our Nation should help in the fight against bias, bigotry, and intolerance in all their forms and from all their sources: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That-

(1) the Senate condemns anti-Muslim intolerance and discrimination as wholly inconsistent with the American values of religious tolerance and pluralism;

(2) while the Senate respects and upholds the right of individuals to free speech, the Senate acknowledges that individuals and organizations that foster such intolerance create an atmosphere of hatred and fear that divides the Nation;

(3) the Senate resolves to uphold a level of political discourse that does not involve making a scapegoat of an entire religion or drawing political conclusions on the basis of religious doctrine; and

(4) the Senate recognizes the contributions of American Muslims, who are followers of one of the three major monotheistic religions of the world and one of the fastest growing faiths in the United States.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution.

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the resolution be agreed to, the preamble be agreed to, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and finally, any statements be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The resolution (S. Res. 333) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

The resolution, with its preamble, reads as follows:

S. RES. 333

Whereas the personal exemption allowance is a vital component of trade and tourism;

Whereas many border communities and retailers depend on customers from both sides of the border;

Whereas a United States citizen traveling to Canada or Mexico for less than 24 hours is exempt from paying duties on the equivalent of $200 worth of merchandise on return to the United States, and for trips over 48 hours United States citizens have an exemption of up to $400 worth of merchandise;

Whereas a Canadian traveling in the United States is allowed a duty-free personal exemption allowance of only $50 worth of merchandise for a 24-hour visit, the equivalent of $200 worth of merchandise for a 48-hour visit, and the equivalent of $750 worth of merchandise for a visit of over 7 days;

Whereas Mexico has a 2-tiered personal exemption allowance for its returning residents, set at the equivalent of $50 worth of merchandise for residents returning by car and the equivalent of $300 worth of merchandise for residents returning by plane;

Whereas Canadian and Mexican retail businesses have an unfair competitive advantage over many American businesses because of the disparity between the personal exemption allowances among the 3 countries;

Whereas the State of Maine legislature passed a resolution urging action on this matter:

Whereas the disparity in personal exemption allowances creates a trade barrier by making it difficult for Canadians and Mexicans to shop in American-owned stores without facing high additional costs:

Whereas the United States entered into the North American Free Trade Agreement with Canada and Mexico with the intent of phasing out tariff barriers among the 3 countries; and

Whereas it violates the spirit of the North American Free Trade Agreement for Canada and Mexico to maintain restrictive personal exemption allowance policies that are not reciprocal: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That it is the sense of the Senate that—

(1) the United States Trade Representative and the Secretary of the Treasury, in consultation with the Secretary of Commerce, should initiate discussions with officials of the Governments of Canada and Mexico to achieve parity by harmonizing the personal exemption allowance structure of the 3 NAFTA countries at or above United States exemption levels; and

(2) in the event that parity with respect to the personal exemption allowance of the 3 countries is not reached within 1 year after the date of the adoption of this resolution, the United States Trade Representative and the Secretary of the Treasury should submit recommendations to Congress on whether legislative changes are necessary to lower the United States personal exemption allowance to conform to the allowance levels established in the other countries that are parties to the North American Free Trade Agreement.

RECOGNIZING THE UNIVERSITY OF SAN FRANCISCO DONS FOOTBALL TEAM

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of S. Res. 346, introduced earlier today, recognizing the achievement of the 1951 University of San Francisco Dons football team and acknowledging the wrongful treatment endured by the team.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the resolution by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A resolution (S. Res. 346) acknowledging that the undefeated and untied 1951 University of San Francisco Dons football team suffered a grave injustice by not being invited to any post-season Bowl game due to racial prejudice that prevailed at the time and seeking appropriate recognition for the surviving members of the championship team.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution.

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, this past week, our nation and the world have been privileged to witness two dramatic triumphs by American athletes. Lance Armstrong won his second consecutive Tour de France, and Tiger Woods became the youngest person ever to capture golf's Grand Slam by winning the British Open. These are truly historic achievements. Both men are deserving of all the praise and congratulations they are receiving, not only for their exceptional performances, but also for the dignified way they have represented their country and respective sports.

With the example of these modern day champions in mind, today I am introducing a resolution to honor a similarly outstanding group of athletes from years ago.

The 1951 University of San Francisco Dons. football. team, the went undefeated and untied. By almost any account, the Dons were among the most gifted college football teams ever. Ten of the team's players were drafted by the NFL. Of these, eight actually played professionally. Of these, five played in a least one Pro Bowl. And of these five, three, Bob St. Clair, Ollie Matson and Gino Marchetti, were inducted into the Professional Football Hall of Fame.

But despite the team's irrefutable ability and qualifications, the Dons were not invited to participate in any post season bowl games. The reason why the players and coaches were denied this once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to prove themselves as a team before a national audience is as simple as it is tragic. Two of the Dons' players Ollie Matson and Burl Toler, were African-American.

In 1951, it would have been expected of a team with the Dons record to compete for the national championship in the Orange Bowl. When an invitation to this bowl did not materialize, everyone knew why. At this time the unwritten but well understood rule was that bowl games were strictly off limits to teams with African American players.

Although the Dons were not invited to play in the Orange Bowl, they did receive an invitation to participate in another bowl game, The only hitch was that they would have to play without their two teammates. To their enduring credit, the team did not think twice about standing by Ollie and Burl and emphatically rejected the offfer.

Refusing this offer was a heroic act, but not the only one for this team. Several members of the squad fought in WWII and in the Korean War.

Considered perhaps the best player on the team, Burl Toler suffered an injury during a college All Star game which prevented him from joining the NFL as a player. Instead, he went back to school, received his master's degree, became the City of San Francisco's first black secondary school principal, and later the director of services for the San Francisco Community College District. He did this while also serving for 25 years as one of the NFL's most respected referees. In fact, Burl Toler was the NFL's first black official, a position offered to him by a fellow classmate at USF, former NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Now almost 50 years later, I hope my colleagues will agree that it is entirely appropriate that this truly special collection of athletes receive the national attention and accolades they once earned but were denied. The resolution I will introduce today calls on the Senate to recognize the team for its achievements on the field as well as the integrity of players and coaches off it. It also calls on this body to acknowledge that the discriminatory treatment endured by the Dons and other teams and individuals at that time was flatly wrong.

With the Olympics approaching, and as we celebrate Lance Armstrong and Tiger Woods for their victories and the obstacles they and others had to overcome for them to reach the pinnacle of their sports, I hope we also make the effort to honor the 1951 USF Dons—a team whose combination of talent and courage we may never see again.

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. I ask unanimous consent the resolution and preamble be agreed to en bloc, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and any statements relating thereto be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The resolution (S. Res. 346) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

The resolution, with its preamble, reads as follows:

S. RES. 346

Whereas the 1951 University of San Francisco Dons football team completed its championship season with an unblemished record;

Whereas this closely knit team failed to receive an invitation to compete in any post-season Bowl game because two of its players were African-American;

Whereas the 1951 University of San Francisco Dons football team courageously and rightly rejected an offer to play in a Bowl game without their African-American team-

Whereas this exceptionally gifted team, for the most objectionable of reasons, was deprived of the opportunity to prove itself before a national audience;

Whereas ten members of this team were drafted into the National Football League, five played in the Pro Bowl and three were inducted into the Hall of Fame;

Whereas our Nation has made great strides in overcoming the barriers of oppression, intolerance, and discrimination in order to ensure fair and equal treatment for every American by every American; and

Whereas it is appropriate and fitting to now offer these athletes the attention and accolades they earned but were denied:

Now, therefore, be it Resolved, That the Senate-

(1) applauds the undefeated and untied 1951 University of San Francisco Dons football team for its determination, commitment and integrity both on and off the playing field; and

(2) acknowledges that the treatment endured by this team was wrong and that recognition for its accomplishments is long overdue.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. They will be vitiated.

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. As in executive session. I ask unanimous consent a request which is at the desk for an extension for the consideration of nominations by the Governmental Affairs Committee be agreed to.

TREATY ON INTER-AMERICAN CONVENTION AGAINST CORRUPTION—TREATY DOCUMENT NO. 105–39

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to consider the following treaty on today's Executive Calendar: No. 16. I further ask unanimous consent that the treaty be considered as having passed through its various parliamentary stages, up to and including the presentation of the resolution of ratification; that all committee provisos, reservations, understandings, and declarations be considered agreed to; that any statements be printed in the Congressional Record as if read; further, when the resolution of ratification is voted upon, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and the President be notified of the Senate's action.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Mr. President, I ask for a division vote on the resolution of ratification.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. A division has been requested.

Senators in favor of the resolution of ratification will rise and stand until counted. (After a pause.) Those opposed will rise and stand until counted.

On a division, two-thirds of the Senators present having voted in the affirmative, the resolution of ratification is agreed to.

The resolution of ratification agreed to is as follows:

Resolved (two-thirds of the Senators present concurring therein),

That the Senate advise and consent to the ratification of the Inter-American Convention Against Corruption, adopted and opened for signature at the Specialized Conference of the Organization of American States (OAS) at Caracas, Venezuela, on March 29, 1996, (Treaty Doc. 105–39); referred to in this resolution of ratification as "The Convention", subject to the understandings of subsection (a), the declaration of subsection (b), and the provisos of subsection (c).

(a) UNDERSTANDINGS.—The advice and consent of the Senate is subject to the following understandings, which shall be included in the instrument of ratification of the Convention and shall be binding on the President:

(1) APPLICATION OF ARTICLE I.—The United States of America understands that the phrase "at any level of its hierarchy" in the first and second paragraphs of Article I of the Convention refers, in the case of the United States, to all levels of the hierarchy of the Federal Government of the United States, and that the Convention does not impose obligations with respect to the conduct of officials other than Federal officials.

(2) ARTICLE VII ("Domestic Law").—

(A) Article VII of the Convention sets forth an obligation to adopt legislative measures to establish as criminal offenses the acts of corruption described in Article VI(1). There is an extensive network of laws already in place in the United States that criminalize a wide range of corrupt acts. Although United States laws may not in all cases be defined in terms or elements identical to those used in the Convention, it is the understanding of the United States, with the caveat set forth in subparagraph (B), that the kinds of official corruption which are intended under the Convention to be criminalized would in fact be criminal offenses under U.S. law. Accordingly, the United States does not intend to enact new legislation to implement Article VII of the Convention.

(B) There is no general "attempt" statute in U.S. federal criminal law. Nevertheless, federal statutes make "attempts" criminal in connection with specific crimes. This is of particular relevance with respect to Article VI(1)(c) of the Convention, which by its literal terms would embrace a single preparatory act done with the requisite "purpose" of profiting illicitly at some future time, even though the course of conduct is neither pursued, nor in any sense consummated. The United States will not criminalize such conduct per se, although significant acts of corruption in this regard would be generally subject to prosecution in the context of one or more other crimes.

(3) Transnational Bribery.—Current United States law provides criminal sanctions for transnational bribery. Therefore, it is the understanding of the United States of America that no additional legislation is needed for the United States to comply with the obligation imposed in Article VIII of the Convention.

(4) Illicit enrichment.—The United States of America intends to assist and cooperate with other States Parties pursuant to paragraph 3 of Article IX of the Convention to the extent permitted by its domestic law. The United States recognizes the importance of combating improper financial gains by public officials, and has criminal statutes to deter or punish such conduct. These statutes obligate senior-level officials in the federal government to file truthful financial disclosure statements, subject to criminal penalties. They also permit prosecution of federal public officials who evade taxes on wealth that is acquired illicitly. The offense of illicit enrichment as set forth in Article IX of the Convention, however, places the burden of proof on the defendant, which is inconsistent with the United States Constitution and fundamental principles of the United States legal system. Therefore, the United States understands that it is not obligated to establish a new criminal offense of illicit enrichment under Article IX of the Convention.

(5) EXTRADITION.—The United States of America shall not consider this Convention as the legal basis for extradition to any country with which the United States has no bilateral extradition treaty in force. In such cases where the United States does not have a bilateral extradition treaty in force, that bilateral extradition treaty shall serve as the legal basis for extradition for offenses that are extraditable in accordance with this Convention.

(6) PROHIBITION ASSISTANCE TO THE INTERNATIONAL CRIMINAL COURT.—The United States of America shall exercise its rights to limit the use of assistance it provides under the Convention so that any assistance provided by the Government of the United States shall not be transferred to or otherwise used to assist the International Criminal Court agreed to in Rome, Italy, on July 17, 1998, unless the treaty establishing the Court has entered into force for the United States by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, as required by Article II, section 2 of the United States Constitution.

(b) DECLARATION.—The advice and consent of the Senate is subject to the following declaration:

TREATY INTERPRETATION.—The Senate affirms the applicability to all treaties of the constitutionally based principles of treaty interpretation set forth in Condition (1) of the resolution of ratification of the INF Treaty, approved by the Senate on May 27, 1988, and Condition (8) of the resolution of ratification of the Document Agreed Among the State Parties to the Treaty on Conventional Armed Forces in Europe, approved by the Senate on May 14, 1997.

(c) PROVISOS.—The advice and consent of the Senate is subject to the following provisos:

(1) ENFORCEMENT AND MONITORING.—Not later than April 1, 2001, and annually thereafter for five years, unless extended by an Act of Congress, the President shall submit to the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate, and the Speaker of the House of Representatives, a report that sets out:

(A) RATIFICATION.—A list of the countries that have ratified the Convention, the dates of ratification and entry into force for each country, and a detailed account of U.S. efforts to encourage other nations that are signatories to the Convention to ratify and implement it.

(B) DOMESTIC LEGISLATION IMPLEMENTING THE CONVENTION AND ACTIONS TO ADVANCE ITS OBJECT AND PURPOSE.—A description of the domestic laws enacted by each Party to the Convention that implement commitments under the Convention and actions taken by each Party during the previous year, including domestic law enforcement measures, to advance the object and purpose of the Convention.

(C) PROGRESS AT THE ORGANIZATION OF AMERICAN STATES ON A MONITORING PROCESS.—An assessment of progress in the Organization of American States (OAS) toward creation of an effective, transparent, and viable Convention compliance monitoring process which includes input from the private sector and non-governmental organizations.

(D) FUTURE NEGOTIATIONS.—A description of the anticipated future work of the Parties to the Convention to expand its scope and assess other areas where the Convention could be amended to decrease corrupt activities.

(2) MUTUAL LEGAL ASSISTANCE.—When the United States receives a request for assistance under Article XIV of the Convention from a country with which it has in force a bilateral treaty for mutual legal assistance in criminal matters, the bilateral treaty will provide the legal basis for responding to that request. In any case of assistance sought from the United States under Article XIV of the Convention, the United States shall. consistent with U.S. laws, relevant treaties and arrangements, deny assistance where granting the assistance sought would prejudice its essential public policy interest, including cases where the Central Authority, after consultation with all appropriate intelligence, anti-narcotic, and foreign policy agencies, has specific information that a senior government official who will have access to information to be provided under this Convention is engaged in a felony, including the facilitation of the production or distribution of illegal drugs.

(3) SUPREMACY OF THE CONSTITUTION.— Nothing in the Convention requires or authorizes legislation or other action by the United States of America that is prohibited by the Constitution of the United States as interpreted by the United States.

REMOVAL OF INJUNCTION OF SE-CRECY—TREATY DOCUMENT NO. 106–38

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Injunction of Secrecy be removed from the following treaty transmitted to the Senate on July 27, 2000, by the President of the United States:

Extradition Treaty with Belize (Treaty Document No. 106–38).

I further ask unanimous consent that the treaty be considered as having been read the first time; that it be referred, with accompanying papers, to the Committee on Foreign Relations and ordered to be printed; and that the President's message be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The message of the President is as follows:

To the Senate of the United States:

With a view to receiving the advice and consent of the Senate to ratification, I transmit herewith the Extradition Treaty Between the Government of the United States of America and the Government of Belize, signed at Belize on March 30, 2000.

In addition, I transmit, for the information of the Senate, the report of the Department of State with respect to the Treaty. As the report explains, the Treaty will not require implementing legislation.

The provisions in this Treaty follow generally the form and content of extradition treaties recently concluded by the United States.

The Treaty is one of a series of modern extradition treaties being negotiated by the United States in order to counter criminal activities more effectively. Upon entry into force, the Treaty will replace the outdated Extradition Treaty between the Government of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the Government of the United States of America. signed at London, June 8, 1972, entered into force on October 21, 1976, and made applicable to Belize on January 21, 1977. That Treaty continued in force for Belize following independence. This Treaty will, upon entry into force, enhance cooperation between the law enforcement communities of the two countries. It will thereby make a significant contribution to international law enforcement efforts against serious offenses, including terrorism, organized crime, and drug-trafficking offenses.

I recommend that the Senate give early and favorable consideration to the Treaty and give its advice and consent to ratification.

WILLIAM J. CLINTON. THE WHITE HOUSE, July 27, 2000.

REMOVAL OF INJUNCTION OF SE-CRECY—TREATY DOCUMENT NO. 106-39

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Injunction of Secrecy be removed from the following treaty transmitted to the Senate on July 27, 2000, by the President of the United States:

Treaty with Mexico on Delimitation of Continental Shelf (Treaty Document No. 106–39).

I further ask unanimous consent that the treaty be considered as having been read the first time; that it be referred, with accompanying papers, to the Committee on Foreign Relations and ordered to be printed; that the President's message be printed in the RECORD; and that the Senate return to legislative session

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The message of the President is as follows:

LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL

To the Senate of the United States:

With a view to receiving the advice and consent of the Senate to ratification, I transmit herewith the Treaty Between the Government of the United States of America and the Government of the United Mexican States on the Delimitation of the Continental Shelf in the Western Gulf of Mexico beyond 200 nautical miles. The Treaty was signed at Washington on June 9, 2000. The report of the Department of State is also enclosed for the information of the Senate.

The purpose of the Treaty is to establish a continental shelf boundary in the western Gulf of Mexico beyond the outer limits of the two countries' exclusive economic zones where those limits do not overlap. The approximately 135-nautical-mile continental shelf boundary runs in a general eastwest direction. The boundary defines the limit within which the United States and Mexico may exercise continental shelf jurisdiction, particularly oil and gas exploration and exploitation.

The Treaty also establishes procedures for addressing the possibility of oil and gas reservoirs that extend across the continental shelf boundary.

I believe this Treaty to be fully in the interest of the United States. Ratification of the Treaty will facilitate the United States proceeding with leasing an area of continental shelf with oil and gas potential that has interested the U.S. oil and gas industry for several years.

The Treaty also reflects the tradition of cooperation and close ties with Mexico. The location of the boundary has not been in dispute.

I recommend that the Senate give early and favorable consideration to this Treaty and give it advice and consent to ratification.

> WILLIAM J. CLINTON. THE WHITE HOUSE, July 27, 2000.

LEGISLATIVE SESSION

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate will now return to legislative session.

225TH ANNIVERSARY OF UNITED STATES ARMY CHAPLAIN CORPS

Mr. THURMOND. Mr. President, today I rise to extend my unswerving support and deep appreciation to the United States Army Chaplain Corps on the occasion of its 225th Anniversary, which will occur this Saturday, July 28, 2000. Throughout the history of our Nation, the Army Chaplaincy has dedicated itself to enriching our soldiers' spiritual lives and ensuring the free exercise of religion.

Many Chaplains and Chaplain Assistants have demonstrated their love for their fellow soldiers by risking their lives so that their comrades might live. I would like to acknowledge these dedicated individuals who have gallantly served in the Army Chaplaincy, and who continue to selflessly minister in the face of adversity, uncertainty, and anxiety so that soldiers might be brought closer to God. By their sacrifices, Chaplains and Chaplain Assistants have proven themselves in both peril and peace to love our soldiers, our Army, and our Nation above themselves. For this, our Nation is grateful. Again, I congratulate the United States Army Chaplains Corps for 225 years of loyal service and pray that it will continue to serve our Army until nations shall beat their swords into plowshares and war shall cease.

THE HORRIBLE VIOLENCE IN INDONESIA

Mr. ASHCROFT. Mr. President, I rise today to speak on an urgent issue of great concern to me. Over the past eighteen months, terrible violence has occurred and is still taking place in Indonesia's Moluccan (Maluku) Islands, focused in the provincial capital of Ambon, and no end is in sight. In this Indonesian province, religious conflict between Christians and Muslims has led to the loss of up to 10,000 lives and the displacement of up to 500,000 people. To my great dismay, the Indonesian government has had little success in protecting Christians. In the Moluccas in the last two years almost 10,000 buildings and churches have been burnt and mass killings go largely unpunished.

 $\bar{\mathbf{S}}$ ince, the situation has intensified with the arrival of members of the Laskar (Jihad) Force. The Laskar Jihad is a group of over 2,000 Muslim militants who sailed to the Moluccas from the main island of Java. Efforts by the United States to keep this group out was in vain. Indonesia adhered to her open inter-island immigration policy and the group was allowed to go to the Moluccas. Due to internal political unrest and continuing economic depression, the police forces and military are unable or unwilling to restore order. The necessity to bring the populace under the rule of law and order has intensified due to some reports that the Muslim Jihad Force has given the Christians in the city of Ambon until July 31st to vacate the city. If they do not leave in compliance with this ultimatum, they probably will be murdered.

Mr. President, the Molucca islands, known previously as the Spice Islands, have had a long history of contact and trade with Europe. The Spice Islands were greatly valued for their nutmeg and clove production. Due to this prolonged and extensive contact, the Moluccas have a much higher percentage of Christians than other parts of Indonesian President Indonesia. Abdurrahaman Wahid supports a policy of tolerance between the two religions, but such cooperation is not forthcoming. A history of heavy-handed authoritarianism, practiced by the Indonesian military under ex-President Suharto, resulted in the suppression of a range of disputes between the two groups. When Suharto's rule collapsed, these arguments were vented, and sectarian violence soon erupted. The spark came in January of 1999, the end of the Muslim month of Ramadan, when a minor incident on Ambon led to 160 deaths and villages burned to the ground. The violence escalated leading to a greater frequency of killings and the destruction of churches and mosques. To further complicate this horrendous situation, the military has not acted consistently neutral in this conflict, aiding Muslims militants against the Christians in several disturbing instances. The situation is desperate.

Mr. President, I would like to thank our Secretary of State, Ms. Madeline Albright, for her continuing work with the Indonesian government to alleviate this horrible religious strife in Indonesia. It is important for the United States to vigilantly and immediately pressure the Indonesian government to continue to take steps to restore civil order, foster dialogue between the Christians and the Muslims, and help the communities find a way to peacefully coexist. The U.S. also needs to Vice President Megawati press Sukarnoputri to find both short-term and long-term solutions to this problem-for she has expressly been given this task. In addition, the State Department must continue its push to let humanitarian workers and the United States Agency for International Development (USAID) into the Moluccas to alleviate some of the human suffering that is occurring as a result of the warfare. The Indonesian government has taken several positive steps towards ending the violence, including the appointment of a Hindu to head the police forces in the area. This nomination, as a gesture of non-partisanship, was a great stride in the right direction. However, we must work to ensure that all actions taken by the police and the military are fair, even-handed, and contribute to stopping the violence. Indonesia has also, to my pleasure, recently mounted a campaign to eject the Jihad Force from the Moluccas. This development should alleviate some of the violence, but the basic problems remain unsolved. The government of Indonesia must do more. In addition, the United States must continue to immediately press for a solution to this bloody situation in the hopes of establishing a peace and stability that would end the persecution of Christians in the Moluccans. Thank you.

EAST TIMOR AND INDONESIA

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I rise today to speak about the continuing crisis in Indonesia and East Timor.

Earlier this week, a peacekeeper from New Zealand, Leonard William Manning, was killed while tracking a group of men whom senior officials in Timor have identified as militia members who had crossed into East Timor from Indonesia. Private Manning was serving the cause of peace, his death is tragic, and I want to take this opportunity to express my sympathy to his family.

In the wake of this incident, the United Nations Security Council and the ASEAN Regional Forum have called on Indonesia to disband and disarm the militias operating in the refugee camps of West Timor, and to stop the militias' cross-border incursions into East Timor. But Mr. President, this call has echoed around the world for months now. It is a call that has gone unheeded.

The activities of Indonesian militias threaten the stability of Indonesia, the safety of peacekeepers and humanitarian workers, and the basic human rights of Indonesians and East Timorese. It was the militia, Mr. President, that waged a brutal campaign of violence and destruction immediately after East Timor's vote for independence last year. It was the militia that enjoyed the direct support of the Indonesian military throughout that operation. And it is the militia that continues to operate in the refugee camps of West Timor, where the most vulnerable East Timorese are subjected to threats and intimidation. It is the militia that has forced UNHCR to suspend operations in West Timor after a series of violent assaults on its staff.

I believe that many in the Indonesian government, including President Wahid, want to stop the militia violence and to end the intimidation in the refugee camps. But they are unable to make this happen, because too many people in powerful positions in Indonesia remain unwilling to make it happen. And that, Mr. President, is all that this country needs to know when the question of resuming military relations with Indonesia comes up.

Ominous reports of a deeply disturbing relationship between the Indonesian military and the militias continue to pour out of the region. Peacekeepers on the ground in East Timor have noted that the group that attacked Private Manning appeared to have benefitted from serious and significant military training. At one point recently, UNHCR personnel witnessed militiamen beat a refugee from East Timor and rob several others while a 70-strong Indonesian military detachment witnessed the incident but did not intervene.

And it's not just Timor, Mr. President. In the Moluccas, where sectarian violence has risen to such alarming levels that many have pondered international intervention, reliable reports indicate the Indonesian military has been complicit in the conflict, and has even provided support to certain factions. In Papua, or Irian Jaya, militia groups have already taken violent action against community leaders.

The simple and unfortunate facts, Mr. President, are that a power struggle continues in Indonesia, between those committed to a responsible and professional military operating under civilian control, and those who would cling to the abusive patterns of the past. I have introduced a bill, the East Timor Repatriation and Security Act of 2000, which would codify a suspension of military and security relations with and assistance to Indonesia until certain conditions are met. This legislation would permit military and security programs from J-CETS to military sales to resume only when the President determines and submits a report to the appropriate congressional committees that the Government of Indonesia and the Indonesian Armed Forces are doing the following-

Taking effective measures to bring to justice members of the armed forces and militia groups against whom there is credible evidence of human rights violations;

Taking effective measures to bring to justice members of the armed forces against whom there is credible evidence of aiding or abetting militia groups:

Allowing displaced persons and refugees to return home to East Timor, including providing safe passage for refugees returning from West Timor;

Not impeding the activities of the United Nations Transitional Authority in East Timor:

Demonstrating a commitment to preventing incursions into East Timor by members of militia groups in West Timor; and Demonstrating a commitment to accountability by cooperating with investigations and prosecutions of members of the Indonesian Armed Forces and military groups responsible for human rights violations in Indonesia and East Timor.

These certainly are not unreasonable conditions. They work in favor of the forces of reform within Indonesia. And by linking military and security assistance to these benchmarks, Congress will ensure that the U.S. relationship with Jakarta avoids the mistakes of the past, and that U.S. foreign policy comes closer to reflecting our core national values.

But recent events make it crystal clear that these conditions have not yet been met. Mr. President, the U.S. must continue to insist on them. In the pursuit of justice, in the pursuit of stability, and in support of the forces of reform, this country cannot send a signal that where we are today is somehow good enough. Again, Mr. President, I add my voice to the chorus, because U.S., Indonesian, and Timorese interests all demand that the militias be stopped and that the military must be united in the pursuit of professionalism, accountability, and civilian control

THE CLASS ACTION FAIRNESS ACT

Mr. GRAMS. Mr. President, I want to today announce my support for S. 353, the Class Action Fairness Act, just reported by the Judiciary Committee, and announced my intention to complement this legislation by introducing legislation soon that will require lawyers representing plaintiffs in class actions to make preliminary disclosures estimating the anticipated attorneys' fee, and an explanation of the relative recoveries that both the attorney and class action clients can expect to receive if the claim is settled or decided favorably. My cosponsorship of the Class Action Fairness Act and intention to introduce my own legislation is prompted by some high profile class action case settlements that have generated a great deal of controversy. Labeled "coupon" settlements, these agreements have involved the class action claimants receiving coupons for discounts on later purchases of goods or services while the attorneys representing the class walk away with literally hundreds of thousands of dollars, or even millions of dollars, in fees. Often these coupons are for discounts on the same item rejected by the claimants in the class action.

For instance, several years ago many of the nation's airlines were sued based upon a claim that they had fixed prices. A database that the airlines were using to communicate fares to the travel industry was suspected of being used to compare and fix fares, and a Justice Department antitrust investigation thus ensued. The Justice Department subsequently filed a civil antitrust suit in 1992 and settled the case in 1994. But firms specializing in class action cases also brought their own civil suits against the airlines on behalf of air travelers. In fact, 37 firms were involved on the plaintiff side of the litigation.

A settlement was eventually reached that provided $438 million worth of coupons to an unknown number of passengers, while the legal fees to plaintiffs' attorneys amounted to $16 million. In other words, the passengers got coupons, and the lawyers got cash. You may be thinking that $438 million in coupons sounds like a pretty generous amount of discounts for the passengers, but the details indicate otherwise. Each coupon was good for only a 10 percent maximum discount off an air fare. 4.2 million air travelers recovered between $73 and $140 in coupons, but, again, any one coupon was only good for 10 percent of the actual fare.

One particularly revealing fact about this settlement was that one airline that had not been named as a defendant actually asked to be joined in the suit as a defendant because they saw the promotional value of all these coupons going to air travelers. So what ostensibly was a high stakes civil action degenerated into a promotional tool for the airlines, a negligible recovery for the class members, and a financial boon for the plaintiffs' attorneys.

It's not difficult to foresee the possibility of collusion between plaintiffs' and defendants' attorneys when the plaintiff attorneys can get huge fees and defendants can eliminate the risk of a large judgment. It obviously is an attractive option to a defendant to settle a case and pay large fees to a small number of people—specifically the attorneys-and avoid the risk of protracted litigation and lawvers seeking a jackpot recovery. Attorneys have a fiduciary duty to represent the best interests of their clients, but it's clear that in the cases of coupon settlement usually the primary interest served is their own.

So we now have a problem of plaintiff attorneys searching for causes for which they can bring suit, and then representing anonymous clients that they don't know and to which they have no accountability. In fact, many members of a class in a class action don't even know they are being represented. The windfall profits to attorneys has prompted a deluge of these type of suits, and recent studies indicate that in the last 36 months, some companies have faced a 300 to 1000% increase in the number of class actions filed against them. And you know the problem has gotten bad when the president of the Association of Trial Lawyers of America comes out against coupon settlements.

The problem of coupon settlements has been manifested primarily in state courts. Federal court judges generally, to their credit, have been more vigilant in policing such "sweetheart settlements." The problem of the proliferation of this type of litigation in state courts prompted Congress to seek a legislative remedy. The Judiciary recently marked up the Class Action Fairness Act, which moves many of these large, multi-state claims to the federal courts where they belong. Many of the class action trial lawyers have worked the system to keep their claims in state court, where they know there is not the expertise nor staff to handle the issues, and which provides them advantages over the defendant. The bill also requires the Judicial Conference of the United States to recommend best practices the courts can use to ensure settlements are fair to the class members, that attorneys fees are appropriate, and that the class members are the primary beneficiaries of the settlement.

I believe that these are important reforms, and I want to take the reforms a step further by requiring attorneys in class action cases to make an up-front disclosure about the prospects for success and also give information about attorneys' fees and individual class member recovery in the event of a successful conclusion to the suit. If potential class members are likely to receive only a small fraction of what their attorney would receive, or perhaps a coupon which they may or may not end up using, then they need to be appraised of that fact from the start. These types of disclosures will at least put the potential class members on notice that perhaps the attorneys don't have some noble pursuit of justice in mind as much as they do getting a quick settlement that will net them huge profits, while the clients they ostensibly are trying to assist receive little or nothing.

Again, I am pleased to join as a cosponsor of S. 343, and look forward to introducing my own legislation to combat this abuse of our legal system.

EXPLANATION OF ABSENCE

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, as my colleagues know, I had to return home to Washington state on Thursday of last week to attend the funeral of Mr. Bernie Whitebear. Unfortunately, I missed a series of roll call votes on H.R. 4461, the fiscal year 2001 agriculture appropriations bill, and the vote on the Conference Report of H.R. 4810, marriage tax penalty legislation. I wanted to take this opportunity to state for the Record how I would have voted had I been present.

On Roll Call Vote Number 221, the Harkin Amendment Number 3938, I would have voted "Yea."

On Roll Call Vote Number 222, the Wellstone Amendment Number 3919, I would have voted "Yea."

On Roll Call Vote Number 223, the Specter Amendment Number 3958, I would have voted "Yea."

On Roll Call Vote Number 224, on the question of whether the Durbin Amendment Number 3980 is germane to H.R. 4461, I would have voted "Yea."

On Roll Call Vote Number 225, on final passage of H.R. 4461, I would have voted "Yea."

On Roll Call Vote Number 226, on final passage of the Conference Report of H.R. 4810, I would have voted "Nay."

WHY FOREIGN AID?

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I often hear from members of the public who feel that the United States is spending too much on "foreign aid." Why are we sending so much money abroad, they ask, when we have so many problems here at home?

This concerns me a great deal, because it has been shown over and over again that most Americans mistakenly believe that 15 percent of our national budget goes to foreign aid. In fact it is about 1 percent. The other 99 percent goes for our national defense and to fund other domestic programs—to build roads, support farmers, protect the environment, build schools and hospitals, pay for law enforcement, and countless other things the governments does.

The United States has by far the largest economy in the world. We are unquestionably the wealthiest country. The amount we spend on foreign aid totals only a few dollars per American per year.

What does the rest of the world look like?

Imagine, for a moment, if the world's population were shrunk to a population of 100 people, with the current ratios staying the same. Of those 100 people, 57 would be Asians. There would be 21 Europeans. Fourteen would be from North and South America. Eight would be Africans.

Of those 100 people, 52 would be women, and 48 would be men. Seventy would be non-White, and 30 would be White. Seventy would be non-Christian, and 30 would be Christian.

Six people would possess 59 percent of the world's wealth, and all 6 would be Americans. Think about that.

Fifty people—one half of the population, would suffer from malnutrition. 80 out of 100 would live in substandard housing, often without safe water to drink

Seventy would be illiterate. Only 1 would have a college education. And only 1 would own a computer.

Are we spending too much on foreign aid? These statistics put things in perspective. I would suggest that there are two reasons to conclude that not only are we not spending too much, we are not spending enough.

First, we are a wealthy country—far wealthier than any other. Yes we have problems. Serious problems. But they pale in comparison to the deprivation endured by over a billion of the world's people who live in extreme poverty, with incomes of less than $1 per day. Like other industrialized countries, we have a moral responsibility to help.

Second, it is often said, but worth repeating, that our economy and our security are closely linked to the global economy and to the security of other countries. Although we call it foreign aid, it isn't just about helping others. These programs help us.

By raising incomes in poor countries we create new markets for American exports, the fastest growing sector of our economy.

Raising incomes abroad also reduces pressure on people to flee their own countries in search of a better life. One example that is close to home is Mexico, where half the population survives on an income of $2 per day. Every day, thousands of people cross illegally from Mexico into the United States, putting enormous strains on U.S. law enforcement.

Foreign aid programs support our democratic allies. There are few examples in history of a democracy waging war against another democracy.

These programs protect the environment and public health, by stopping air and water pollution, and combating the spread of infectious diseases that are only an airplane flight away from our shores.

They help deter the proliferation of weapons, including nuclear, biological and chemical weapons.

These are but a few examples of how "foreign aid" creates jobs here at home, and protects American interests abroad.

The American people need to know what we do with our foreign aid, and why in an increasingly interdependent world the only superpower should be doing more to protect our interests around the world, not less.

CHANGE OF COMMAND FOR THE CHIEF OF NAVAL OPERATIONS

Mr. WARNER. Mr. president, on July 21, 2000 our colleague Senator John McCain delivered an address at the Change of Command ceremony were Admiral Jay Johnson stepped down from his distinguished career to be succeeded by Admiral Vern Clark as the 27th Chief of Naval Operations.

I was privileged to be present, together with Roberta McCain, Senator McCain's mother, to listen to his stirring remarks to our Navy-Marine Corps men and women-both present and serving throughout the world in the cause of freedom. Our colleague has a long and distinguished career in and with our military. His heartfelt delivery was genuine and his message was inspirational. I ask unanimous consent that his remarks be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

SENATOR JOHN MCCAIN SPEECH FOR CNO RETIREMENT July 21, 2000

Thank you, Admiral Johnson, Secretary Cohen, Secretary Danzig, General Shelton, Admiral Clark, the Joint Chiefs, Medal of Honor recipients, members of Congress, members of the Naval Academy Board of Visitors, distinguished flag and general officers of the U.S. and Allied Forces, guests, families and friends. And thank you, midshipmen of the Class of 2004.

I am greatly honored to be here today, and to participate in this wonderful ceremony as the men and women of the United States Navy officially welcome their new Chief of Naval Operations, Admiral Vernon Clark, and say farewell and thank you to the man who has led you so well for more than four years, my good friend, Admiral Jay Johnson.

It has never been enough that an officer of the Navy should be a capable mariner. He must be that, of course, but also a great deal more. He should be, and I quote, "a gentleman of liberal education, refined manners, punctilious courtesy, and the nicest sense of personal honor." End quote personal honor." End quote.

For those of you who know your plebe rates, you recognize that those words were written by a man who is buried here at the Naval Academy, underneath the Chapel dome. John Paul Jones had a clear vision for the qualifications of a Naval Officer over 220 years ago, qualifications that Admiral Johnson and Admiral Clark not only meet, but exceed.

Admiral Johnson and I have known each other for a long time. We both served on the USS ORISKANY during the Vietnam War. He flew an F8 Crusader in two combat cruises, trying to finish the war so those of us who weren't as good a pilot as he was could come home a little earlier. And for that I am extremely grateful!

Of the many lessons I learned from Vietnam, one that I value highly is the realization that although Americans have fought valiantly in many noble causes, we are not assured that the battle will always be necessary or the field well-chosen. In the end, Americans at war, professional and conscript alike, always find their honor in their answer, if not their summons. My friend, Admiral Johnson found much honor in his answer to our country's call to arms.

In better times, Admiral Johnson and I again worked together on behalf of the service we both want to see succeed. As a member of Congress, I have admired his meteoric rise as an Air Wing, Battle Group, Joint Task Force and Fleet Commander. As the Vice Chief and then Chief of Naval Operations, Jay's frank counsel on issues affecting the defense of our country has been of great value to me, and other members of Congress.

Applying his philosophy that emphasizes Operational Primacy, Leadership, Teamwork and Pride, Admiral Johnson has guided the Navy for the past four years, skillfully balancing mandated reductions in force with dramatically increased operational tasking.

He has been a champion of reform. He improved the Inter-Deployment Training Cycle—the period between deployments—the largest quality-of-life initiative of the past decade, by reducing at-sea time and ensuring that sailors could spend more time in port with their families. His improvements included empowering the Navy's commanding officers by removing redundant inspections and burdensome paperwork and raising morale among the sailors, while giving commanders the opportunity to truly lead their ships, squadrons, submarines and SEAL teams.

Admiral Johnson also led the Joint Chiefs of Staff in calling for the largest personnel pay increases in the past decade. He was the first Chief to step forward and support food stamp relief for our most needy sailors, soldiers, airmen, and marines. In addition, he led the charge for Pay Table Reform, which increased our sailors' pay beginning this month. He was instrumental in restoring full retirement pay for military retirees, and in pushing for larger increases in annual military pay raises. The dramatic improvements in this years' defense authorization bill, which passed the Senate last week are, in large part, due to Jay Johnson's influence.

The men and women he has commanded have responded to his outstanding leadership by performing superbly themselves in combat in Iraq and the Balkans. They have kept the peace and have won the wars, and for that, we are forever indebted to our sailors, soldiers, airmen, and marines and to people like Admiral Clark who has been involved in every Navy conflict over the past 32 years.

Admiral Johnson's skill in working with people clearly reflects his close family relationships. This year, Admiral Johnson was aptly deemed Father of the Year by the National Father's Day Committee.

The Class of 1968 has asked me to announce at today's ceremony that they have chosen Admiral Jay Johnson to be the honoree of the Class of 1968 Leadership Award that will endow a gift to the Superintendent of the Naval Academy for the Leadership and Ethics Curriculum. Congratulations Jay.

Admiral Clark, we welcome you and Connie to the helm of this great Navy. I am confident that the Navy will continue to flourish under your leadership.

You have already demonstrated that the key to your strength as a leader is in supporting the people of the U.S. Navy. I was heartened to hear you openly back programs like food stamp relief for service members, and testify at your Senate confirmation hearing this spring about the sailors that, I quote,

"We know that nothing is impossible with them. We can't do readiness. We can't successfully complete missions. No, we can't be victorious without them. And so nothing is more important to me than them." End quote.

The Navy has selected an outstanding 27th Chief of Naval Operations, another Vietnam combat veteran, a Destroyer-man who brings an outstanding breadth of command and joint leadership. Admiral, it is clear that you are more than capable of continuing the strong, insightful leadership provided by Admiral Johnson, leadership which will be required to guide the Navy with the vigilance and courage needed to implement reforms.

Forty-five years ago this August, when I was a youngster at the academy, I stood in Dahlgren Hall to hear the words of Admiral Arleigh Burke as he became the New Chief of Naval Operations. He went on to serve an unprecedented, distinguished three terms as CNO.

The uncertainties and challenges of the age we live in stand in stark contrast to the moment in which Admiral Arleigh Burke summoned his destroyer squadron and ordered them into battle against a superior Japanese fleet. They had to attack at the Bougainville coast to protect the landings in progress at Empress Augusta Bay. Defeat—a mathematical probability if not certainty—would have led to a loss of the battle and left vulnerable nearly all naval defenses of the Southern Pacific.

What compelled Admiral Burke to take what seemed such a desperate gamble by committing the little ships of Destroyer Squadron 23, the Little Beavers, against the immense strength of the Japanese fleet? What explains his firm faith in the reliability of the intelligence upon which he based the supposition of his ships and his confidence in the men who would command them in battle? How was he sure that the Americans whom he ordered into harm's way would obey his orders and reward his trust with such courage and resourcefulness?

He believed in his people. He believed in their courage and their ability. He knew that they, like he, were empowered by the justice of their cause, by a love of America expressed in action, and in sacrifice. Trust, derived from his appreciation of his countrymen's virtues, and his wisdom and confidence about how they would discharge their duties in a desperate battle was the essence of Admiral Burke's extraordinary leadership.

By memorializing Admiral Burke, we memorialize the very finest virtues of our blessed country. We also pay tribute to the attributes of leadership embodied in the service of Admiral Johnson and Admiral Clark, attributes that are reflected in their actions to support the men and women under their command.

The greatness of our destiny rests in the hands of every man and woman blessed to call America home. That's why Admiral

Johnson has taken so seriously his responsibilities to his sailors. He knew that together they shared equally in the honor of defending a great nation. Admiral, you will be the first to direct all praise to the men and women under your command. But I know that they would direct it back to you—the man at the helm.

Jay, you have served your Navy and your nation well. I want to thank you and Garland for your many years of exemplary service to America, and bid you fair winds and following seas, for I know we will see you again. I know you will find new ways to serve the Navy and America, and I will always rely on your wise counsel.

Admiral Clark and Connie, congratulations and welcome. I am confident that you will both distinguish the noble tradition you inherit today. Admiral, I look forward to working with you as you lead the Navy toward its always magnificent destiny.

I would like to close by speaking directly to the women and men of the U.S. Navy. As we stand here this morning, our sailors are risking their lives above, on, and below the ocean

But this risk is not without reward—the reward of serving a cause greater than one's own self-interest. I commend your service in the Navy. I hold the Navy closer to my heart than any other human institution that I have ever been a part of—save my family. The Navy for many years was the only world I knew. It is still the world I know best and love most.

I trust in your willingness and ability to uphold the honor of your Navy and your country, for I have seen the best of America in my travels over the last year and know that America deeply appreciates your service. I recognize that we still have many miles to sail to ensure that you are properly rewarded for your continued sacrifice and service to our nation.

Make the most of these days, for you will never forget the honor of your service in this Navy. Nor will your country forget the honor you gave her in seas where so many Americans, like Admiral Burke and Admiral Johnson, fought for the love of their country. Admiral Johnson, I thank you for the honor of inviting me to return to a place I love so well. Admiral Clark, I offer my best wishes and look forward to working with you. Thank you.

GUN DEATHS AMONG YOUNG PEOPLE

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, this week we received some positive news from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention's National Center for Health Statistics. According to newly released statistics, firearm deaths among young people decreased in 1998.

The new report shows that firearm deaths among children and adolescents under 20 dropped 10 percent—from 4,223 in 1997 to 3,792 in 1998. Perhaps even more significant, in 1998, deaths among young people were down 35 percent since 1994, when firearms led to the deaths of 5,833 young people.

It is no coincidence that firearm casualties have been reduced by 35 percent since 1994, the year the Brady Law went in to effect. The Brady Law, which requires licensed firearms sellers to conduct criminal background checks on prospective gun purchasers, has successfully kept guns out of the hands of hundreds of thousands of criminals and youths.

Although we can rejoice that fewer youths are subject to the danger of guns, we should still be dismayed that 10 of our young people (on average) die from guns every day. 10 children and adolescents as well as 74 adult Americans suffered gun-related deaths daily in 1998, and that is far too many.

Congress must do more to protect our children and loved ones from these gun tragedies. We can start by strengthening the Brady Law by closing the gun show loophole. That loophole allows perpetrators of violent crimes to buy guns from non-licensed or private sellers, who are not required conduct criminal background checks. This loophole undermines the successes of Brady by arming those who would otherwise not be permitted to purchase firearms. In May of 1999, the Senate passed legislation to close this loophole by extending criminal background checks to guns sold at gun shows and pawn shops, but opponents of this common sense provision have kept it from becoming law.

It is disheartening to know that Congress has not yet passed sensible gun laws—laws designed to protect American lives. Without addressing this issue, America will continue to lose 10 young people a day to guns, and that is 10 too many.

A COMPILATION OF INFORMATION ON ETHANOL ETHERS

Mr. KERREY. Mr President, I would like to note the release of a recent publication that all members of Congress should read. This new publication was produced by the Clean Fuels Development Coalition and it includes a presentation of facts about ethanol-based ethers.

As we attempt to deal with the water contamination problems resulting from leaking underground storage tanks, much of the debate is focusing on methanol-based ethers, i.e. MTBE. While MTBE has played an important role in reducing ozone throughout the U.S., the problems of water contamination have lead many to advocate limiting or even banning this product.

During this debate a few of our colleagues have expressed confusion about the technical characteristics of ethanol-based ethers, like ETBE. Some have assumed that ethanol-based ethers have characteristics identical to MTBE. As both the Senate and House examine this issue, it is important to be aware of the significant differences between the two products.

For example, ethanol is a renewable, biodegradable product. When converted into ether, ETBE has many favorable characteristics in terms of the way it reacts in soil, water, and air, when compared to MTBE. In the event ETBE escapes into the atmosphere or our water supplies, it can be cleaned up much more efficiently than MTBE. ETBE is far less persistent than MTBE and remediation technologies have shown to be very effective.

Understanding the attributes of ETBE is also important at a time when every citizen is painfully aware of our dependence on imported petroleum and the relationship of supply and price. It may be possible to use ETBE in volumes up to 22 percent in gasoline. This addition of a clean, domestic fuel could significantly impact our gasoline supply situation, particularly in our most heavily populated and polluted urban areas.

I have long been a supporter of ETBE and while there are a number of technical and market challenges remaining before this fuel reaches full commercialization, its promise is undeniable. The petroleum industry, environmental groups, ethanol producers, and the auto industry have long recognized the superior qualities of ETBE. For that promise to be realized we need to ensure that ETBE is not included in any ban or limitation of fuels that result from leaking underground storage tank problems. I commend the Clean Fuels Development Coalition for their continued support of this important fuel as well as my own state of Nebraska which has more than a decade of experience in ETBE development.

Mr. President, at this time I would ask unanimous consent that a copy of the Clean Fuels Development Coalition fact book on ETBE be entered into the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

ETBE FACT BOOK

The U.S. Department of Energy's Energy Information Administration projects U.S. Oil imports could grow to nearly 60-70 percent of total U.S. Oil consumption by the year 2010 if new U.S. Policies are not adopted to reverse current trends or if world crude oil prices decline. According to the American Petroleum Institute, the U.S. Is currently dependent of foreign oil for 51.8 percent of its energy needs. Currently, 46.7 percent of the imports come from OPEC countries, with 19.1 percent originating from the Persian Gulf region.

Historically, market prices have been the primary argument driving the dependence on cheap crude oil imports and the perceived aversion to the alternative fuels. The market price of crude oil can be very misleading because it excludes external costs associated with its use, such as environmental and military costs. The actual cost of oil, including external costs, is estimated to be over $100 per barrel or about $3-$5 per gallon of gasoline, according to the U.S. General Accounting Office.

R. James Woolsey, former director of the Central Intelligence Agency, believes that the world's dependence on oil from the Middle East and the Caspian Basin is one of the three major threats to America's national security, along with attacks from rogue nations and terrorism.

According to General Accounting Office estimates, at current capacity, fuel ethanol and other oxygenates could displace about 305,000 barrels of petroleum per day used to produce gasoline. The total amount of petroleum that ethanol could displace would be approximately 3.7 percent of estimated U.S. Gasoline consumption in 2000. New presidential and Congressional initiates envision tripling these percentages by 2010.

Energy production and use accounts for 80 percent of air pollution and 66 percent of the human contribution to global warming. Gasoline obviously accounts for a majority of energy, and specifically, oil consumption. Displacing gasoline with a renewable, less toxic, CO₂-friendly, domestically produced fuel represents good environmental policy.

Each bushel of corn used to produce ethanol is 100 percent pure profit for the country. The ethanol industry makes $4.50 worth of products out of a $2.25 bushel of corn, doubling its value, enriching the national economy and displacing foreign oil. This improves the U.S. balance of trade payments by several billion dollars, and increases the value of U.S. Grain production. In the future, emerging cellulose conversion technology will make it possible for the entire country to function as a transportation fuel producer using alternative energy crops—switchgrass in Montana, sorghum in Oklahoma, sycamores in Louisiana, poplars in Vermont and waste biomass in New York.

In addition to stimulating the economy, ethanol helps reduce the federal deficit. The United States General Accounting Office (GAO) issued a report stating that a doubling of ethanol production would save the federal government $500 million to $600 million annually

Despite ethanol's benefits, it has had problems entering the U.S. Gasoline pool. Due to difficulties with transportation regional fuel specifications and a increase in fuel vapor pressure, ethanol blends have been used mostly in the Midwest. But there is a way to combine the benefits of ethanol into a fuel additive that would be better accepted by the nation's refiners—producing ethyl tertiary butyl ether, ETBE.

By combining ethanol with isobutylene, which is derived from natural gas liquids or petroleum products, ETBE offers refiners, agriculture and policy makers another avenue to get the benefits of ethanol into gasoline and minimize many of its current obstacles.

The vast majority of ethanol is sold in the Midwest region of the United States. Ethanol blends are doing a great job reducing carbon monoxide and air toxic pollution. However, the more populated cities on the East and West Coasts face tougher emission standards that are primarily based on reducing the vapor pressure of gasoline. ETBE has the lowest vapor pressure of oxygenates available in the marketplace and a high octane level. Compared to other additives, including ethanol alone, it reduces more evaporative and tailpipe emissions, and lowers toxics and carbon monoxide. The U.S. Department of Energy found "significant benefits" to using ETBE made from biomass, especially in California.

Each gallon of ETBE displaces a barrel of imported oil and reduces the amount of oil that refiners use to make gasoline. Each gallon of ETBE helps the U.S. reduce its $52 billion oil import bill, stimulates the national economy and improves our balance of trade. Turning lower-valued domestic natural gas into high valued liquid fuel products can help areas of the country that have suffered from America's dramatic decline in crude oil production. American agriculture, working in cooperation with domestic natural gas producers to produce leaner domestic fuels, is a powerful combination of allies and resources.

Making ETBE can stretch our domestic fuel supplies. Using our natural gas resources and increasing the output of our domestic refineries is an important part of our energy security strategy. Using natural gas as a liquid in existing vehicles will displace imports much faster than waiting for consumers to switch to dedicated natural gas fuel vehicles.

Recent University of Nebraska-Lincoln studies indicate that ETBE is several times less soluble than MTBE, and several times more biodegradable. Compared with MTBE, ETBE, and/ethanol mixtures are less likely to reach groundwater supplies, and are more easily removed by natural attenuation and bioremediation, according to preliminary study results.

As automakers continue to be burdened with reducing emissions, their ability to provide car that are cleaner, yet still guaranteed to perform, is challenged. ETBE helps automakers get cleaner fuels that have lower sulfur, less toxics and improved driveability index. While ethanol blends help in this area, automakers prefer the use of ethers such as ETBE.

The idea of ETBE is not new. In an effort to reduce the dangerously high levels of pollution in Paris, the French Parliament voted to have a renewable content standard for its gasoline. The choice to meet the new renewable standard-ETBE. Lyondell Chemical Company is the world leader in ETBE production technology. Other companies have also produced and sold ETBE in limited quantities in the United State. Amoco produced and sold ETBE at its Yorktown, VA, refinery for several years and marketed the blends on the East Coast. Lyondell Chemical, formerly Arco Chemical Co., the world's largest methyl tertiary butyl ether producer, has produced ETBE several times at its MTBE plants in the U.S. In fact, all of the MTBE plants in the United States could easily produce ETBE with only minor adjustments to optimize performance.

The use of MTBE in the reformulated gasoline program has resulted in growing detections of MTBE in drinking water. The majority of these detections to date have been well below levels of public health concern. Detections at lower levels have, however, raised consumer concerns about taste and odor.

The EPA Blue Ribbon Panel on Oxygenates considered the fuel applications and technical characteristics of MTBE and other ethers during public sessions in 1999. The panel concluded that ETBE and other ethers have been used less widely and studied less than MTBE. The panel's final report states that, "To the extent that they have been studies, they (other ethers) appear to have similar, but not identical, chemical and hydrogeologic characteristics. The panel recommends accelerated study of the health effects and groundwater characteristics of these compounds..."

In response to anticipated questions abut the hydrogeologic characteristics of ETBE, the Department of Chemical Engineering at the University of Nebraska conducted preliminary research into the behavior of ETBE in water. The preliminary research suggests that ETBE's ubiquity properties are less than half those of MTBE. In addition, a preliminary report by the University notes that existing literature suggests a faster degradation rate for ETBE than MTBE. The Nebraska Ethanol Board and several federal agencies have proposed additional research on the properties of ETBE.

Starting this year, federal Phase II reformulated gasoline, RVG, must deliver a four percent to seven percent reduction in NO_X emissions relative to the 1990 baseline gasoline. ETBE is particularly well suited for meeting this requirement because ETBE can reduce aromatic content in RFG. Automobile NO_X emissions decrease with increasing octane number and with decreasing aromatics content. ETBE fills the bill on both counts

ETBE's higher octane—110–112 (R+M)/2—enables an RFG blender to substitute ETBE for aromatics, including benzene, as a source of RFG octane. Reducing aromatics content, in turn, reduces emissions of NO_X and toxics, while improving driveability performance.

For U.S. Refiners, this means more reduction—via dilution—in the levels of aromatics, olefin, and sulfur, all of which are undesirable in RFG.

Petroleum use for transportation will remain one of the largest contributors of greenhouse gas emissions in the U.S. Through the year 2020, according to projections by the U.S. Department of Energy's Energy Information Administration. In 2020, petroleum will account for 42 percent of greenhouse gas emissions in the U.S., mostly for transportation use, according to the report. Overall, carbon emissions from energy use will increase at an average annual rate of 1.3 percent due to rising energy demand and slow penetration of renewable, DOE said in its Annual Energy Outlook: 2000 report.

Because ETBE is made from renewable ethanol and natural gas feedstock, it is superior in reducing greenhouse gas emissions. In addition, because the use of ETBE often replaces aromatics from the gasoline pool, its ability to reduce the harmful pollutants as well as greenhouse gas emissions from gasoline are improved.

As a result of the addition of renewable ethanol, ETBE is an oxygenated fuel. In addition, ETBE has a higher octane rating and lower Reid vapor pressure, RVP, than its competitor, MTBE. ETBE blended gasoline has several benefits:

The oxygen reduces carbon monoxide emissions sions.

The lower Rvp lessens pollution that forms

ozone.
Simply through volumetric displacement, ETBE reduces sulfur, toxic substance and other harmful elements of gasoline.

The high octane rating reduces the need for carcinogenic hydrocarbons used to increase octane such as benzene, which cause cancers.

Due to ethanol's positive energy balance when produced from grain (1 to 1.3) and cellulose (1 to 2), it reduces greenhouse gases.

One of the primary reasons ethanol has difficulty competing in the federal RFG program is that it increases the volatility of gasoline. By turning ethanol into ETBE, this concern is eliminated. ETBE's blending properties are an excellent match for both engine and emissions performance, much better than replacing MTBE with more alkylates.

Another issue with ethanol is transportation. Currently in the U.S., ethanol blended gasoline cannot practically be shipped to markets via pipelines—the most common method of transportation for petroleum products. Gasoline blended with ETBE is compatible with the current gasoline distribution system, can be pipelined and stored with gasoline and will reduce the transportation and storage costs associated with ethanol usage.

ETBE can be blending at volumes of up to 17 vol%, with the possibility of the maximum blending being increased to 22 vol%, while straight ethanol is capped at 10 vol% and MTBE is limited to 15 vol%. This means that blending gasoline with ethanol can stretch our nation's gasoline supply further.

The higher allowable volume of ETBE means:

ETBE blends may prove to be the most cost-effective means of bringing the use of alternative fuels to the market place, consistent with new environmental and energy policy, EPACT, demands being placed on U.S. refiners.

ETBE blends contain more volume derived from renewable, domestic energy sources.

While ethanol plays an important role in the federal RFG program, its use is mostly confined to the few RFG areas in the Midwest. Through ETBE, ethanol use could expand to play a larger role in the RFG program as a whole.

If ETBE could capture only a small portion of the U.S. Gasoline market—for example a percentage of the RFG demand in the Northeast, where little of no ethanol is currently used—the increase in ethanol used in gasoline would be significant.

As much as 350 million gallons of new ethanol demand would be created if just 60 percent of the oxygenates used in the eight states of the Northeastern States for Coordinated Air Use Management, NESCAUM, were to use ETBE.

Along with the increase in ethanol use comes a likely increase in corn demand to produce the ethanol. More than 140 million bushels of corn would be required to meet the aforementioned ETBE demand.

ETBE has been in commercial production in Europe since the early 1990s. While France is the European leader for both the production and consumption of ETBE, other European countries are following. European policy makers prefer ETBE to MTBE because of its overall greenhouse gas reductions that come from its renewable ethanol content. ETBE is preferred over ethanol by European refiners because of better logistics and improved gasoline and drive ability quality.

In addition, more ether demand is expected with the new European cleaner-burning fuel legislation taking effect in 2000 and 2005.

The Clean Fuels Development Coalition is a non-profit organization dedicated to the development of alternative fuels and technologies to improve air quality and reduce U.S. Dependence on imported oil. The broad CFDC membership includes ethanol and ether producers, agricultural interests, automobile manufacturers, state government agencies, and engineering and new technology companies. Since its beginning in 1988, the coalition has become a respected source of information for state, local, and federal policy makers as well as private industry on a range of transportation, energy, and environmental issues.

NOW IS NOT THE TIME TO RE-EN-GAGE WITH THE INDONESIAN MILITARY

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, colleagues, I rise today to draw attention to a recent decision by the Administration to reinitiate military ties with the government of Indonesia. Despite congressional concerns, the U.S. navy, marines, and coast guard last week began a 10-day joint military exercise known as CARAT, Cooperation Afloat Readiness and Training, with their Indonesian military counterparts. Although the Administration sees this mission as a routine good-will mission, it is in fact the first time U.S. and Indonesian armed forces have worked together since the United States cut military ties with Indonesia last year. Colleagues, in case you don't recall, we cut those military ties after East Timor was devastated by Indonesian troops. We cut those ties because Indonesian soldiers are reported to have been active participants in a coordinated, massive campaign of murder, rape, and forced displacement in East Timor.

The administration's decision to go forth with a CARAT exercise again this summer is simply indefensible. Given the human rights violations committed by the Indonesian military in East Timor and the lack of accountability for them, and the Indonesian military's continued ties to militias in West Timor, one must ask not only the question why we are so eager to re-engage with this military at all, but why we feel compelled to do so now. Now is not the time to conduct joint exercises with the Indonesian military; now is the time to demand its accountability. To do otherwise is to tacitly condone its conduct.

Conditions continue to deteriorate in East Timorese refugee camps in West Timor and throughout the Indonesian archipelago. Up to 125,000 East Timorese still languish in militia-controlled refugee camps in West Timor almost one year after the people of East Timor voted overwhelmingly for independence from Indonesia. Many of the refugees wish to return home but are afraid to do so. Today refugee camps remain highly militarized, with East Timorese members of the Indonesian military living among civilian refugees. And despite promises by the Indonesian government to disarm and disband militias, there are credible reports of Indonesian military support for militia groups. These same militias have easy access to modern weapons. Earlier this month the U.N. High Commissioner on Refugees had to suspend refugee registration indefinitely due to violent militia assaults on its staff, volunteers and refugees, and though UNHCR has continued its work in other areas, UNHCR and other aid workers continue work under extremely dangerous conditions.

There has also been an upsurge in militia border incursions into East Timor with attacks on U.N. Peacekeepers and civilians. I regret to say that earlier this week a peacekeeper from New Zealand was shot and killed. Militia leaders, the Indonesian military, and the West Timorese press continue to sponsor a mass disinformation campaign alleging horrific conditions in East Timor and abuse by international forces. Further, Indonesia has yet to arrest a single militia leader or member of its military accused of human rights violations in East Timor. Instead of reinitiating joint military exercises and allowing the sale of certain spare military parts, the Administration should increase its pressure on the government of Indonesia to fulfill past promises to disarm and disband militias in West Timor, and insure today that the Indonesian military is not linked to such militias. Militia leaders must be removed from refugee camps and those accused of human rights violations must be held accountable. Furthermore, Indonesia must make real its pledge to provide international and local relief workers safe and full access to all refugees.

There is currently considerable unrest throughout the Indonesian archipelago. Reports abound about the direct involvement of the Indonesian military in much of the violence. In the past nineteen months thousands of people in Maluku, also known as the Moluccan Islands, have been killed in fighting between Christians and Muslims. It is known that members of the Indonesian military supported and, in some cases, caused the violence. On July 18, Indonesia's Minister of Defense Juwono Sudarsono admitted that there were "some or even many" army members who have become a "major cause of clashes" in Ambon. Credible human rights organizations also report an escalation of violence in West Papua with the Indonesian military actively supporting East Timor-style militias there. Moreover, the Indonesian military has repeatedly broken a cease-fire in the province of Aceh.

Conditions in Indonesia are deteriorating. On Sunday U.N. Secretary General Kofi Annan told Indonesia's President Wahid that U.N. peacekeepers may be needed for the archipelago but President Wahid said his government could end the conflict by itself. He did note, however, that Indonesia's overmilitary stretched might need logistical aid from friendly countries such as the United States. I worry that the decision the Administration has made to re-initiate military ties with Indonesia is sending the wrong signal to President Wahid. It should be made very clear to President Wahid that the U.S. will not provide assistance to Indonesia to do what it did before in East Timor.

Although I believe we should support Indonesia, we must recognize that the type of support we provide will directly influence the shape Indonesia takes in the future. The Administration has not only proceeded with the CARAT exercise despite congressional concerns but is moving ahead with "Phase I" of a three phase program of re-engagement with the Indonesian military. This could include the sale of certain spare military parts to Indonesia. Given the deteriorating conditions in Indonesia and the human rights record of Indonesian soldiers, do we really want to do this?

I rise today to urge my colleagues to voice their opposition to the CARAT exercise and to oppose any proposal for strengthening military ties with Indonesia in the near future. Again, I would like to make very clear that I believe the U.S. should support Indonesia but we must recognize that the type of support we provide now will directly influence the shape Indonesia takes in the future. Resuming a military relationship now not only threatens any future reforms in Indonesia but jeopardizes efforts already made to subjugate the Indonesian military to civilian authority. U.S. policy towards Indonesia should support democratic reform and demand accountability for those responsible for alleged human rights violations in East Timor and elsewhere. I fail to see how the CARAT exercise or lifting the embargo on military sales to Indonesia does either.

Mr. KERREY. Mr. President, I rise to talk about inter-generational issues related to Federal budget spending. We will never have a better time to consider such issues as inter-generational equity than now during a time of large projected surpluses. These large projected surpluses provide us with a great deal more flexibility in choosing among priorities and in determining our legacy to future generations.

Until recently, we were not so lucky. For more than thirty years, the budget projection reports from the Congressional Budget Office and the Office of Management and Budget were a source of growing despair for the American people. As each year went by, CBO and OMB would present worse news: larger deficits, larger national debt levels, and larger net interest payments. As the government's appetite for debt expanded, fewer and fewer dollars were available for private investment.

In the beginning, experts explained that deficits were a good thing because they stimulated economic growth and created jobs. Over time, however, the voices of experts opposed to large deficits grew louder; they argued that deficits caused inflation, increased the cost of private capital, mortgaged away our future—just at the time when we needed to be preparing for the retirement of the large Baby Boom generation. As the opinions of the experts shifted, so did public opinion.

During the 1980s and 1990s, the federal deficit became public enemy number one. Great efforts were made to understand it, to propose solutions to reduce it, and to explain how much better life would be without it. During election season, the air-waves were filled with promises and plans to get rid of the deficit and pay off the national debt. Editorial page writers reached deep into their creative reservoir to coin new phrases and create new metaphors to describe the problem. Books were Nonprofit published. organizations were created. Constitutional amendments were called for. There was even a new political party created on account of the deficit.

In the 1990s—and at great political risk—we finally started taking action to control the size of the deficits and the growth of the national debt. I am proud to have participated in and voted for three budget acts—in 1990, 1993, and 1997—which have radically altered the fiscal condition of the Federal government and the debate about how the public's hard-earned tax dollars should be spent.

The enactment of these three budget acts—particularly the 1993 and 1997 budget acts—coupled with impressive gains in private sector productivity and economic growth led to a remarkable reversal of our deficit and debt trends. Deficits started shrinking in 1994. We celebrated our first unified budget surplus of $70 billion in 1998. Over the next 10 years, if we maintain current spending and revenue policies. CBO projects an eye-popping unified budget surplus of $4.5 trillion. I am proud that we are able to celebrate the fruits of our fiscal restraint because we had the sheer will and political courage to put ourselves on a spending diet.

Today, however, I want to call your attention to what could be called the "unintended consequences" of our fiscal responsibility. Not only have we allowed total Federal spending to dip below 20% of GDP levels not seen since the mid-1970s), but we are also on course to let spending drop to 15.6% of GDP by 2010. We have not seen spending levels this low since the 1950s. At the same time as total spending is declining as a percentage of GDP, the make up of our Federal spending is continuing to shift insignificant ways. An increasingly larger proportion of our spending is used for mandatory spending programs compared to discrespending programs. These tionary numbers have important implications forthe measurement of intergenerational equity.

Now that we have constrained spending and eliminated our budget deficits, the budget debate has shifted to questions about how to spend the surplus: on debt reduction, on tax cuts, on new discretionary spending programs, on fixing Social Security, or on creating a new Medicare prescription drug benefit?

I favor all of these things to varying degrees, as I suspect most of you do. The trick is to find the right balance among these initiatives. In finding the right balance, I believe one of the most important criterion in determining how to use these surpluses should be measuring inter-generational equity. Not only do we need to assess the amount of money we invest on our seniors versus our children, but we also need to assess the trends of mandatory versus discretionary spending.

Let me start with my own assessment of Federal spending on children and seniors. Today, the Federal government spends substantially more on seniors over the age of 65 than it does on children under the age of 18. For example, in 2000, the Federal government spent roughly $17,000 per person on programs for the elderly, compared with only $2,500 per person on programs for children. This means that at the Federal level, we are spending seven times as much as people over the age of 65 as on children under the age of 18.

Even when we consider that states are the primary funders of primary and secondary education, the combined level of State and Federal spending still shows a dramatic contrast in spending on the old versus the young. At the state and Federal level, we are still spending 2.5 times the amount of money on people over the age of 65 as on children under the age of 18.

Given these discomforting facts, it might seem logical that most of the current proposals for spending surplus dollars would be for investments in our children. Instead, this Congress has been proposing and voting to spend a major portion of the surpluses on the most politically organized voting bloc in the nation—those over the age of 65.

In the Senate alone, we have either acted on, or are expected to act on, the following proposals which directly benefit seniors only:

Eliminating the Social Security earnings test for workers over the age of 65 (10-year price tag: $23 billion)

Allowing military retirees to opt out of Medicare and into TriCare or FEHBP (10-year price tag: $90 billion)

Creating a new universal Medicare prescription drug benefit for seniors (10-year price tag: $300 billion)

Medicare provider "give-backs" package (10-year price tag: $40 billion)

Increasing the Federal income tax exemption provided to Social Security beneficiaries (10-year price tag: $125 billion)

If Congress actually enacted all of these popular provisions into law, spending for seniors over the next 10 years would increase by $578 billion—an amount equivalent to this year's entire discretionary spending budget.

At the same time as we are proposing, voting in favor of, and enacting legislation to improve benefits and tax cuts for seniors, we will be lucky to get legislation passed that will spend only an additional $10 billion on children under the age of 18.

Why? The answer is not simply because seniors are politically organized voters and children are not. We also have to look at how most programs for seniors are funded versus programs for children. As the members of the Senate are well aware, most programs for seniors are funded through mandatory/entitlement spending. Spending increases in these programs are not subject to the annual appropriations process and are protected by automatic cost-of-living-adjustments (COLA) each year.

The spending programs that primarily benefit our children, on the other hand, are discretionary, which means they are subject to the annual appropriations process. There are no automatic spending increases when it comes to programs for our kids. Instead, most programs for kids are held victim to politics and spending caps.

As a result, the proportion of Federal government spending on mandatory versus discretionary spending has undergone a dramatic shift. Back in 1965, the Federal government spent the equivalent of 6% of GDP on mandatory entitlement programs like Social Security and 12% of GDP on discretionary funding items like national defense, education, and public infrastructure. Put another way: 35 years ago, one-third of our budget funded entitlement programs and two-thirds of our budget funded discretionary spending programs.

The situation has now reversed. Today, we spend about two-thirds of our budget on entitlement programs and net interest payments and only one-third of our budget on discretionary spending programs.

I am particularly troubled by the decline in spending on discretionary spending initiatives. Although our tight discretionary spending budget caps were a useful tool in the past for eliminating deficits and lowering debt, they are not useful today in helping us assess the discretionary budget needs of the nation. Today, appropriated spending is contained through spending caps that are too tight for today's economic reality. We are left with a discretionary budget that bears little relationship to the needs of the nation and that leaves us little flexibility to solve some of the big problems that still need to be addressed: health care access for the uninsured, education, and research and development in the areas of science and technology.

The downward pressure on discretionary spending will become worse during the retirement of the Baby Boom generation—when the needs of programs on the mandatory spending side will increase dramatically. The coming demographic shift towards more retirees and fewer workers is NOT a "pig in a python" problem as described by some commentators whose economics are usually better than their metaphors. The ratio of workers needed to support each beneficiary does not increase after the baby boomers have become eligible for benefits. It remains the same.

In 10 years, the unprecedented demographic shift toward more retirees will begin. The number of seniors drawing on Medicare and Social Security will nearly double from 39 million to 77 million. The number of workers will grow only slightly from 137 to 145 million. Worse, if we continue to under-invest in the education and training of our youth, we will have no choice but to continue the terrible process of using H-IB visas to solve the problem of a shortage of skilled labor.

One of the least understood concepts regarding Social Security and Medicare is that neither is a contributory system with dedicated accounts for each individual. Both are intergenerational contracts. The generations in the work force agree to be taxed on behalf of eligible beneficiaries in exchange for the understanding that they will receive the same benefit when eligible. Both programs are forms of social insurance—not welfare—but both are also transfer payment programs. We tax one group of people and transfer the money to another.

The proportion of spending on seniors—and the proportion of mandatory spending—will most surely increase as the baby boomers become eligible for transfer payments. Unless we want to raise taxes substantially or accrue massive amounts of debt, much of the squeeze will be felt by our discretionary spending programs. The spiral of under-investment in our children and in the future work force will continue. Our government will become more and more like an ATM machine.

What should we do about this situa-

I recommend a two step approach. Step one is to honestly assess whether can "cut our way out of this problem". Do you think public opinion will permit future Congresses to vote for reduction in the growth of Medicare, Social Security, and the long-term care portion of Medicaid? At the moment my answer is a resounding "no". Indeed, as I said earlier, we can currently heading the opposite direction.

Step number two is to consider whether it is time for us to rewrite the social contract. The central question is this: Do the economic and social changes that have occurred since 1965 justify a different kind of safety net? I believe they do. I believe we need to rewrite and modernize the contract between Americans and the Federal government in regards to retirement income and health care.

We should transform the Social Security program so that annual contributions lead all American workers-regardless of income—to accumulate wealth by participating in the growth of the American economy. Whether the investments are made in low risk instruments such as government bonds or in higher risk stock funds, it is a mathematical certainty that fifty years from now a generation of American workers could be heading towards retirement with the security that comes with the ownership of wealth—if we rewrite the contract to allow them to do so.

Not only should we reform Social Security to allow workers to personally invest a portion of their payroll taxes, but we should also make sure those account contributions are progressive so that low and moderate income workers can save even more for their retirements. At the same time, it is important to make the traditional Social Security benefit formula even more progressive so that protections against poverty are even stronger for our low income seniors. Finally, it is important to change the law so that we can keep the promise to all 270 million current and future beneficiaries—and that will mean reforming the program to restore its solvency over the long-term.

In addition to reforming Social Security, we should end the idea of being uninsured in this nation by rewriting our Federal laws so that eligibility for health insurance occurs simply as a result of being a citizen or a legal resident. We should fold existing programs-Medicare, Medicaid, VA benefits, FEHBP, and the income tax deduction—into a single system. And we should subsidize the purchase of health insurance only for those who need assistance. Enacting a Federal law that guarantees health insurance does not mean we should have socialized medicine. Personally, I favor using the private markets as much as possible—although there will be situations in which only the government can provide health care efficiently.

One final suggestion. With budget projections showing that total Federal spending will fall to 15.6% of GDP by 2010, I urge my colleague to consider setting a goal of putting aside a portion of the surpluses—perhaps an amount equivalent to one-half to one percent of GDP—for additional discretionary investments. Investments that will improve the lives of our children both in the near future and over the long term—investments in education, research and development, and science and technology.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

U.S. STRATEGIC INTERESTS IN ASIA

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, following the recent G-8 meeting in Okinawa and as we move closer to a vote on Permanent Normal Trading Relations with China, I want to briefly remind my colleagues of the importance of having a regional strategy for Asia.

There is a tendency to look at the Korean situation, the relationship between Taiwan and China, our presence in Japan, our presence in Guam, the situation in Indonesia, and so on as independent problems. Or, to just react to one situation at a time, with no overall understanding of how important the regional links and interests that exist are in shaping the outcome of our actions.

If we want to play a role in creating more stable allies in South Korea and Japan, and in ensuring that an everchanging China is also a non-threatening China, then we must recognize that any action we take in one part of the region will have an impact on perceptions and reality throughout the region.

I do not intend to give a lengthy speech on this right now, instead I just want to draw my colleagues attention to an excellent letter that I received from General Jones, Commandant of the United States Marine Corps. He wrote to discuss just this need for a regional and a long-term perspective as we evaluate our presence in Okinawa.

I agree with him that we cannot shape events in the Asia-Pacific region if we are not physically present.

So, as we engage in debate over what the proper placement and numbers for that presence are, I urge my colleagues to approach that debate and the debate on China's trade status with an awareness of the interests of the regional powers and an awareness of our national security interests both today and in the future.

I ask unanimous consent that the letter from General Jones be printed in the RECORD following this statement.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

July 21, 2000.

Hon. Joseph R. Biden, Jr., Ranking, Committee on Foreign Relations, U.S.

Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR BIDEN, As the G-8 Summit approaches, the eyes of the world have turned to the Pacific island of Okinawa. Opponents of U.S. military presence there may seize the opportunity to promote their cause. I am well acquainted with the island, having visited it frequently, and wish to convey to you my sincere belief in its absolute importance to the long-term security of our nation

Okinawa is strategically located. The American military personnel and assets maintained there are key to preservation of the stability of the Asia-Pacific region and to fulfillment of the U.S.-Japan bilateral security treaty. Okinawa's central location between the East China Sea and Pacific Ocean, astride major trade routes, and close to areas of vital economic, political, and military interest make it an ideal forward base. From it, U.S. forces can favorably shape the environment and respond, when necessary, to contingencies spanning the entire operational continuum—from disaster relief, to peacekeeping, to war-in a matter of hours, vice days or weeks.

We have long endeavored to minimize the impact of our presence. Working hand in hand with our Okinawan hosts and neighbors, we have made significant progress. In 1996, an agreement was reached for the substantial reduction, consolidation, and realignment of U.S. military bases in Okinawa. Movement toward full implementation of the actions mandated by the Special Action Committee on Okinawa Final Report continues and the commitment to reduce the impact of our presence is unabated.

Recent instances of misconduct by a few American service members have galvanized long simmering opposition to our presence. While those incidents are deplorable, they are fortunately uncommon and do not reflect the full nature of our presence.

Often lost in discussions of our presence on Okinawa, are the positive aspects of that presence. We are good neighbors: our personnel are actively involved in an impressive variety of community service work, we are the island's second largest employer of civilians, we infuse over $1.4 billion dollars into the local economy annually, and most importantly, we are sincerely grateful for the important contributions to attainment of our mission made by the people of Okinawa. We are mindful of our obligation to them.

It is worth remembering that U.S. presence in Okinawa came at great cost. Battle raged on the island for three months in the waning days of World War II and was finally won through the valor, resolve, and sacrifice by what is now known as our greatest generation. Our losses were heavy: twelve thousand killed and thirty-five thousand wounded. Casualties for the Japanese and for Okinawan civilians were even greater. The price for Okinawa was indeed high. Its capture in 1945, however, contributed to the quick resolution of the Pacific War and our presence there in the following half a century has immeasurably contributed to the protection of U.S., Japanese, and regional interests.

As you well know, challenges to military basing and training are now routine and suitable alternatives to existing sites are sorely limited. Okinawa, in fact, is invaluable. We fully understand the legitimate concerns of the Okinawan people and we will continue to work closely with them to forge mutually satisfactory solutions to the issues that we face. We are now, and will continue to be, good neighbors and custodians for peace in the region.

Very Respectfully,

JAMES L. JONES, General, Commandant of the Marine Corps.

THE INNOCENCE PROTECTION ACT OF 2000

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, at the beginning of this year, I spoke to the Senate about the breakdown in the administration of capital punishment across the country and suggested some solutions. I noted then that for every 7 people executed, 1 death row inmate has been shown some time after conviction to be innocent of the crime.

Since then, many more fundamental problems have come to light. More court-appointed defense lawyers who have slept through trials in which their client has been convicted and sentenced to death; more cases-43 of the last 131 executions in Texas according to an investigation by the Chicago Tribune—in which lawyers who were disbarred, suspended or otherwise being disciplined for ethical violations have been appointed to represent people on trial for their lives; cases in which prosecutors have called for the death penalty based on the race of the victim; and cases in which potentially dispositive evidence has been destroyed or withheld from death row inmates for vears

We have also heard from the National Committee to Prevent Wrongful Executions, a blue-ribbon panel comprised of supporters and opponents of the death penalty, Democrats and Republicans, including six former State and Federal judges, a former U.S. Attorney, two former State Attorneys General, and a former Director of the FBI. That diverse group of experts has expressed itself to be "united in [its] profound concern that, in recent years, and around the country, procedural safeguards and other assurances of fundamental fairness in the administration of capital punishment have been significantly diminished.'

I have been working with prosecutors, judges and defense counsel, with death penalty supporters and opponents, and with Democrats and Republicans, to craft some basic commonsense reforms. I could not be more pleased that Senators Gordon Smith, Susan Collins, Jim Jeffords, Carl Levin, Russ Feingold, and others here in the Senate, and Representatives Ray Lahood, William Delahunt, and over 60 other members of both parties in the House have joined me in sponsoring the Innocence Protection Act of 2000.

The two most basic provisions of our bill would encourage the State to at least make DNA testing available in the kind of case in which it can determine guilt or innocence and at least provide basic minimum standards for defense counsel so that capital trials have a chance of determining guilt or innocence by means of the adversarial testing of evidence that should be the hallmark of American criminal justice.

Our bill will not free the system of all human error, but it will do much to eliminate errors caused by the willful blindness to the truth that our capital punishment system has exhibited all too often. That is the least we should demand of a justice system that puts people's lives at stake.

I have been greatly heartened by the response of experts in criminal justice across the political spectrum to our careful work, and I would like to just highlight one example. A distinguished member of the Federal judiciary, Second Circuit Judge Jon O. Newman, has suggested that America's death penalty laws could be improved by requiring the trial judge to certify that guilt is certain. I welcome Judge Newman's thoughtful commentary, and I ask unanimous consent that his article, which appeared in the June 25th edition of the Harford Courant, be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(See Exhibit 1.)

Mr. LEAHY. It is my hope that the national debate on the death penalty will continue, and that people of good conscience—both those who support the death penalty and those who oppose it—will join in our effort to make the system more fair and so reduce the risk that innocent people may be executed.

EXHIBIT 1

[From the Harford Courant, June 25, 2000] REQUIRE CERTAINTY BEFORE EXECUTING

(By Jon O. Newman)

The execution of Gary Graham demonstrates the need to make one simple change in America's death penalty laws: a requirement that no death sentence can be imposed unless the trial judge certifies that the evidence establishes the defendant's guilt to a certainty.

Under current law, a death sentence requires first a jury's finding of guilt of a capital crime and then a jury's selection of the death penalty. In deciding both guilt and the death penalty, the jury must be persuaded beyond a reasonable doubt. That is a high standard, but it is not as high as a requirement that the trial judge certify that guilt is certain.

Experience has shown that in some cases juries have been persuaded beyond a reasonable doubt to convict and vote the death penalty even though the defendant is innocent. The most common reason is that one or more eyewitnesses said they saw the defendant commit the crime, but it later turned out that they were mistaken, as eyewitnesses sometimes are.

But when even one eyewitness testifies that the defendant did it, that is sufficient evidence for a jury to find guilt beyond a reasonable doubt, and neither the trial judge nor the appellate judges can reject the jury's guilty verdict even though they have some doubt whether the eyewitness is correct.

Our system uses the standard of proof beyond a reasonable doubt, rather than certainty, to determine guilt and thereby accepts the risk that in rare cases a guilty verdict might be rendered against an innocent person. Procedures are available for presenting new and sometimes conclusive evidence of innocence at a later time.

But with the death penalty, such exonerating evidence sometimes comes too late. Every effort should therefore be made to assure that the risk of executing an innocent person is reduced as low as humanly possible.

Requiring the trial judge to certify that guilt has been proven to a certainty before a death penalty can be imposed would limit the death penalty to cases where innocence is not realistically imaginable, leaving life imprisonment for those whose guilt is beyond a reasonable doubt but not certain.

Certification of certainty might be withheld, for example, in cases like Gary Graham's, where the eyewitness had only a fleeting opportunity to see an assailant whom the witness did not previously know, or in cases where the principal accusing witness has previously lied or has a powerful incentive to lie to gain leniency for himself.

On the other hand, certification would be warranted where untainted DNA, fingerprint or other forensic evidence indisputably proved guilt or where the suspect was caught in the commission of the crime.

In state courts (unlike Connecticut's) where judges are elected and sometimes succumb to public pressure to impose death sentences, certification of certainty might be entrusted to a permanent expert panel or might be made a required part of the commutation decision of a governor or a pardons board. In federal courts, the task could appropriately be given to appointed trial judges.

Even certification of certainty of guilt will not eliminate all risk of executing an innocent person. But as long as the death penalty is used this is a safeguard that a civilized society should require. Adding it to the innocence protection bill now being considered in Congress would help that act live up to its name

H1-VISAS

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I rise today to comment briefly on the issue of H1-B visas. Like most if not all Democrats, I believe that the number of H1-B visas—which are used by foreign workers wishing to work in the United States—should be increased.

I also believe that we should address other immigration priorities. First, we should ensure that we treat all people who fled tyranny in Central America equally, regardless of whether the tyrannical regime they fled was a leftwing or a right-wing government. Congress has already acted to protect Nicaraguans and Cubans, as well it should. It is now time to apply the same protections to Guatemalans, Salvadorans, Hondurans, and also Haitians.

Second, we should prevent people on the verge of gaining legal permanent resident status from being forced to leave their jobs and their families for lengthy periods in order to complete the process. U.S. law allowed such immigrants to remain in the country until 1997, when Congress failed to renew the provision. It is now time to correct that error.

Third, we should allow people who have lived and worked here for 14 years or more, contributing to the American economy, to adjust their immigration status. This principle has been a part of American immigration law since the 1920s and should be updated now for the first time since 1986.

Vice President Gore shares these priorities, as reflected in a letter he wrote on July 26 to Congresswoman Lucille Roybal-Allard. In this letter, he endorses an increase in the number of H1-B visas and each of the three proposals I have outlined briefly here today. The Vice President's position on this issue is the right position, and it is the compassionate position. I urge the Senate to take up S. 2912, the Latino and Immigrant Fairness Act—a bill that would accomplish each of the three immigration goals I have just discussed—and pass it without further delay.

I ask unanimous consent that the letter be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the letter was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

THE VICE PRESIDENT, Washington, July 26, 2000.

Hon. LUCILLE ROYBAL-ALLARD,

Member of Congress, Washington, DC.

DEAR LUCILLE: As Congress concludes this work period, with few legislative days left this session, I want to communicate my continued support for legislation addressing fairness for legal immigrants.

America's economic prosperity stems in large part from the hard work of American workers and the innovation offered by American firms. As a result of the longest period of economic growth in our history, it is not surprising that we have achieved record low levels of unemployment. This positive employment picture is especially true among highly skilled and highly educated workers. In some sectors of the economy, it appears there may be genuine shortages of highly skilled workers necessary to sustain our economic growth. As a result, our Administration has offered a series of proposals aimed at dramatic improvements in the education and training of American workers. These proposals ought to be enacted by the Congress to assure that any gap between worker skills and employer needs is addressed comprehensively.

I recognize that periodically American industry requires access to the international labor market to maintain and enhance our global competitiveness, particularly in highgrowth new technology industries and tight labor markets. For these reasons, I support legislation to make reasonable and temporary increases to the H-1B visa cap to address industry's immediate need for highskilled workers. However, this increase must also include significant labor protections for American workers and a significant increase in H-1B application fees to fund programs to prepare American workers—especially those from under-represented groups—to fill these and future jobs.

In addition, I support measures that provide fairness and equity for certain immigrants already in the United States. Therefore, as Congress considers allowing more foreign temporary workers into this country to meet employers' needs, I urge Congress to correct two injustices currently affecting many immigrants already in our nation. I want to urge Members to pass two important immigration proposals that have long been Administration priorities—providing parity to Central Americans and Haitians under NACARA and changing the registry date to allow certain long-term migrants to adjust to legal permanent resident status. These proposals are much-needed and would restore fairness to our immigration system and American families. The registry date and the Central American and Haitian Parity Act proposals would provide good people who have developed ties to this country-families, homes, and roots in their communities—the opportunity to adjust their status. I am extremely disappointed that many in the Congressional majority seem intent on refusing to pass or even vote on these important immigration provisions. One way or another, however, the Congressional majority has an obligation to allow a vote on these issues and to join us in passing these measures of basic justice and fairness. The migrants and their families who would benefit from the registry date proposal have been in immigration limbo for up to two decades and are in desperate need of a resolution to their efforts to become full members of American society. In the case of Central Americans and Haitians, the parity provision would not only provide compassion and fairness for the affected immigrants, but also contribute to the stability and development of democracy and peace in their native countries.

I also urge Congress to pass and fund other Administration priorities that would address the needs of immigrants. Reinstatement of section 245(i) would allow families to stay together while an adjustment of status application is pending. The Administration's FY 2001 budget proposal would fund programs to ensure that immigrants' services have the resources needed to reduce the backlog of applications from people seeking naturalization and adjustment of status.

Finally, I urge Congress to fully fund the Administration's $75 million request for the English Language/Civics and Lifeskills Initiative that will allow communities to provide more English language courses that are linked to civics and lifeskills instruction to adults with limited English language proficiency. Immigrants are eager to learn English and all about civic responsibility, but the demand for programs outweighs the supply. We need to provide opportunities for these new Americans to become full participants in our society.

For these reasons, Congress should con-

For these reasons, Congress should consider and enact these legislative proposals and fund the programs we requested. I commend your leadership in this area, and I look forward to working closely with you to enact these important immigration measures.

Sincerely,

AL GORE.

65TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE SOCIAL SECURITY PROGRAM

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, for more than 60 years, the Social Security program has been one of the most successful governmental initiatives this country has ever witnessed. August 14, 2000 marks the 65th anniversary of the Social Security Act, signed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1935. This historic event in 1935 changed the face of America by providing protections for retired workers and for those who face loss of income due to disability or death of the family breadwinner. We must look to the future to ensure a strong Social Security program for every individual in America.

During the time of the Great Depression, jobs were scarce and many were unable to compete for new employment. President Roosevelt recognized that a change was needed, he called for reform and the Social Security Act was born.

Social Security has changed remarkably over the past six decades. Under the 1935 law, Social Security only paid retirement benefits to the primary worker. A 1939 change in the law added survivor benefits and benefits for the retiree's spouse and children. In 1956 disability benefits were added. Thus, we have seen how Social Security has grown to meet the needs of not only retirees, but also their families.

For many Americans, Social Security has become a crucial component of their financial well-being. In fact, an estimated 42% of the elderly are kept out of poverty because of their Social Security checks. Today more than 44 million people receive retirement, survivor, and disability benefits through the Social Security program, 1.6 million in Michigan. Social Security has had an enormous effect on the lives of millions of working Americans and their families.

As we celebrate this historic event, we remember what America was and how Americans have shaped their country into the prosperous nation that it is today. Since 1935 Social Security has served the American people well and will continue to do so into the future.

VICTIMS OF GUN VIOLENCE

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, it has been more than a year since the Columbine tragedy, but still this Republican Congress refuses to act on sensible gun legislation.

Since Columbine, thousands of Americans have been killed by gunfire. Until we act, Democrats in the Senate will read some of the names of those who lost their lives to gun violence in the past year, and we will continue to do so every day that the Senate is in session.

In the name of those who died, we will continue this fight. Following are the names of some of the people who were killed by gunfire one year ago today.

July 27: Jesus Campos, 19, Chicago, IL; Steven Conley, 29, Memphis, TN; Stephen Daniels, Jr., 24, Miami-Dade County, FL; Willie G. Dulaney, 68, Memphis, TN; George Julian, 83, Hollywood, FL; Javier Marrero, 18, Chicago, IL; Eric McAlister, 33, Dallas, TX; Charles Oliver, 50, Atlanta, GA; Deondra Stokes, 21, Detroit, MI; Barreto P. Williams, 26, Chicago, IL; Unidentified male, 25, Newark, NJ.

We cannot sit back and allow such senseless gun violence to continue. The deaths of these people are a reminder to all of us that we need to enact sensible gun legislation now.

WELCOMING ZELL MILLER TO THE U.S. SENATE

Mr. REID. Mr. President, today we welcome a new colleague to this body, former Governor, now Senator ZELL MILLER. We welcome Senator MILLER at the same time that we mourn the passing of his predecessor, PAUL COVERDELL. So it is a bittersweet moment.

ZELL MILLER isn't replacing PAUL COVERDELL. He can't be replaced, rather, I prefer to think he is following the footsteps of a consummate and formidable legislator. I worked closely with Senator Coverdell to move legislation when people thought legislation couldn't be moved. And I look forward to working with Senator MILLER in that same vain.

In thinking about what I would say about Senator MILLER's arrival to the senate, I ran across a quote by the great Senator J. William Fulbright. He talked about what it takes to be both a legislator and an executive and I think it is a fitting characterization of the work of both PAUL COVERDELL and ZELL MILLER.

Fulbright said: "The legislator is an indispensable guardian of our freedom." "It is true," he said, "that great executives have played a powerful role in the development of civilization, but such leaders appear sporadically, by chance. They do not always appear when they are most needed. The great executives have given inspiration and push to the advancement of human society, but it is the legislator who has given stability and continuity to that slow and painful progress."

ZELL MILLER, to borrow Senator Fulbright's eloquent words, appeared in Georgia when he was most needed. As Governor, he advanced the prospects of the people of Georgia by creating the HOPE scholarship program. The initiative was so successful that President Clinton and the Congress made the HOPE scholarship initiative a national program. As a result, not only do Georgians have the opportunity to pursue their dreams through higher education, so do millions of Americans.

Looking at his career, you learn that ZELL MILLER also understands Sam Rayburn's dictum that "you cannot be a leader, and ask other people to follow you, unless you know how to follow too." Whether it was his service in Marine Corps, his tenure in the Georgia State Senate or as Lieutenant Governor or Governor, he learned leadership by following those who walked the walk before him and then by focusing on what matters most to the American people. The central focus of ZELL MIL-LER's career has been on what he aptly calls "kitchen table issues." The issues that affect the daily lives of the American people-education, taxes, crime, and health care.

Some may be surprised to learn that ZELL is fulfilling a childhood ambition of serving in the U.S. Senate. According to a recent news report, he wrote to his boyhood friend, Ed Jenkins, in their high school yearbook that "we will be friends forever until and unless you decide to run against me for the U.S. Senate." His friendship with Ed Jenkins, someone with whom I served in the House, is still intact, and ZELL will start a new chapter in what has been an extraordinary career.

Finally, Mr. President, Zell brings the attributes of both a legislator and an executive to the Senate and I believe they will serve him well. And like Paul Coverdell, who through his work brought stability and continuity to the Senate, I know that Zell will bring great credit to this institution and will serve the people of Georgia well. We welcome him to the U.S. Senate

H-1B VISAS

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I rise today to express my frustration over the inability of the Senate to reach a unanimous consent agreement in regard to legislation that addresses the critical shortage of highly skilled workers in the information technology fields. On April 11, 2000, the Senate's Judiciary Committee favorably reported out S. 2045, The American Competitiveness in the 21st Century Act, by a vote of 16-2. I am pleased to be an original cosponsor of this important legislation. Unfortunately, this legislation is now being held hostage because some of my colleagues in the Senate wish to attach unrelated amendments to the bill.

There are very few remaining days left in this Congress. Before Congress adjourns for the year, we must pass the remaining appropriations bills, and have them signed into law. In addition, legislation extending Permanent Normal Trade Relations with China, and legislation reauthorizing the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, must be considered. Consequently, there simply is just not enough time for the Senate to debate numerous unrelated amendments on the H-1B visa bill.

Mr. President, our country's burgeoning economy has resulted in an extremely low unemployment rate nationwide. While I am proud of our economy, and our low nationwide unemployment rate, there does exist a tight labor market in many fields, especially the information technology fields. One need only look in the classified section of the Washington Post to see how many high-tech jobs are available in Northern Virginia. This tight labor market makes it difficult for the hightech industry to fill job openings, and this difficulty is compounded by the fact that our American education system, for one reason or another, is not producing enough individuals with the interest and skills for employment in the information technology fields. If these jobs our not filled, our economy will suffer, and these American companies will move overseas to fill their

In 1998, Congress and the President recognized the serious effects that the tight labor market could have on the high-tech industry and our economy. In that year, Congress passed, and the President signed into law, legislation increasing the annual ceiling for admission of H-1B nonimmigrants from 65,000 to 115,000 in fiscal year 1999 and fiscal year 2000, and 107,500 in fiscal year 2001. This 1998 act also imposed a $500 per visa fee to fund training and scholarships for U.S. workers and students

Nevertheless, despite increasing the H-1B ceiling just two years ago, that increase has proved to be woefully inadequate. In 1999, the H-1B visa ceiling was reached at the end of 9 months. This fiscal year, the ceiling was reached 6 months into the fiscal year. The effect of the H-1B ceiling being reached before the year's end is that these jobs will remain unfilled, which in turn will only hurt our economy.

The Senate Judiciary's Committee Report on S. 2045 states that the, 'shortage of skilled workers throughout the U.S. economy will result in a 5percent drop in the growth rate of the GDP. That translates into approximately $200 billion in lost output, nearly $1,000 for every American." Committee cites other studies that indicate that a shortage of information technology professionals is costing the U.S. economy as a whole $105 billion a year. I also found Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan's testimony before the Senate's Banking Committee quite compelling. Mr. Greenspan endorsed S. 2045 in response to a question from Senator PHIL GRAMM, and then stated that, "The benefits of bringing in people to do the work here, rather than doing the work elsewhere. to me, should be pretty self-evident.'

Now, let me state clearly, it is my preference that these jobs in the information technology fields would be filled with Americans. However, due to the low unemployment rate and the lack of unemployed educated high-tech workers, filling the numerous openings in the information technology fields with Americans is simply not realistic. Therefore, to continue to propel our economy forward, we must pass legislation such as S. 2045 to fill these critical positions in our information technology sector.

This legislation, though, does more than just increase the number of H-1B visas to temporarily fill the job openings in the high-tech industry that cannot be filled by Americans. This bill contains very important provisions that continue the imposition of a $500 fee per H-1B visa petition. It is estimated that this fee, with the increase in the H-1B ceiling, will raise roughly $450 million over three years. This money will create 40,000 scholarships for U.S. workers and U.S. students, thereby helping them to choose education in these important fields. Our goal should be to fill these American jobs with trained American workers. These provisions of S. 2045 takes us toward that goal.

Mr. President, in closing, I cannot overstate how important it is for our country's economy to raise the ceiling on H-1B visas, and to provide funding for the training of Americans to fill these jobs. I implore my colleagues to reconsider their demand for votes on unrelated amendments on this legislation. At this late stage in the Congress, demanding votes on unrelated amendments on this legislation will kill this important bill, leave very important jobs in the information technology sector unfilled, and ultimately, hurt our economy.

VISA WAIVER PILOT PROGRAM

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, I wish to explain to my colleagues the reasons for my objection to a unanimous consent request for the Senate to adopt legislation to make the Visa Waiver Pilot Program permanent, H.R. 3767. I do so consistent with the commitment I have made to explain publicly any socalled "holds" that I may place on legislation.

I regret that I am compelled to object to this measure at this point but I do so for reasons similar to those given previously. I believe the Senate should not allow the security of millions of rural Americans to be ignored while we press ahead with legislation to take care of immigration matters.

Since April, a prominent Senate Republican leader has had a de facto hold on a bipartisan bill of critical importance to the security of those who live in rural counties, S. 1608, The Secure Rural Schools and Community Self-Determination Act of 2000. But time is running out. It is the end of July; there are fewer than 26 legislative days left. People in rural counties across America who have strained under dwindling Federal resource funds need this legislation. They should not be made to wait.

S. 1608 addresses the problems 709 rural counties in 42 states face in trying to fund schools, roads and other basic county services with drastically declining Federal timber payments. These problems affect some 800,000 school children and millions of people. For example, Grant County in eastern Oregon has lost 90 percent of its timber receipts, forcing it to turn to a four-day school week as a cost-saving measure.

This bipartisan bill provides a balanced solution to the problem. The Energy and Natural Resources Committee reported it by voice vote, and it is supported by hundreds of counties, labor organizations, education groups, and the National Association of Counties. I regret having to take this action but am compelled at this point in the legislative year to seek every opportunity to move this critically important legislation.

RURAL AMERICA PROSPERITY ACT OF 2000

Mr. BURNS. Mr. President, I rise today to express my support of the Rural America Prosperity Act of 2000. I am pleased to be a cosponsor, along with my colleagues, Senators LUGAR, ROBERTS, and SANTORUM. I am a cosponsor of this bill because it gives our farmers some of the tools they need to succeed in today's economy and works to finish what was a key tool in our current agriculture policy.

In 1996, we passed a new version of the farm bill. This legislation began the process of eliminating government control over farmers. No longer did the government dictate what crops farmers could plant. Farmers could use their own discretion, honed by generations of living on the land, as to how their land and finances would be managed. The farm bill made numerous steps in the right direction, but there is more we can do. This, I believe, is a very important step to make this legislation better and more flexible.

This legislation takes us a few steps further down the road to better farming policy. It includes three important tax provisions that I feel are vital to the survival of Montana's and America's farmers. The first is the repeal of the estate tax, which would allow farms to be passed along to the next generation. Without the repeal, sons and daughters are forced to sell the only home they have ever known to pay the estate taxes, when their parents die. Family farms are disappearing fast enough without this added burden.

The second vital tax provision is the exclusion of capital gains from the sale of farmland. This simply puts farm owners on an even playing field with homeowners, who already benefit from exclusion of capital gains. The third tax provision lies in the area of health insurance. Farmers, and others who are self-employed, do not have health insurance provided for them. They must cover the full cost themselves. This legislation would give those who are self-employed a tax deduction for the cost of their insurance.

Farmers, more than any other sector of our economy are likely to experience substantial fluctuations in income. Market forces in farming are very unique: drought, flooding, infestation and disease all play a vital role in a farmer's bottom line. And it's not often when the elements of mother nature allow for a profitable harvest more than once in several years. I believe that farmers need to be able to smooth out fluctuations in their income in order to offset the effect of the high marginal tax rates that occur in years when both yield and prices are up. Income averaging is an important tool for farmers. Currently, alternative minimum taxes prevent many farmers from receiving the benefits of income averaging. This bill would fix that. Farmers will be able to put up to 20 percent of their annual farm income into a FARRM account that is deducted from their taxes.

As many of you know, while the rest of the economy is surging ahead, agriculture has been left behind in the dust. Prices are dropping, and farmers and ranchers are going out of business. We must assist in their survival and the development of new markets is an essential part of that survival. Imposing trade sanctions hurts American farmers and ranchers. Sanctions have effectively shut out American agricultural producers from 11 percent of the world market, with sanctions imposed on various products of over 60 countries. They allow our competitors an open door to those markets where sanctions are imposed by the United States. In times like these our producers need every available marketing option open to them. We cannot afford lost market share. Foreign markets offer a great opportunity for our agricultural products and negotiating trade agreements may put life back into our rural communities.

The farm bill took bold steps, but we cannot stop there. This legislation continues to make those steps towards a better situation for our farmers.

IT IS TIME TO UPDATE THE MISSOURI RIVER MASTER MANUAL

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, I am pleased to take this opportunity to join my colleagues to discuss the issue of how the Missouri River should be managed by the Corps of Engineers and to address the remarks made earlier this week by my friends and colleagues from Missouri, Senators BOND and ASHCROFT. This issue has come before the Senate because some of my colleagues from states downstream on the Missouri River are attempting to politicize the management of the River.

They are trying to politicize this issue by adding a rider to the Energy and Water Appropriations bill to prevent the Corps of Engineers from changing the 40 year old Master Manual that sets the management policy of the River.

Let me assure you and the rest of my colleagues that after 40 years, the management of the Missouri River is in serious need of an update to reflect the current realities of the River. As the discussion—and sometimes, heated debate—continues with respect to the Missouri River and its various uses, the Army Corps of Engineers has proposed a revision of the Master Manual which governs how the River is managed.

I was among those who first called for a revision of the Master Manual because I firmly believed then, as I do now, that over the years, we in the Upper Basin states have lived with an unfortunate lack of parity under the current management practices on the Missouri River. It is no secret that we continue to suffer from an upstream vs. downstream conflict of interest on Missouri River uses. For example, traditionally, navigation has been emphasized on the Missouri River, to the detriment of river ecosystems and recreational uses. I recognize that navigation activities often support midwestern agriculture, however the navigation industry has been declining since it peaked in the late 1970's. It is no longer appropriate to grossly favor navigation above other uses of the river.

Those of us from the upstream states have been working for more than 10 years to get the Corps of Engineers to finally make changes in the 40 year old Master Manual for the Missouri River.

After more than 40 years, the time has come for the management of the Missouri River to reflect the current economic realities of a $90 million annual recreation impact upstream, versus a $7 million annual navigation impact downstream. The Corps has been managing the Missouri River for navigation for far too long and it is time to finally bring the Master Manual into line with current economic realities.

As I stated earlier, the process to review and update the Master Manual began more than 10 years ago, in 1989, in response to concerns regarding the operation of the main stem dams, mainly during drought periods. A draft Environmental Impact Statement (DEIS) was published in September 1994 and was followed by a public comment, period. In response to numerous comments, the Corps agreed to prepare a Revised DEIS.

After years of revisions and updates that have dragged this process out to ridiculous lengths, the Corps finally came forward with alternatives to the current Master Manual, including the current season" alternative, which I strongly support, along with my colleagues from the Upper Basin states. Those of us from the States in the Upper Basin are determined to work aggressively for the interests of our region. For decades our states have made many significantly sacrifices which have benefited people living further south along the Missouri River.

Now is the time to finally bring an outdated and unfair management plan for the Missouri River up to date with modern economic realities.

MOUNT HELM BAPTIST CHURCH

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, today I rise to honor the oldest African-American church in the City of Jackson, Mississippi, Mount Helm Baptist Church. Not only is it the oldest African-American church, but it is also one of the oldest churches in the State of Mississippi. Throughout this year, Mount Helm will be celebrating its 165th Anniversary with a theme "Celebrating Our Heritage: Anticipating Our Future". This year's theme should be echoed in the hearts and minds of everyone. This church clearly exemplifies this theme. Mount Helm, which was founded in 1835, has continuously been a community leader and a strong advocate for Christianity and the spreading of the Gospel.

Prior Lee, a prominent Jacksonian, developed a deep interest in religion and provided the resources for the construction of the First Baptist Church. After the church was completed, Lee persuaded the congregation to allow the African-Americans to hold their own worship services in the basement of the church. The Thirteenth Amendment, which abolished slavery, was ratified in 1867 and African-Americans withdrew from the First Baptist Church and erected their own church home, thus forming Mount Helm Baptist Church.

During its 165 years of existence, Mount Helm Baptist Church has had the leadership of 21 pastors. Mount Helm is currently being pastored by the Reverend John R. Johnson, Jr. Under his leadership, it has always been a pillar of faith and support to local churches and the surrounding community. The Thomas and Mary Helm family, motivated by a benevolent and sympathetic spirit, donated the land upon which African-Americans built their first church edifice.

The City of Jackson and the State of Mississippi are grateful for Mount Helm's Baptist Church leadership and accomplishments.

THE BREAST AND CERVICAL CANCER TREATMENT ACT

Mr. ROBB. Mr. President, last month, the Finance Committee reported a bill by voice vote to provide treatment for low-income women identified as having breast or cervical cancer through a federal screening program. I rise today to urge the Senate to expeditiously take up and pass this legislation.

In 1990, the Senate unanimously approved establishment of the National Breast and Cervical Cancer Early Detection Program, a CDC program which has expanded screening for these diseases to over one million women. Unfortunately, after receiving diagnosis, many of these women find themselves without health insurance and with no one to turn to for treatment. This is unconscionable—it's time to finish the job.

Earlier this summer, I hosted women's health forums in Virginia to discuss with women health concerns of priority. Breast and cervical cancer survivors asked me to come to you and my distinguished colleagues and urge your support for swift passage of this legislation. I was pleased to support the bill in Committee, and I am happy to echo their words to you.

73 Senators have cosponsored this proposal and the House of Representatives, in May, passed companion legislation with overwhelming support. Mr. President, on behalf of all women, I urge the Senate to take up and pass this legislation as soon as possible.

THE VERY BAD DEBT BOXSCORE

Mr. HELMS. Mr. President, at the close of business yesterday, Wednesday, July 26, 2000, the Federal debt stood at $5,669,530,258,286.44 (Five trillion, six hundred sixty-nine billion, five hundred thirty million, two hundred fifty-eight thousand, two hundred eighty-six dollars and forty-four cents).

One year ago, July 26, 1999, the Federal debt stood at $5,636,526,000,000 (Five trillion, six hundred thirty-six billion, five hundred twenty-six million).

Five years ago, July 26, 1995, the Federal debt stood at $4,941,609,000,000 (Four trillion, nine hundred forty-one billion, six hundred nine million).

Ten years ago, July 26, 1990, the Federal debt stood at $3,164,872,000,000 (Three trillion, one hundred sixty-four billion, eight hundred seventy-two million)

Fifteen years ago, July 26, 1985, the Federal debt stood at $1,798,967,000,000 (One trillion, seven hundred ninetyeight billion, nine hundred sixty-seven million) which reflects a debt increase almost $4 trillionof $3,870,563,258,286.44 (Three trillion. eight hundred seventy billion, five hundred sixty-three million, two hundred fifty-eight thousand two hundred eighty-six dollars and forty-four cents) during the past 15 years.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

TRUCK DRIVERS ACT OF HEROISM

• Mr. BURNS. Mr. President, today I would like to take the opportunity to say a few words of praise for an act of heroism displayed by a couple of long haul truckers earlier this month in my home state of Montana.

I came to the floor today to not only praise the good deed but to also support a mode of transportation that supports the economy of Montana and the entire nation.

As I have said, earlier this month in my home state of Montana a pair of truckers rescued four people from a car that had overturned in a ditch filled with flood water. The car, containing three people, was submerged underwater for at least three minutes after skidding off an eastern Montana highway during a flash flood which left only the car's tires above water.

Luckily for the passengers, a truck driver stopped just past the overturned car. The trucker backed his trailer off the road and over the bank risking his own safety and property. After securing a chain around the bumper of his trailer, he waded into the water, secured the other end around the car and pulled it back up onto the road. A second truck driver also stopped to assist.

I would like to recognize these unknown individuals for their heroism. Too often we take our nation's truckers for granted. It is continually becoming more and more difficult to make a living as a long haul trucker in this country considering fuel prices and regulatory factors. The high cost of fuel has hit this industry especially hard.

A proposal to drastically alter a trucker's drive and rest periods is being considered by the Administration. This proposal threatens not only to increase the costs of long haul truckers, it also threatens to keep them away from their families for longer durations. I think it is about time we take a long hard look at the important role these truckers play in our daily lives.

Whether it's a delivery to our local grocery or the transport of petroleum products, these truckers sacrifice time away from their families to make our lives easier and better. Mr. President, I would like to ask my colleagues to join me to ensure any hours of service proposal accomplishes three important goals: Ensure safety on our nation's highways; ensure truckers are not burdened with additional costs; and ensure the final ruling will allow truckers to spend more of their non-driving time at home with their families. The current proposal fails miserably to address these matters.

Again, I would like to personally thank and commend the two individual truckers for their heroism, but also commend all truckers for their hard work and dedication to safety on our highways.

Thank you, Mr. President, I yield the floor.●

IN RECOGNITION OF MR. JAMES E. KELLEY

• Mr. BAYH. Mr. President, I rise today to recognize the humanitarian work of James Kelley of Fort Wayne, Indiana.

For many years, Mr. Kelley has been known for his successes as an entrepreneur and philanthropist in Indiana. He founded the Kelley Automotive group in 1952 which now employs over 1200 employees in both Indiana and Georgia. His dedication to public service has been evident through his service on the boards of the Fort Wayne of Commerce, Chamber Achievement, Big Brothers and Big Sisters, the Boys and Girls Club of Fort Wayne, the YMCA, Fort Wayne National Bank, the Fort Wayne Aviation Museum, and the Arthritis Foundation.

Recently, Mr. Kelley has devoted his energies to developing a grain business in the Republic of Moldova. The Republic of Moldova is a small country approximately the size of Indiana with a population of 4.8 million people. Since the dissolution of the Soviet Union in 1991, Moldova has been struggling to successfully transition from a communist system to a democratic republic.

One of the greatest challenges facing this burgeoning country is that of economic development. In 1999 the per capita income in Moldova was only $2,200 and inflation was at 43 percent. Through his purchase of a grain elevator and his partnership with the farmers of Moldova, Mr. Kelley has been able to loan local farmers feed, fertilizer, and fuel. In the near future, he plans to introduce modern farming techniques that will increase crop yields. The Kelley Grain company is considered to be one of the primary economic development initiatives in the nation, and Mr. Kelley's work has been recognized by both the former and current prime ministers of Moldova.

In addition to his economic endeavors, Mr. Kelley has taken his philanthropic activities abroad as well. While in Moldova, he noticed a deficiency in their health care system and organized a medical team to travel to Moldova. While there, this team trained physicians and nurses in techniques to implant pacemakers, provided much needed supplies for cardiovascular surgeries, provided consultation and echocardiographic imaging at the cardiology center, visited pediatric wards and orphanages, and provided the rural city of Gaushen with antibiotics, blood pressure cuffs, and antihypertensive medications.

I would like to commend James Kelley for his efforts and tireless dedication to helping the people of this struggling country. His humanitarian work in the Republic of Moldova can only enhance the relationship between our two countries. I am honored to be able to recognize his contributions and wish him continued success in the future.

HONORING THE CALL D.C.

• Mr. BROWNBACK. Mr. President, today, I rise to recognize The Call D.C., a group of young people who will gather in Washington, D.C. September 2, 2000 to strengthen and renew their commitment to God, their families and their local communities.

The Call D.C. is a non-denominational gathering of youth and their parents, youth leaders, pastors, and Church leaders who are unified in their steadfast commitment to strengthening their faith in God and their concern for their local communities and our nation.

I have long been greatly concerned about the state of our culture, and the state of our society. Young people today are barraged with images of violence, hate, and vulgarity that pour forth from our airwaves and our entertainment. The challenges young people face seem to grow more difficult, and more pervasive. Where once we, as a society, felt free to affirm faith in God, and adherence to high standards, such beliefs are now often called into question.

It is thus even more exciting to see many young people, such as these young people, who are willing to lead by example and focus their efforts on steadily improving their families, communities and our nation. These young people, who represent communities and religions from around our nation, will come together on September 2 and use their assembly as a time to pray for strengthen their faith in God, their commitment to their families through reconciling with their parents, and nurturing their walk with God.

These young people remind us of our solemn duty not just as parents, teachers, business leaders or public servants but as citizens of this great nation—"a nation under God . . .," I commend them for reminding us that we must first focus on God and he will strengthen us and enable us to build up our families, our local communities and our nation. I applaud all the participants of the Call D.C. and thank them for their work and their commitment and their heart for God. •

ON THE MARRIAGE OF MARK PRESTON AND MEREDITH RAY BONNER

• Mr. L. CHAFEE. Mr. President, I rise today to congratulate Mark Preston and Meredith Ray Bonner on their recent wedding, which took place on July 8, 2000, at the Holy Spirit Catholic Church in Atlanta, Georgia. The groom's parents Eugene and Mary Preston were in attendance, as was the bride's mother, Mrs. Phillip Ray Bonner.

Mark proposed on December 28, 1999, in the same parking lot where they first kissed, and the couple spent their honeymoon in North Carolina.

As many of you know, Mark is the intrepid Roll Call reporter, famous for stalking unwary Members coming off the Senate floor or leaving the weekly policy lunches. Over time, Mark has become a fixture at the Ohio Clock and on the Hill.

The bride, now Meredith B. Preston, is also a journalist, and recently relocated to Washington from Atlanta. In fact, Mark and Meredith met as reporters at the Marietta Daily Journal.

I hope the entire Senate will join me in wishing Mark and Meredith the very best today and throughout the future.•

COLOMBIAN INDEPENDENCE DAY

• Mr. TORRICELLI. Mr. President, I rise today to join people in New Jersey and throughout the nation in recognizing Colombia's 190 years of independence from Spain. On July 20, 1810, the citizens of Bogota created the first representative council to challenge Spanish authority. Total independence was proclaimed in 1813, and in 1819 the Republic of Greater Colombia was formed. In 1822, the United States became one of the first countries to recognize the new republic and to establish a resident diplomatic mission.

In addition to recognizing the day of Colombia's independence, this is an excellent opportunity to celebrate the contributions of the growing population of Colombian-Americans in New Jersey and throughout the United States. Almost 100,000 Colombian-Americans reside in Northern New Jersey alone. The Colombian-American culture is vibrant and rich and it is important to acknowledge the impact it is having on our communities.

While Colombia boasts one of the oldest democracies in South America, that democracy faces many serious challenges today. Celebrating this day of independence reminds us that Colombia has a long journey ahead as it works to overcome the problems of drug trafficking and rebel violence that continue to plague its society. The United States Congress is committed to helping in that struggle in any way we can.

I commend the great accomplishments and contributions of the Colombian-American community and as we join Colombian-Americans in celebrating their nation's independence we also look to establishing peace and justice in their homeland.

A TRIBUTE TO HENRI NSANJAMA

• Mr. JEFFORDS. Mr. President, today I rise to pay tribute to Henri Nsanjama, a champion of conservation who died on July 18, 2000. At the time of his death, Mr. Nsanjama was serving as vice president and senior advisor on Africa and Madagascar for the World Wildlife Fund here in Washington. Henri was an ardent supporter of measures to protect Africa's elephants and of the United Nations Convention to Combat Desertification. I worked with him on both of these important issues. Henri would have been pleased to know that the Senate Foreign Relations Committee is scheduled to vote in September to recommend that the full Senate ratify the Desertification Convention. So far, 168 countries have ratified the Desertification Convention and the U.S. is the only major industrial nation that has not done so. Henri worked hard to change that and ensure that biodiversity is protected in Africa and other parts of the world facing desertification.

A native of Malawi, Henri dedicated his life to the challenge of linking wildlife conservation with the needs of local communities. He believed that the most challenging aspect of his work was conserving wildlife without undue hardship to human beings.

Henri built his distinguished career through formal education and hands-on field work. He served as a Trainee Game Ranger in his native Malawi, where he recalled being inspired by the sight of more wild animals than people. He attended the College of African Wildlife Management in Mweka, Tanzania, and became a Warden at Kasungu National Park in Central Malawi.

Henri then moved to the United States, and earned a Bachelor's Degree in wildlife biology and natural resources economics at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst. After Amherst, Henri returned home to Kasungu National Park and eventually was hired as Malawi's Deputy Director of National Parks and Wildlife. Three years later, he attended the University of Stirling, Scotland, where he received a Master's Degree in environmental management.

Anxious to apply his new knowledge, Henri returned home once again to become the Director of National Parks and Wildlife for Malawi. He also served as the Coordinator of Wildlife Activities of the ten countries of the Southern African Development Coordination.

In 1989, Henri was nominated Chairman of the Standing Committee of the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species, a post he held for a year before beginning work with WWF in 1990. Henri led WWF's program in Africa for 10 years. During that time he focused in particular on the areas of building the capacity of people and institutions to manage natural resources, community based natural resources management, protected areas management and species conservation. He was co-author of "Voices from Africa: Local Perspectives on Conservation."

A strong African voice for conservation, Henri also knew how to reach Americans. About Henri, Kathryn Fuller, President of WWF, said, "Throughout his 10 years with WWF, Henri was an inspirational ambassador for conservation with the American public and our partners in Africa. He was also at the forefront of efforts to include women in conservation and increase their educational opportunities."

Beyond his professional accomplishments, Henri is remembered as a gifted storyteller who touched the lives of everyone he encountered. In a profile five years ago, he was asked to describe his idea of perfect happiness. He answered, "As a Christian, it's believing in what good was given to you and to be able to do good things for others. This is my 19th year of working in conservation. I've never done anything else and I never want to."

In Henri's honor, the World Wildlife Fund will establish a fund to ensure that Africans are given the opportunity to care for and manage their natural resources, a fitting tribute for one who believed so strongly in the importance of empowering Africa's people to sustainably manage their natural heritage.

Henri's funeral in Malawi this week was attended by 3,000 people, including eight ministers of the Malawian government. He was clearly loved and respected by many and has left a lasting legacy of sustainable management of wildlife and wildlands in Africa. For this we should all be enormously grateful. ●

CARDINAL ROGER MAHONY

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I have spoken several times on the floor this year about the flaws that plague our nation's administration of the death penalty. I am not alone in raising this issue. The American Bar Association, the Reverend Pat Robertson, the NAACP, the National Urban League, and many other organizations and individuals have added their voices to the chorus of voices supporting a moratorium on executions. A moratorium would allow time to review the system by which we impose the sentence of death. The National Conference of Catholic Bishops and United States Catholic Conference are among those groups who agree that it is time to pause.

I rise today to share with my colleagues the statement of Cardinal Roger Mahony, the Archbishop of Los Angeles. At the National Press Club here in Washington in May, Cardinal Mahony spoke eloquently in support of a moratorium on executions. He said, "the time is right for a genuine and reasoned national dialogue." In a letter to me, he later said, "the obvious inequities that surround the death penalty are truly shameful."

I encourage my colleagues to take a moment to read his statement. And let us begin the reasoned national dialogue here, in the United States Senate. Mr. President, I ask that the full text of Cardinal Mahony's statement be printed in the RECORD.

The statement follows:

[The National Press Club Washington, DC, May 25, 2000]

A WITNESS TO LIFE: THE CATHOLIC CHURCH AND THE DEATH PENALTY

(Address by Cardinal Roger Mahony, Archbishop of Los Angeles)

Good afternoon. As I begin my remarks, I would like to thank John Cushman and the Board of Governors of the National Press Club for the invitation to speak before you this afternoon. I would also like to acknowledge the members of the United States Catholic Conference Committees on Domestic and International Policy as well as staff from the United States Conference who are joining me for today's program. Finally, I would like to extend a special welcome to Frank and Ellen McNeirney, the co-founders and co-directors of Catholics Against Capital Punishment.

I come to this prestigious forum as a pastor who has witnessed firsthand the irreparable pain and sorrow caused by violence in our communities and in our nation. I have presided at the funerals of police officers killed in the line of duty. I have sought to console and comfort families who have lost children to gang violence and drive-by-shootings. I have heard the concerns and fears of parents who live—day in and day out—surrounded by the violence that haunts their neighborhoods.

As a Catholic priest, I have seen the pain of those whose lives have been forever altered by the loss of a loved one to senseless murder. Their own struggles have tested not only their faith but the faith of those who walk with them. As their own quest for healing has brought them closer to God, their witness has been a light of hope to those who accompany them.

The cost of crime and violence is real. It is measured in the lives of parents, children, and families, not anonymous statistics. The hopes, dreams, and human potential that will never be realized are a loss to each one of us.

I believe the Gospel teaches that people are responsible for their actions. I believe that the reality of sin demands that those who injure others must make reparation. But I do not believe that society is make safer, that our communities are made whole, or that our social fabric is strengthened by killing those who kill others. Instead, the death penalty perpetuates an insidious cycle of violence that, in the end, diminishes all of us.

For many Catholics, Pope John Paul II's visit to the United States in January, 1999 was a turning point on this issue. In calling the abolition of the death penalty an authentically pro-life position, he challenged Catholics to protect not only innocent human life, as we do in opposing abortion and euthanasia, but also to defend the lives of those who may have done great evil by taking the life of another. To demonstrate this conviction in a dramatic and personal way, he appealed for the life of Darrell Mease whose execution was postponed in deference to the People's visit.

The words and actions of Pope John Paul II in St. Louis brought renewed attention to the debate on the death penalty. It provided renewed moral support to those who have worked tirelessly over the last several decades for an end to capital punishment, and placed the Catholic Church even more squarely on the side of those calling for its abolition.

In articulating a consistent ethic of life, the late Cardinal Joseph Bernardin provided the framework for a "sustained moral vision." It now appears that this consistent moral vision is beginning to take root and gain ground. A recent article in America magazine notes that pro-life Catholics are far more likely to reject capital punishment than Catholics who do not embrace the Church's stand on abortion. Among these pro-lifers, fifty-two percent reject the death penalty while support among all Catholicsin 1998—remained at around 70 percent. While we still have work to do in our community, it is clear that this consistent ethic of life is resonating in the pro-life commu-

I recognize that there are distinct differences between abortion and the death penalty. But like abortion, the death penalty remains one of the more contentious and volatile issues facing the nation. It is an issue steeped in deep emotion. It is a topic that evokes visceral responses from supporters and opponents alike. It is a debate that, unfortunately, often generates more heat than light, more passion than persuasion.

Among the signs that the nation as a whole may be taking a new look at the death penalty is a recent ABC poll that indicates support for the death penalty is a recent ABC poll that indicates support for the death penalty has dropped to 64 percent from nearly 70 percent just a few years ago. And in a Time magazine online poll, 43 percent of respondents expressed support for abolition of the death penalty.

This gradual shift is remarkable given that virtually no elected leader in the last decade has made the case against the death penalty. It is worth noting that in the last two elections, presidential candidates from both parties supported capital punishment. In some cases, candidates went to great lengths to advertise their supported capital punishment. In some cases, candidates went to great lengths to advertise their supported throughout their campaigns. Both President Clinton and Governor Bush halted their presidential campaigns to reject appeals to delay executions in highly publicized cases.

In California, 565 inmates await execution

In California, 565 inmates await execution on death row. Unfortunately, support for the death penalty is one of the few things that unites politicians of both political parties.

So the fact that, in the face of almost universal support among elected officials, the death penalty is slowly losing support among the public at-large is hope that the tide may be turning.

Movies such as "Dead Man Walking" and the "The Green Mile," and TV shows such as "The Practice" and "West Wing" have brought the moral complexity of the issue to a much broader audience. The courage of Illinois Governor George Ryan and the work of lawyers, journalists and students have focused attention on the fact that innocent people are on death row.

In the midst of this debate, the most persuasive and challenging voices continued to be the victims. One of the most visible is Pope John Paul II. He has never fully recovered from the gun wounds that nearly killed him. But his own attack became an example for us all when he reached out in forgiveness to his assailant and called for the abolition of the death penalty. Other victims and families are less known, but no less inspiring or heroic.

There is Bud Welch, a Texaco dealer who lost his only daughter, Julie, in the bombing that destroyed the Oklahoma City Federal Building. He turned his own anger into a search for justice and reconciliation. He was denied an opportunity to testify at Timothy McVeigh's trial because of his opposition to the death penalty—a position that Julie also shared. Undeterred, he has carried his message to hundreds of groups arguing that capital punishment only deepens the emotional wounds opened by the initial act of violence. He has met with members of the Timothy McVeigh family knowing that they also suffer terribly from their son's crime.

The witness of Pope John Paul II, Bud Welch and others strikes me as the modern day embodiment of Jesus Christ's message of hope, forgiveness and reconciliation. It is an affirmation that the answer to violence cannot be more violence.

In the Catholic Church, teaching on the death penalty has developed over time. For centuries, the Church accepted the right of the state to take a life in order to protect society. But over time and in the light of new realities, Catholic teaching now recognizes that there are non-violent means to protect society and to hold offenders accountable. Church teaching now clearly argues for the abolition of capital punishment.

In the Catechism of the Catholic Church, the conditions under which a life can be taken—even to protect the lives of others—have been narrowed significantly. Specifically, the Catechism states:

"If bloodless means are sufficient to defend human lives against an aggressor and to protect public order and the safety of persons, public authority should limit itself to such means, because they better correspond to the concrete conditions of the common good and are more in conformity to the dignity of the human person."

How do these principles that uphold human life and dignity apply to the complex matter of capital punishment? In reflecting on Catholic teaching, we must conclude that "even the most hardened criminal remains a human person, created in God's image, and possessing a dignity, value, and worth which must be recognized, promoted, safeguarded and defended." Simply put, we believe that every person is sacred, every life is preeven the life of one who has violated the rights of others by taking a life. Human dignity is not qualified by what we do. It cannot be earned or forfeited. Human dignity is an irrevocable character of each and every person.

In the last decade, the Holy Father has reminded us that the purpose of punishment should never be vengeance. Rather, it is a "condition for the offender to regain the exercise of his or her freedom. In this way authority also fulfills the purpose of defending public order and ensuring people's safety, while at the same time offering the offender an incentive and help to change his or her behavior and be rehabilitated.

The Pope states that "... the nature and extent of punishment must be carefully evaluated and decided upon, and ought not go to the extreme of executing the offender except in cases of absolute necessity; in other words, when it would not be possible otherwise to defend society." He goes on to say "... as a result of steady improvements in the organization of the penal system, such cases are very rare, if not practically non-existent."

The reality is that the penal system in the United States, perhaps better than all other countries, has the ability to permanently isolate dangerous individuals.

Now, even some death penalty supporters are becoming increasingly uncomfortable with the status quo. The arbitrary manner in which the death penalty is sometimes applied; the disproportionate number of racial and ethnic minorities and low-income persons on death row; the fiscal burdens borne by penal institutions; and, most disturbingly, the mounting evidence that innocent people have been convicted and sentenced to death—all these factors have sown considerable doubt in the minds of elected officials and the public at-large.

In many states, underfunded and overworked defense attorneys struggle to keep up with large caseloads. It is simply unacceptable that defendants charged with capital crimes should have to rely on counsel that is underfunded, inexperienced, or simply incompetent.

A wide range of voices is calling for an end to the death penalty or a moratorium on executions. Governor Ryan of Illinois, a supporter of the death penalty, suspended executions in his State until its capital punishment apparatus could be thoroughly examined. He has stated that he will reinstate the death penalty only if the commission studying the issue can provide a "100 percent guarante" that the Illinois system is flawless.

In New Hampshire, the legislature last week passed a measure to ban capital punishment only to have it vetoed by Governor Jeanne Shaheen.

And in the Supreme Court, questions have been raised again about the circumstances under which death row inmates have been tried and sentenced.

In Congress, Senator Patrick Leahy and Representatives Ray LaHood and Bill Delahunt have introduced legislation that would, among other things:

Ensure that defendants have access to exculpatory DNA evidence when available;

Require states to provide competent defense counsel; and Limit the federal government's authority to pursue the death penalty for federal crimes committed in states without capital punishment.

Senator Russell Feingold has introduced a bill to abolish the death penalty at the federal level and Representative Jesse Jackson, Jr. has joined him in introducing bills that would institute a moratorium on the use of the death penalty.

We support these and other bills that would end the death penalty or, at the very least, postpone or commute some sentences while exposing fundamental flaws in the current administration of capital punishment.

It is in this light that I have written today to Gray Davis, Governor of California, calling on him to institute a moratorium on the death penalty while the California system can be thoroughly assessed and the inequities, weaknesses, and biases in the process can be revealed fully.

All these initiatives, taken together, are signs of growing skepticism about the system under which the death penalty is currently applied. While I support these efforts, the long-term goal is not simply to make the application of the death penalty free from bias, inequity, or human error. Instead, these efforts should be steps towards a public dialogue that ultimately brings a permanent end to state executions. As the campaign to ban partial birth abortions has cast new light on the morality of abortion, these partial steps against the death penalty can create awareness of the fundamental moral problems with capital punishment. The time is right for a genuine and reasoned national dialogue.

A recently formed independent commission to study issues of procedure, innocence, and other legal aspects of the system is significant and my fellow bishop, Cardinal William Keeler of Baltimore, has agreed to serve on that commission. But we must expand the dialogue beyond the legal problems to address the moral and human dimensions of the death penalty. This dialogue should be happening not only in commissions, but also in our communities, in our churches and homes, and in newspapers and other public forums.

In the end, we are deceiving ourselves if we believe we can fix the current death penalty system to make it more humane and just. Social, political and economic factors make a complete overhaul of the system doubtful. Moral and ethical questions make such an endeavor impossible.

CONCLUSION

As we have pointed out in previous statements, the death penalty is further indication of a culture of violence that haunts our nation. Sadly, we are the most violent nation on earth not currently at war. It is reflected in our movies and music, our television and video games, in our homes, schools, and on our streets. More ominously, our society is tempted to solve some of our more significant social problems with violence. Consider this:

Abortion is promoted to deal with difficult or unwanted pregnancies.

Euthanasia and assisted suicide are suggested as a remedy for the burdens of age and illness.

Capital punishment is marketed as the answer to deal with violent crime.

A nation that destroys its young, abandons its elderly, and relies on vengeance is in serious moral trouble.

The Catholic Bishops of the United States join with Pope John Paul II in a recommitment to end the death penalty. Our faith calls us to be "unconditionally pro-life." We will work not only to proclaim our antideath position, but to persuade others that increasing reliance on capital punishment diminishes society as a whole.

In addition, we recommit to work with our community of faith to combat crime and violence, to turn our prisons from warehouses of human failure and seedbeds of violence, to places of rehabilitation and recovery. We will stand with victims of crime and seek real justice and accountability for them and their families.

Simple solutions rarely address difficult problems. What is needed is a moral revolution that results in genuine respect for every human life—especially the unborn and the poor, the crime victims and even the violent offender. In the end, our society will be measured by how we treat "the least among us." It challenges each person to defend human life in every circumstance and situation. It calls on our leaders and the media to seek the common good and not appeal to our worst instincts.

This is a time for a new ethic—justice without vengeance. Let us come together to hold people accountable for their actions, to resist and condemn violence, to stand with victims of crime and to insist that those who destroy community, answer to the community. But let us also remember that we cannot restore life by taking life, that vengeance cannot heal and that all of us must find new ways to defend human life and dignity in a far too violence society.

This will be a long struggle. It begins by raising new doubts about the death penalty. It will require new and more serious efforts to address crime and reform prisons. But in the end, we cannot practice what we condemn. We cannot defend life by taking life. We cannot contain violence by using state violence

In this new century, we join with others in taking a prophetic stand to end the death penalty. In doing so, we hope to share a new vision of society that is unambiguous and consistent in its defense of life. It will demand the courage and faith of many to see us through a long and challenging process of dialogue and conversion. It is a challenge, however, that is worth our best efforts.

Thank you.

TRIBUTE TO MIKE AND JOANNE DUNCAN

• Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I rise today to recognize Mike and Joanne Duncan of Inez, Kentucky, for the successful internship program they continue to run for students in eastern Kentucky.

Mike and his wife Joanne founded an innovative summer-internship program in 1977 with the hope of encouraging young people to continue to work and live in their home state after college. To date, more than 100 people have participated in Mike and Joanne's program and have had the opportunity to intern at local businesses or particiother leadership-building in projects around the community. This program has given students a place to exchange ideas with each other and community professionals to help them prepare for their career. It is through experiences such as these that Mike and Joanne have helped to show interns that they can make a difference in their corner of the world. The program the Duncan's have created gives students an opportunity to see firsthand what the real, working world is like in their hometown and often results in the students' desire to return home after college to share their talents and skills with the community of their vouth.

Mike and Joanne's work is known and appreciated throughout eastern Kentucky, and throughout the nation. In 1996, Mike was called the "Mentor to Eastern Kentucky," by the Journal of the Appalachian Regional Commission. Also, the Los Angeles Times once described the internship program as being "more akin to adoption." The impact of the Duncan's work reaches across county and state lines, and is surely an example for similar programs across the United States.

Mike and Joanne display an unswerving commitment to the people of Kentucky and possess the gratitude and respect of many. Their dedication to helping young Kentuckians succeed through countless hours of counseling and tutoring over the last 23 years is indeed admirable.

Congratulations, Mike and Joanne, on your tremendous success, and thank you for your many generous years of service to eastern Kentucky's youth. On behalf of myself and my colleagues in the United States Senate, thank you for giving so much of yourself for so many others.

A TRIBUTE TO HEIDI KIRK DUFFY

• Mr. REED. Mr. President, I rise today to congratulate Heidi Kirk Duffy upon her receipt of the Order of Merit of the Federal Republic of Germany, First Class.

Heidi was selected to receive the Order of Merit to recognize her "outstanding contribution to the development of academic and economic interchanges between universities and companies of the United States and the Federal Republic of Germany." The Order of Merit will be bestowed upon Heidi in particular recognition of her commitment to the cultivation of a strong relationship between the University of Rhode Island's International Engineering Program and the Federal Republic of Germany.

A native of the Dusseldorf area, Heidi is currently the Chair of the Advisory Board of the University of Rhode Island's International Engineering Program. At the conclusion of this five-year program, graduates receive two degrees, one in English and the other in German. Recently, the University of Rhode Island has also added degrees in Spanish and French. This International Engineering Program is considered to be one of the most unique programs of its kind in American higher education.

Under her direction, the University of Rhode Island's Engineering Program provides both German and American students a global education. Due to Heidi's dedication and hard work, the Program has been truly successful in strengthening a transatlantic relationship between the United States and the Federal Republic of Germany.

Heidi was notified earlier this year by the Consul General of the Federal Republic of Germany, Dr. PCHauswedell, that she had been selected to receive the Order of Merit. The Verdienstkreuz 1. Klasse Verdlenstordens der Bundesrepublik Deutschland, as it is known in German, is one of the highest honors give to civilians by the Federal Republic. She will receive the Order of Merit on Friday, August 4th at ceremonies in her honor in the Rhode Island Capital.

I congratulate Heidi for her accomplishments and wish her luck as she continues in her endeavors.●

THE BEST 100 COMMUNITIES FOR MUSIC EDUCATION IN AMERICA

• Mr. ABRAHAM. Mr. President, I rise today to recognize the Farmington Public School District of Farmington, Michigan, for its outstanding achievement in music education. It was ranked number one (along with Coppell, Texas) on the list of 100 best communities in America for school music programs. This is a very special honor which emphasizes the importance of arts education to the lives of our children.

The rankings were the result of a first-ever nationwide survey of more than 5,800 public schools and independent teachers, district administrators, school board members, parents, and community leaders representing communities in all 50 states. The webbased survey assessed many aspects of music education, such as funding, participation, student-teacher ratios, and quality of facilities. The results indicate that superior programs exist both in areas that possess a wealth of monetary and material resources, as well as in those that must rely on more innovative means of funding and implementing ambitious educational endeavors. The key element of success, found in each of the top 100 communities, is the dedication and support of parents, teachers, school decision-makers, and community leaders. This landmark survey highlights the efforts of people who truly value quality music education and strive to make it a reality for today's youth.

The partnership that sponsored the study was comprised of the country's top organizations devoted to music and learning. National School Boards Association President, Clarice Chambers, commented on the significance of the results: "We already know that students who participate in music programs tend to be high achievers. Now we can use the data generated by this survey to identify the common characteristics of exemplary music programs. This information will be invaluable to school boards and communities as they go about the work of raising student achievement in their own school districts." Scientific research has revealed the impact of music education on a child's cognitive abilities, self-discipline, communication, and teamwork skills. The self-confidence gained through artistic accomplishment encourages kids to avoid drugs and alcohol and channel their energy into positive activities. Farmington's musical education program will serve as a model for shaping young lives in school districts across the nation.

I applaud the City of Farmington for the wonderful music education program that it has established. It has truly earned its status as America's best place for music education, and I am sure will be a leader in the cultivation of musical talent for many years. On behalf of the entire United States Senate, I congratulate the City of Farmington, and wish the music education program continued success in the future.●

CONGRATULATING DR. SAMIR ABU-GHAZALEH

• Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, I rise today to recognize and congratulate Dr. Samir Abu-Ghazaleh, who has been appointed by President Clinton to the National Cancer Advisory Board. Dr. Abu-Ghazaleh is currently a gynecologic oncologist at the Avera Cancer Institute in Sioux Falls, South Dakota where he has been successfully serving the important health needs of the citizens in my home state.

Dr. Abu-Ghazaleh attended Nahara College and received a MB.B. from Ain Shams University Medical School, both in Cairo. He did his residency in OB-GYN in Yankton, South Dakota, at the University of South Dakota Affiliated Hospital, from 1972 to 1976. He also held a residency in gynecologic oncology at Duke University, from 1976 to 1978.

After finishing his schooling in medicine, Dr. Abu-Ghazaleh returned to South Dakota where he served as the Director of the OB-GYN Student Teaching Program from 1981 to 1985, and an Associate Professor from 1980 to 1985, at the University of South Dakota School of Medicine. When not practicing medicine, Dr. Abu-Ghazaleh is writing about it. He is the author of numerous articles on gynecology and oncology. The community in which he practices is important to him and he has hosted several workshops and presentations as a free service to inform the public and increase cancer awareness, particularly concerning women's health issues.

Dr. Abu-Ghazaleh is a member of the North Central Cancer Treatment Group, the Gynecologic Oncology Group, and the American College of Gynecologists. He has also been a member of the National Cancer Institute. Beginning in 1985, he has continued to serve as a Fellow of American College of Surgeons. Additionally, Dr. Abu-Ghazaleh has been a Fellow of the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists and Surgical Gynecologic Oncologists since 1980.

It is with great pride and pleasure that I rise in recognition to an outstanding health care provider, an honored member of the National Cancer Advisory Board, and a true asset to the state of South Dakota. He is a man who has dedicated his life to helping others and providing education on the serious illness of cancer. Again, congratulations to Dr. Samir Abu-Ghazaleh. I trust the Advisory Board will find him a valuable asset and a skilled advisor.

A TRIBUTE TO FRANCIS SCOTT KEY ON THE OCCASION OF HIS BIRTHDAY, AUGUST 1, 1779

Doris of Warwick, RI, has written a beautiful poem that commemorates the life of Francis Scott Key, and his steadfast efforts in penning what has become the words of our National Anthem. Last year I was pleased to share with my colleagues a poem she wrote about the valiant soldiers of World War II. Today, after reading her latest poem, I thought it would be appropriate to share her heartfelt words.

Virginia Doris has informed me that she has worked for many years researching the life of Francis Scott Key, and has written a monograph compiling her findings. Her dedication to bringing recognition to this great American is indeed inspiring. I thank her for sharing the poem with me, and wish her continued success in sharing the worthy story of her hero, Francis Scott Key.

I ask that a copy of Virginia Doris' poem appear at this point in the RECORD.

The poem follows:

POEM IN HONOR OF FRANCIS SCOTT KEY (By Virginia Louise Doris)

Anthem, Mighty Anthem! Our voices resound,

Poem by God's blessing, unsceptered, uncrowned!

Anthem, Sacred Anthem! Our pulses repeat, Warm with the life-blood, as long as they beat!

Listen! The reverence of his soul imbued doth thrill us still,

In the old familiar places beneath their emerald hill.

Here at this altar our vows we renew still in thy cause be loyal and true— True to thy flag on the field, and the wave,

True to thy flag on the field, and the wave living to honor it, dying to save!

Wake in our breast the living fires,

the Holy faith that warmed our sires, Thy spirit shed through every heart, to every arm thy strength impart!

Our lips should fill the air with praises, and pay the debt we owe,

So high above his hymn we raise the floods of garlands flow.

Harken! The reverence of his soul imbued doth thrill us still.

In the old familiar places beneath their emerald hill.

Anthem, Mighty Anthem! our voices resound,

Poem by God's blessing unsceptered uncrowned!

Anthem, Sacred Anthem! our pulses repeat, Warm with the life-blood, as long as they beat!●

TRIBUTE TO RICHARD CYR—JAC-QUELINE KENNEDY ONASSIS AWARD WINNER

• Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to Richard Cyr upon receiving the Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis Award for outstanding public service.

In a time where random acts of kindness seem to be waning, Richard has proven that kind souls are still in abundance. He has established one of the most important volunteer efforts in the state, if not the country. Richard formed David's House, a program for the parents of sick children that provides much-needed support and love during critical times of treatment programs. It is this tireless dedication to helping others that garnered Richard a national award for this efforts.

Richard understood how difficult it was for families of sick children to remain close to their loved ones without having to add hotel costs to the growing number of bills. He was in the same situation himself when his foster child, David, became ill with acute lymphocytic leukemia. Richard spent countless nights sleeping in his car or in the hospital lobby to be closer to his child. After David's death, he decided that a safe refuge for families was necessary during illness.

David's House gives parents the ability to concentrate on their children without worrying about where to sleep, eat or shower during hospital visits. The House is staffed entirely by volunteers and receives donations from private sources. After fifteen years of operation, David's House has assisted hundreds of families and eased the pain of coping with illness. Such stability and growth is a testament of the true importance and need for institutions like David's House.

Richard's dedication to helping others in a grave time of need is truly inspirational. It is an honor to represent him in the United States Senate.●

She truly enjoys volunteering and cites her love of children as the driving force behind her efforts.

Mary's work is truly inspirational and typifies what is good about American citizens today. Without the help of dedicated volunteers, our schools would not be able to run smoothly, and it is the children who ultimately would suffer. It is truly an honor to represent her in the U.S. Senate.

TRIBUTE TO McLANE, GRAF, RAULERSON AND MIDDLETON—NH BUSINESS IN THE ARTS AWARD WINNER

• Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to McLane, Graf, Raulerson and Middleton upon their recognition as a 2000 New Hampshire "Business in the Arts" award winner in the medium-sized company category.

The firm has been a long time contributor to the development of the arts in New Hampshire. They not only donate time and money to various arts events, but they have established themselves on numerous boards and sponsorships and are well-known for distributing complimentary tickets to clients and friends. This extensive sponsorship of different arts programs is carried out on a more personal level by the firm's employees, whose individual contributions of time and money make a significant impact on the organizations they support.

The firm has placed a considerable interest in promoting musical events throughout the State, and avidly supports the Opera League of New Hampshire, the New Hampshire Symphony Orchestra, the Portsmouth Music Hall, the Concord Community Music School and the Nashua Symphony, to name a few. Their list of achievements stretches even further to other venues of the arts as well, such as the Palace Theater in Manchester, the Currier Gallery of Art and Strawbery Banke, a historical site in Portsmouth.

This strong commitment by the firm to providing the opportunity for arts programs to come to the State is truly commendable. The firm understands the true importance of the arts in communities, and without their generous support, these programs would not be possible. The firm has taken on new projects, most notably a year 2000 celebration with cultural activities such as a Black Heritage Trail and a YMCA art auction. These sort of events enrich the lives of the entire community and prove that private businesses can indeed make a huge impact on bringing the arts to all citizens. It is an honor to serve the firm and its employees in the U.S. Senate.

• Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I rise today to honor a young woman who has given selflessly to her community, inspired her peers and has been chosen to represent the great state of New Hampshire in the Miss America pageant in 2000, Lauren Jennifer Meehan.

Despite a double major and challenging courses, Lauren finds time for her singing passion, performing with the All-State Classical Choir for the past 3 years, and she gives back to the surrounding community through her involvement as a kindergarten catechism teacher at St. Thomas Moore Parish, as well as a Wentworth Douglas Emergency Room volunteer.

Her platform of attachment and adjustment disorders in children is especially poignant in an age where violence and mental disturbance with America's youth is all too common. Her dreams of entering the field of Pediatric Neurology will surely allow her to further research this field of study.

Lauren is an excellent student who cares about her community and the state. Her talents, hard work and dedication are truly commendable, and it is an honor to represent her in the U.S. Senate.

TRIBUTE TO THE MOUNT WASHINGTON HOTEL AND RESORT

• Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I rise today to honor the Mount Washington Hotel and Resort for their designation as one of the Businesses of the Decade by Business New Hampshire Magazine.

For the past ten years, under the direction of partners Joel and Cathy Bedard, the Mount Washington Hotel and Resort has become a cornerstone of the White Mountain Community, providing not only a place for the people of New Hampshire to rest and relax, but giving back to the surrounding community as well.

The Mount Washington Hotel and Resort had not been locally owned until 1991, after several failed business ventures attempted to capitalize on the property. The hard work and dedication of each individual who worked on renovating and revitalizing the hotel is truly commendable. As a result, the Mount Washington Hotel and Resort was saved from demolition and currently thrives as one of New Hampshire's greatest treasures.

The Mount Washington Hotel and Resort is the largest employer in the local economy, providing 450 jobs in the summer months and 550 throughout the winter season. They are also an active member of their community, lending their support to programs such as New Hampshire Public Television, the Littleton Regional Hospital Auxiliary and other worthy programs and causes.

The Mount Washington Hotel and Resort is a true friend to the people of New Hampshire. Their efforts over the past ten years are truly commendable, and it is an honor to represent them in the United States Senate.

TRIBUTE TO OLDE PORT BANK— NH BUSINESS IN THE ARTS AWARD WINNER

• Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to Olde Port Bank for its recognition as a 2000 New Hampshire "Business in the Arts" award winner in the small company category.

Olde Port Bank proves that time and money are not the only key factors necessary for the successful continuation of arts programs. They have provided exhibit space in its offices and lobbies and promoted the activities of employees and customers who are artists as well. It is this sort of personal attention and support that make various programs available to the local community. The bank also understands the importance of a strong financial backbone, and helps to secure loans and credit lines so that the arts can remain part of the seacoast community.

The Children's Museum of Portsmouth is one such grateful recipient of Olde Port Bank's efforts. The bank has given generous financial support for an endowment fund to the museum and established corporate membership and sponsorship. Bank employees spend countless hours assisting the museum in many of its events and activities. TRIBUTE TO LILLIAN NOEL—PAUL HARRIS FELLOW AWARD WINNER

• Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to Lillian "Billie" Noel for her recognition as the Portsmouth Rotary Club's "Paul Harris Fellow" award winner.

Billie's deep commitment to preserving New Hampshire's precious woodlands is truly commendable. Instead of selling 35 acres of land to developers, Billie sold it at a reduced price to preservationists, ensuring the land will remain untouched for a long time. It is because of her dedication to assuring the future of New Hampshire's forests that she was honored by the Portsmouth Rotary Club in option for preservation over profit.

Billie made the decision to sell her property for $600,000 to the Society for the Protection of New Hampshire's Forests, even though it is worth three times that amount. This generous sale will ensure that the scenic waterfront property is not touched by developers. One of the last remaining undeveloped pieces of land in the fast-growing seacoast area, residents would have lost a treasured piece of their New Hampshire heritage had it been sold to developers. The Society plans to add walking paths and areas to picnic and bird watch, preserving the land's charm and scenic appeal. Billie's contribution to New Hampshire's citizens proves that there are still people dedicated to saving nature's delicacy rather than making a mere profit. It is this type of private initiative which keeps New Hampshire as the beautiful "Live Free or Die" state.

New Hampshire is lucky to have citizens like Billie who are committed to saving our state's beautiful lands. Our state's scenic areas are too precious to lose and I commend Billie for her hard work and dedication to the environment. It is an honor to represent Billie in the United States Senate.●

The "Frank Rowe Kenison" award was established to recognize those individuals who, through the administration of justice, the legal profession or the advancement of legal thought, have worked towards improving the lives of New Hampshire citizens.

Susan has bettered the life of hundreds if not thousands of New Hampshire citizens through her pursuit of justice. Her personal and professional journeys have inspired her to seek an end to family violence.

As president of the New Hampshire Bar Association, Susan was instrumental in establishing the Family Violence Conference. She has also served as a member of the Executive Committee for the Governor's Commission on Domestic & Sexual Violence and a trustee for the National Council of Juvenile and Family Court Judges. This involvement has allowed her to combat domestic violence on a national level.

Susan's tireless dedication to domestic violence prevention is a testament to the philosophy of Frank Rowe Kenison, who stated "The Supreme Court and the Judiciary of this State will continue to maintain and guard its house justice for the humble as well as the powerful, for the poor as well as the rich, for the minority as well as the majority and for the unpopular as well as the popular."

In her many years in the legal profession, Susan Carbon has carried out Rowe's vision of justice. She has turned to the most sacred and powerful groups within society and the family in order to ensure that each individual is able to live without the fear of impending violence.

Susan's dedication to her profession, ending domestic violence and to her surrounding community is remarkable. It is both an honor and a great pleasure to represent her in the United States Senate.

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Mr. BREAUX:

S. 2944. A bill to clarify that certain penalties provided for in the Oil Pollution Act of 1990 are the exclusive criminal penalties for any action or activity that may arise or occur in connection with certain discharges of oil or a hazardous substance; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

STRICT CRIMINAL LIABILITY REFORM FOR OIL SPILL INCIDENTS

Mr. BREAUX. Mr. President, I am pleased to introduce legislation to address a long-standing problem which adversely affects the safe and reliable maritime transport of oil products. The legislation I am introducing today will eliminate the application and use of strict criminal liability statutes, statutes that do not require a showing of criminal intent or even the slightest degree of negligence, for maritime transportation-related oil spill incidents.

Congres-Through comprehensive sional action that led to the enactment and implementation of the Oil Pollution Act of 1990, commonly referred to as "OPA90", the United States has successfully reduced the number of oil spills in the maritime environment and has established a cooperative public/ private partnership to respond effectively in the diminishing number of situations when an oil spill occurs. Nonetheless, over the past decade, the use of the unrelated strict criminal liability statutes that I referred to above has undermined the spill prevention and response objectives of OPA90, the very objectives that were established by the Congress to preserve the environment, safeguard the public welfare, and promote the safe transportation of oil. The legislation I am introducing today will restore the delicate balance of interests reached in OPA90, and will reaffirm OPA90's preeminent role as the statute providing the exclusive criminal penalties for oil spill incidents.

As stated in the Coast Guard's own environmental enforcement directive, a company, its officers, employees, and mariners, in the event of an oil spill "could be convicted and sentenced to a criminal fine even where [they] took all reasonable precautions to avoid the discharge". Accordingly, responsible operators in my home state of Louisiana and elsewhere in the United States who transport oil are unavoidably exposed to potentially immeasurable criminal fines and, in the worst case scenario, jail time. Not only is this situation unfairly targeting an industry that plays an extremely important role in our national economy, but it also works contrary to the public welfare.

Most liquid cargo transportation companies on the coastal and inland waterway system of the United States have embraced safe operation and risk management as two of their most important and fundamental values. For example, members of the American Waterways Operators (AWO) from Louisiana and other states have implemented stronger safety programs that have significantly reduced personal injuries to mariners. Tank barge fleets have been upgraded through construction of new state-of-the-art double hulled tank barges while obsolete single skin barges are being retired far in advance of the OPA90 timetable. Additionally, AWO members have dedicated significant time and financial resources to provide continuous and comprehensive education and training for vessel captains, crews and shoreside staff, not only in the operation of vessels but also in preparation for all contingencies that could occur in the transportation of oil products. This commitment to marine safety and environmental protection by responsible members of the oil transportation industry is real. The industry continues to work closely with the Coast Guard to upgrade regulatory standards in such kev areas as towing vessel operator qualifications and navigation equipment on towing vessels.

Through the efforts of AWO and other organizations, the maritime transportation industry has achieved an outstanding compliance record with the numerous laws and regulations enforced by the Coast Guard. Let me be clear: responsible carriers, and frankly their customers, have a "zero tolerance" policy for oil spills. Additionally, the industry is taking spill response preparedness seriously. Industry representatives and operators routinely participate in Coast Guard oil spill crisis management courses, PREP Drills, and regional spill response drills. Yet despite all of the modernization, safety, and training efforts of the marine transportation industry, their mariners and shoreside employees cannot escape the threat of criminal liability in the event of an oil spill, even where it is shown that they "took all reasonable precautions to avoid [a] discharge".

As you know, in response to the tragic Exxon Valdez spill, Congress enacted OPA90. OPA90 mandated new, comprehensive, and complex regulatory and enforcement requirements for the transportation of oil products and for oil spill response. Both the federal government and maritime industry have worked hard to accomplish the legislation's primary objective—to provide greater environmental safeguards in oil transportation by creating a comprehensive prevention, response, liability, and compensation regime to deal with vessel and facility oil pollution. And OPA90 is working in a truly meaningful sense. To prevent oil spill incidents from occurring in the first place, OPA90 provides an enormously powerful deterrent, through both its criminal and civil liability provisions. Moreover, OPA90 mandates prompt reporting of spills, contingency planning, and both cooperation and coordination with federal, state, and local authorities in connection with managing the spill response. Failure to report and cooperate as required by OPA90 may impose automatic civil penalties, criminal liability and unlimited civil liability. As a result, the number of domestic oil spills has been dramatically reduced over the past decade since OPA90 was enacted. In those limited situations in which oil spills unfortunately occurred, intensive efforts commenced immediately with federal, state and local officials working in a joint, unified manner with the industry, as contemplated by OPA90, to clean up and report spills as quickly as possible and to mitigate to the greatest extent any impact on the environment. OPA90 has provided a comprehensive and cohesive "blueprint" for proper planning, training, and resource identification to respond to an oil spill incident, and to ensure that such a response is properly and cooperatively managed.

OPA90 also provides a complete statutory framework for proceeding against individuals for civil and/or criminal penalties arising out of oil spills in the marine environment. When Congress crafted this Act, it carefully balanced the imposition of stronger criminal and civil penalties with the need to promote enhanced cooperation among all of the parties involved in the spill prevention and response effort. In so doing, the Congress clearly enumerated the circumstances in which criminal penalties could be imposed for actions related to maritime oil spills, and added and/or substantially increased criminal penalties under the related laws which comprehensively govern the maritime transportation of oil and other petroleum products.

The legislation we are introducing today will not change in any way the tough criminal sanctions that were imposed in OPA90. However, responsible, law-abiding members of the maritime industry in Louisiana and elsewhere are concerned by the willingness of the Department of Justice and other federal agencies in the post-OPA90 environment to use strict criminal liability statutes in oil spill incidents. As you know, strict liability imposes criminal sanctions without requiring a showing of criminal knowledge, intent or even negligence. These federal actions imposing strict liability have created an atmosphere of extreme uncertainty for the maritime transportation industry about how to respond to and cooperate with the Coast Guard and other federal agencies in cleaning up an oil spill. Criminal culpability in this country, both historically and as reflected in the comprehensive OPA90 legislation itself, typically requires wrongful actions or omissions by individuals through some degree of criminal intent or through the failure to use the required standard of care. However, Federal prosecutors have been employing other antiquated, seemingly unrelated 'strict liability' statutes that do not require a showing of "knowledge" "intent" as a basis for criminal prosecution for oil spill incidents. Such strict criminal liability statutes as the Migratory Bird Treaty Act and the Refuse Act, statutes that were enacted at the turn of the century to serve other purposes, have been used to harass and intimidate the maritime industry, and, in effect, have turned every oil spill into a potential crime scene without regard to the fault or intent of companies, corporate officers and employees, and mariners.

The Migratory Bird Treaty Act (MBTA) (16 U.S.C. 703 et seq.) provides that "it shall be unlawful at any time, by any means or in any manner, to pursue, hunt, take, capture, kill, attempt to take, capture, or kill, . . . any migratory bird a violation of which is punishable by imprisonment and/or fines. Prior to the Exxon Valdez oil spill in 1989, the MBTA was primarily used to prosecute the illegal activities of hunters and capturers of migratory birds, as the Congress originally intended when it enacted the MBTA in 1918. In the Exxon Valdez case itself, and prior to the enactment of OPA90, the MBTA was first used to support a criminal prosecution against a vessel owner in relation to a maritime oil spill, and this "hunting statute" has been used ever since against the maritime industry. The "Refuse Act" (33 U.S.C. 407, 411) was enacted over 100 years ago at a time well before subsequent federal legislation essentially replaced it with comprehensive requirements and regulations specifically directed to the maritime transportation of oil and other petroleum products. Such strict liability statutes are unrelated to the regulation and enforcement of oil transportation activities, and in fact were not included within the comprehensive OPA90 legislation as statutes in which criminal liability could be found. With the prosecutorial use of strict liability statutes, owners and mariners engaged in the transportation of oil cannot avoid exposure to criminal liability, regardless of how diligently they adhere to prudent practice and safe environmental standards. Although conscientious safety and training programs, state-of-the-art equipment, proper operational procedures, preventative maintenance programs, and the employment of qualified and experienced personnel will collectively prevent most oil spills from occurring, unfortunately spills will still occur on occasion.

To illustrate this point, please permit me to present a scenario that highlights the dilemma faced by the maritime oil transportation industry in Louisiana. Imagine, if you will, that a company is operating a towing vessel in compliance with Coast Guard regulations on the Mississippi River on a calm, clear day with several fully laden tank barges in tow. Suddenly, in what was charted and previously identified to be a clear portion of the waterway, one of the tank barges strikes an unknown submerged object which shears through its hull and causes a significant oil spill in the river. Unfortunately, in addition to any other environmental damage that may occur, the oil spill kills one or more migratory birds. As you know, under OPA90 the operator must immediately undertake coordinated spill response actions with the Coast Guard and other federal, state, and local agencies to safeguard the vessel and its crew, clean up the oil spill, and otherwise mitigate any damage to the surrounding environment. The overriding objectives at this critical moment are to assure personnel and public safety and to clean up the oil spill as quickly as possible without constraint. However, in the current atmosphere the operator must take into consideration the threat of strict criminal liability under the Migratory Bird Treaty Act and the Refuse Act. together with their attendant imprisonment and fines, despite the reasonable care and precautions taken in the operation and navigation of the tow and in the spill response effort. Indeed, in the Coast Guard's own environmental enforcement directive, the statement is made that "[t]he decision to commit the necessary Coast Guard resources to obtain the evidence that will support a criminal prosecution must often be made in the very early stages of a pollution incident." Any prudent operator will quickly recognize the dilemma in complying with the mandate to act cooperatively with all appropriate public agencies in cleaning up the oil spill, while at the same time those very agencies may be conducting a criminal investigation of that operator. Vessel owners and their employees who have complied with federal laws and regulations and have exercised all reasonable care should not continue to face a substantial risk of imprisonment and criminal fines under such strict liability statutes. Criminal liability, when appropriately imposed under OPA90, should be employed only where a discharge is caused by conduct which is truly "criminal" in nature, i.e., where a discharge is caused by reckless, intentional or other conduct deemed criminal by OPA90.

As this scenario demonstrates, the unjustified use of strict liability statutes is plainly undermining the very objectives which OPA90 sought to achieve, namely to enhance the prevention of and response to oil spills in Louisiana and elsewhere in the United States. As we are well aware, tremendous time, effort, and resources have been expended by both the federal government and the maritime industry to eliminate oil spills to the maximum extent possible, and to plan for and undertake an immediate and effective response to mitigate any environmental damage from spills that do occur. Clearly unwarranted and improper prosecutorial use of strict liability statutes is having a "chilling" effect on these cooperative spill prevention and response efforts. Indeed, even if we were to believe that criminal prosecution only follows intentional criminal conduct, the mere fact that strict criminal liability statutes are available at the prosecutor's discretion will intimidate even the most innocent and careful operator. With strict liability criminal enforcement, responsible members of the maritime transportation industry are faced with an extreme dilemma in the event of an oil spill—provide less than full cooperation and response as criminal defense attorneys will certainly direct, or cooperate fully despite the risk of criminal prosecution that could result from any additional actions or statements made during the course of the spill response. Consequently, increased criminalization of oil spill incidents introduces uncertainty into the response effort by discouraging full and open communication and cooperation, and leaves vessel owners and operators criminally vulnerable for response actions taken in an effort to "do the right thing".

In the maritime industry's continuing effort to improve its risk management process, it seeks to identify and address all foreseeable risks associated with the operation of its business. Through fleet modernization, personnel training, and all other reasonable steps to address identified risks in its business, the industry still cannot manage or avoid the increased risks of strict criminal liability (again, a liability that has no regard to fault or intent). The only method available to companies and their officers to avoid the risk of criminal liability completely is to divest themselves from the maritime business of transporting oil and other petroleum products, in effect to get out of the business altogether. Furthermore, strict liability criminal laws provide a strong disincentive for trained, highly experienced mariners to continue the operation of tank vessels, and for talented and capable individuals from even entering into that maritime trade. An earlier editorial highlighted the fact that tugboat captains "are reporting feelings of intense relief and lightening of their spirits when they are ordered to push a cargo of grain or other dry cargo, as compared to the apprehension they feel when they are staring out of their wheelhouses at tank barges", and "that the reason for this is very obvious in the way that they find themselves instantly facing criminal charges . . . in the event of a collision or grounding and oil or chemicals end up in the water". Certainly, the federal government does not want to create a situation where the least experienced mariners are the only available crew to handle the most hazardous cargoes, or the least responsible operators are the only available carriers. Thus, the unavoidable risk of such criminal liability directly and adversely affects the safe transportation of oil products, an activity essential for the public, the economy, and the nation.

Therefore, despite the commitment and effort to provide trained and experienced vessel operators and employees, to comply with all safety and operational mandates of Coast Guard laws and regulations, and to provide for the safe transportation of oil as required by OPA90, maritime transportation companies in Louisiana, and elsewhere still cannot avoid criminal liability in the event of an oil spill. Responsible, law-abiding companies have unfortunately been forced to undertake the only prudent action that they could under the circumstances, namely the development of criminal liability action plans and retention of criminal counsel in an attempt to prepare for the unavoidable risks of such liability.

These are only preliminary steps and do not begin to address the many implications of the increasing criminalization of oil spills. The industry is now asking what responsibility does it have to educate its mariners and shoreside staff about the potential personal exposure they may face and wonder how to do this without creating many undesirable consequences? How should the industry organize spill management teams and educate them on how to cooperate openly and avoid unwitting exposure to criminal liability? Mr. President, I have thought about these issues a great deal and simply do not know how to resolve these dilemmas under current, strict liability law. In the event of an oil spill, a responsible party not only must manage the cleanup of the oil and the civil liability resulting from the spill itself, but also must protect itself from the criminal liability that now exists due to the available and willing use of strict liability criminal laws by the federal government. Managing the pervasive threat of strict criminal liability, by its very nature, prevents a responsible party from cooperating fully and completely in response to an oil spill situation. The OPA90 "blueprint" is no longer clear. Is this serving the objectives of OPA90? Does this really serve the public welfare of our nation? Is this what Congress had in mind when it mandated its spill response regime? Is this in the interest of the most immediate, most effective oil spill cleanup in the unfortunate event of a spill? We think not.

To restore the delicate balance of interests reached in the enactment of OPA90 a decade ago, we intend to work with the Congress to reaffirm the OPA90 framework for criminal prosecutions in oil spill incidents. The enactment of the legislation we are introducing today will ensure increased cooperation and responsiveness desired by all those interested in oil spill response issues without diluting the deterrent effect and stringent criminal penalties imposed by OPA90 itself.

I look forward to continuing the effort to upgrade the safety of marine operations in the navigable waterways of the United States, and I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2944

By Mr. KENNEDY (for himself, Mr. TORRICELLI and Mr. HAR-KIN):

S. 2946. A bill to amend title I of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 to ensure that employees are not improperly disqualified from benefits under pension plans and welfare plans based on a miscategorization of their employee status; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

EMPLOYEE BENEFITS ELIGIBILITY FAIRNESS ACT OF 2000

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, contingent workers in our society face significant problems, and they deserve our help in meeting them. These men and women—temporary and part-time workers, contract workers, and independent contractors—continue to suffer unfairly, even in our prosperous economy. A new report from the General Accounting Office emphasizes that contingent workers often lack income security and retirement security.

We know that for most workers today, a single lifetime job is a relic of the past. The world is long gone in which workers stay with their employer for many years, and then retire on a company pension. Since 1982 the number of temporary help jobs has grown 577 percent.

The GAO report shows that 30 percent of the workforce—39 million working Americans—now get their paychecks from contingent jobs.

Contingent workers have lower incomes than traditional, full-time workers and many are living in poverty. For example, 30 percent of agency temporary workers have family incomes below $15,000. By comparison, only 8 percent of standard full-time workers have family incomes below $15,000.

Contingent workers are less likely to be covered by employer health and retirement benefits than are standard, full-time workers. Even when employers do sponsor a plan, contingent workers are less likely to participate in the plan, either because they are excluded or because the plan is too expensive. Only 21 percent of part-time workers are included in an employer-sponsored pension plan. By comparison, 64 percent of standard full-time workers are included in their employer's pension plan.

Non-standard or alternative work arrangements can meet the needs of working families and employers alike, but these arrangements should not be used to divide the workforce into "haves" and "have-nots." Flexible work arrangements, for example, can give working parents more time to care for their children, but many workers are not in their contingent jobs by choice. More than half of temporary workers would prefer a permanent job instead of their contingent job, but temporary work is all they can find.

As the GAO report makes clear, employers have economic incentives to cut costs by miscategorizing their workers as temporary or contract workers. Too often, contingent arrangements are set-up by employers for the purpose of excluding workers from their employee benefit programs and evading their responsibilities to their workers. Millions of employees have been miscategorized by their employers, and as a result they have been denied the benefits and protections that they rightly deserve and worked hard to earn

All workers deserve a secure retirement at the end of their working years. Social Security has been and will continue to be the best foundation for that security. But the foundation is just that—the beginning of our responsibility, not the end of it. We cannot expect Americans to work hard all their lives, only to face poverty and hard times when they retire.

That is why I am introducing, with Senators Torricelli and Harkin, the Employee Benefits Eligibility Fairness Act of 2000 to help contingent workers obtain the retirement benefits they deserve. This legislation clarifies employers' responsibilities under the law so that they cannot exclude contingent workers from employee benefit plans based on artificial labels or payroll practices.

This is an issue of basic fairness for working men and women. It is unfair for individuals who work full-time, on an indefinite long-term basis for an employer to be excluded from the employer's pension plan, merely because the employer classifies the workers as "temporary" when in fact they are not. The employer-employee relationship should be determined on the facts of the working arrangement, not on artificial labels, not on artificial accounting practices, not artificial payroll practices.

It is long past time for Congress to recognize the plight of contingent workers and see that they get the employee benefits they deserve. These important changes are critical to improving the security of working families, and I look forward to their enactment.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2946

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Employee Benefits Eligibility Fairness Act of 2000".

SEC. 2. FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.

- (a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:
- (1) The intent of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 to protect the pension and welfare benefits of workers is frustrated by the practice of mislabeling employees to improperly exclude them from employee benefit plans. Employees are wrongly denied benefits when they are mislabeled as temporary employees, part-time employees, leased employees, agency employees, staffing firm employees, and contractors. If their true employment status were recognized, mislabeled employees would be eligible to participate in employee benefit plans because such plans are offered to other employees performing the same or substantially the same work and working for the same employer.
- (2) Mislabeled employees are often paid through staffing, temporary, employee leasing, or other similar firms to give the appearance that the employees do not work for their worksite employer. Employment contracts and reports to government agencies also are used to give the erroneous impression that mislabeled employees work for staffing, temporary, employee leasing, or other similar firms, when the facts of the work arrangement do not meet the common law standard for determining the employment relationship. Employees are also mislabeled as contractors and paid from nonpayroll accounts to give the appearance that they are not employees of their worksite employer. These practices violate the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974.
- (3) Employers are amending their benefit plans to add provisions that exclude mislabeled employees from participation in the plan even in the event that such employees are determined to be common law employees and otherwise eligible to participate in the plan. These plan provisions violate the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974
- (4) As a condition of employment or continued employment, mislabeled employees are often required to sign documents that purport to waive their right to participate in employee benefit plans. Such documents inaccurately claim to limit the authority of the courts and applicable Federal agencies to correct the mislabeling of employees and to enforce the terms of plans providing for their participation. This practice violates the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974.
- (b) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this Act is to clarify applicable provisions of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 to ensure that employees are not improperly excluded from participation in employee benefit plans as a result of mislabeling of their employment status.

SEC. 3. ADDITIONAL STANDARDS RELATING TO MINIMUM PARTICIPATION REQUIREMENTS.

- (a) REQUIRED INCLUSION OF SERVICE.—Section 202(a)(3) of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (29 U.S.C. 1052(a)(3)) is amended by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:
- "(E) For purposes of this section, in determining 'years of service' and 'hours of service', service shall include all service for the employer as an employee under the common law, irrespective of whether the worker—
- "(i) is paid through a staffing firm, temporary help firm, payroll agency, employment agency, or other such similar arrangement.
- "(ii) is paid directly by the employer under an arrangement purporting to characterize an employee under the common law as other than an employee, or
- "(iii) is paid from an account not designated as a payroll account."
- (b) EXCLUSION PRECLUDED WHEN RELATED TO CERTAIN PURPORTED CATEGORIZATIONS.—Section 202 of such Act (29 U.S.C. 1052) is amended further by adding at the end the following new subsection:
- "(c)(1) Subject to paragraph (2), a pension plan shall be treated as failing to meet the requirements of this section if any individual who—
- "(A) is an employee under the common law, and
- "(B) performs the same work (or substantially the same work) for the employer as other employees who generally are not excluded from participation in the plan,
- is excluded from participation in the plan, irrespective of the placement of such employee in any category of workers (such as temporary employees, part-time employees, leased employees, agency employees, staffing firm employees, contractors, or any similar category) which may be specified under the plan as ineligible for participation.
- "(2) Nothing in paragraph (1) shall be construed to preclude the exclusion from participation in a pension plan of individuals who in fact do not meet a minimum service period or minimum age which is required under the terms of the plan and which is otherwise in conformity with the requirements of this section."

SEC. 4. WAIVERS OF PARTICIPATION INEFFECTIVE IF RELATED TO MISCATEGORIZATION OF EMPLOYEE.

Section 202 of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (29 U.S.C. 1052) (as amended by section 3) is amended further by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(d) Any waiver or purported waiver by an employee of participation in a pension plan or welfare plan shall be ineffective if related, in whole or in part, to the a miscategorization of the employee in 1 or more ineligible plan categories."

SEC. 5. OBJECTIVE ELIGIBILITY CRITERIA IN PLAN INSTRUMENTS.

Section 402 of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (29 U.S.C. 1102) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

- "(c)(1) The written instrument pursuant to which an employee benefit plan is maintained shall set forth eligibility criteria which—
- "(A) include and exclude employees on a uniform basis;
- "(B) are based on reasonable job classifications; and

- "(C) are based on objective criteria stated in the instrument itself for the inclusion or exclusion (other than the mere listing of an employee as included or excluded).
- "(2) No plan instrument may permit an employer or plan sponsor to exclude an employee under the common law from participation irrespective of the placement of such employee in any category of workers (such as temporary employees, leased employees, agency employees, staffing firm employees, contractors, or any similar category) if the employee—
- "(A) is an employee of the employer under the common law.
- "(B) performs the same work (or substantially the same work) for the employer as other employees who generally are not excluded from participation in the plan, and
- "(C) meets a minimum service period or minimum age which is required under the terms of the plan."

SEC. 6. ENFORCEMENT.

Section 502(a)(3)(B) of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (29 U.S.C. 1132(a)(3)(B)) is amended—

- (1) by striking "or" in clause (i) and inserting a comma.
- (2) by striking the semicolon at the end of clause (ii) and inserting ", or", and
- (3) by adding at the end the following: "(iii) to provide relief to employees who have been miscategorized in violation of sections 202 and 402;".

SEC. 7. EFFECTIVE DATE.

The amendments made by this Act shall apply with respect to plan years beginning on or after the date of the enactment of this Act.

By Mr. CAMPBELL:

S. 2950. A bill to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to establish the Sand Creek Massacre Historic Site in the State of Colorado; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

INTRODUCTION OF LEGISLATION TO CREATE THE SAND CREEK NATIONAL HISTORIC SITE

Mr. CAMPBELL. Mr. President, today I introduce the Sand Creek Massacre National Historic Site Establishment Act of 2000, legislation which will finally recognize and memorialize the hallowed ground on which hundreds of peaceful Cheyenne and Arapaho Indians were massacred by members of the Colorado Militia.

The legislation I introduce today follows The Sand Creek Massacre Historic Site Study Act of 1998, legislation I introduced and Congress approved to study the suitability of creating an enduring memorial to the slain innocents who were camped peacefully near Sand Creek, in Kiowa County, in Colorado on November 28, 1868.

Much has been written about the horrors visited upon the plains Indians in the territories of the Western United States in the latter half of the 19th century. However, what has been lost for more than a century is a comprehensive understanding of the events of that day in a grove of cottonwood trees along Sand Creek now SE Colorado. In some cases denial of the events of the day or a sense that "the Indians had it coming" has prevailed.

This legislation finally recognizes a shameful event in our country's history based on scientific studies, and makes it clear America has the strength and resolve to face its past and learn the painful lessons that come with intolerance.

The indisputable facts are these: 700 members of the Colorado Militia, commanded by Colonel John Chivington struck at dawn that November day, attacking a camp of Cheyenne and Arapaho Indians settled under the U.S. Flag and a white flag which the Indian Chiefs Black Kettle and White Antelope were told by the U.S. would protect them from military attack.

By day's end, almost 150 Indians, many of them women, children and the elderly, lay dead. Chivington's men reportedly desecrated the bodies of the dead after the massacre, and newspaper reports from Denver at the time told of the troops displaying Indian body parts in a gruesome display as they rode through the streets of Colorado's largest city following the attack.

The perpetrators of this horrible attack which left Indian women and even babies dead, were never brought to justice even after a congressional investigation concerning this brutality.

The legislation I introduce today authorizes the National Park Service to enter into negotiations with willing sellers only, in an attempt to secure property inside a boundary which encompasses approximately 12,470 acres as identified by the National Park Service, for a lasting memorial to events of that fateful day.

This legislation has been developed over the course of the last 18 months. It represents a remarkable effort which brought divergent points of view together to define the events of that day and to plan for the future protection of this site. The National Park Service, with the cooperation of the Kiowa County Commissioners, the Cheyenne and Arapaho Tribes of Oklahoma, the Northern Cheyenne Tribe and the Northern Arapaho Tribe, the State of Colorado and many local landowners and volunteers have completed extensive cultural, geomorphological and physical studies of the area where the massacre occurred.

All of those involved in this project agree, not acting now is not a option. This legislation does not compel any private property owner to sell his or her property to the federal government. It allows the National Park Service to negotiate with willing sellers to secure property at fair market value, for a national memorial. This process could take years. However, several willing sellers have come forward and are willing to negotiate with the NPS. The property they own has been identified by the NPS as suitable for a memorial. Additional acquisitions of property from willing sellers could come in the future. However, the Sand Creek National Historic Site could never extend beyond the 12,470 acres identified by the site resource study already completed.

This legislation has come to being because all of those involved have exhibited an extraordinary ability to put aside their differences, look with equal measure at the scientific evidence and the oral traditions of the Tribes, and come up with a plan that equally honors the memory of those killed and the rights of the private property owners who have been faithful and responsible stewards of this site. We have a window of opportunity here that will not always be available. I encourage my colleagues to respect the memory of those so brutally killed and support the creation of a National Historic Site on this hallowed ground in Kiowa County, in Colorado.

I ask unanimous consent that the bill and other research material associated with the studies of the Sand Creek site be printed in the RECORD for my colleagues or the public to review.

By Mr. TORRICELLI:

S. 2953. A bill to amend title 38, United States Code, to improve outreach programs carried out by the Department of Veterans Affairs to provide for more fully informing veterans of benefits available to them under laws administered by the Secretary of Veterans Affairs; to the Committee on Veterans' Affairs.

THE VETERANS' RIGHT TO KNOW ACT

Mr. TORRICELLI: Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Veterans' Right to Know Act which will assist millions of brave Americans who have served this nation in times of war. This legislation would ensure that all veterans are fully informed of the various benefits that they have earned through their brave and dedicated service to their country.

Throughout the history of the United States, the interests of our nation have been championed by ordinary citizens who willingly defend our nation when called upon. During the times of crisis which threatened the very existence of our Republic, we persevered because young men and women from all walks of life took up arms to defend the ideals by which this nation was founded. Whether it was winning our freedom from an oppressive empire, preserving our Union, defeating fascism or battling the spread of communism, the American people have time and time again answered the call to defend liberty, justice and democracy at home and throughout the world.

Our government owes a debt of gratitude to each and every one of our veterans, and we must make a concerted effort to show our appreciation for their valiant service. The Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) provides the necessary health care services and benefits to our war heroes; however, over half of the veterans in the United States are not fully aware of the benefits or pensions to which they are entitled.

The bill I introduced today is straightforward and it does not call for the creation of new benefits. Rather, it seeks to ensure that our veterans are well informed of the benefits they are entitled to as a result of their service or injuries sustained during their service to their country.

This legislation would require the VA to inform veterans about their eligibility for benefits and health care services whenever they first apply for any benefit with the VA. Furthermore, many times, widows and surviving family members of veterans are not aware of the special benefits available to them when their family member passes. My bill would help these individuals in their time of loss by instructing the VA to inform them of the benefits for which they are eligible on the passing of their loved one.

My legislation also seeks to reach out to those veterans who are not currently enrolled in the VA system by calling upon the Secretary of Veterans Affairs to prepare an annual outreach plan that will encourage eligible veterans to register with the VA as well as keeping current enrollees aware of any changes to benefits or eligibility requirements.

This bill will help ensure that our government and its services for veterans are there for the men and women who have served this nation in the armed forces. I am hopeful that my colleagues in the Senate will recognize the tremendous service that our veterans have given and support this reasonable measure to ensure that our veterans receive the benefits they deserve.

S. 2954. A bill to establish the Dr. Nancy Foster Marine Biology Scholarship Program; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation

THE NANCY FOSTER SCHOLARSHIP ACT

Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Nancy Foster Scholarship Act, legislation to create a scholarship program in marine biology or oceanography in honor of Dr. Nancy Foster, head of the National Ocean Service at the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) until her passing on Tuesday, June 27, 2000. I am proud to introduce legislation to commemorate the life and work of such a wonderful leader, mentor, and coastal advocate. I thank my colleagues Senators SNOWE, KERRY, STE-VENS, BREAUX, and CLELAND for joining me in recognizing Dr. Foster's strong commitment to improving the conservation and scientific understanding of our precious coastal resources.

My legislation would create a Nancy Foster Marine Biology Scholarship Program within the Department of Commerce. This Program would provide scholarship funds to outstanding women and minority graduate students to support and encourage independent graduate level research in marine biology. It is my hope that this scholarship program will promote the development of future leaders of Dr. Foster's caliber.

Dr. Foster was the first woman to direct a NOAA line office, and during her 23 years at NOAA rose to one of the most senior levels a career professional can achieve. She directed the complete modernization of NOAA's essential nautical mapping and charting programs, and created a ground-breaking partnership with the National Geographic Society to launch a 5-year undersea exploration program called the Sustainable Seas Expedition. Dr. Foster was a strong and enthusiastic mentor to young people and a staunch ally to her colleagues, and for this reason, I believe the legislation I am introducing today to be the most appropriate way for us all to ensure that her deep commitment to marine science continues on in others.

Mr. President, we will all feel Dr. Foster's loss deeply for years to come. The creation of a scholarship program in her honor is one small way we can thank a person who did so much for us all

S. 2955. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to provide relief for the payment of asbestos-related claims; to the Committee on Finance.

ASBESTOS-RELATED CLAIMS RELIEF LEGISLATION

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, I rise today as an original cosponsor of the bill introduced today by my friend and colleague from Ohio, Senator DEWINE, that would provide relief for payment of asbestos-related claims.

I urge my colleagues on the Finance Committee to take a close look at the serious problem this bill addresses. Certain manufacturers who were required by government specification to use asbestos in their products are facing a severe financial crisis arising from claims made by individuals who are suffering health problems from asbestos-related diseases. These claims have put several of these companies into bankruptcy, and several more appear to be on the brink of insolvency. Thousands of jobs may be at stake, as may be the proper compensation of the victims of the illnesses.

A major part of the underlying justification for this measure is that the federal government shares some culpability in the harm caused by the asbestos-related products manufactured by these companies. For example, from World War II through the Vietnam War, the government required that private contractors and shipyard workers use asbestos to insulate navy ships from so-called "secondary fires." Because of sovereign immunity, however, the government has not had to share in paying the damages, leaving American companies to bear the full and ongoing financial load of compensation.

The legislation we are introducing today is a step toward recognizing that the federal government is partially responsible for payment of these claims. It does so through two income tax provisions, both of which directly benefit the victims of the illnesses.

The first provision exempts from income tax the income earned by a designated or qualified settlement fund established for the principal purpose of resolving and satisfying present and future claims relating to asbestos illnesses. The effect of this provision, Mr. President, is to increase the amount of money available for the payment of these claims.

The second provision allows taxpayers with specified liability losses attributable to asbestos to carry back those losses to the tax year in which the taxpayer, or its predecessor company, was first involved in producing or distributing products containing asbestos.

This provision is a matter of fairness, Mr. President. Because of the long latency period related to asbestos-related diseases, which can be as long as 40 years, many of these claims are just now arising. Current law provides for the carryback of this kind of liability losses, but only for a ten-year period.

Many of the companies involved earned profits and paid taxes on those profits in the years the asbestos-related products were made or distributed. However, it is now clear, many years after the taxes were paid, that there were no profits earned at all, since millions of dollars of health claims relating to those products must now be paid.

It is only fair, and it is sound tax policy, to allow relief for situations like these. Again, it should be emphasized that the primary beneficiaries of this tax change will not be the corporations, but the victims of the illnesses, because the taxpayer would be required to devote the entire amount of the tax reduction to paying the claims.

This is not the only time the federal government has been at least partially responsible for health problems of citizens that arose many years after the event that initially triggered the problem. During the Cold War, America conducted above ground atomic tests during which the wind blew the fallout into communities and ranches of Utah. New Mexico and Arizona. The government also demanded quantities of uranium, which is harmful to those who mined and milled it. The incidence of cancers and other debilitating diseases caused by this activity among the "downwinders," miners and millers has been acknowledged by the federal government.

The least we can do for those manufacturers forced to use asbestos instead of other materials is provide some tax relief for their compensation funds.

This legislation has substantial bipartisan backing. It is sponsored in the House by both the Chairman and Ranking Minority Member of the Judiciary Committee. It is backed by the by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and by at least one related labor union. This bill addresses a very serious problem and is the right thing to do. I hope we can pass it expeditiously.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

By Mr. CAMPBELL:

S. 2956. A bill to establish the Colorado Canyons National Conservation Area and the Black Ridge Canyons Wilderness, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

COLORADO CANYONS PRESERVATION ACT OF 2000

Mr. CAMPBELL. Mr. President, today I introduce legislation which would preserve over 130,000 acres of land in Western Colorado. This legislation is supported locally by property owners, county commissioners, environmentalists, and recreational groups. My bill is a Senate companion to H.R. 4275 which was introduced by my colleague and fellow Coloradan Representative SCOTT MCINNIS.

The areas proposed for Wildernesss Protection are the Black Ridge and Ruby Canyons of the Grand Valley and Rabbit Valley near Grand Junction, Colorado. They contain unique and valuable scenic, recreational, multiple use, paleontological, natural, and wild-life components. This historic rural western setting provides extensive opportunities for recreational activities, and are publicly used for hiking, camping, and grazing. This area is truly worthy of additional protection as a national conservation area.

This legislation has the support of the administration and should easily be signed into law. The only issue confronting us is the limited amount of time left in the 106th Congress. I hope we will be able to move this legislation quickly through the process and that it will not get bogged down in partisan politics. It simply is the right thing to do.

I ask unanimous consent that the bill be printed in the RECORD following my remarks.

Thank you, Mr. President. I yield the floor.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2956

By Mr. ROTH:

S. 2957. A bill to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act to preserve coverage of drugs and biologicals under part B of the medicare program; to the Committee on Finance.

MEDICARE SELF-ADMINISTERED MEDICATIONS $$\operatorname{ACT}$$

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, today I am introducing a bill to address a serious problem regarding Medicare's treatment of self-injectable drugs. Section 1862(s) of the Social Security Act defines covered "medical and other health services" for purposes of coverage under Medicare Part B. Included in the definition are:

(2)(A) services and supplies (including drugs and biologicals which cannot, as determined in accordance with regulations, be self-administered) furnished as incident to a physician's professional service, of kinds which are commonly furnished in physicians' offices and are commonly either rendered without charge or included in the physicians' bills . . .

Regulations at 42 C.F.R. 410.29 provide further limitations on drugs and biologicals, but they do not define the phrase "cannot be self-administered." Individual Medicare carriers have reportedly applied different policies when considering whether a drug or biological can or cannot be self-administered. Some carriers have based the determination on the typical means of administration while others have assessed the individual patient's ability to administer the drug.

On August 13, 1997, HCFA issued a memorandum to Medicare carriers which was intended to clarify program policy. The memorandum stated that the inability to self-administer is to be based on the typical means of administration of the drug, not on the individual patient's ability to administer the drug. The memorandum stated that: "The individual patient's mental or physical ability to administer any drug is not a consideration for this purnose."

As a result of this memorandum, certain patients, for example patients with multiple sclerosis or some forms of cancer, no longer had Medicare coverage for certain drugs. However, implementation of this policy directive has been halted for FY2000. On November 29, 1999, the President signed into law the Consolidated Appropriations Act for 2000. Section 219 of General Provisions in Title II, Department of Health and Human Services contains a provision relating to the memorandum. The provision prohibits the use of any funds to carry out the August 13, 1997, transmittal or to promulgate any regulation or other transmittal or policy directive that has the effect of imposing (or clarifying the imposition of) a restriction on the coverage injectable drugs beyond those applied on the day before issuance of the trans-

The definition of covered services continues to be of concern to policymakers. On March 23, 2000, the House Commerce Committee, Subcommittee on Health & Environment held a hearing on this issue. I understand that there was a very productive discussion of other policy options during the question and answer period. One witness, Dr. Earl Steinberg of Johns Hopkins University, suggested having the beneficiary's physician determine whether a medication can or cannot be self-injected. The bill I am introducing today follows that expert advice and introduces the judgment of the physician into the decision process.

On May 17, 2000 I sent a letter to HCFA Administrator DeParle, requesting her serious attention to this problem. I went further to ask her to propose an administrative remedy for the inequity that existed. In her reply, she stated that she was "very troubled by the predicament of beneficiaries whose drugs are not covered under the law." But it is clear from Administrator DeParle's letter, that without legislative authority there is only a limited amount HCFA will do to address this problem.

The bill I am introducing today allows a Medicare beneficiary's own physician to make the determination of whether the beneficiary can or cannot administer their medication. I would ask for my colleagues' support in this legislation. This issue is of vital importance to some of our most gravely ill Medicare beneficiaries. These beneficiaries, many with advanced cases of multiple sclerosis or cancer, deserve our help and they deserve it today. I ask consent that the full text be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2957

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Medicare Self-Administered Medications Act of 2000".

SEC. 2. PRESERVATION OF COVERAGE OF DRUGS AND BIOLOGICALS UNDER PART B OF THE MEDICARE PROGRAM.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 1861(s)(2) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395x(s)(2)) is amended, in each of subparagraphs (A) and (B), by striking "(including drugs and biologicals which cannot, as determined in accordance with regulations, be self-administered)" and inserting "(including drugs and biologicals for which the usual method of administration of the form of drug or biological is not patient self-administration or, in the case of injectable drugs and biologicals, for which the physician determines that self-administration is not medically appropriate)".

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply to drugs and biologicals administered on or after October 1, 2000

tober 1, 2000.

S. 2958. A bill to establish a national clearinghouse for youth entrepreneurship education, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, today I am introducing legislation to empower at-risk youths and their communities. My legislation would establish a national youth entrepreneurship clearinghouse and permit curriculumbased youth entrepreneurship education as an allowable use of funds. Only curriculum-based youth entrepreneurship programs that demonstrate success in equipping disadvantaged youth with applied math and other analytical skills would be eligible for assistance under this measure. Students who participate in these programs learn basic entrepreneurial skills and gain a better understanding of the relationship between the subjects they learn in their classrooms and the business world. By teaching students practical skills needed to establish and maintain thriving entrepreneurial projects, the programs empower students and prepare them for future endeavors as contributing members of their communities. My legislation will instill pride in at-risk youths by providing them with the opportunity to improve their surroundings, while they explore and learn about the many career choices available to them in the business world.

I am pleased that this measure was included in the Elementary and Secondary Education Reauthorization bill passed by the House of Representatives, and it is my hope that we can facilitate its passage in the Senate and move closer to providing significant and meaningful initiatives for our children in need individual retirement plans; to the Committee on Finance.

THE CAPITAL CONSTRUCTION FUND REFORM ACT Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, I am pleased today to introduce the Capital Construction Fund Reform Act of 2000.

The Capital Construction Fund (CCF) was originally created by the Merchant Marine Act as a way to encourage the construction and use of Americanowned vessels in U.S. waters. For fishermen, the Capital Construction Fund authorizes the accumulation of funds, free from taxes, for the purpose of buying or refitting commercial fishing vessels. The program has been a success in promoting the domestic fishing industry. However, the usefulness of the CCF has not kept up with the times. Today it is actually exacerbating the problems facing U.S. fisheries by forcing fishermen to keep their money in fishing vessels, rather than allowing them to retire from fishing and pursue other

Our nation's fisheries are collapsing. Over the past year, fisheries in New England, Alaska and the West Coast have been officially declared disasters by the Secretary of Commerce. Plainly speaking, there are too many boats and not enough fish. Along the West Coast, a mere 200 of the 1400 boats currently fishing could catch the entire allowable harvest of groundfish. That means we could buyout 85 percent of the boats and still not reduce capacity in our fisheries. Since 1995, Congress has appropriated $140 million to buy fishing vessels and permits back from fishermen. Clearly, more needs to be done. This legislation empowers the fisherman to make his own choices to stay or leave the fishery with his own money.

In these times when we ought to be reducing the number of boats in our fisheries, it does not make sense for federal policy to encourage fishermen to build more of them. Yet current law prohibits fishermen from getting their own money out of CCF accounts for any purpose other than building boats. If they do, they lose up to 70 percent of their money in taxes and penalties. When fishermen have already been hit with increasingly severe harvest restrictions over the past few years, it is just not fair to hold their own money hostage.

That is why I'm introducing a bill that makes it easier for fishermen to withdraw their funds from the Capital Construction Fund if they retire from the fishery. My bill would allow fund holders to roll their funds over into an Individual Retirement Account (IRA) or other retirement fund. It would also allow them to use their own money to participate in buyback programs. This bill also eliminates the tax-penalty for withdrawals for those folks wishing to leave the industry.

Mr. President, this bill enjoys wide support from a variety of organizations with an interest in our nation's fisheries. Environmental groups, trawlers, small boat operators and processors alike have expressed their enthusiasm for this legislation. I urge my colleagues to support the swift adoption of this bill so that our fisherman can start making their own choices about their businesses and lives.

I ask unanimous consent that my statement and the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

By Mr. SMITH of New Hamp-shire:

S. 2962. A bill to amend the Clean Air Act to address problems concerning methyl tertiary butyl ether, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

THE FEDERAL REFORMULATED FUELS ACT OF $$2000\,$

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, today I have introduced legislation, S. 2962, which I believe will deal once and for all with the MTBE problem that is facing us all across America, specifically New England. In the Northeast, as well as California and other areas of the country, we are beginning to see evidence of MTBE in ground water. This is a serious environmental problem that must be addressed. It is certainly a problem in New Hampshire.

I rise today to speak for my constituents in New Hampshire who are now having their wells, several a week by the way, being contaminated by MTBE. This is my home State. This is a serious problem there. I am here to offer this legislation to help my constituents in New Hampshire get relief from MTBE, which is a pollutant in their wells. But I am also here to speak for all Americans across the country who have MTBE in their wells, whether they be in California or New Hampshire.

MTBE has done more damage to our drinking water than we would care to know. MTBE has been a component of our fuel supply for over two decades. In 1990, we amended the Clean Air Act to include a clean gasoline program. Unfortunately, we did not look at the science that was probably more evident than not. Because we did not look at that science, we have now created another environmental problem of a huge magnitude, which is probably going to cost billions of dollars to clean up. If there is a moral here, or lesson, it should be: Use good science. Look carefully before you leap into some of these environmental dilemmas.

That program in the 1990 Clean Air Act amendment mandated use of 2 percent oxygen in the gas, by weight. In other words, 2 percent of the weight of a gallon of gasoline should be oxygen. That was put in the fuel.

MTBE was one of two options that could be used. The problem with MTBE is that it has this ability to migrate through the ground very quickly and then into the water table. What is MTBE? It is an ether, and in the event of a leak or gas spill, the MTBE will separate from the gas and migrate through the ground very quickly. The real problem starts when MTBE finds its way into the ground water, which it frequently does.

Several States have had gasoline leaks, or spills, that led to the closure of wells because of MTBE. It smells. It tastes horrible. It is not the kind of thing you want to see come out of your shower or your faucet when you are ready to use your water. This is a serious problem. Some have made light of it, frankly, in this body, in the sense that maybe it is not such a serious problem and maybe we should look at some other alternatives other than banning it. But we need to ban MTBE. The legislation I am introducing today will do that. It does it in a responsible manner, which I will explain.

Several States have had these leaks or spills, as I said. So this bill will address the problems associated with MTBE, but—and this is a very important point—will not reduce any of the environmental benefits of the clean air program. That cannot be said with every option that has been presented on this issue. Again, we can ban MTBE, but we will not reduce any environmental benefit that the MTBE has brought to clean the air and that is important.

Briefly, this bill will allow the Governor of any State to waive the gasoline oxygen requirement of the Clean Air Act—waive it. But it will preserve the environmental benefits. It will also grant the State and the Federal Government authority to ban MTBE. It authorizes an additional $200 million out of the Leaking Underground Storage Tank Fund to clean up MTBE where these wells have been contaminated because of these leaking tanks. In other words, if we could repair those leaking tanks, we are going to cut back on the amount of problems we are going to have in the future. So it is important we have this as part of the legislation to get the money there to fix these tanks, to cut back on the amount of MTBE that gets into the ground water. If it does not leak out of the tank, the gasoline tank, it will not get into the ground water. But it is leaking out of tanks and we have to fix it.

The bill also authorizes an extensive study of numerous environmental consequences of our current fuel use. It was my hope to have marked up and sent to the floor from the Environment and Public Works Committee, which I chair, a bill this past week. In fact, it was our goal to do it yesterday, but we could not get the parties together who I needed to make this bill a reality, in the sense that it would pass. We could have introduced a bill, could have marked a bill, perhaps, but it would not have passed because we would not have the support. This problem is too serious to play politics.

MTBE is a pollutant in our wells. We need to get it out. We have to have legislation to do it and it has to pass. There is no point introducing a bill that will not pass. There are people who are dug in on all sides of this issue for various reasons. But the point is, we need to compromise. We all cannot get what we want, but the end result must be that we get MTBE out of our ground water. That is the bottom line.

So I agreed, reluctantly, but I agreed, in the interests of working together with my colleagues, to hold off until September in order to resolve the few remaining issues, but I intend to hold that markup in September. In fact, the specific date is September 7. In that legislation that we mark up, we will ban MTBE.

The issues that are in this legislation include the treatment of ethanol. I am pleased with the recent progress we have made on this. But there is a serious problem that we have to deal with, those who advocate more ethanol in fuel. I expect these issues to be resolved. We are working behind the scenes very hard to resolve these issues before the September 7 markup. It will give the staff something to do during the August recess. I know they will work out the details. But I thank the many Senators on both sides of the aisle I have been working with very closely to resolve these issues. This is a tough, tough issue, and it is hard to get agreement. Everybody is not going to get what they want, but the bottom line is, we have to get MTBE out of the water.

Let me address the ethanol issue for a moment. Some weeks ago I circulated a draft that included a clean alternative fuels program. This is a very complex issue. What are alternative fuels? It could be premium gasoline. It could be natural gas. It could be electricity. It could be fuel cells. It could be ethanol. But if you say "renewable fuels," then you are talking for the most part only ethanol. So when we are talking alternative fuels, what alternatives do we have to MTBE that would help us meet these requirements in the Clean Air Act? This has proven to be a good step toward addressing the ethanol question.

The program will also enhance the development of cleaner and more efficient cars which will help with the Clean Air Act issues as well. There has been growing support for this alternative fuels approach since the time we first brought this up. We do not want to create more MTBE problems. We do not want to create dirtier air by eliminating MTBE because we created dirty water by putting MTBEs in gasoline.

So last week in an effort, again, to reach out, I received a letter supporting that approach from 32 States represented by air quality planners in the northeastern States and the Governors' Ethanol Coalition. So for the first time we now have ethanol, and the Northeast, you have specific problems here with the MTBE issue, talking, working together, and, as we said, from this letter of support from 32 States, they support this approach.

We have not dotted every "i" and crossed every "t" yet, but in concept they support the approach.

The bill I am offering today, while that bill does not include the exact language they are talking about in that letter-and I want to make that clearit is a bridge. It is a bridge from where my legislation is to where they are. Actually, simultaneously to the bill I have introduced, I have also offered an amendment No. 4026, which crosses that bridge. I have introduced what I would like to have, what I believe is the most cost-effective method to deal with this problem, but I recognize that even though it is the least costly, it does not have the amount of support I need to pass it. So I have offered another amendment to my own bill. which is my way of saying: OK, you offered me the bridge. I am willing to walk across it and meet you at least halfway.

I will describe this bill in a little more detail first. This is a complex issue. The Environmental and Public Works Committee has been struggling with this, certainly in the last 7 or 8 months I have been chairman of the committee, and I am sure they were struggling with it many months before that. I have tried to craft a solution that is direct and balanced. I believe I have accomplished that. That is my goal. It is not to ramrod anything through to make anybody angry. It is a legitimate attempt to get a consensus to deal with a serious environmental problem, not to deal with everybody's own opinions.

If anybody comes to the table and says: If I do not get this, I will leave the table—I tell the people who say that: Don't bother coming to the table; you are wasting my time and yours. If you want to, talk, compromise, and reach a rational conclusion. I am willing to talk, and Senators on all sides of this have done just that. We have talked to many industry folks and environmental people as well on this very issue.

The bill waives the oxygen mandate. The Reformulated Gasoline Program, or RFG, requires at least 2 percent of gasoline by weight to be oxygen. MTBE and ethanol are the principal additives that help satisfy this mandate. It is ethanol or MTBE. They will bring us to that 2 percent oxygenate requirement. Because MTBE is rarely used outside the Reformulated Gas Program, a sensible starting point was to allow each State, if they wish, to waive the oxygen requirement.

What about the so-called environmental backsliding; in other words, slipping back and allowing more dirty air? There is concern that if the Governors waive this mandate that this will affect the environmental benefit—clean air—of the Reformulated Gas Program.

Let me be very clear: My bill ensures there will be no environmental backsliding. We are not walking away from the requirements of the Clean Air Act. If this bill is adopted, the environment—at least the air—will not know the difference. There will be no negative impact on the air, and the water will be cleaner.

Phaseout of MTBE: Eliminating the 2 percent oxygen mandate alone does not mean the elimination of MTBE. MTBE is an effective octane booster, and refiners still may want to use it. Since only a very small amount of MTBE will cause a tremendous amount of damage, it is important to consider the fate of MTBE.

This bill will give the EPA Administrator the authority to ban it immediately. If EPA does not do so in 4 years, then this bill will, by law, ban MTBE. The EPA has 4 years to ban it. If they do not, the bill will.

EPA could, however, overturn the ban if it deemed it was not necessary to protect air quality, water quality, or human health. If it gets to the point that it is not a problem, then EPA does not have to ban it. Notwithstanding EPA's decision, the bill gives the States the authority to ban the additive.

Since there is already massive contamination caused by MTBE, this bill will authorize, as I said, $200 million to be given to the States from the Leaking Underground Storage Tank Program for the purpose of cleaning up MTBE-caused contamination.

Since a Federal mandate caused this pollution—remember that a Federal mandate caused this pollution. This is not the fault of the oil companies. It is not the fault of the MTBE producers. They did what they were asked to do. They produced this additive to clean up the air. Since a Federal mandate caused the pollution, it would be irresponsible for the Federal Government not to bear some of the financial burden associated with the cleanup. Unfortunately, that is the case.

I do not like to spend taxpayers' dollars, but this was a mandate, and because of that mandate, we have a problem.

It is also important to point out that although it is not part of my legislation, it is reasonable to think of some way of perhaps trying to work with the MTBE producers to help them through this transition if, in fact, MTBE is banned. I certainly am willing to work with them to come up with some solution, some help in terms of their movement from one industry to another, or whatever the case may be.

Finally, the bill authorizes a comprehensive study of the environmental consequences of our current fuel supply. In order to be better informed to make future environmental decisions regarding fuel policy, the bill directs EPA to undertake a study of our motor fuel.

I will talk a little bit about the cost, a very important point.

Lately, we have heard a great deal about gasoline prices, certainly fuel oil prices, as well, in New England. These concerns underscore the question of the costs associated with limiting MTBE use.

MTBE, like it or not, is clean, it is cheap, and it helps to clean up our air. Placing it in our fuel supply and keeping the fuel supply clean will have a cost. We have to replace it. We cannot backslide. We do not want to dirty the air while we take MTBE out.

It is my belief the Senate is not prepared to reduce our clean air standards or allow for the continued contamination of our drinking water.

We have two issues: Contaminated drinking water and do we backslide off the clean air provision. I believe my colleagues in the Senate are willing to work with me to clean up the water to get the MTBE out of our wells and to preserve the integrity of the Clean Air Act and not backslide or move back from the cleaner air we have accomplished by using MTBE.

The question, though, becomes: What is the most effective and cost friendly option for achieving this goal? I have a chart which will help illustrate the options. Each one of these options—the red line, yellow line, green line, and the blue line—bans MTBE, but it is a little more complicated than that.

One option is simply the elimination of MTBE with no other changes in the law. That is the red line. These show costs. This is the highest cost option because it is about an 8-cent increase in gas prices per gallon. This is a ban of MTBE, and it replaces it with ethanol in the Reformulated Gas Program. One might think: That is fine, it is ethanol, produced by corn, a nice natural product; what is wrong with that? Let's do it.

The problem is, in areas in the Northeast, such as New Hampshire, and in other States such as Texas, these States would have to use ethanol to meet that oxygenate requirement because there is no other option. In order to meet the 2-percent oxygenate requirement if MTBE is removed, they have to use ethanol.

One may say: What is wrong with that? Ethanol makes gas evaporate more quickly and those fumes would add to smog and haze in New England and it would be serious. Obviously, California would have the same problem.

Refiners would have to make gas less evaporative and thereby increasing the cost. In other words, they would have to do something to deal with that rapid evaporation and it would cost more to do that. This is not an option for New England nor California nor any other State that has this particular problem.

If we are going to be responsible, then we should work with our colleagues who have these problems. I happen to have that problem because I am from New Hampshire, and as the chairman of the committee, I need to work with all regions of the country to get a compromise that is acceptable to everybody so that we do not have more environmental problems in New England or California or some other place by simply banning MTBE and letting ethanol take over. Some want that.

Obviously, the ethanol producers would love it, but that does not help us. We do not want to create more problems. That is not a responsible approach, I say with all due respect.

The next line is the orange line in terms of cost.

That is the Clinton administration's position. That represents the cost of eliminating the oxygen mandate, but replacing it with a national ethanol mandate. You have no other alternative other than ethanol.

The cost of mandating a threefold increase in ethanol sales is very expensive. So the options represented by the orange line shown on the chart cost less than what is shown with the red line because it does not mandate that the reformulated gas contain ethanol. It does not mandate it, but that is what is going to happen. But, shown with this orange line on the chart, it simply mandates the total ethanol market. So you are mandating the market here, and that is no good. That does not work. Unlike what is shown with the red line, there would be no regional constraint. It would not be accentable

Now, what is shown on the chart with the blue line is legislation that I am introducing today, without the amendment initially. In my view, that is the cheapest and most responsible way to deal with this problem. However, for reasons which I respect—I might not agree with them, but I respect them—it does not have enough support, either, to pass the Senate. I recognize that, but I want everybody to know where I am coming from.

I believe we should use the cheapest alternative that gets the job done. That is my view. But I understand, as I said before, I am willing to build that bridge to go from what is shown with the blue line to what is shown with the green line. I will not go to what is shown with the orange or red lines, but I am willing to go from what is shown with the blue line to what is shown with the green line.

As I have said, what is shown with the blue line is the bill I have introduced. That bill will cost more to make clean gas without MTBE, but because we place the fewest requirements on the refiners on how to achieve that clean gas, this bill would cost the economy less than all other options. It is very important for me to repeat that. We place the fewest requirements on the refiners on how to achieve the clean gas. We want clean gas achieved. That is the goal. This bill would cost the economy less than all of those other options.

While my bill addresses all of the concerns with MTBE, I am also sensitive to the concerns of the Senators who understand that this bill might have an impact on ethanol. So in order to address these concerns, I have prepared an amendment to my own legislation, amendment No. 4026, which I have already sent to the desk.

This amendment seeks to address the concerns over ethanol that Members have. I am hoping that over the course of the next 30 days we will be able to build this bridge from what is shown by the blue line to what is shown by the green line, to get to what I think is an acceptable and responsible approach.

I indicated earlier there is a lot of interest. Thirty-two States have expressed interest in this, in my letter. This amendment seeks to address the concerns of the ethanol industry by establishing a segment of the fuel market that must be comprised of either ethanol or fuel used to power superclean vehicles.

About 10 days ago, I had the opportunity to ride in a fuel-celled bus. It had hydrogen cells. I had never experienced anything like it: No fumes, no smell, very little sound, and no pollutants whatsoever. I road several miles in it.

The current occupant of the Chair, the Senator from Utah, Senator BENNETT, drives a hybrid car which is part electric, part gas. You see, we are moving in the right direction. Hybrid cars, fuel cells—they are the future. The more we do that, the less we need of any type of gasoline, whether it is ethanol or just oil based. It does not matter.

The point is, we are moving in the right direction. That is what we want to encourage. This bill will establish a segment of the fuel market that must be comprised of either ethanol or fuel used to power those clean vehicles. We do not want to stop them from having that option.

If we just go with the renewables that the administration wants, all they can use is ethanol. What we want them to do is use ethanol, if they wish, but to use hybrid cars if they wish. Encourage that, encourage fuel cells, whatever, or premium gas, but let the market deal with it.

So there are a lot of exciting things happening. This amendment is going to create competition. There is nothing wrong with competition, good old competition. You pick winners and losers—no guarantees—with competition between the ethanol industry and the clean vehicle market. So why mandate ethanol and exclude clean vehicles? It does not make any sense.

So the estimated cost of this approach is represented by the green line on the chart. This is a very good approach that I believe is a compromise that gets us there. It costs us a little more, but it gets us there. Because we can't get there with what is represented by the blue line, I am willing to go here, with what is represented by the green line.

Mr. President, I know my time is pretty close to expiring, I am sure.

To those who will ask, why does this have to be so complicated, I did not create the issue. I have spent the last 6 months trying to understand it and learn about it. I think I am getting there, with a lot of help. It is a complex issue, with many competing interests. That is the thing. But a simple ban of MTBE does not get everybody there—all the regions of the country. It does not get it done.

So a simple ban of MTBE makes gas more expensive and air more dirty. It is not acceptable. We cannot do that. A stand-alone mandate of ethanol does not get you there, either. Smog concerns, cost concerns—particularly in New Hampshire, and other areas of the Northeast, as well as California—that does not get you there.

Simply eliminating the reformulated gas mandate does not work, either. That is another option. MTBE would continue to be used and the potential adverse impact on ethanol would be there.

I am committed, I say to my colleagues, to a solution that, one, cleans up our Nation's drinking water, and, two, preserves the environmental benefits of the reformulated gasoline program, which is the most cost-effective option for the whole Nation. And that is shown right there with the green line. That is the one we can get it done with. I wish it were here with what is depicted with the blue line, but this will get us there with what is depicted with the green line; and we will do it.

So I am convinced this is the right approach. I look forward to working with my colleagues. This is an honest attempt to sit down with everybody and get to a resolution, because to continue to argue about this and debate this, while more and more wells every day get polluted with MTBE, is irresponsible. It is totally irresponsible.

We should not be talking about some-body's profit at the expense of some-body's well being polluted. Let's compromise. We will work with you. You can make some profit, but you are not going to make so much profit that we have to stand around and have our wells polluted. That is simply wrong. It is unacceptable. It is irresponsible. I am not going to stand for it. I don't think anybody would who had these kinds of problems. It is irresponsible. So we are going to work together.

I am very encouraged by the folks, especially the ethanol Senators, who I have talked with, and their staffs. We have talked to folks in the oil industry. They are not real thrilled about some of this, but, again, this is a solution that we must find. We cannot continue to say we will talk about it next week or we will deal with it in conference or we will deal with it next year. We need to deal with it now. This is a responsible effort to do that.

So, again, I look forward to working with my colleagues, and I look forward to that markup on September 7. I intend to be ready for it, and to send that bill out of the EPW Committee and on to the calendar in the Senate.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

By Mr. BRYAN (for himself, Mr. GRAHAM, and Mr. GORTON):

S. 2963. A bill to amend title XIX of the Social Security Act to require the Secretary of Health and Human Services to make publicly available medicaid drug pricing information; to the Committee on Finance.

CONSUMER AWARENESS OF MARKET-BASED DRUG PRICES ACT OF 2000

Mr. BRYAN. Mr. President, in a very few hours we will, each of us, be returning to our respective States for the summer recess. Most of us will have town hall meetings or other fora in which we will have a chance to interact with our constituents.

Much that occurs on this floor, although very important, does not connect with the American people. Some of it seems pretty esoteric, pretty dry stuff. I am going to be discussing this afternoon an issue that does connect with the American people. Whether you live in Maine or California or Washington State or Florida or, as I do, the great State of Nevada—and which I am privileged to represent—people are talking about the price of prescription drugs.

The reason for that is that the marvels of modern medicine have made it possible, through prescription drugs, to address a number of the maladies that affect all of us as part of humankind. The cost of those prescription drugs are literally going through the ceiling. I will comment more specifically upon that in a moment.

For literally millions of people in this country, the cost of prescription drugs has been so prohibitive that medications that would address a medical problem that those individuals face are simply beyond the pale. So for many, it is fair to say, the choice is a Hobson's choice.

Do they eat in the evening, or do they take the prescription medication that has been prescribed by their physician? It would be my fondest hope and expectation, before this Congress adjourns sine die-that is, at the end of this legislative year—that we could enact prescription drug legislation. That would be my No. 1 priority. But I think all of us recognize there are some things we can do as part of whatever plan we might subscribe to, and Senator Graham and I this afternoon are offering a piece of legislation entitled the Consumer Awareness of Market-Based Drug Prices Act of 2000.

This is a piece of legislation that deals with the price of drugs. We know what the cost is, but we are talking about the price. We have a lot of information on the cost. We know, for example, that we are spending on drugs in this country, prescription medications—in the last available year, 1999—almost $122 billion. We also know quite a bit about how much we in the Federal Government are spending for prescription drugs.

For example, the States and the Federal Government spent $17 billion in fiscal year 1999 for drugs, just under the Medicaid program alone. Those costs are going to escalate rather dramatically. What is missing, however, is some critically important information—information that would be important to consumers and those who negotiate on behalf of consumers, because what we don't know, what we don't have much information about is drug prices. The reason for that is some statutory prohibitions I am going to talk about and which this legislation specifically addresses.

So the questions are: What do consumers know about drug prices today? What do employers who purchase prescription drugs on behalf of their employees know about prices? What do health plans negotiating on behalf of their enrollees know about prices? What do physicians who prescribe drugs for their patients know about prices?

The answer is simply, very, very little; almost nothing. What little is known is essentially worthless information. We have the average wholesale price, but this is a truly meaningless figure.

During the course of my discussion this afternoon on the floor of the Senate, we are going to be talking about three kinds of prices: The average wholesale price, average manufacturer price, and the best price.

Just talking about the average wholesale price, that is a public list price set by manufacturers, the pharmaceutical industry; that is neither average nor wholesale and is a price set by the pharmaceutical companies. The best analogy I can give you is that it would be analogous to the price that appears as the sticker price on the window of a new car. Nobody pays that price. It really is not very helpful in terms of what you need to know when negotiating to purchase a car. And now there are a number of web sites and publications and manuals—a whole host of things that tell consumers this is what the manufacturer paid, these are the hold-backs by the dealers, these are the discounts and the commissions: here is the price on which you want to focus your attention. You can get that information if you are purchasing an automobile, and you can get that information when you purchase a whole host of other things. But that information is not available if you are talking about finding out the price of prescription drugs, and that is because of some statutory limitations.

It is somewhat analogous to the statement Sir Winston Churchill made in 1939 in describing the Soviet Union. He went on to say: "A riddle, wrapped up in a mystery, inside an enigma." That is a pretty fair characterization of what we know about the prices of prescription medications as sold by the manufacturer.

There are many different approaches as we deal with this prescription drug issue and want to extend it as either part of Medicare or some alternative approach. I have been privileged to serve on the Finance Committee, which has been the vortex for this debate and discussion. I listened closely to my colleagues wax eloquently on the subject of prescription drugs, and, whether you are to the left or to the right of the political spectrum, or whether you consider yourself in the mainstream, a moderate, all of us worship at the shrine of competition. Everybody says what we need to do is to inject more competition into the system. I happen to subscribe to that because I do believe that by allowing the synergy of the free marketplace to work, it will be the most efficient and the most cost-effective way to deliver services. But there is an impediment to the operation of the free marketplace.

What does the free marketplace need to work? How do we ensure competition? Well, some of you may recall that course from school, Econ. 201; that is what it was called at the University of Nevada where I was enrolled. Basic economic theory dictates that the availability of real market-based information is critical to a free market and that price transparency is necessary.

That is precisely what we do not have in this system we have created today.

The market today lacks marketbased price information. A market simply cannot work without the availability of that price information. I emphasize the availability of that information. The information that is available to the public verges on the absurd. There is a complete void of useful information about prices. So, in effect, the employers and health plans negotiating on behalf of consumers are negotiating in the dark. They are at a serious disadvantage. It is as if they are blindfolded going into that negotiating arena. They don't know where the end of the tunnel is. They do not know what the real prices are. So one can fairly ask, how can even the most coneffective employer scientious. orhealth plan operator negotiate good prices on behalf of consumers if they don't have the most basic information about market prices? They undoubtedly pay higher prices than they otherwise would, and ultimately these higher prices are translated into higher prices to the consumers: they are passed on. That is the nature of the system.

So what type of price information would be available, or should be available, that would be useful and helpful information? The average manufacturer price for a drug would be a useful thing for purchasers to know; that is, the average price at which a manufacturer sold a particular drug. That is what is actually paid for retail drugs. By law, by act of Congress, that is kept confidential, and that is one of the changes this legislation seeks to accomplish. That is confidential. You can't get that information.

The average price actually paid to a manufacturer by a wholesaler is supposed to be similar to the average manufacturer's price, but, in point of fact, it diverges widely. The average wholesale price, to refresh your memory, is a list price that is meaningless, a price assigned by the pharmaceutical industry. In theory, these prices should be tracking; in point of fact, they widely diverge. So it is the average manufactured price, the price that is actually paid, that is what we really want to know, and that is what we don't know.

The other price we don't know, and also by law is kept confidential, is the best price. That is the lowest price available to the private sector for a particular medication—whether it be Mevacor, Claritin, or any one of the other medications so many of us use today. That information is not available. So the average wholesale price—an utterly meaningless number, a fiction, if you will—is available. The average manufacturer price is not; nor is the best price.

Knowledge about the average manufacturer price and the best price would certainly enable us to have lower prices for health plans, lower prices for employers, and lower prices for the consumers. But the public is denied this information.

Let me emphasize—because a number of you might be thinking: There we go again with a vast new bureaucracy to collect this data with all of the burdens that are imposed upon the free market and the limitations that would be generated

My friends, that is not the case because under the law, the Secretary of Health and Human Services currently collects the average manufacturer price and the best price.

In other words, we have this information. It is not something we don't know about, or we have to create some new mechanism to gather. We have that information. It is there. But we are precluded by law from sharing that information with those who negotiate with the pharmaceutical industry to negotiate the best possible price for employees, members of health plans, or other organizations that provide prescription drugs to their clients, patient customer base-however you characterize it. There is good information. All purchasers could use it to benefit those for whom they negotiate.

It is clear that we need to increase the level of knowledge consumers have about drug prices in today's market-place. Transparency—that is the ability to see what these prices are and promote the fair market—will lower prices.

That is why my colleague, Senator GRAHAM, and I are introducing this legislation. We are not talking about mandating negotiated prices. We are simply talking about making the data that is collected available to those who are negotiating for prescription drugs. It would simply require the Secretary, who already collects this information, to provide the average manufacturer price of drugs and the best price available in the market.

These prices are collected to implement the Medicare prescription drug rebate system. The rebates are based on those prices. But because Medicaid is prohibited by law from disclosing the average manufacturer price, or the best price, the market doesn't get the advantage of this information, and we are prohibited from knowing the price that Medicaid pays for each drug.

Let me say say parenthetically that it is generally agreed that the price Medicaid pays is in point of fact the best price. So this would be a very relevant piece of information. We can't say for sure even with respect to a federally funded program what we are spending on a particular drug. We don't know what Medicaid pays for Claritin, Mevacor, or Prilosec. We just do not know that. We know the total price we are paying for drugs generally, and what we are spending for drugs. But we do not know what we are paying for them separately. This information needs to be made available because making price information available will help purchasers and consumers for a given airline flight. I think the question needs to be asked: Why shouldn't the public have access to price information on something that is so critical and that may be necessary to save one's life, or to prevent the onset of some debilitating disease, or to ameliorate its impact, the information with respect to the average manufacturer price and the best price?

Today, anyone can get on the Internet to find the lowest price available

The bottom line is today there are no sources of good price information for consumers and purchasers, thus keeping prices artificially higher than they would otherwise be.

The legislation which we introduce today would be extremely helpful in correcting this. The market-based price information this bill would provide would help all purchasers, employers, and pharmacy benefit managers who are at a disadvantage without true price information.

Employers are struggling with increasing premiums. In large part, premiums are increasing because of rising drug expenditures. And, yet, employers don't have the information they need to assess whether the premium increases are appropriate. The answer to that is because without knowing the prices and the rebates that the pharmacy benefit managers are negotiating, they are not able to determine if the pharmacy benefit managers are passing along the rebates to them in the form of lower costs and lower premiums.

Further, neither the PBMs nor the employers know if the drug companies are being candid with them. When they try to negotiate lower prices with the manufacturer, they are told, no, we can't give you that price because it is lower than the best price. The employers and the PBMs have no way of knowing in point of fact whether it is true. The battleground is really a negotiation of what these prices are. That is the information we don't know. In effect, those who negotiate with the pharmaceutical industry go into that combat with one arm tied behind their backs and blindfolded as to what the average manufacturer price and the best price is.

Let me say that this piece of legislation is going to provoke an outcry. You don't have to have a degree from Oxford. You don't have to have a Ph.D. from some of our most distinguished institutions in America. Who would one think would dislike this information? My friends, the pharmaceutical industry doesn't want you to know.

Undoubtedly, the provision that is in the law today was crafted for their benefit. It certainly was not crafted for the benefit of employer groups, or health care providers who negotiate pharmaceutical benefits. It certainly was not put in to protect consumers. It is not in their best interests.

I am sure we are going to have a predictable outcry that some horrendous draconian thing will occur if we make these prices available.

My view is that transparency is essential. Make the prices available, and let this free marketplace that we all talk about that has produced such an extraordinary standard of living for us be the envy of the world. Nobody is suggesting that the free market could not, nor would, in my judgment, provide some of the dynamics that would help to keep the costs down. Let an honest negotiating process occur.

The lack of market-based information has an effect on the Federal budget—not only for consumers in terms of the medications they pay for but all taxpayers.

Whether in Congress—and I profoundly hope we will in fact—makes that prescription drug benefit a part of Medicare, or a subsequent Congress, this is an idea whose time has come. It will occur. It may not occur in my time. I leave at the end of this year. But it is going to occur. There are dramatic cost implications. Without the benefit of this information, it will be very difficult indeed.

Let's just talk for a moment in terms of prices, information that is made available, and the generic formulas that we use for reimbursement.

Although the average wholesale price is not a true market measure price—this is set by the industry—it is used to determine Medicare reimbursement for the few drugs that are currently covered by Medicare.

The prescription Medicare benefit is very limited. I would like to see the Medicare prescription benefit extended through Medicare as an option, as we have a voluntary option under Part B. I don't want anybody to be confused, but there are some drugs that are covered in concert with the physician's prescriptions.

The average wholesale price minus 5 percent—what is wrong with that? What is wrong with that is this average wholesale price is a fix. It means nothing. It is the price that the drug companies get together and tell us is the average wholesale price. Yet that is the reimbursement mechanism that is used for Medicare.

Medicaid, which is a program, as we all know, that involves participation by the Federal and the State governments and made available to the poorest of our citizens, represents a rather substantial cost to the taxpayer. My recollection is that cost is in the neighborhood of about $17 billion a year.

Here is how that formula worked. This is the Medicaid benefit: The average wholesale price minus 10 percent. Remember, this is a price set by the pharmaceutical industry; it is not a market-driven price. Multiply that times the units—whatever the number of prescriptions, say an allergy drug or a drug for elevated cholesterol level times 15.1 percent of the average manufacturer price. This is the one we are precluded from knowing. Or take the average manufacturer price, minus the best price. This information we don't know, and we should be able to get this information

What can happen with respect to the Medicare reimbursements—because the physicians who prescribe this medication get the average wholesale price minus 5 percent, we do not know what the physicians are actually paying the pharmaceutical industry for the drugs. According to the Justice Department, the Health and Human Services Office of the Inspector General, and our colleague in the other body who chairs the Commerce Committee, the average wholesale price has been manipulated in order to reap greater Medicare reimbursements.

The way that works, the doctor prescribes something covered by Medicare and reimburses the average wholesale price minus 5 percent. In point of fact, your physician may be paying much, much less to the pharmaceutical industry. So the spread is the physician's profit, and there is potential for abuse.

I am not suggesting in any way that a physician should not be compensated for his care. I am proud to say my son is a physician, a cardiologist. But you ought not to be able to manipulate the wholesale price—which is this fiction we have talked about—and then allow the physician to seek payment from the pharmaceutical industry at a price that is substantially less than what Medicare is paying. That gouges the American taxpayer. That is the issue that concerns us.

As I have indicated, drug companies have artificially inflated this average wholesale price, which results in these inflated Medicare reimbursements to physicians, and the manufacturer then in turn provides the discounts, and the physicians can keep the difference. If the average wholesale price of the drug is $100, minus 5 percent would be $95, and if the physician actually only pays $50, the physician is getting $45 as part of that spread. That is much less than he is actually paying. Medicare, conversely, is reimbursing the physician at a far greater price than the physician is actually paying for that medication.

The need for better information has never been greater. Medicare drug benefit is critical and should be enacted this year. I truly hope it will be. Accurate market-based price information will ensure the best use of the taxpayer dollars financing this benefit and the lowest possible beneficiary coinsurance; that is, the amount, the coinsurance, the beneficiary has to pay.

This should be an easy call. Transparency promotes a fair market. We are all for that, I believe. Price information leads to price competition. I think we are all for that. That competition leads to lower prices for employers, for health plans, and for consumers. I think we are all for that.

So at a time when drug prices are increasing at two to three times the rate of the overall rate of inflation, referred to as the Consumer Price Index, at a time when the same drugs prescribed by veterinarians, for use by pets—the identical medication—are priced lower than the same drug prescribed by prescriptions for doctors' use for people, at a time when the primary information consumers have about prescription drugs is through the $2 billion annually spent by the industry on direct-to-consumer advertising, and those ads never mention price —these are the things we are bombarded with on television: we see full pages in the leading newspapers in the country-at a time when Americans are traveling to foreign countries-to Canada and Mexico, in particular—to obtain lower prices, why shouldn't we be doing whatever we can to encourage competition in the United States and to lower the price of drugs sold in this country?

I think it is a no-brainer. I think we should set the market forces in action. We simply need to allow the public to have access to readily available market-based information. This is commonsense, easy-to-understand, easy-to-implement legislation. We should pass it this year. There is no new bureaucracy created. We can have the information at HHS. All this legislation would do is require it be made available. The potential benefits are enormous.

It will be interesting to see how this debate unfolds on this legislation because my colleagues have not heard the last of me on this issue. This makes a lot of sense, whether we do or do not succeed this year in extending a prescription benefit as part of Medicare. We ought to do it. We can do it. We should do it. I hope my colleagues will join me in a bipartisan effort to do so. I yield the floor.

By Ms. COLLINS (for herself and Ms. LANDRIEU):

S. 2964. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to provide new tax incentives to make health insurance more affordable for small businesses, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

ACCESS TO AFFORDABLE HEALTH CARE ACT

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, today I am introducing legislation, the Access to Affordable Health Care Act, that is designed to make health insurance more affordable both for individuals and for small businesses that provide health care coverage for their employees.

In the past few years, Congress has taken some major steps to expand access to affordable health coverage for all Americans. In 1996, the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act—also known as Kassebaum-Kennedy—was signed into law which assures that American workers and their families will not lose their health care coverage if they change jobs, lose their jobs, or become ill.

One of the first bills I sponsored on coming to the Senate was legislation to establish the State Children's Health Insurance Program, which was enacted as part of the Balanced Budget Act. States have enthusiastically responded to this program, which now provides affordable health insurance coverage to over two million children nationwide, including 9,365 in Maine's expanded Medicaid and CubCare programs.

Despite these efforts, the number of uninsured Americans continues to rise. At a time when unemployment is low and our nation's economy is thriving, more than 44 million Americans—including 200,000 Mainers—do not have health insurance. Clearly, we must make health insurance more available and more affordable.

Most Americans under the age of 65 get their health coverage through the workplace. It is therefore a common assumption that people without health insurance are unemployed. The fact is, however, that most uninsured Americans are members of families with at least one full-time worker. According to the Health Insurance Association of America, almost seven out of ten uninsured Americans live in a family whose head of household works full-time.

In my state of Maine, small business is not just a segment of the economy—it is the economy. I am, therefore, particularly concerned that uninsured, working Americans are most often employees of small businesses. Nearly half of the uninsured workers nationwide are in businesses with fewer than 25 employees.

According to a recent National Federation of Independent Businesses survey of over 4,000 of its members, the cost of health insurance is the number one problem facing small businesses. And it has been since 1986. It is time for us to listen and to lend a hand to these small businesses.

Small employers generally face higher costs for health insurance than larger firms, which makes them less likely to offer coverage. Premiums are generally higher for small businesses because they do not have as much purchasing power as large companies, which limits their ability to bargain for lower rates. They also have higher administrative costs because they have fewer employees among whom to spread the fixed costs of a health benefits plan. Moreover, they are not as able to spread risks of medical claims over as many employees as can large firms.

As a consequence, according to the Congressional Budget Office (CBO), only 42 percent of small businesses with fewer than 50 employees offer health insurance to their employees. By way of contrast, more than 95 percent of businesses with 100 or more employees offer insurance.

Moreover, the smaller the business, the less likely it is to offer health insurance to its employees. According to the Employee Benefit Research Institute (EBRI), only 27 percent of workers in firms with fewer than 10 employees received health insurance from their employers in their own name, compared with 66 percent of workers in firms with 1,000 or more employees. Small businesses want to provide health insurance for their employees, but the cost is often prohibitive.

Simply put, the biggest obstacle to health care coverage in the United States today is cost. While American employers everywhere—from giant multinational corporations to the small corner store—are facing huge hikes in their health insurance costs, these rising costs are particularly problematic for small businesses and their employees. Many small employers are facing premium increases of 20 percent or more, causing them either to drop their health benefits or pass the additional costs on to their employees through increased deductibles, higher copays or premium hikes. This, too, is troubling and will likely add to the ranks of the uninsured since it will cause some employees—particularly lower-wage workers who are disproportionately affected by increased costs to drop or turn down coverage when it is offered to them.

The legislation I am introducing today, the Access to Affordable Health Care Act, would help small employers cope with these rising costs. My bill would provide new tax credits for small businesses to help make health insurance more affordable. It would encourage those small businesses that do not currently offer health insurance to do so and would help businesses that do offer insurance to continue coverage even in the face of rising costs.

Under my proposal, employers with fewer than ten employees would receive a tax credit of 50 percent of the employer contribution to the cost of employee health insurance. Employers with ten to 25 employees would receive a 30 percent credit. Under my bill, the credit would be based on an employer's yearly qualified health insurance expenses of up to $2,000 for individual coverage and $4,000 for family coverage.

The legislation I am introducing today would also make health insurance more affordable for individuals and families who must purchase health insurance on their own. The Access to Affordable Health Care Act would provide an above-the-line tax deduction for individuals who pay at least 50 percent of the cost of their health and long-term care insurance. Regardless of whether an individual takes the standard deduction or itemizes, he or she would be provided relief by the new above-the-line deduction.

My bill also would allow self-employed Americans to deduct the full amount of their health care premiums. Some 25 million Americans are in families headed by a self-employed individual-of these, five million are uninsured. Establishing parity in the tax treatment of health insurance costs between the self-employed and those working for large businesses is not just a matter of equity. It will also help to reduce the number of uninsured, but working Americans. My bill will make health insurance more affordable for the 82,000 people in Maine who are selfemployed. Thev include our lobstermen, our hairdressers, our electricians, our plumbers, and the many owners of mom-and-pop stores that dot communities throughout the state.

Mr. President, the Access to Affordable Health Care Act would help small businesses afford health insurance for their employees, and it would also make coverage more affordable for working Americans who must purchase it on their own. I urge my colleagues to join me as cosponsors of this important legislation.

By Mr. HOLLINGS (for himself, Mr. Graham, Mr. Breaux, and Mr. Cleland):

S. 2965. A bill to amend the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, to establish a program to ensure greater security for United States seaports, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

THE PORT AND MARITIME SECURITY ACT OF 2000

Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, I rise today, to introduce the Port and Maritime Security Act of 2000. This legislation is long overdue. It is needed to facilitate future technological and advances and increases in international trade, and ensure that we have the sort of security control necessary to ensure that our borders are protected from drug smuggling, illegal aliens, trade fraud, threats of terrorism as well as potential threats to our ability to mobilize U.S. military force.

The Department of Transportation recently commenced an evaluation of our marine transportation needs for the 21st Century. In September 1999, Transportation Secretary Slater issued a preliminary report of the Marine Transportation System (MTS) Task Force—An Assessment of the U.S. Marine Transportation System. The report reflected a highly collaborative effort among public sector agencies, private sector organizations and other stakeholders in the MTS.

The report indicates that the United States has more than 1,000 harbor channels and 25,000 miles of inland, intracoastal, and coastal waterways in the United States which serve over 300 ports, with more than 3,700 terminals that handle passenger and cargo movements. These waterways and ports link to 152,000 miles of railways, 460,000 miles of underground pipelines and 45,000 miles of interstate highways. Annually, the U.S. marine transportation system moves more than 2 billion tons of domestic and international freight, imports 3.3 billion tons of domestic oil, transports 134 million passengers by ferry, serves 78 million Americans engaged in recreational boating, and hosts more than 5 million cruise ship passengers.

The MTS provides economic value, as waterborne cargo contributes more than $742 billion to U.S. gross domestic product and creates employment for more than 13 million citizens. While these figures reveal the magnitude of our waterborne commerce, they don't reveal the spectacular growth of waterborne commerce, or the potential problems in coping with this growth. It is estimated that the total volume of domestic and international trade is expected to double over the next twenty years. The doubling of trade also brings up the troubling issue of how the U.S. is going to protect our maritime borders from crime, threats of terrorism, or even our ability to mobilize U.S. armed forces.

Security at our maritime borders is given substantially less federal consideration than airports or land borders. In the aviation industry, the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) is intimately involved in ensuring that security measures are developed, implemented, and funded. The FAA works with various Federal officials to assess threats directed toward commercial aviation and to target various types of security measures as potential threats change. For example, during the Gulf War, airports were directed to ensure that no vehicles were parked within a set distance of the entrance to a terminal.

Currently, each air carrier, whether a U.S. carrier or foreign air carrier, is required to submit a proposal on how it plans to meet its security needs. Air carriers also are responsible for screening passengers and baggage in compliance with FAA regulations. The types of machines used in airports are all approved, and in many instances paid for by the FAA. The FAA uses its laboratories to check the machinery to determine if the equipment can detect explosives that are capable of destroying commercial aircrafts. Clearly, we learned from the Pan Am 103 disaster over Lockerbie, Scotland in 1988. Congress passed legislation in 1990 "the Aviation Security Improvement Act," which was carefully considered by the Commerce Committee, to develop the types of measures I noted above. We also made sure that airports, the FAA, air carriers and law enforcement worked together to protect the flying public.

Following the crash of TWA flight 800 in 1996, we also leaped to spend money, when it was first thought to have been caused by a terrorist act. The FAA spent about $150 million on additional screening equipment, and we continue today to fund research and development for better, and more effective equipment. Finally, the FAA is responsible for ensuring that background checks (employment records/criminal records) of security screeners and those with access to secured airports are carried out in an effective and thorough manner. The FAA, at the direction of Congress, is responsible for certifying screening companies, and has developed ways to better test screeners. This is all done in the name of protecting the public. Seaports deserve no less consideration.

At land borders, there is a similar investment in security by the federal government. In TEA-21, approved $140 million a year for five years for the National Corridor Planning and Development and Coordinated Border Infrastructure Program. Eligible activities under this program include improvements to existing transportation and supporting infrastructure that facilitate cross-border vehicles and cargo movements; construction of highways and related safety enforcement facilities that facilitate movements related to international trade; operational improvements, including improvements relating to electronic data interchange and use of telecommunications, to expedite cross border vehicle and cargo movements; and planning, coordination, design and location studies. By way of contrast, at U.S. seaports, the federal government invests nothing in infrastructure, other than the human presence of the U.S. Coast Guard, U.S. Customs Service, and the Immigration and Naturalization Service, and whatever equipment those agencies have to accomplish their mandates. Physical infrastructure is provided by state-controlled port authorities, or by private sector marine terminal operators. There are no controls, or requirements in place, except for certain standards promulgated by the Coast Guard for the protection of cruise ship passenger terminals. Essentially, where sea ports are concerned we have abrogated the federal responsibility of border control to the state and private sector.

I think that the U.S. Coast Guard and Customs Agency are doing an outstanding job, but they are outgunned. There is simply too much money in the illegal activities they are seeking to curtail or eradicate, and there is too much traffic coming into, and out of the United States. For instance, in the latest data available, 1999, we had more than 10 million TEU's imported into the United States. For the uninitiated. a TEU refers to a twenty-foot equivalent unit shipping container. By way of comparison, a regular truck measures 48-feet in length. So in translation, we imported close to 5 million truckloads of cargo. According to the Customs Service, seaports are able to inspect between 1 percent and 2 percent of the containers, so in other words, a drug smuggler has a 98 percent chance of gaining illegal entry.

It is amazing to think, that when you or I walk through an international airport we will walk through a metal detector, and our bags will be x-rayed, and Customs will interview us, and may check our bags. However, at a U.S. seaport you could import a 48 foot truck load of cargo, and have at least a 98 percent chance of not even being inspected. It just doesn't seem right.

For instance, in my own state, the Port of Charleston which is the fourth largest container port in the United States, Customs officials have no equipment even capable of x-raying intermodal shipping containers. Customs, which is understaffed to start with, must physically open containers, and request the use of a canine unit from local law enforcement to help with drug or illegal contraband detection. This is simply not sufficient.

The need for the evaluation of higher scrutiny of our system of seaport security came at the request of Senator GRAHAM, and I would like to at this time commend him for his persistent efforts to address this issue. Senator GRAHAM has had problems with security at some of the Florida seaports, and although the state has taken some steps to address the issue, there is a great need for considerable improvement. Senator GRAHAM laudably convinced the President to appoint a Commission, designed similarly to the Aviation Security Commission, to review security at U.S. seaports.

The Commission visited twelve major U.S. seaports, as well as two foreign ports. It compiled a record of countless hours of testimony and heard from, and reviewed the security practices of the shipping industry. It also met with local law enforcement officials to discuss the issues and their experiences as a result of seaport related crime. Unfortunately, the report will not be publicly available until sometime in the fall; however, Senator GRAHAM's staff and my staff have worked closely with the Commission, to develop legislation—the bill that we are introducing to address the Commission's concerns.

For instance, the Commission found that twelve U.S. seaports accounted for 56 percent of the number of cocaine seizures, 32 percent of the marijuana seizures, and 65 percent of heroin seizures in commercial cargo shipments and vessels at all ports of entry nationwide. Yet, we have done relatively little, other than send in an undermanned contingency of Coast Guards and Customs officials to do whatever they can.

Drugs are not the only criminal problem confronting U.S. seaports. For example, alien smuggling has become increasingly lucrative enterprise. To illustrate, in August of 1999, I.N.S. officials found 132 Chinese men hiding aboard a container ship docked in Savannah, Georgia. The INS district director was quoted as saying; "This was a very sophisticated ring, and never in my 23 years with the INS have I seen anything as large or sophisticated". According to a recent GAO report on INS efforts on alien smuggling (RPT-Number: B-283952), smugglers collectively may earn as much as several billion dollars per year bringing in illegal

Another problem facing seaports is cargo theft. Cargo theft does not always occur at seaports, but in many instances the theft has occurred because of knowledge of cargo contents. International shipping provides access to a lot of information and a lot of cargo to many different people along the course of its journey. We need to take steps to ensure that we do not facilitate theft. Losses as a result of cargo theft have been estimated as high as $12 billion annually, and it has been reported to have increased by as much as 20 percent recently. The FBI has become so concerned that it recently established a multi-district task force, Operation Sudden Stop, to crack down on cargo crime.

The other issues facing seaport security may be less evident, but potentially of greater threat. As a nation in general, we have been relatively lucky to have been free of some of the terrorist threats that have plagued other nations. However, we must not become complacent. U.S. seaports are extremely exposed. On a daily basis many seaports have cargo that could cause serious illness and death to potentially large populations of civilians living near seaports if targeted by terrorism.

The sheer magnitude of most seaports, their historical proximity to established population bases, the open nature of the facility, and the massive quantities of hazardous cargoes being shipped through a port could be extremely threatening to the large populations that live in areas surrounding our seaports. The same conditions in U.S. seaports, that could expose us to threats from terrorism, could also be used to disrupt our abilities to mobilize militarily. During the Persian Gulf War, 95 percent of our military cargo was carried by sea. Disruption of sea service, could have resulted in a vastly different course of history. We need to ensure that it does not happen to any future military contingencies.

As I mentioned before, our seaports are international borders, and consequently we should treat them as such. However, I am realistic about the possibilities for increasing seaport security, the realities of international trade, and the many functional differences inherent in the different seaport localities. Seaports by their very nature, are open and exposed to surrounding areas, and as such it will be impossible to control all aspects of security, however, sensitive or critical safety areas should be protected. I also understand that U.S. seaports have different security needs in form and scope. For instance, a seaport in Alaska, that has very little international cargo does not need the same degree of attention that a seaport in a major metropolitan center, which imports and exports thousands of international shipments. However, the legislation we are introducing today will allow for public input and will consider local issues in the implementation of new guidelines on port security, so as to address such details.

Substantively, the Port and Maritime Security Act establishes a multipronged effort to address security needs at U.S. Seaports, and in some cases formalizes existing practices that have proven effective. The bill authorizes the Coast Guard to establish a task force on port security in consultation with U.S. Customs and the Maritime Administration.

The purpose of the task force is to implement the provisions of the act; to coordinate programs to enhance the security and safety of U.S. seaports; to provide long-term solutions for seaport safety issues; to coordinate with local port security committees established by the Coast Guard to implement the provisions of the bill; and to ensure that the public and local port security committees are kept informed about seaport security enhancement developments.

The bill requires the U.S. Coast Guard to establish local port security committees at each U.S. seaport. The membership of these committees is to include representatives of the port authority, labor organizations, the private sector, and federal, state, and local government officials. These committees will be chaired by the U.S. Coast Guard's Captain-of-the-Port, and will implement the provisions and requirements of the bill locally, to ensure that local considerations are considered in the establishment of security guidelines.

The bill requires the task force, in consultation with the U.S. Customs Service and MarAd, to develop a system of providing port security threat assessments for U.S. seaports, and to revise this assessment at least triennially. The threat assessment shall be performed with the assistance of local officials, through local port security committees, and ensure the port is made aware of and participates in the analysis of security concerns.

The bill also requires the task force to develop voluntary minimum security guidelines that are linked to the U.S. Coast Guard Captain-of-the-Port controls, to include a model port concept, and to include recommended "best practices" guidelines for use of maritime terminal operators. Local port security committees are to participate in the formulation of security guidelines, and the Coast Guard is required to pursue the international adoption of similar security guidelines. Additionally, the Maritime Administration (MarAd) is required to pursue the adoption of proper private sector accreditation of ports that adhere to guidelines (similar to a underwriters lab approval, or ISO 9000 accreditations).

The bill authorizes MarAd to provide Title XI loan guarantees to cover the costs of port security infrastructure improvements, such as cameras and other monitoring equipment, fencing systems and other types of physical enhancements. The bill authorizes $10 million, annually for four years, to cover costs, as defined by the Credit Reform Act, which could guarantee up to $400 million in loans for security enhancements. The bill also establishes a matching grant program to develop and transfer technology to enhance security at U.S. seaports. The U.S. Customs Service may award up to $12 million annually for four years for this technology program, which is required to be awarded on a competitive basis. Long-term technology development is needed to ensure that we can develop non-intrusive technology that will allow trade to expand, but also allow us greater ability to detect criminal threat.

The bill also authorizes additional funding for the U.S. Customs Service to carry out the requirements of the bill, and more generally, to enhance seaport security. The bill requires a report to be attached on security and a revision of 1997 document entitled "Port Security: A National Planning Guide." The report and revised guide are to be submitted to Congress and are to include a description of activities undertaken under the Port and Maritime Security Act of 2000, in addition to analysis of the effect of those activities on port security and preventing acts of terrorism and crime.

The bill requires the Attorney General, to the extent feasible, to coordinate reporting of seaport related crimes and to work with state law enforcement officials to harmonize the reporting of data on cargo theft. Better data will be crucial in identifying the extent and location of criminal threats and will facilitate law enforcement efforts combating crime. The bill also requires the Secretaries of Agriculture, Treasury, and Transportation, as well as the Attorney General to work together to establish shared dockside inspection facilities at seaports for federal and state agencies, and authorizes $3 million, annually for four years, to carry out this section. The bill also requires the Customs Service to improve reporting of imports at seaports, and to eliminate user fees for domestic U.S.flag carriers carrying in-bond domestic cargo.

Finally, the bill reauthorizes an extension of tonnage duties through 2006. and makes available $40,000,000 from the collections of these duties to carry out the Port and Maritime Security Act. These fees currently are set at certain levels, and are scheduled to be reduced in 2002. The legislation reauthorizes and extends the current fee level for an additional four years, but dedicates its use to enhancing our efforts to fight crime at U.S. seaports and to facilitating improved protection of our borders, as well as to enhance our efforts to ward off potential threats of terrorism.

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, I rise today, joined by Senators HOLLINGS, BREAUX, and CLELAND, to introduce the Port and Maritime Security Act of 2000, a bill that would significantly improve the overall security and cargo processing operations at U.S. seaports.

For some time, I have very been concerned that seaports-unlike our airports, lack the advanced security procedures and equipment that are necessary to prevent acts of terrorism, cargo theft and drug trafficking. In addition, although seaports conduct the vast majority of our international trade, the activities of law enforcement and trade processing agencies such as the Coast Guard, Customs, the Department of Agriculture, the FBI, and state and local agencies—are often uncoordinated and fragmented. Taken together, the lack of security and interagency coordination at U.S. seaports present an extremely attractive target for criminals and a variety of criminal activities.

Before discussing the specifics of this legislation, it is important to describe the circumstances that have caused the security crisis at our seaports. Today, U.S. seaports conduct 95 percent of the Nation's international trade. Over the next twenty years, the total volume of imported and exported goods at seaports is expected to increase three-fold.

In addition, the variety of trade and commerce that are carried out at seaports has greatly expanded. Bulk cargo, containerized cargo, passenger cargo and tourism, intermodal transportation systems, and complex domestic and international trade relationships have significantly changed the nature and conduct of seaport commerce. This continuing expansion of activity at seaports has increased the opportunities for a variety of illegal activities, including drug trafficking, cargo theft, auto theft, illegal immigration, and the diversion of cargo, such as food, to avoid safety inspec-

In the face of these new challenges, it appears that the U.S. port management system has fallen behind the rest of the world. We lack a comprehensive, nationwide strategy to address the security issues that face our seaport system.

Therefore, in 1998, I asked the President to establish a Federal commission to evaluate both the nature and extent of crime and the overall state of security in seaports and to develop recommendations for improving the response of Federal, State and local agencies to all types of seaport crime. In response to my request, President Clinton established the Interagency Commission on Crime and Security in U.S. Seaports on April 27, 1999.

Over the past year, the Commission has conducted on-site surveys of twelve (12) U.S. seaports, including the Florida ports of Miami and Port Everglades. At each location, interviews and focus group sessions were held with representatives of Government agencies and the trade community. The focus group meetings with Federal agencies, State and local government officials, and the trade community were designed to solicit their input regarding issues involving crime, security, cooperation, and the appropriate government response to these issues. The Commission also visited two large foreign ports-Rotterdam and Felixstowe—in order to assess their security procedures and use their standards and procedures as a "benchmark" for operations at U.S. ports.

In February of this year, the Commission issued preliminary findings which outlined many of the common security problems that were discovered in U.S. seaports. Among other conclusions, the Commission found that: (1) intelligence and information sharing among law enforcement agencies needs to be improved at many ports; (2) many ports do not have any idea about the threats they face, because vulnerability assessments are not performed locally; (3) a lack of minimum security standards at ports and at terminals, warehouses, and trucking firms, leaves many ports and port users vulnerable to theft, pilferage, and unauthorized access by criminals; and (4) advanced equipment, such as small boats, cameras, vessel tracking devices, and large scale x-rays, are lacking at many highrisk ports. Although the Commission's final report will not be released until later this summer, I have worked closely with them to draft this legislation.

The legislation Senator Hollings and I are introducing today will begin to address the problems of our seaports by directing the Commandant of the Coast Guard, in consultation with the Customs Service and the Maritime Administration, to establish a Task Force on Port Security. The new Task Force on Port Security will be responsible for implementing all of the provisions of our legislation. It will have a balanced representation, including Federal State, local, and private sector representatives familiar with port operations, including port labor.

To ensure full implementation of this legislation, the bill requires the U.S. Coast Guard to establish local port security committees at each U.S. seaport. Membership of these committees will include representatives of the local port authority, labor organizations, the private sector, and Federal, State, and local government officials. The committees will be chaired by the local U.S. Coast Guard Captain-of-the-Port.

In addition, our bill requires the Task Force on Port Security to develop a system of providing port security threat assessments for U.S. seaports, and to revise these assessments at least every three years. The local port security committees will participate in the analysis of threat and security concerns.

Perhaps most important, the bill requires the Task Force to develop voluntary minimum security guidelines for seaports, develop a "model port" concept for all seaports, and include recommended "best practices" guidelines for use by maritime terminal operators. Again, local port security committees are to participate in the formulation of these security guidelines, and the Coast Guard is required to pursue the international adoption—through the International Maritime Organization and other organizations—of similar security guidelines.

Some States and localities have already conducted seaport security reviews, and have implemented strategies to correct the security shortfalls that they have discovered. In 1999, Florida initiated comprehensive security review of seaports within the state. Led by James McDonough, Director of the governor's Office of Drug Control, the review found that 150 to 200 metric tons of cocaine—or fifty percent of the U.S. total-flow into Florida annually through ports throughout the state

Both the Florida Legislature and the Florida National Guard recognized the need to address this growing problem and acted decisively. Legislation was introduced in the Florida Senate that called for the development and implementation of statewide port security plans, including requirements for minimum security standards and compliance inspections. In fiscal year 2001, the Florida National Guard will commit $1 million to provide counter-narcotics support at selected ports-ofentry to both strengthen U.S. Customs Service interdiction efforts and enhance overall security at these ports.

In a July 21, 2000, editorial in the Tallahassee Democrat, Mr. McDonough identifies the evaluation of Florida's seaports and the implementation of security standards as a priority initiative in stemming the flow of drugs into Florida.

We realize that U.S. seaports are a joint federal, state, and local responsibility, and we seek to support comprehensive port security efforts such as the one in Florida. Therefore, our bill provides significant incentives for both port infrastructure improvements and research and development on new port security equipment.

The bill authorizes the Maritime Administration to provide title XI loan guarantees to cover the costs of port security infrastructure improvements, such as cameras and other monitoring equipment, fencing systems, as well as other physical security enhancements. The authorization level of $10 million annually, for four years, could guarantee up to $400 million in loans for seaport security enhancements.

In addition, the legislation will also establish a matching grant program to develop and transfer technology to enhance security at U.S. seaports. The U.S. Customs Service may award up to $12 million annually, for four years, for this competitive grant program.

We also must improve the reporting on, and response to, seaport crimes as they take place. Therefore, the bill requires the Attorney General to coordinate reports of seaport related crimes and to work with State law enforcement officials to harmonize the reporting of data of cargo theft. To facilitate this coordination, the bill authorizes $2 million annually, for four years, to modify the Justice Department's National Incident-Based Reporting System. It also authorizes grants to states to help them modify their reporting systems to capture crime data more accurately.

In order to pay for all of these important initiatives, the bill would reauthorize an extension of tonnage duties through 2006. It would also make available $40,000,000 from the collection of these duties to carry out all of the provisions of the Port and Maritime Security Act. Currently, the collection of tonnage duties is not directed towards a specific program. Implementing the provisions of the Port and Maritime Security Act of 2000 will produce concrete improvements in the efficiency, safety, and security of our nation's seaports, and will result in a demonstrable benefit for those who currently pay tonnage duties.

Seaports play one of the most critical roles in expanding our international trade and protecting our borders from international threats. The "Port and Maritime Security Act" recognizes these important responsibilities of our seaports, and devotes the necessary resources to move ports into the 21st century. I urge my colleagues to look towards the future by supporting this critical legislation—and by taking action to protect one of our most valuable tools in promoting economic growth.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to print the July 21, 2000 editorial from The Tallahasee Democrat in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

FLORIDA'S DRUG WAR: LOOKING BACK—AND AHEAD

(By James R. McDonough)

The recent signing of anti-drug legislation by Gov. Jeb Bush should come as welcome news to Debbie Alumbaugh and parents like her.

In 1998, Michael Tiedemann, the Fort Pierce woman's 15-year-old son, choked to death on his vomit after getting sick from ingesting GHB and another drug. GHB is one of several "club" or "designer" drugs that are a growing problem in Tallahassee, as pointed out recently in a letter to the Democrat by Rosalind Tompkins, director of the newly created Anti-Drug Anti-Violence Alliance. The new law won't bring Michael back, but it lessens the chance that GHB and other dangerous substances will fall into other young hands. Gov. Bush, who has made reducing drug abuse one of his top priorities, approved the following anti-drug measures passed during the 2000 session:

A controlled substance act, which is aimed at GHB, ecstasy and other club drugs, and more established drugs such as methamphetamine. The new law addresses the trafficking, sale, purchase, manufacture and possession of these drugs.

A nitrous oxide criminalization act that addresses the illegal possession, sale, purchase or distribution of this substance.

A money-laundering bill designed to tighten security at Florida's seaports. The measure also creates a contraband interdiction team that will search vehicles for illegal drugs.

A bill that applies the penalties under Florida's "10/20/Life" law to juveniles who carry a gun while trafficking in illegal drugs.

Gov. Bush also approved a budget that includes an estimated $270 million for drug abuse prevention and treatment. This is a big step in the right direction, as these services, especially drug prevention programs aimed at children, are critical.

Considering the above legislation—along with the publication of the Florida Drug Control Strategy, a statewide crackdown on rave clubs, a survey that shows significant reductions in youth use of marijuana, cocaine and inhalants, and a decline in heroin and cocaine overdose deaths—the past year has shown some progress toward reducing drug abuse.

Even with additional dollars for drug abuse treatment, the number of treatment beds still falls far short of demand. The wait time to enter a treatment program is measured in weeks. This is unacceptable when you consider the damage done to the individual and to society as an addict awaits treatment. We must continue to narrow the treatment gap until those who need this vital help can get it in a timely manner.

Our efforts cannot be solely focused on the demand for drugs. A sound drug control strategy must also address supply. The Office of Drug Control has several initiatives to stem the flow of drugs into Florida.

An intelligence effort to determine the types of drugs entering our state, the way in which they enter, who brings them in and the amounts. This includes the expansion of a drug supply database, all of which go to better inform counter-drug operations.

An evaluation of Florida's seaports and the implementation of standards for security against drug smuggling and money laundering.

The addition of a third High Intensity Drug Trafficking Area—a formal designation that creates a multi-agency anti-drug task force—covering Northeast Florida.

A systematic counter-drug effort aimed at interdicting and deterring drug trafficking on Florida's roads and highways.

Development of intelligence-driven multijurisdictional counter-drug operations that combine the efforts of law enforcement agencies at the federal, state and local levels.

Our efforts will continue. As history has taught us, the struggle against drugs is one that never ends. The minute we believe we have put the matter to rest and relax our guard, drug use immediately begins to resurge. Conversely, if we address the problem in a rational, balanced way, drug abuse abates. The fact is that government can only do so much in countering illegal drugs. Because substance abuse has such as pervasive impact on the family and on society, addressing the problem falls to the entire community: government, educators, community and business leaders, clergy, coaches and, most importantly, parents.

S. 2966. A bill to amend the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 to prohibit retaliation and confidentiality policies relating to disclosure of employee wages, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

THE WAGE AWARENESS PROTECTION ACT

Mr. JEFFORDS. Mr. President, it is with great pride that I introduce the Wage Awareness Protection Act.

We have made great strides in the fight against workplace discrimination. The enactment of the Civil Rights Act more than 30 years ago served to codify this Nation's commitment to the basic principles of equal opportunity and fairness in the workplace. At the time, we enacted not one, but two laws, aimed at ensuring that women receive equal pay for equal work: the Equal Pay Act ("EPA") of 1963, and to Title VII of the 1964 Civil Rights Act. More recently, Congress reaffirmed this commitment by passing the Civil Rights Act of 1991, which expanded the 1964 Civil Rights Act and gave victims of intentional discrimination the ability to recover compensatory and punitive damages.

Certainly a lot has changed since we first enacted these laws. It should come as no surprise that more women are participating in the labor force than ever before, with women now making up an estimated 46 percent of the workforce. Women are also spending more time in school and are now earning over half of all bachelor's and master's degrees. In addition, women are breaking down longstanding barriers in certain industries and occupations.

Despite these advances, the unfortunate reality is that pay discrimination has continued to persist in some workplaces. In a recent hearing before the Committee on Health, Education, Labor and Pensions, we heard testimony that a principal reason why gender-based wage discrimination has continued is that many female employees are simply unaware that they are being paid less than their male counterparts. These unwitting victims of wage discrimination are often kept in the dark by employer policies that prohibit employees from sharing salary information. Employees are warned that they will be reprimanded or terminated if they discuss salary information with their co-workers.

I believe that a fundamental barrier to uncovering and resolving genderbased pay discrimination is fear of employer retaliation. Employees who suspect wage discrimination should be able to share their salary information with co-workers. I am not alone in my belief. According to a recent Business and Professional Women/USA survey, Americans overwhelmingly support anti-retaliation legislation. And, 65 percent of those polled, said they believe legislation should protect those who suspect wage discrimination from employer retaliation for discussing salary information with co-workers.

The Worker Awareness Protection Act will prohibit employers from having blanket wage confidentiality policies preventing employees from sharing their salary information. In addition, this new legislation will bolster the Equal Pay Act's retaliation provisions including providing workers with protection from employer retaliation for voluntarily discussing their own salary information with coworkers. I am excited about this legislation. It is my hope that it will help point the way to elimination of any pernicious discriminatory pay practices.

I urge all my colleagues to join me in supporting this bill.

I ask unanimous consent that a copy of this bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

By Mr. MURKOWSKI (for himself, Mr. GORTON, Mr. KERREY, and Mr. JEFFORDS):

S. 2967. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to facilitate competition in the electric power industry; to the Committee on Finance.

THE ELECTRIC POWER INDUSTRY TAX MODERNIZATION ACT

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, today I am joined by Senators, GORTON, KERREY and JEFFORDS in introducing the Electric Power Industry Tax Modernization Act, legislation that will facilitate the opening up of the nation's energy grid to electricity competition. This landmark legislation demonstrates the good faith of the most important players in the industry—the investor owned utilities (IOUs) and the municipal utilities.

In the Energy Committee, which I currently Chair, we have held more than 18 days of hearings and heard testimony from more than 160 witnesses on electricity restructuring. Although those 160 witnesses had many differing views, every witness agreed that the tax laws must be rewritten to reflect the new reality of a competitive electricity market.

Already, 24 states have implemented laws deregulating their electricity markets. And the other 36 states are all considering deregulation schemes.

Faced with that reality, the federal tax laws must be updated to ensure that tax laws which made sense when electricity was a regulated monopoly are not allowed to interfere with opening up the nation's electrical infrastructure to competition.

Last October I held a hearing in the Finance Committee Subcommittee on Long Term Growth to examine all of the tax issues that confront the industry. At the end of the hearing I urged all parties to sit down at the negotiating table and hammer out a consensus that will resolve the tax issues.

The bill we are introducing today reflects the compromise that has been reached between the IOUs and the municipal utilities.

One of the major problems that the current tax rules create is to undermine the efficiency of the entire electric system in a deregulated environment because these rules effectively preclude public power entities from participating in State open access restructuring plans, without jeopardizing the exempt status of their bonds.

No one wants to see bonds issued to finance public power become retroactively taxable because a municipality chooses to participate in a state open access plan. That would cause havoc in the financial markets and could undermine the financial stability of many municipalities.

The bill we are introducing overcomes this problem by allowing municipal systems to elect to terminate the issuance of new tax-exempt bonds for generation facilities in return for grandfathering existing bonds. In addition, the bill allows tax-exempt bonds to be issued to finance some new transmission facilities.

I recognize that in making these two changes in the tax law, the municipal utilities have given up a substantial financing tool that has been at the heart of the controversy between the municipal utilities and the IOUs.

At the same time, the bill updates the tax code to reflect the fact that the regulated monopoly model no longer exists. For example, the bill modifies the current rules regarding the treatment of nuclear decommissioning costs to make certain that utilities will have the resources to meet those future costs and clarifies the tax treatment of these funds if a nuclear facility is sold.

The bill also provides tax relief for utilities that spin off or sell transmission facilities to independent participants in FERC approved regional transmission organizations.

Another section of the bill changes the tax rules regarding contributions in aid of construction for electric transmission and distribution facilities. This is an especially important provision; however when this bill is considered in the Finance Committee, I intend to modify this proposal so that it is expanded to all contributions in aid of construction, not just for electric transmission and distribution.

The IOUs and the Municipal utilities are to be commended for coming up with this agreement. However, there is one other element of the tax code that needs to be addressed if we are going to open the entire grid to competition. And that sector is the cooperative sector.

Currently, coops may not participate in wheeling power through their lines because of concern that they will violate the so-called 85–15 test. I urge the coops to sit down with the other utilities and reach an accord so that when we consider this legislation, the coops' will be included in a tax bill.

Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, today I am extremely pleased to co-sponsor the Electric Power Industry Tax Modernization Act. This legislation, when enacted, will contribute to a more reliable and efficient electric power industry that will provide benefits for all Americans connected to the interstate power grid.

I have been working for three years to resolve the tax problems for consumer-owned municipal utilities, those that are often referred to as Public Power. Nearly half the citizens of my state are served by Public Power.

These problems are due to outdated tax statutes that were written in a different era-an era where the emerging competition in the wholesale electricity market was not envisioned. The negative effects of these outdated tax provisions have impacted not only consumers of Public Power, but also tens of millions of other customers. Public Power is often prevented from sharing the use of their transmission systems solely due to these tax provisions. These outdated tax provisions are negatively impacting the reliability of entire regions of our nation, adding stress to an already stressed system.

In addition to Public Power, other types of utilities are prevented from adapting to this new era of emerging competition by other constraints in this outdated area of the tax law. All of these uncertainties have led to a condition where investment has slowed in this critical area of the economy, just as we need more investment to assure sufficient power plants and transmission lines to feed a growing economy that is increasingly dependent on reliable and affordable electricity.

This compromise bill includes the essence of my legislation, S. 386, The Bond Fairness and Protection Act that I introduced last year with Senator Kerrey from Nebraska, a bill that includes an additional 32 co-sponsors in the Senate. This legislative language will allow Public Power to move into the future with certainty, and protects the millions of American citizens who hold current investments in Public Power debt.

The bill also includes legislative language that resolves conflicts for investor-owned utilities. These changes are also needed to solve problems in other parts of the outdated tax code as it pertains to electricity. The new provisions will also help contribute to a more reliable and orderly electricity system in our nation.

I look forward to gaining additional support for this bill among the other members of the Senate, and I look forward to the Finance Committee's consideration of this legislation in September. As soon as this legislation can be enacted, American electricity consumers will begin to enjoy a more certain and reliable future regarding their electricity needs.

Mr. KERREY. Mr. President, today I wish to join my colleagues, Senator MURKOWSKI, GORTON, and JEFFORDS in introducing legislation that will help ensure that customers receive reliable and affordable electricity. The Electric Power Industry Tax Modernization Act is the culmination of months-long discussions between shareholder-owned utilities and publicly-owned utilities. Without the diligence and patience exhibited by these groups, it is doubtful that Congress could be in the position to act on this issue. Additionally, I would like to recognize the efforts of Senator Murkowski and Senator Gor-TON, whose efforts at getting these groups to sit down and discuss these issues was invaluable to the final agreement.

Mr. President, this legislation will ensure that Nebraskans continue to benefit from the publicly-owned power they currently receive. Nebraska has 154 not-for-profit community-based public power systems. It is the only state which relies entirely on public power for electricity. This system has served my state well as Nebraskans enjoy some of the lowest electricity rates in the nation.

In closing, I would urge my colleagues to join this bipartisan effort to address the changes steaming from electrical restructuring.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

- "(C) DISTRIBUTIONS OF STOCK TO IMPLEMENT FEDERAL ENERGY REGULATORY COMMISSION OR STATE ELECTRIC RESTRUCTURING POLICY.—
- "(i) IN GENERAL.—Paragraph (1) shall not apply to any distribution that is a qualifying electric transmission transaction. - "(b) LIMITATION ON AMOUNTS PAID INTO
- "(1) IN GENERAL.—The amount which a taxpayer may pay into the Fund for any taxable year during the funding period shall not exceed the level funding amount determined pursuant to subsection (d), except—
- "(A) where the taxpayer is permitted by Federal or State law or regulation (including authorization by a public service commission) to charge customers a greater amount for nuclear decommissioning costs, in which case the taxpayer may pay into the Fund such greater amount, or
- "(B) in connection with the transfer of a nuclear powerplant, where the transferor or transferee (or both) is required pursuant to the terms of the transfer to contribute a greater amount for nuclear decommissioning costs, in which case the transferor or transferee (or both) may pay into the Fund such greater amount.
- "(2) Contributions after funding pe-RIOD.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, a taxpaver may make deductible payments to the Fund in any taxable year between the end of the funding period and the termination of the license issued by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission for the nuclear powerplant to which the Fund relates provided such payments do not cause the assets of the Fund to exceed the nuclear decommissioning costs allocable to the taxpaver's current or former interest in the nuclear powerplant to which the Fund relates. The foregoing limitation shall be applied by taking into account a reasonable rate of inflation for the nuclear decommissioning costs and a reasonable after-tax rate of return on the assets of the Fund until such assets are anticipated to be expended.
- (b) DEDUCTION FOR NUCLEAR DECOMMISSIONING COSTS WHEN PAID.— Paragraph (2) of section 468A(c) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to income and deductions of the taxpayer) is amended to read as follows:

- (c) LEVEL FUNDING AMOUNTS.—Subsection (d) of section 468A of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 is amended to read as follows:
 - "(d) LEVEL FUNDING AMOUNTS.—
- "(1) ANNUAL AMOUNTS.—For purposes of this section, the level funding amount for any taxable year shall equal the annual amount required to be contributed to the Fund in each year remaining in the funding period in order for the Fund to accumulate the nuclear decommissioning costs allocable to the taxpayer's current or former interest in the nuclear powerplant to which the Fund relates. The annual amount described in the preceding sentence shall be calculated by taking into account a reasonable rate of inflation for the nuclear decommissioning costs and a reasonable after-tax rate of return on the assets of the Fund until such assets are anticipated to be expended.

"(2) FUNDING PERIOD.—The funding period for a Fund shall end on the last day of the last taxable year of the expected operating life of the nuclear powerplant.

"(3) NUCLEAR DECOMMISSIONING COSTS.—For purposes of this section—

- "(A) IN GENERAL.—The term 'nuclear decommissioning costs' means all costs to be incurred in connection with entombing, decontaminating, dismantling, removing, and disposing of a nuclear powerplant, and shall include all associated preparation, security, fuel storage, and radiation monitoring costs. Such term shall include all such costs which, outside of the decommissioning context, might otherwise be capital expenditures.
- "(B) IDENTIFICATION OF COSTS.—The taxpayer may identify nuclear decommissioning costs by reference either to a site-specific engineering study or to the financial assurance amount calculated pursuant to section 50.75 of title 10 of the Code of Federal Regulations."
- (d) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to amounts paid after June 30, 2000, in taxable years ending after such date.

By Mr. ALLARD:

S. 2968. A bill to empower communities and individuals by consolidating and reforming the programs of the Department of Housing and Urban Development; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

LOCAL HOUSING OPPORTUNITIES ACT

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, today I am introducing the "Local Housing Opportunities Act", legislation to empower communities and individuals by consolidating and reforming HUD programs. I ask unanimous consent that the following section-by-section description of the bill be printed in the RECORD and that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD following the description.

In 1994, there were 240 separate programs at the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). By 1997, the number of programs had grown to 328. Many of these programs have never been authorized by Congress, and operate under questionable legal authority. While the number of HUD programs has grown, HUD's workforce has declined from 12,000 employees in 1995 to 9,000 employees today. As a result, scarce resources are diverted away from core housing and enforcement programs, dramatically increasing the risks of mismanagement and fraud. HUD remains the only Cabinet level agency designated by the General Accounting Office (GAO) as "High Risk". In order to promote the interests of taxpayers and improve the delivery of services to beneficiaries, Congress should transfer more programs to the States and localities and enact legislation to consolidate, terminate, and streamline HUD programs.

SECTION-BY-SECTION DESCRIPTION

I. Prohibition of Unauthorized Programs at the Department of Housing and Urban Development-Prohibits HUD from carrying out any program that is not explicitly authorized in statute by the Congress. This provision takes effect one year after the effective date to give the Congress sufficient time to authorize those programs that it wishes to maintain. Within 60 days of the date of enactment the Department of Housing and Urban Development shall provide a report detailing every HUD program along with the statutory authorization for that program. This report shall be provided annually to the Senate Committee on Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs, the Senate Subcommittee on Housing and Transportation, the House Committee on Banking and Financial Services. and the House Subcommittee on Housing and Community Opportunity.

II. Elimination of Certain HUD Programs— Terminates certain programs as recommended by the HUD Secretary in the "HUD 2020 Program Repeal and Streamlining Act". The Department has determined that these programs are unnecessary, outdated. or inactive.

Community Investment Corporation Demonstration—never funded, superseded by the Community Development Financial Institutions program administered by the Department of the Treasury.

New Towns Demonstration Program for Emergency Relief of Los Angeles-not funded since FY 1993.

Solar Assistance Financing Entity-not funded in recent years.

Urban Development Action Grants-discontinued program, not funded in recent Certain Special Purpose Grants-not funded since FY 1993 and FY 1995.

Moderate Rehabilitation Assistance in Disasters—no additional assistance for the Moderate Rehabilitation program has been provided (other than for the homeless under the McKinney Act) since FY 1989

Rent Supplement Program—not funded for many years.

National Home Ownership Trust Demonstration-authority expired at the end of Repeal of HOPE I, II, and III—all HOPE funds have been awarded, no additional funding has been requested since FY 1995, and no future funding is anticipated.

Energy Efficiency Demonstration Program, section 961 of NAHA—never funded.

Technical Assistance and Training for IHAs—no funds have been provided for this program since FY 1994.

Termination of the investor mortgages portion of the Section 203(k) rehabilitation mortgage insurance program as ommended by the HUD IG. Investor rehabilitation mortgages constitute approximately 20% of the loans insured under this program. and recent IG audits have found this portion of the program to be particularly vulnerable to fraud and abuse by investor-owners. The larger portion of the program for owner/occupants is retained.

Certificate and Voucher Assistance for Rental Rehabilitation Projects—rental rehabilitation program has been repealed, section 289 of NAHA

Single Family Loan Insurance for Home Improvement Loans in Urban Renewal Areas—unnecessary

Single Family and Multifamily Mortgage Insurance for Miscellaneous Special Situations, section 223 (a)(1)-(6) and (8)-obsolete.

Single Family Mortgage Insurance for socalled "Modified" Graduated Payment Mortgages, section 245 (b)—insurance authority terminated in 1987 but provision never repealed.

War Housing Insurance—authority for new insurance terminated in 1954, but provision never repealed.

Insurance for Investments (Yield Insurance)-program never implemented, but authority and provision never repealed.

National Defense Housing—authority for new insurance terminated in 1954, but provision never repealed.

Rural Homeless Housing Assistance—not funded since FY 1994, all HUD homeless assistance will be part of the McKinney Homeless Assistance Performance Fund created under this legislation.

Innovative Homeless Initiatives onstration-not funded since FY 1995, all HUD homeless assistance will be part of the McKinney Homeless Assistance Performance Fund created under this legislation.

During the remainder of 2000, the Senate Housing and Transportation Subcommittee will hold hearings on this discussion draft. At that time the Subcommittee will solicit the recommendations of the Department, the IG. the GAO, and other organizations for other HUD programs that can be streamlined or eliminated. This legislation also provides for the creation of a "HUD Consolidation Task Force" which will report to the Congress with recommendations on how to reduce the number of programs at HUD through consolidation, termination, transfer to other levels of government.

III. HUD Consolidation Task Force-Mandates the creation of a task force that will focus exclusively on legislative and regulatory options to reduce the number of HUD programs. The task force will consist of three individuals: the Comptroller General of the United States, the HUD Secretary, and the HUD Inspector General. Within six months of the enactment of this legislation, the task force will produce a report outlining options to reduce the number of HUD programs through consolidation, elimination, and transfer to other levels of government. The report will be provided to the Senate and House Housing Subcommittees as well as the Senate and House Banking Committees.

I. Community Development Block Grant Authorization (CDBG) and Prohibition of Set-Asides and Earmarks-Restores local control over the CDBG program by prohibiting Congressional set-asides and earmarks not specifically authorized in statute. The original intent of CDBG was that program dollars would be allocated directly to cities and states according to formula. In FY 1999 over 10 percent of the funds were earmarked for specific projects (the earmarks have increased steadily in recent years). CDBG was last authorized in 1994, this legislation would authorize the program through FY 2005, with an initial authorization of $4,850,000,000 in

II. Community Notification of Opt-Outs-Requires that when HUD receives notice of a Section 8 opt-out that it forward that notice within 10 days to the top elected official for the unit of local government where the property is located. This supplements the requirement in Section 8 (c)(8)(A) of the Housing Act of 1937 that HUD and tenants be notified one year in advance if a Section 8 optout is anticipated.

III. Urban Homestead Requirement-Directs that HUD-held properties that have not been disposed of within six months following acquisition by HUD or a determination that they are substandard or unoccupied, shall be made available upon written request for sale or donation to local governments or Community Development Corporations (CDCs).

IV. Permanent "Moving To Work" Authorization-Continues the deregulation of Public Housing Authorities (PHAs) by opening the "Moving To Work" program to all PHAs. This program was authorized as a demonstration in the 1996 VA/HUD Appropriation bill and granted up to 30 PHAs the option to receive HUD funds as a block grant. The program provides autonomy from HUD micromanagement and the freedom to innovate with reforms such as work requirements. time limits, job training, and Home ownership assistance. The Secretary shall approve an application under this program for all but the lowest performing PHAs unless the Secretary makes a written determination, within 60 days after receiving the application, that the application fails to comply with the statutory provisions authorizing the "Moving to Work" program.
Consolidate HUD Homeless Assistance

Funds into the "McKinney Homeless Assistance Performance Fund"-Combines HUD's McKinney programs (Supportive Housing Program, Shelter Plus Care, Section 8 Moderate Rehabilitation for Single Room Occupancy Dwellings, Safe Havens, Rural Homeless Housing Assistance, and the Emergency Shelter Grants), into a single McKinnev Homeless Assistance Performance Fund (and authorizes funding through FY 2003, at an initial level of $1,050,000,000 in FY 2001). Distributes funds according to the CDBG block grant formula with 70 percent to units of local government and 30 percent to states.

Eligible units of local government include metropolitan cities, urban counties, and consortia. The formula is to be reviewed after one year with a statutory requirement that HUD provide alternative formulas for the Congress to consider. State funds are available for use in areas throughout the entire state. Codifies and requires a Continuum of Care system by grant recipients. The Continuum of Care submission is linked with the Consolidated Plan. Every three dollars of federal block grant money is to be matched with one dollar of state or local money. Funds qualifying for the match are the same as those currently permitted under the Emergency Shelter Grants program, and would include salaries paid to staff, volunteer labor, and the value of a lease on a building. There is a five year transition period-state and local governments would receive no less than 90 percent of prior award amounts (average for FY 96-99) in the first year after enactment, 85 percent in the second year after enactment, 80 percent in the third and fourth year after enactment, and 75 percent in the fifth year after enactment. Eligible projects and activities include emergency assistance, safe haven housing, transitional housing, permanent housing, supportive services for persons with disabilities, single room occupancy housing, prevention, outreach and assessment, acquisition and rehabilitation of property, new construction, operating costs, leasing, tenant assistance, supportive services, administrative (generally limited to 10 percent of funds), capacity building, targeting to subpopulations of persons with disabilities. Performance measures and benchmarks are included, along with periodic performance reports, reviews, and audits.

I. Mutual and Self-Help Housing Technical Assistance and Training Grants Program— Reauthorizes technical assistance grants to facilitate the construction of self-help housing in rural areas. Program beneficiaries are required to contribute a significant amount of sweat equity to the construction of the homes that they will own. Authorizes funding of $40 million for FY 2001 and 2002, and $45 million for FY 2003-2005

II. Improve the Rural Housing Repair Loan Program for the Elderly-Increases the amount for which a promissory note is considered a sufficient security for housing repairs from $2,500 to $7,500.

III. Enhance Efficiency of Rural Housing Preservation Grants—Eliminates the existing statutory requirement that prohibits a State from obligating more than 50 percent of its Housing Preservation Grants allocation to any one grantee. Many states receive only a small amount from this formula program. In many cases the money can only be most effectively invested in one project.

IV. Project Accounting Records and Practices—Requires section 515 rural housing borrowers to maintain records in accordance with GAAP (Generally Accepted Accounting Principles).

V. Operating Assistance for Migrant Farm-worker Projects Authority—Permits rural housing operating assistance payments in migrant and seasonal farm labor housing complexes.

I. Authorization of Appropriations for Rental Vouchers for Relocation of Witnesses and Victims of Crime-Authorizes specific funding for vouchers for victims and witnesses of crime. These vouchers were authorized in the Quality Housing and Work Responsibility Act of 1998 (QHWRA). No funds have yet been appropriated and HUD has yet to write regulations. The current authorization directs the Secretary to make available such sums as may be necessary for the relocation of families residing in public housing who are victims of a crime of violence reported to an appropriate law enforcement authority, and requires that PHAs notify tenants of the availability of such funds. This legislation would authorize a funding level in each of FY 2001-2005 of $25,000,000.

II. Revise the HUD Lease Addendum—Prohibits the HUD lease addendum from overriding local law. Participating housing providers and residents sign a three-party lease along with the public housing authority. The law requires the attachment of a HUD Lease Addendum (HUD Form 52647.3) which overrides some local market provisions and practices, holding the voucher resident to a nonstandard lease contract. The use of federally promulgated forms that counter local practice incurs additional training, legal and management costs. The voucher lease addendum shall be nullified to the extent that it conflicts with State or local law.

III. Reduce the Burden of Housing Quality Standard Inspections—Provides the option that Housing Quality Standard inspections be conducted on a property basis rather than a unit basis. Currently each individual unit that is rented under the program must be inspected for compliance with HUD's Housing Quality Standards. Individual inspections are a time-consuming administrative headache for PHAs and Section 8 landlords, result in slow unit turnover, and significant lost revenue. This legislation provides the Section 8 landlord with the option to have annual inspections conducted on a property or building basis, rather than a unit basis. IV. HUD Report to the Congress on Ways to Improve the Voucher Program—Requires that the HUD Secretary solicit comments and recommendations for improvement in the voucher program through notice in the Federal Register. Six months after enactment, the Secretary shall submit to the House and Senate Housing Subcommittees and the House and Senate Banking Committees a summary of the recommendations received by the Secretary regarding suggestions for improvement in the voucher program.

I. Reauthorize the Self-Help Homeownership Opportunity Program (SHOP)—Reauthorizes the SHOP program which provides funding for land and infrastructure purchases to facilitate self-help housing. Utilized by Habitat for Humanity and the Housing Assistance Council. Reauthorize through FY 2005, beginning with $25 million in FY 2001. Adds new language allowing an additional year to use funds for local groups building five or more homes (increase from two years to three years), and also making it possible for local and national non-profit organizations using SHOP funds to advance their own money to purchase property, pending the environmental review approvals, to be repaid from federal funds after the environmental reviews have been approved.

II Capacity Building for Community Development and Affordable Housing Program—Reauthorizes and increases grants to non-profits to expand affordable housing capacity. Presently authorized for The Enterprise Foundation, Local Initiatives Support Corporation. Habitat for Humanity. Youthbuild USA, and the National Community Development Initiative. Expands access to this program to include the "National Association of Housing Partnerships" and authorizes a funding level of $40 million for each of FY 2001-2003. Amounts must be matched three to one from other sources.

III. Work Requirement for Public Housing Residents: Coordinate Federal Housing Assistance with State Welfare Reform Work Programs-Requires that able-bodied and non-elderly public housing residents be in compliance with the work requirements of welfare reform in their state. Those unable to comply would be provided the opportunity to engage in community service or participate in an economic self-sufficiency program. There is substantial overlap in families receiving welfare and those benefitting from assisted housing. Among families with children, it is estimated that 72 percent of those who live in public housing receive some type of welfare. These families are currently subject to Welfare Reform work requirements and this provision simply applies the requirement to the remaining able-bodied recipients of federal housing assistance. Public housing was originally conceived as temporary assistance for working low-income families to help them during times of financial distress. Recent housing legislation has recognized this fact by placing increasing emphasis on self-sufficiency. These efforts should be coordinated with the self sufficiency efforts of Welfare Reform, PHAs. shall monitor compliance with the state work requirement. There shall be an exception for the elderly and disabled, and as with Welfare Reform, there will be a broad definition of work including; employment, community service, vocational and job training, work associated with self help housing construction, refurbishing publicly assisted housing, the provision of certain child care services, and participation in education programs or economic self-sufficiency programs. This work requirement will replace the 8 hour per month "Community Service" Requirement that exists in current law for residents of public housing. Public Housing Authorities shall not be prohibited by this legislation from implementing more stringent work requirements and States electing the housing assistance block grant would be excluded from this requirement and be free to design their own self-sufficiency requirements.

IV. Flexible Use of CDBG Funds to Maintain Properties—Amends Section 105(a)(23) of the Housing and Community Development Act, which currently authorizes use of CDBG funding for activities necessary to make essential repairs and payment of operating expenses needed to maintain the habitability of housing units acquired through tax fore-closure proceedings in order to prevent abandonment and deterioration of such housing in primarily low- and moderate-income neighborhoods. This language is amended to permit the use of CDBG funds for property upkeep in instances in which a court has wrested effective control of a distressed residential property from the owner and appointed a responsible third party (often a non-profit organization or other owner/manager of properties in the area) to operate the property on an interim basis as administrator, although legal title remains with the original owner original owner.

IV. Allows Vouchers in Grandfamily Housing Assisted with HOME Dollars—Permits flexible use of Section 8 vouchers in Grandfamily Housing assisted with HOME dollars. Current law restricts the level of Section 8 assistance that may be used in projects assisted with HOME funds. This legislation creates an exception to the general rule for projects designed to benefit Grandfamilies, by permitting the use of Section 8 vouchers at the Fair Market Rent (FMR) level by Grandparents choosing to live in low income housing projects assisted with HOME dollars. This change is designed to assist low-income, elderly residents and their grandchildren for whom they provide full-time care and custody.

V. Simplified FHA Downpayment Calculation.—Makes permanent the temporary simplified FHA downpayment calculation provided in section 203(b) of the National Housing Act. The current downpayment calculation on FHA loans is needlessly complex. Recent appropriations bills have included a simplified pilot program that replaces the current multi-part formula with a single calculation based solely on the appraised value of the property. The simplified formula yields substantially the same downpayment result as the multi-part formula.

VI. Authorize the Use of Section 8 Funds for Downpayment Assistance—Permits tenants to receive up to one year's worth of Section 8 assistance in a lump sum to be used toward the down payment on a home. This compliments innovative programs that allow the use of Section 8 assistance for mortgage payments.

VII. Reauthorize the Neighborhood Reinvestment Corporation through 2003—Reauthorizes the Neighborhood Reinvestment Corporation, a congressionally chartered, public non-profit corporation established in 1978 to revitalize declining lower-income communities and provide affordable housing. Funding is authorized at $90 million in FY 2001, and $95 million in each of FY 2002 and 2003.

Provides States the option to receive certain federal assisted housing funds (tenant assistance programs) in the form of a block grant. Modeled on Welfare Reform, this would give States the freedom to innovate absent HUD micro-management. States accepted into the program would sign a five year performance agreement with the federal government that details how the State intends to combine and use housing assistance funds from programs included in the performance agreement to advance low income housing priorities, improve the quality of low income housing, reduce homelessness, and encourage economic opportunity and self-sufficiency. States electing the block grant would determine how funds are distributed to state agencies, Public Housing Authorities, project owners, and tenants. During the first year of the performance agreement States would receive the highest of the prior three years funding for each program included in the performance agreement. There would then be an annual inflation adjustment in each future year until Congress (following consultation with HUD) enacts a formula that reflects the relative low-income/affordable housing needs of each State. A performance agreement submitted to the Secretary would have to be approved by the Secretary unless the Secretary makes a written determination, within 60 days after receiving the performance agreement, that the performance agreement fails to comply with provisions of the Act. Eligible programs for inclusion in the block grant shall include: the voucher program for rental assistance under section 8(o) of the United States Housing Act of 1937; the programs for project-based assistance under section 8 of the United States Housing Act of 1937; the program for housing for the elderly under section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959; the program for housing for persons with disabilities under section 811 of the Cranston-Gonzales National Affordable Housing Act. The distribution of block granted funds within the State from programs included in the performance agreement shall be determined by the Legislature and the Governor of the State. In a State in which the constitution or state law designates another individual. entity, or agency to be responsible for housing, such other individual, entity, or agency shall work in consultation with the Governor and Legislature to determine the local distribution of funds. Existing contracts involving federal housing dollars shall be honored by the States until their expiration. States shall at such point handle the renewal of all contracts. A State may not use more than 3 percent of the total amount of funds allocated to such State under the programs included in the performance agreement for administrative purposes. Performance criteria shall include at a minimum a measure of; the improvement in housing conditions, the number of units that pass housing quality inspections, the number of residents that find employment and move to self-sufficiency, the level of crime against residents, the level of homelessness, the level of poverty, the cost of assisted housing units provided, the level of assistance provided to people with disabilities and to the elderly, success in maintaining the stock of affordable housing, and increasing homeownership. If at the end of the 5-year term of the performance agreement a State has failed to meet at least 80 percent of the performance goals submitted in the performance agreement, the Secretary shall terminate the performance agreement and the State or community shall be required to comply with the program requirement, in effect at the time of termination, of each program included in the performance agreement. To reward States that make significant progress in meeting performance goals, the HUD Secretary shall annually set aside sufficient funds to grant a reward of up to 5 percent of the funds allocated to participating States.

Sense of the Congress Supporting Tax Incentives

SENSE OF THE CONGRESS THAT THE LOW INCOME HOUSING TAX CREDIT STATE CEILINGS AND THE PRIVATE ACTIVITY BOND CAPS SHOULD BE INCORE ASED

It is the sense of the Congress that the Low Income Housing Tax Credit and Private Activity Bonds have been valuable resources in the effort to increase affordable housing

It is the sense of the Congress that the Low Income Housing Tax Credit and Private Activity Bonds effectively utilize the ability of the states to deliver resources to the areas of greatest need within their jurisdictions.

It is the sense of the Congress that the value of the Low Income Housing Tax Credit and the Private Activity Bonds have been eroded by inflation.

Therefore, be it resolved, That the Low Income Housing Tax Credit State Ceilings should be increased by forty percent in the year 2000, and that the level of the state ceilings should be adjusted annually to account for increases in the cost-of-living, and

That the Private Activity Bond Caps should be increased by fifty percent in the year 2000, and that the value of the caps should be adjusted annually to account for increases in the cost-of-living.

I. Tighten Language on Lobbying Restrictions on HUD employees-Prohibits employees at HUD from lobbying, or attempting to influence legislation before the Congress. This language is based on current restrictions on Department of Interior employees. By Mr. WYDEN:

S. 2970. A bill to provide for summer academic enrichment programs, and for the purposes; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

THE STUDENT EDUCATION ENRICHMENT DEVELOPMENT ACT

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, approximately 3.4 million students entered kindergarten in U.S. public schools last fall, and experts predict wildly different futures for them. Many children do well throughout elementary school, only to slip and fall between the cracks middle school. This so-called in "achievement gap" opens wide in middle school and grows throughout high school if nothing is done to stop it.

Raising test scores in K-12 education has brought the achievement-gap issue to the forefront of the national education debate and created a new opportunity to support those states that are making a real effort to improve student achievement. But trying to close the gap by simply bumping up test standards only pushes kids out of school rather than across the gap.

Few have really looked at the most logical place to begin to close the gap: summer school. Students take their achievement tests in April but have to return to school in the Fall. Summer school is one place to begin helping students close the gap, yet the Federal government does nothing to create and support successful summer academic programs.

The legislation I am introducing today, the Student Education Enrichment Development Act, or SEED Act, will leverage summer academic programs to boost student performance. SEED will support all struggling students by providing the first federal funds to backstop state and local efforts to develop, plan, implement, and operate high quality summer academic enrichment programs.

The disparity in school performance tied to race and ethnicity, known as the achievement gap, shows up in grades, test scores, course selection, and college completion. To a large extent, these factors predict a student's success in school, whether a student will go to college, and how much money the student will earn when he or she enters the working world. It happens in cities and in suburbs and in rural school districts. The gaps are so pronounced that in 1996, several national tests found African-American and Hispanic 12th graders scoring at roughly the same levels in reading and math as white 8th graders. By 2019, when they are 24 years old, current trends indicate that the white children who are now nearing the end of their first year in school will be twice as likely as their African-American classmates, and three times as likely as Hispanics, to have a college degree.

In Oregon last year, only 52 percent of the tenth graders met the state's standard for reading, while only 36 percent met the standard for math. But students in Oregon are actually doing better than the national average. More than two-thirds of American highschool seniors graduated last year without being able to read at a proficient level. Results like these are the reason we need SEED.

This week's Time Magazine reports that at least 25 percent of our U.S. school districts are mandating summer school for struggling students—twice that number in poor urban areas. While these programs are helping some students, the results should be better. Only 40 percent of New York students who failed state exams and completed summer school passed on the state exam on their second attempt. In the Pacific Northwest, Seattle canceled its summer program after students made only meager academic gains. I ask unanimous consent that the article from Time magazine be included in the record at the conclusion of my statement.

Schools should strive to meet higher standards, and we should have high expectations for every child. But our kids should not be punished because our education system has failed them. It's time to make sure every child learns and succeeds. According to a recent study, more than half of our teachers promoted unprepared students because the current system does not provide adequate options.

High-quality summer academic programs would give struggling students a chance to succeed in a system that has failed them and help reverse the trend of poor student performance by preparing students to succeed where they have previously failed. Over the past years, we've heard a lot of rhetoric about education, but empty promises won't help our kids learn. Our children deserve more.

I am pleased to be joined by Senators LANDRIEU, BREAUX and BAYH in introducing the bill today, and ask unanimous consent that my statement and a copy of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2970

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Student Education Enrichment Demonstration Act". SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress finds that-

- (1) States are establishing new and higher academic standards for students in kindergarten through grade 12;
- (2) no Federal funding streams are specifically designed to help States and school districts with the costs of providing students who are struggling academically, with the extended learning time and accelerated curricula that the students need to meet high academic standards;
- (3) forty-eight States now require State accountability tests to determine student grade-level performance and progress;
- (4) nineteen States currently rate the performance of all schools or identify low-performing schools through State accountability tests:
- (5) sixteen States now have the power to close, take over, or overhaul chronically failing schools on the basis of those tests;
- (6) fourteen States provide high-performing schools with monetary rewards on the basis of those tests;
- (7) nineteen States currently require students to pass State accountability tests to graduate from high school;
- (8) six States currently link student promotion to results on State accountability

- (9) excessive percentages of students are not meeting their State standards and are failing to perform at high levels on State accountability tests; and
- (10) while the Chicago Public School District implemented the Summer Bridge Program to help remediate their students in 1997, no State has yet created and implemented a similar program to complement the education accountability programs of the State.

SEC. 3. PURPOSE.

The purpose of this Act is to provide Federal support through a new demonstration program to States and local educational agencies, to enable the States and agencies to develop models for high quality summer academic enrichment programs that are specifically designed to help public school students who are not meeting State-determined performance standards.

By Mr. HARKIN:

S. 2971. A bill to amend the Clean Air Act to phase out the use of methyl tertiary butyl ether in fuels or fuel additives, to promote the use of renewable fuels, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

CLEAN AND RENEWABLE FUELS ACT OF 2000

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President. I am introducing today legislation designed to address the extensive problems that have been caused by the gasoline additive methyl tertiary butyl ether (MTBE) and to make appropriate revisions to the reformulated gasoline (RFG) program in the Clean Air Act.

It has become absolutely clear that MTBE has to go. Even in Iowa, where we are not required to have oxygenated fuels or RFG, a recent survey found a surprising level of water contamination with MTBE. So my legislation requires a phased reduction in the use of MTBE in motor fuel and then a prohibition on MTBE in fuel of fuel additives beginning three years after enactment. Retail pumps dispensing gasoline with MTBE would be labeled so that consumers know what they are buying. And in order to facilitate an orderly phase-out of MTBE. EPA may establish a credit trading system for the dispensing and sale of MTBE.

My legislation recognizes the benefits that have been provided by the oxygen content requirement in the reformulated gasoline program. Oxygen added to gasoline reduces emissions of carbon monoxide, toxic compounds and fine particulate matter. So my legislation continues the oxygen content requirement, but it does allow for certain actions that would alleviate concerns about whether alternative oxygen additives will be available after MTBE is removed from gasoline. The bill allows for averaging of the oxygen content upon a proper showing and it also would allow for a temporary reduction or waiver of the minimum oxygen content requirement in very limited circumstances.

The legislation also ensures that all health benefits of the reformulated gasoline program are maintained and improved. The bill includes very strong provisions to ensure that there is no backsliding in air quality and health benefits from cleaner burning reformulated gasoline. The petroleum companies would also be prohibited from taking the pollutants from gasoline in some areas and putting them back into gasoline in other areas of the country that are not subject to the more stringent air quality standards. Those are referred to as the anti-dumping protections. My bill places tighter restrictions on highly polluting aromatic and olefin content of reformulated gaso-

My legislation also recognizes the important role of renewable fuels in improving our environment, building energy security for our nation, and increasing farm income, economic growth and job creation, especially in rural areas. The legislation creates a renewable content requirement for gasoline and for diesel fuel.

Overall, this legislation will get MTBE out of gasoline, maintain and improve the air quality and health benefits of the reformulated gasoline program and the Clean Air Act, and put our nation on a solid path toward greater use of renewable fuels.

I ask unanimous consent that a section-by-section summary of my legislation be printed in the RECORD. I urge my colleagues to support this important legislation.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

SECTION-BY-SECTION SUMMARY—CLEAN AND RENEWABLE FUELS ACT OF 2000

Section 1. Short title

The bill may be cited as the "Clean and Renewable Fuels Act of 2000"

Section 2. Use and cleanup of methyl tertiary butul ether

Prohibition Except in Specified Nonattainment Areas: Section 211(c) of the Clean Air Act is amended to provide that beginning January 1, 2001, a person shall not sell or dispense to ultimate consumers any fuel or fuel additive containing MTBE in any area that is not a specified nonattainment area in which reformulated gasoline is required to be used and in which MTBE was used to meet the oxygen content requirement prior to January 1, 2000.

Interim Period for Use of MTBE: The Administrator shall issue regulations requiring, during the one-year period beginning one year after enactment, a one-third reduction in the quantity of MTBE that may be sold or dispensed for use in a fuel or fuel additive, and during the one-year period beginning two years after enactment, a two-thirds reduction in the quantity of MTBE that may be sold or dispensed for use in a fuel or fuel additive. In no area may the quantity of MTBE sold or dispensed for use as a fuel or fuel additive increase.

Basis for Reductions; Equitable Treatment: The basis for reductions shall be the quantity of MTBE sold or dispensed for use as a fuel or fuel additive in the United States during the one-year period ending on the date of enactment. The regulations requiring such reductions shall to the maximum extent practicable provide for equitable treatment on a geographical basis and among manufacturers, refiners, distributors and retailers.

Trading of Authorizations to Sell or Dispense MTBE: To facilitate the most orderly and efficient reduction in the use of MTBE, the regulations may allow the sale and purchase of authorizations to sell or dispense MTBE for use in a fuel or fuel additive.

Labeling: The Administrator shall issue regulations requiring any person selling or dispensing gasoline that contains MTBE at retail prominently to label the gasoline dispensing system with a notice stating that the gasoline contains MTBE and providing such information concerning the human health and environmental risks of MTBE as the Administrator determines appropriate.

Prohibition on Use of MTBE or Other Ethers: Effective three years after enactment, a person shall not manufacture, introduce into commerce, offer for sale, sell, or dispense a fuel or fuel additive containing MTBE or any other ether compound. The Administrator may waive the prohibition on an ether compound other than MTBE upon a determination that it does not pose a significant risk to human health or the environment. The Administrator may require a more rapid reduction (including immediate termination) of the quantity of MTBE sold or dispensed in an area upon a determination of MTBE contamination or a substantial risk or contamination.

State Authority to Regulate MTBE: A State may impose such restrictions, including a prohibition, on the manufacture, sale or use of MTBE in a fuel or fuel additive as the State determines appropriate to protect human health and the environment.

Remedial Action Regarding MTBE Contamination: MTBE contamination would be prioritized in state source water assessment programs. EPA shall issue guidelines for MTBE cleanup and may enter into cooperative agreements for, and provide technical assistance to support, voluntary pilot programs for the cleanup of MTBE and the protection of private wells from MTBE contamination.

 $Section \ 3. \ Reformulated \ gasoline—in \ general; \\ oxygen \ content$

Opt-in Areas; General Provisions: Regulations issued for the reformulated gasoline program shall apply to specified nonattainment areas and opt-in areas. The regulations shall require the greatest possible reduction in emissions of ozone forming volatile organic and other compounds and emissions of toxic air pollutants and precursors of toxic air pollutants.

Waiver of Per-Gallon Oxygen Content Requirement: The Administrator shall issue regulations establishing a procedure providing for the submission of applications for a waiver of any per-gallon oxygen content requirement otherwise established and the averaging of oxygen content over an appropriate period of time, not exceeding a year. After consultation with the Secretary of Energy and the Secretary of Agriculture, the Administrator shall grant a petition for oxygen averaging where necessary to avoid a shortage or disruption in supply of reformulated gasoline, to avoid excessive prices for reformulated gasoline, or to facilitate attainment by the area of a national ambient air quality standard. The Administrator shall ensure that the human health and environmental benefits of the reformulated gasoline program are fully maintained during the period of any waiver.

Temporary Reduction of Oxygen Content Requirement: Upon application of a state, if the Secretary of Energy with the concurrence of the Secretary of Agriculture finds that there is an insufficient supply of oxygenates in an area the Administrator may temporarily reduce or waive the oxygen content requirement for the area to the extent necessary to ensure an adequate supply of reformulated gasoline. A temporary waiver would be effective for 90 days, or a shorter period if a sufficient supply of oxygenates exists, and may be extended for an additional 90-day period. The regulations shall ensure that the human health and environmental benefits of the reformulated gasoline program are fully maintained during the period of any temporary waiver of the oxygen content requirement.

Section 4. Limitations on aromatics and olefins in reformulated gasoline

Aromatic Content: The aromatic hydrocarbon content of reformulated gasoline shall not exceed 22 percent by volume; the average aromatic hydrocarbon content shall not exceed the average aromatic hydrocarbon content of reformulated gasoline sold in either calendar year 1999 or calendar year 2000; and no gallon of reformulated gasoline shall have an aromatic hydrocarbon content in excess of 30 percent.

Olefin Content: The olefin content of reformulated gasoline shall not exceed 8 percent by volume; the average olefin content shall not exceed the average olefin content of reformulated gasoline sold in either calendar year 1999 or calendar year 2000; and no gallon of reformulated gasoline shall have an olefin content in excess of 10 percent.

Section 5. Reformulated gasoline performance standards

Emissions of Volatile Organic Compounds: Required reductions in VOC emissions shall be on a mass basis and, to the maximum extent practicable using available science, on the basis of ozone forming potential of VOCs and taking into account the effect on ozone formation of reducing carbon monoxide emissions.

Emissions of Toxic Air Pollutants and Precursors: The required reductions shall apply to toxic air pollutants or precursors of toxic air pollutants. The required emissions reductions shall be on a mass basis and, to the maximum extent practicable using available science, on the basis of relative toxicity or carcinogenic potency, whichever is more protective of human health and the environment

Section 6. Anti-backsliding

Ozone Forming Potential: The Administrator shall revise performance standards to ensure that the ozone forming potential, taking into account all ozone precursors, of the aggregate emissions during the high ozone season from baseline vehicles using reformulated gasoline does not exceed the ozone forming potential of emissions when using reformulated gasoline that complies with the regulations in effect on January 1, 2000

Specified Pollutants: The Administrator shall revise performance standards to ensure that the aggregate emissions of specified pollutants or their precursors when using reformulated gasoline do not exceed the aggregate emissions of such pollutants or precursors from baseline vehicles when using reformulated gasoline that complies with the regulations in effect on January 1, 2000. The specified air pollutants are toxic air pollutants, categorized by degree of toxicity and carcinogenic potency; particulate matter and fine particulate matter; pollutants regulated under section 108; and such other pollutants as the Administrator determines should be controlled to prevent deterioration of air quality and to achieve attainment of a national ambient air quality standard in one or more areas.

Adjustments for Carbon Monoxide Emissions: In carrying out the ozone anti-backsliding requirement, the Administrator shall adjust the performance standard to take into account carbon monoxide emissions that are greater or less than the carbon monoxide emissions achieved by reformulated gasoline containing 2 percent oxygen by weight and meeting other performance standards. An adjustment to the VOC emission reduction requirements under the provisions of this section shall be credited toward the requirement for VOC emissions reductions under section 182 of the Clean Air Act.

Updating of Baseline Vehicles: Not later than 3 years after enactment, the Administrator shall revise the performance standards to redefine the term "baseline vehicles" as used in the anti-backsliding provisions to mean vehicles representative of vehicles (including off-road vehicles) in use as of January 1, 2000.

Section 7. Certification of fuels

Combined Reductions of Ozone Forming VOCs and Carbon Monoxide: In certifying a fuel formulation or slate of fuel formulations as equivalent to reformulated gasoline, the Administrator shall determine whether the combined reductions in emissions of VOCs and carbon monoxide result in a reduction in ozone concentration equivalent to or greater than the reduction achieved by a reformulated gasoline meeting the statutory formula and performance requirements. A certified fuel formulation or slate of fuel formulations shall receive the same VOC reduction credit under section 182 as a reformulated gasoline meeting the statutory formula and performance requirements.

Carbon Monoxide Credit: In determining combined reductions in emissions of VOCs and carbon monoxide by a fuel formulation or slate of fuel formulations the Administrator shall consider the change in carbon monoxide emissions from baseline vehicles attributable to an oxygen content that exceeds any minimum oxygen content for reformulated gasoline applicable to the area and may consider the change in carbon monoxide emissions attributable to such oxygen content from vehicles other than baseline vehicles.

Toxic Air Pollutants and Precursors: To be certified as equivalent to reformulated gasoline, the fuel or slate of fuels must achieve equivalent or greater reduction in emissions of toxic air pollutants or precursors of toxic air pollutants than are achieved by a reformulated gasoline meeting the statutory formula and performance requirements.

Certification Subject to Anti-Backsliding Rules: The provisions on certification would clearly specify that a requirement for certification of a fuel formulation or slate of fuel formulations is compliance with the anti-backsliding provisions.

Section 8. Additional opt-in areas

Upon application of the Governor of a State, the Administrator shall apply the requirements relating to reformulated gasoline in any area of the State that is not a covered area or a classified area. The application shall be published in the Federal Register as soon as practicable after it is received.

Section 9. Anti-dumping protections

Updating Baseline Year; Additional Pollutants Covered: The Administrator shall issue regulations to ensure that gasoline sold or introduced into commerce by a refiner, blender or importer (other than gasoline covered by the reformulated gasoline rules) does not result in average per-gallon emissions of VOCs, oxides of nitrogen, carbon monoxide, toxic air pollutants, particulate matter, fine particulate matter, or any precursor of such pollutants, in excess of the emissions of each pollutants attributable to gasoline sold or introduced into commerce by the refiner, blender or importer in calendar year 1999 or calendar year 2000, in whichever year the lower emissions occurred. In the absence of adequate and reliable data for a refiner, blender or importer for calendar year 1999 or calendar year 2000, the Administrator shall substitute baseline gasoline for 1999 or 2000 gasoline.

Average Per-Gallon Emissions: In applying the anti-dumping provisions, average pergallon emissions shall be measured on the basis of mass, and to the maximum extent practicable using available science, on the basis of ozone-forming potential, degree of toxicity and carcinogenic potency.

Aromatic Hydrocarbon and Olefin Content: Anti-dumping requirements also apply to ensure against increases in aromatic hydrocarbon or olefin content of gasoline relative to the levels in calendar year 1999 or calendar year 2000, in whichever year the content was lower

Anti-Dumping Compliance: The Administrator shall issue regulations providing that an increase in oxides of nitrogen or volatile organic compounds caused by adding oxygenates may be offset by an equal or greater reduction in emissions of VOCs, carbon monoxide or toxic air pollutants. In making this determination, the Administrator shall measure emissions on the basis of mass, and to the maximum extent practicable using available science, on the basis of ozone-forming potential, degree of toxicity and carcinogenic potency.

Section 10. Renewable content of gasoline and diesel fuel

Renewable Content of Gasoline: Not later than September 1, 2000, the Administrator shall issue regulations requiring each refiner, blender or importer of gasoline to comply with renewable content requirements. On a quarterly basis, all gasoline sold or introduced into commerce shall contain the applicable percentage of fuel derived from a renewable source. The applicable percentages increase from 1.3 percent in 2000, to 2.4 percent in 2004 (coinciding with the expected prohibition of MTBE by late 2003) and to 4.2 percent in 2010 and thereafter.

Fuel Derived From A Renewable Source: The definition of fuel derived from a renewable source includes fuel produced from agricultural commodities, products and their residues; plant materials, including grasses, fibers, wood and wood residues; dedicated energy crops and trees; animal wastes, byproducts and other materials of animal origin; municipal wastes and refuse derived from plant or animal sources; and other biomass that is used to replace or reduce the quantity of fossil fuel in a fuel mixture used to operate a motor vehicle, motor vehicle engine, nonroad vehicle, or nonroad engine.

Credit Program: The Administrator shall establish a program for renewable fuel credit trading on a quarterly average basis. The Administrator, in consultation with the Secretary of Energy and the Secretary of Agriculture, may issue regulations governing the generation and trading of such credits in order to prevent excessive geographical concentration in the use of fuel derived from renewable sources that would tend unduly to affect the price, supply or distribution of such fuels; impede the development of the renewable fuels industry; or otherwise interfere with the purposes of the renewable fuel content requirement.

Waiver: A waiver from the renewable content requirement may be granted for an area in whole or in part after consultation with the Secretary of Agriculture and the Secretary of Energy. The waiver may only be granted for an area upon a determination that the renewable content requirement would severely harm the economy or environment of the area, or there is inadequate domestic supply or distribution capacity with respect to fuels from renewable sources and only after a determination that use of the credit trading program would not alleviate the circumstances on which the petition is based. A waiver shall terminate after one year, or at such earlier time as is determined appropriate by the Administrator, but may be renewed after consultation with the Secretary of Agriculture and the Secretary of Energy.

Labeling: The Administrator shall issue guidance to the States for labeling at the point of retail sale of fuel derived from a renewable source and the major fuel additive components of the fuel.

Reports to Congress: Concerning the renewable content requirement, the Administrator shall report to Congress at least every 3 years (1) regarding reductions in emissions of air pollutants; (2) in consultation with the Secretary of Agriculture, regarding the impact on demand for farm commodities, biomass and other material used for producing fuel derived from renewable sources; the adequacy of food and feed supplies; and the effect upon farm income, employment and economic growth, particularly in rural areas; and (3) in consultation with the Secretary of Energy, describing greenhouse gas emission reductions and assessing the effect on U.S. energy security and reliance on imported pe-

Renewable Content of Diesel Fuel: Not later than September 1, 2000, the Administrator shall issue regulations applicable to each refiner, blender, or importer of diesel fuel to ensure that diesel fuel sold or introduced into commerce in the United States complies with renewable content requirements. The Administrator shall establish requirements for the content of diesel fuel that is derived from renewable sources similar to the requirements of the program for gasoline, using the same definition of fuel derived from a renewable source. The regulations shall establish applicable percentages by volume for renewable content for diesel fuel on a quarterly basis, require a gradual increase in the renewable content of diesel fuel, and require that for calendar year 2010 and thereafter the applicable percentage shall be 1.0 percent. The regulations shall provide for credit trading and waiver applications on similar terms to those of the program for gasoline.

Prevention of effects on Highway Apportionments: States would be protected from any adverse impacts as a consequence of the sale and use within a State of ethanol in determining the payments attributable to a State paid into the Highway Trust Fund and the minimum guarantee based on payments into the Highway Trust Fund.

By Mr. KERRY (for himself, Mr. GRASSLEY, Mr. SARBANES, Mr. LEVIN, and Mr. ROCKEFELLER):

S. 2972. A bill to combat international money laundering and protect the United States financial system, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

THE INTERNATIONAL COUNTER-MONEY LAUN-DERING AND FOREIGN ANTICORRUPTION ACT

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, I believe the United States must do more to stop international criminals from washing the blood off their profits from the sale of drugs, from terror or from organized crime by laundering money into the United States financial system.

That is why today, along with Senators Grassley, Sarbanes, Levin, and ROCKEFELLER, I am introducing the International Counter-Money Laundering and Foreign Anticorruption Act of 2000 which will give the Secretary of the Treasury the tools to crack down on international money laundering havens and protect the integrity of the U.S. financial system from the influx of tainted money from abroad.

I very much appreciate work of the Secretary of Treasury Lawrence Summers in the development of this legislation. Secretary Summers has been a leader in bringing the issue of money laundering to the attention of the American public and the Congress. Earlier this year, Secretary Summers said, "The attack on money laundering is an essential front in the war on narcotics and the broader fight against organized crime worldwide. Money laundering may look like a polite form of white collar crime, but it is the companion of brutality, deceit and corruption."

I am deeply saddened that I will not have the pleasure of working with Senator Paul Coverdell, who was to be the primary cosponsor of this legislation. His passing is a tremendous loss to the both to the American people and the U.S. Senate.

Money laundering is the financial side of international crime. It occurs when criminals seek to disguise money that was illegally obtained. It allows terrorists, drug cartels, organized crime groups, corrupt foreign government officials and others to preserve the profit from their illegal activities and to finance new crimes. It provides the fuel that allows criminal organizations to conduct their ongoing affairs. It has a corrosive effect on international markets and financial institutions. Money launderers rely upon the existence of jurisdictions outside the United States that offer bank secrecy and special tax or regulatory advantages to non-residents, and often complement those advantages with weak financial supervision and regulatory regimes.

Today, the global volume of laundered money is estimated to be 2-5 percent of global Gross Domestic Product, between $600 billion and $1.5 trillion. The effects of money laundering extend far beyond the parameters of law enforcement, creating international political issues while generating domestic political crises.

International criminals have taken advantage of the advances in technology and the weak financial supervision in some jurisdictions to place their illicit funds into the United States financial system. Globalization and advances in communications and technologies allow criminals to move their illicit gains faster and farther than ever before. The result has been a proliferation of international money laundering havens. The ability to launder money into the United States through these jurisdictions has allowed corrupt foreign officials to systemically divert public assets to their personal use, which in turn undermines U.S. efforts to promote democratic institutions and stable, vibrant economies abroad.

In February, State and Federal regulators formally sanctioned the Bank of New York for "deficiencies" in its antimoney laundering practices including lax auditing and risk management procedures involving their international banking business. The sanctions were based on the Bank of New York's involvement in an alleged money laundering scheme where more than $7 billion in funds were transmitted from Russia into the bank. Federal investigators are currently attempting to tie the $7 billion to criminal activities in Russia such as corporate theft, political graft or racketeering.

In November 1999, the minority staff of the Senate Governmental Affairs Subcommittee on Investigations released a report on private banking and money laundering. The report describes a number of incidences where high level government officials have used private banking accounts with U.S. financial institutions to launder millions of dollars from foreign governments. The report details how Raul Salinas, brother of former President of Mexico, Carlos Salinas, used private bank accounts to launder money out of Representatives Mexico from Citigroup testified at a Subcommittee hearing that the bank had been slow to correct controls over their private banking accounts.

During the 1980's, as chairman of the Senate Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations, I began an investigation of the Bank of Credit and Commerce International (BCCI), and uncovered a complex money laundering scheme. Unlike any ordinary bank, BCCI was from its earliest days made up of multiplying layers of entities, related to one another through an impenetrable series of holding companies, affiliates, subsidiaries, banks-withinbanks, insider dealings, and nominee relationships.

By fracturing corporate structure, record keeping, regulatory review, and audits, the complex BCCI family of entities was able to evade ordinary legal restrictions on the movement of capital and goods as a matter of daily practice and routine. In creating BCCI as a vehicle fundamentally free of government control, its creators developed an ideal mechanism for facilitating illicit activity by others.

BCCI's used this complex corporate structure to commit fraud involving billions of dollars; and launder money for their clients in Europe, Africa, Asia and the Americas. Fortunately, we were able to bring many of those involved in BCCI to justice. However, my investigation clearly showed that rogue financial institutions have the ability to circumvent the laws designed to stop financial crimes.

to stop financial crimes.

In recent years, the United States and other well-developed financial centers have been working together to improve their antimoney laundering regimes and to set international anti-money laundering standards. Back in 1988, I included a provision in the State Department Reauthorization bill that requires major money laundering countries to adopt laws similar to our own on reporting currency, or face sanctions if they did not. Panama and Venezuela wound up negotiating what were called Kerry agreements with the United States and became less vulnerable to the placement of U.S. currency by drug traffickers in the process.

Unfortunately, other nations—some small, remote islands—have moved in the other direction. Many have passed laws that provide for excessive bank secrecy, anonymous company incorporation, economic citizenship, and other provisions that directly conflict with well-established international antimoney laundering standards. In doing so, they have become money laundering havens for international criminal networks. Some even blatantly advertise the fact that their laws protect anyone doing business from U.S. law enforcement.

Just last month, the Financial Action Task Force, an intergovernmental body developed to develop and promote policies to combat financial crime, released a report naming fifteen jurisdictions—including the Bahamas, The Cayman Islands, Russia, Israel, Panama, and the Philippines-that have failed to take adequate measures to combat international money laundering. This is a clear warning to financial institutions in the United States that they must begin to scrutinize many of their financial transactions with customers in these countries as possibly being linked to crime and money laundering. Soon, the Financial Action Task Force will develop bank advisories and criminal sanctions that will have the effect of driving legitimate financial business from these nations, depriving them of a lucrative source of tax revenue. This report has provided important information that governments and financial institutions around the world should learn from in developing their own anti-money laundering laws and policies.

The Financial Stability Forum has recently released a report that categorizes offshore financial centers according to their perceived quality of supervision and degree of regulatory cooperation. The Organization of Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) has begun a new crackdown on harmful tax competition. Members of the European Union has reached an agreement in principle on sweeping changes to bank secrecy laws, intended to bring cross-border investment income within the net of tax authorities.

The actions by the Financial Action Task Force, the European Union and others show a renewed international focus and commitment to curbing financial abuse around the world. I believe the United States has a similar obligation to use this new information to update our anti-money laundering status.

The International Counter-Money Laundering and Anticorruption Act of 2000 which I am introducing today would provide the tools the U.S. needs to crack down on international money laundering havens and protect the integrity of the U.S. financial system from the influx of tainted money from abroad. The bill provides for actions that will be graduated, discretionary, and targeted, in order to focus actions on international transactions involving criminal proceeds, while allowing legitimate international commerce to continue to flow unimpeded. It will give the Secretary of the Treasuryacting in consultation with other senior government officials and the Congress-the authority to designate a specific foreign jurisdiction, foreign financial institution, or class of international transactions as being of "primary money laundering concern." Then, on a case-by-case basis, the Secretary will have the option to use a series of new tools to combat the specific type of foreign money laundering threat we face. In some cases, the Secretary will have the option to require banks to pierce the veil of secrecy that foreign criminals hide behind. In other cases, the Secretary will have the option to require the identification of those using a foreign bank's correspondent or payable-through accounts. And if these transparency provisions were deemed to be inadequate to address the specific problem identified, the Secretary will have the option to restrict or prohibit U.S. banks from continuing correspondent or payablethrough banking relationships with money laundering havens and rogue foreign banks. Through these steps, the Secretary will help prevent laundered money from slipping undetected into the U.S. financial system and, as a result, increase the pressure on foreign money laundering havens to bring their laws and practices into line with international anti-money laundering standards. The passage of this legislation will make it much more difficult for international criminal organizations to launder the proceeds of their crimes into the United States.

This bill fills in the current gap between bank advisories and International Emergency Economic Powers Act (IEEPA) sanctions by providing five new intermediate measures. Under current law, the only counter-money laundering tools available to the federal governments are advisories, an important but relatively limited measure instructing banks to pay close attention to transactions that involve a given country, and full-blown economic sanctions under the IEEPA. This legislation gives five additional measures to increase the government's ability to apply pressure against targeted jurisdictions or institutions.

This legislation will in no way jeopardize the privacy of the American public. The focus is on foreign jurisdictions, financial institutions and classes of transactions that present a threat to the United States, not on American citizens. The actions that the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to take are designated solely to combat the abuse of our banks by specifically identified foreign money laundering threats. This legislation is in no way similar to the Know-Your-Customer regulations that were proposed by the regulators last year. Further, the intent of this legislation is not to add additional regulatory burdens on financial institutions, but, to give the Secretary of the Treasury the ability to take action against existing money laundering threats.

Let me repeat, this legislation only gives the discretion to use these tools to the Secretary of the Treasury. There is no automatic trigger which forces action whenever evidence of money laundering is uncovered. Before any action is taken, the Secretary of the Treasury, in consultation with other key government officials, must first determine whether a specific country, financial institution or type of transaction is of primary money laundering concern. Then, a calibrated response will be developed that will consider the effectiveness of the measure to address the threat, whether other countries are taking similar steps, and whether the response will cause harm to U.S. financial institutions and other firms.

This legislation will strengthen the ability of the Secretary to combat the international money laundering and help protect the integrity of the U.S. financial system. This bill is supported by the heads of all the major federal law enforcement agencies. The House Banking Committee recently reported out this legislation with a bipartisan 33-1 vote. I believe this legislation deserves consideration by the Senate during the 106th Congress.

Today, advances in technology are bringing the world closer together than ever before and opening up new opportunities for economic growth. However, with these new advantages come equally important obligations. We must do everything possible to insure that the changes in technology do not give comfort to international criminals by giving them new ways to hide the financial proceeds of their crimes. I believe that this legislation is a first step toward limiting the scourge of money laundering will help stop the development of international criminal organizations.

Mr. SARBANES. Mr. President, I am pleased to join Senators Kerry, Grassley, Levin, and Rockefeller in introducing the Clinton/Gore administration's International Counter-Money Laundering and Foreign Anti-Corruption Act of 2000 ('ICMLA''). Money laundering poses an ongoing threat to the financial stability of the United States. It is estimated by the Department of the Treasury that the global volume of laundered money accounts for between 2–5 percent of the global GDP.

The ICMLA is designed to bolster the United States ability to counter the laundering of the proceeds of drug trafficking, organized crime, terrorism, and official corruption from abroad. The bill broadens the authority of the Secretary of the Treasury, ensures that banking transactions and financial relationships do not contravene the purposes of current antimoney laundering statutes, provides a clear mandate for subjecting foreign jurisdictions that facilitate money laundering to special scrutiny, and enhances reporting of suspicious activities. The bill similarly strengthens current measures to prevent the use of the U.S. financial system for personal gain by corrupt foreign officials and to facilitate the repatriation of any stolen assets to the citizens of countries to whom such assets belong.

First, section 101 of the ICMLA gives the Secretary of the Treasury, in consultation with other key government officials, discretionary authority to impose five new "special measures" against foreign jurisdictions and entities that are of "primary money laundering concern" to the United States. Under current law, the only countermoney laundering tools available to the federal government are advisories, an important but relatively limited measure instructing banks to pay close attention to transactions that involve a given country, and full-blown economic sanctions under the International Emergency Economic Powers Act ("IEEPA"). The five new intermediate measures will increase the government's ability to apply wellcalibrated pressure against targeted jurisdictions or institutions. These new measures include: (1) requiring additional record keeping/reporting on particular transactions, (2) requiring the identification of the beneficial foreign owner of a U.S. bank account, (3) requiring the identification of those individuals using a U.S. bank account opened by a foreign bank to engage in banking transactions (a "payablethrough account"), (4) requiring the identification of those using a U.S. bank account established to receive deposits and make payments on behalf of a foreign financial institution (a "correspondent account"), and (5) restricting or prohibiting the opening or maintaining of certain correspondent accounts.

Second, the bill seeks to enhance oversight into illegal activities by clarifying that the "safe harbor" from civil liability for filing a Suspicious Activity Report ("SAR") applies in any litigation, including suit for breach of contract or in an arbitration proceeding. Under the Bank Secrecy Act ("BSA"), any financial institution or officer, director, employee, or agent of a financial institution is protected against private civil liability for filing a SAR. Section 201 of the bill amends the BSA to clarify the prohibition on disclosing that a SAR has been filed. These reports are the cornerstone of our nation's money-laundering efforts because they provide the information necessary to alter law enforcement to illegal activity.

Third, the bill enhances enforcement of Geographic Targeting Orders ("GTOS"). These orders lower the dollar thresholds for reporting transactions within a defined geographic area. Section 202 of the bill clarifies that civil and criminal penalties for violations of the Bank Secrecy Act and its regulations also apply to reports required by GTO's. In addition, the section clarifies that structuring a transaction to avoid a reporting requirement by a GTO is a criminal offense and extends the presumptive GTO period from 60 to 180 days.

Fourth, section 203 of the bill permits a bank, upon request of another bank, to include suspicious illegal activity in written employment references. Under this provision, banks would be permitted to share information concerning the possible involvement of a current or former officer or employee in potentially unlawful activity without fear of civil liability for sharing the information.

Finally, title III of the bill addresses corruption by foreign officials and ruling elites. Pursuant to a sense of Congress, the Secretary of the Treasury, in consultation with the Attorney General and the financial services regulators, is mandated to issue guidelines to financial institutions operating in the United States on appropriate practices and procedures to reduce the likelihood that such institutions could facilitate proceeds expropriated by or on behalf of foreign senior government officials.

The ICMLA addresses many of the shortcomings of current law. The Secretary of Treasury is granted additional authority to require greater transparency of transactions and accounts as well as to narrowly target penalties and sanctions. The reporting and collection of additional information on suspected illegal activity will greatly enhance the ability of bank regulators and law enforcement to combat the laundering of drug money, proceeds from corrupt regimes, and other illegal activities.

Mr. President, the House Banking Committee passed the identical antimoney laundering bill by a vote of 31 to 1 on June 8, 2000. I hope that we can move this legislation expeditiously in the Senate.

By Mr. KERRY (for himself and Mr. HOLLINGS):

S. 2973. A bill to amend the Magnuson-Stevens Fishery Conservation and Management Act to improve fishery management and enforcement, and fisheries data collection, research, and assessment, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

THE MAGNUSON-STEVENS ACT AMENDMENTS OF $2000\,$

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Magnuson-Stevens Act Amendments of 2000. I would like to thank Mr. Hollings for joining me as an original cosponsor of this legislation to reauthorize and update the Magnuson-Stevens Fishery Conservation and Management Act. As my colleagues and I well remember, we last substantially reauthorized the Act only four years ago with the Sustainable Fisheries Act—a three-year effort in itself. As in 1996, I look forward to working with members of the Commerce Committee as we update and improve this most important legislation.

Mr. President, the fishery resources found off U.S. shores are a valuable national heritage. In 1998, the last year for which we have figures, U.S. commercial fisheries produced $3.1 billion in dockside revenues, contributing a total of more than $25 billion to the Gross National Product. By weight of catch, the United States is the world's fifth largest fishing nation, harvesting over 4 million tons of fish annually. The United States is also a significant seafood exporter, with exports valued at over $8 billion in 1998. In addition to supporting the commercial seafood industry, U.S. fishery resources provide enjoyment for about 9 million saltwater anglers who take home roughly 200 million pounds of fish each year.

Over the past year, the Commerce Committee under Senator Snowe's leadership has been holding a series of hearings around the country in preparation for this year's reauthorization. These hearings have pointed to one central theme—while there is certainly room for improving fisheries management under the Magnuson-Stevens Act, the sweeping changes we made in 1996 are still being implemented in each region. In fact, a number of regions are showing good progress, including New England where the yellowtail flounder and haddock stocks are rebounding. For this reason, I believe this year's reauthorization should leave in place the core conservation provisions of the Act, and focus on providing adequate resources, and any organizational or other changes necessary for NOAA Fisheries and Regional Fishery Management Councils to achieve the goals we set forth in the Sustainable Fisheries Act.

Mr. President, the bill I introduce today outlines a proposal for making this a reality. While we have added increasingly complex technical and scientific requirements to the fisheries management process, we have failed in many cases to provide the resources necessary to meet these requirements. Effective fisheries management for the future will rely on committing adequate resources and direction to the fisheries managers as well as the fishing participants. These include providing necessary funding increases to both the agency and the Councils, creation of a national observer program, establishing a nationwide cooperative research program with the fishing industry, and ensuring that we are collecting the socioeconomic data we need to design management measures that make sense for fishermen. This legislation aims to remedy this by providing a significant increase in funding, and specifying amounts required to support both the new initiatives and existing programs.

Over the years, we have reauthorized the Magnuson-Stevens Act many times, and each time we have wrestled with the question of how to improve the ability of the Regional Fisheries Management Councils to effectively and fairly implement the requirements of the Act. This bill suggests ways in which to begin remedying these concerns. First, the bill would clarify that the Secretary of Commerce must ensure representation on the Council of all qualified persons who are concerned with fisheries conservation and management. While fishermen are the source of tremendous wisdom and expertise needed in managing these fisheries, there are others such as scientists and those with other relevant experience who may also provide valuable service to the Councils. To help the Secretary meet this requirement. the bill requires Governors to consult with members of recreational, commercial, and other fishing or conservation interests within a State before selecting a list of nominees to send to the Secretary. We would like to see all those who can provide constructive attention to our fishery management problems to work together to forge innovative and progressive solutions. In addition, we must increase independent scientific involvement in the Councils, and my legislation would provide that Councils must involve Science and Statistics Committee members in the development and amendment of fisheries management plans.

I do know of the grave concerns expressed by conservation groups, fishermen, scientists and managers about problems with the existing fishery management process. I believe we need to address these questions, both with respect to the Councils and the Agency. I would like to work on this further with my colleagues as we go forward, but in the meantime this bill asks the National Academy of Sciences to bring together international and regional experts to evaluate what works and what may be broken in the current system, and what additional changes may be necessary to modernize and make more effective our entire fishery management process.

In our series of hearings around the country, we have consistently heard a call from both industry and conservation groups for observer coverage in our fisheries. We have failed to adequately provide funding mechanisms for observer coverage; each year, federally funded observers are deployed in as few as five to seven fisheries, and observer coverage is rarely over 20 percent. Without observer coverage, there is little hope that we will have statistically significant data, particularly data on actual levels of bycatch. I have included provisions to ensure that each fishery management plan details observer coverage and monitoring needs for a fishery, and created a new National Observer Program. This national program would address technical and administrative responsibilities over regional observer programs. I have also included provisions to allow Councils or the Secretary to develop observer monitoring plans, and have established a fishery observer fund which would include funds appropriated for this purpose, collected as fines under a new bycatch incentive program, or deposited through fees established under this section.

In the 1996 reauthorization, we took a first step in dealing with the issue of by catch by instructing NMFS to implement a standardized bycatch reporting methodology. Nonetheless, I believe we have a long way to go in dealing with the bycatch problem in many of our fisheries. In addition to establishing a national observer program, my bill would establish a task force to recommend measures to monitor, manage, and reduce bycatch and unobserved fishing mortality. The Secretary would then be charged with implementing these recommendations. In addition, I have provided for the development of bycatch reduction incentive programs that could include a system of fines, non-transferable bycatch quotas, or preferences for gear types with low-bycatch rates.

It is also time for us to move forward on ecosystem-based fishery management. We do not yet have the data to actually manage most of our fisheries on an ecosystem basis, but I still believe we must begin the preparation and consideration of fishery ecosystem plans. We must strive to understand the complex ecological and socioeconomic environments in which fish and fisheries exist, if we hope to anticipate the effects that fishery management will have on the ecosystem, and the effects that ecosystem change will have on fisheries. My legislation would require each Council to develop one fishery ecosystem plan for a marine ecosystem under its jurisdiction. Each ecosystem plan would have to include a listing of data and information needs identified during development of the plan, and the means of addressing any scientific uncertainties associated with the plan.

One of the most resounding comments we heard at all of our regional hearings was the need to continually improve scientific information, and to involve the fishing industry in the collection of this information. My bill would establish a national cooperative research program, patterned after the successful cooperative research program in the New England scallop fishery, for projects that are developed through partnerships among federal and state managers, fishing industry participants, and academic institutions. Priority would be given to projects to reduce by catch, conservation engineering projects, projects to identify and protect essential fish habitat or habitat area of particular concern, projects to collect fishery ecosystem information and improve predictive capabilities, and projects to compile social and economic data on fisheries.

Over the years, I have heard much complaint that NMFS does not communicate effectively with the fishing industry or the general public. To remedy this, my bill calls for the establishment of a fisheries outreach program within NMFS to heighten public understanding of NMFS research and technology, train Council members on implementation of National Standards 1 and 8 requirements of NEPA and the Regulatory Flexibility Act, and identify means of improving quality and reporting of fishery-dependent data. New provisions would also require improvement of the transparency of the stock assessment process and methods, and increase access and compatibility of data relied upon in fishery management decisions. I have required the Secretary to periodically review fishery data collection and assessment methods, and to establish a Center for Independent Peer Review under which independent experts would be provided for special peer review functions.

Mr. President, I have also included provisions to address one of our biggest problems in fisheries today—too many fishermen chasing too few fish. It is true that many of our fisheries are overcapitalized. A buyout in New England several years ago attempted to deal with this problem, and according to Penny Dalton, Assistant Administrator for Fisheries, in a recent USA Today article, the buyout "jump started recovery in the New England groundfish fishery." A section of my bill would require the Secretary to evaluate overcapacity in each fishery. and identify measures planned or taken to reduce any such overcapacity. My legislation would amend the existing Act to ensure that capacity reduction programs also consider and address latent fishing capacity, and would allow the use of Capital Construction Funds and funds from the Fisheries Finance Program for measures to benefit the conservation and management of fisheries such as capacity reduction, as well as for gear and safety improvements.

In 1996, we enacted a new concept in defining, and requiring protection and identification of, essential fish habitat (EFH). While there has been much outcry that essential fish habitat has been identified too broadly and that EFH consultation processes have resulted in regulatory delay, GAO reports very few real problems resulting from such designations. As a result, I do not feel it is necessary to significantly modify EFH provisions. Instead, I believe we can improve the current work of NMFS and the Councils to identify EFH, and areas within them called "habitat areas of particular concern" (HAPCs). I have added new provisions that would require Councils to protect and identify HAPCs as part of existing requirements to identify and protect EFH. My bill would clarify that HAPCs are to be identified pursuant to the NMFS EFH guidelines, and that these areas should receive priority identification and protection, as they are oftentimes the areas most critical to fish spawning and recruitment. It is crucial that we improve our understanding of fisheries habitat, and my bill would establish pilot cooperative research projects on fishery and non-fishery impacts to HAPCs.

Finally, Mr. President, I would like to address the issue of individual fishing quotas, which have been the subject of much debate over the past few years. There is a moratorium on these programs in place until September 30. 2000, and we have been skirting consideration of this new management tool for too long. We must begin debate and consideration of the panoply of exclusive quota-based programs that have developed over the past several years, which must include adoption of legislative guidance for these programs. For this reason, the bill suggests a set of national criteria that would permit establishment of exclusive quota based programs—including community-based quotas, fishing cooperatives, and individual fishing quotas—but still protect the concerns of those who do not wish to employ these tools. I invite all those who are concerned about these issues to engage in a discussion with my colleagues and me on the appropriate way to address this national issue as we move forward this session.

I understand the many concerns of small fishermen in New England regarding the use of these tools. First, no region would have to implement an exclusive quota-based program without approval of a 3/5 majority of eligible permit holders through a referendum process. In addition, any exclusive quota-based program developed under my legislation would have to meet a set of national criteria. These national criteria would include provisions specifically aimed at protecting small fishermen such as the following: (1) ensuring that quota-based programs provide a fair and equitable initial allocation of quota (including the establishment of an appeals process for qualification and allocation decisions), (2) preserving the historical distribution of catch among vessel categories and gear sectors, (3) considering allocation of a portion of the annual harvest specifically to small fishermen and crew members; and (4) requiring programs to consider the effects of consolidation of quota shares and establish limits necessary to prevent inequitable concentration of quota share or significant impacts on other fisheries or fishing communities. To respond to the concern that we must ensure quota-based programs meet conservation objectives, my legislation would provide a 7year review of the performance of quota holders, including fulfillment of conservation requirements of the Act. Finally any quota-based program would have to have a plan to rationalize the fishery—which in some cases would require a buyout of excess capacity under section 312(b) of the Act.

Mr. President, I believe this legislation provides the funding, tools, and programs to ensure the important changes made in the 1996 amendments are implemented effectively and improved where necessary. During the last reauthorization, our nation's fisheries were at a crossroads, and action was required to remedy our marine resource management problems, to preserve the way of life of our coastal communities, and to promote the sustainable use and conservation of our marine resources for future generations and for the economic good of the nation. We made changes in 1996 that were good for the environment, good for the fish, and good for the fishermen. We must stay the course, and this bill will help us do just that. In addition, the bill will provide us with innovative tools, such as exclusive quotabased programs and the new national observer program, to further advance fisheries management. Mr. President, I remain committed to the goal of establishing biologically and economically sustainable fisheries so that fishing will continue to be an important part of the culture of coastal communities as well as the economy of the Nation and Massachusetts.

By Mrs. FEINSTEIN:

S. 2975. A bill to limit the administrative expenses and profits of managed care entities to not more than 15 percent of premium revenues; to the Committee on Finance.

MANAGED CARE HEALTH BENEFITS INTEGRITY ACT OF 2000

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, today, I am introducing the Health Benefits Integrity Act to make sure that most health care dollars that people and employers pay into a managed care health insurance plan get spent on health care and not on overhead.

Under my bill, managed care plans would be limited to spending 15 percent of their premium revenues on administration. This means that if they spend 15 percent on administration, they would spend 85 percent of premium revenues on health care benefits or services.

This bill was prompted by study by the Inspector General (IG) for the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services reported under a USA Today headline in February, "Medicare HMOs Hit for Lavish Spending." The IG reviewed 232 managed care plans that contract with Medicare and found that in 1999 the average amount allocated for administration ranged from a high of 32 percent to a low of three percent. The IG recommended that the Department establish a ceiling on the amount administrative expenditures plans, noting that if a 15 percent ceiling had been placed in 1998, an additional $1 billion could have been passed on to Medicare beneficiaries in the form of additional benefits or reduce deductibles and copayments. The report said, "This review, similar OIG reviews, and other studies have shown that MCOs' [managed care organizations'] exorbitant administrative costs have been problematic and can be the source for abusive behavior." Here are some examples cited by the Inspector General on page 7 of the January 18 report: $249.283 for food, gifts and alcoholic beverages for meetings by one plan; $190,417 for a sales award meeting in Puerto Rico for one plan: $157.688 for a party by one plan; $25,057 for a luxury box at a sports arena by one plan: $106,490 for sporting events and/or theater tickets at four plans; $69,700 for holiday parties at three plans; and $37,303 for wine gift baskets, flowers, gifts and gift certificates at one plan.

It is no wonder that people today are angry at HMOs. When our hard-earned premium dollars are frittered away on purchases like these, we have to ask whether HMOs are really providing the best care possible. Furthermore, in the case of Medicare, we are also talking about wasted taxpayer dollars since Part B of Medicare is funded in part by the general treasury. One dollar wasted in Medicare is one dollar too much. Medicare needs all the funds it can muster to stay solvent and to be there for beneficiaries when they need it.

I feel strongly that if HMOs are to be credible, they must be more prudent in how they spend enrollees' dollars. Administrative expenses must be limited to reasonable expenses.

An October 1999 report by Interstudy found that for private HMO plans, administrative expenses range from 11 percent to 21 percent and that for-profit HMOs spend proportionately more on administrative cost than not-for-profit HMOs. This study found the lowest rate to be 3.6 percent and the highest 38 percent in California! In some states the maximums were even higher.

The shift from fee-for-service to managed care as a form of health insurance has been rapid in recent years. Nationally, 86 percent of people who have employment-based health insurance (81.3 million Americans) are in some form of managed care. Around 16 percent of Medicare beneficiaries are in managed care nationally (40 percent in California), a figure that doubled between 1994 and 1997. By 2010, the Congressional Budget Office predicts that 31 percent of Medicare beneficiaries will be in managed care. Between 1987 and 1999, the number of health plans contracting with Medicare went from 161 to 299. As for Medicaid, in 1993, 4.8 million people (14 percent of Medicaid beneficiaries) were in managed care. Today, 16.6 million (54 percent) are in managed care.

In California, the State which pioneered managed care for the nation, an estimated 88 percent of the insured are in some form of managed care. Of the 3.7 million Californians who are in Medicare, 40 percent (1.4 million) are in managed care, the highest rate in the U.S. As for Medicaid in California, 2.5 million people (50 percent) of beneficiaries are in managed care. And so managed care is growing and most people think it is here to stay.

I am pleased to say that in California we already have a regulation along the lines of the bill I am proposing. We have in place a regulatory limit of 15 percent on commercial HMO plans' administrative expenses. This was established in my State for commercial plans because of questionable expenses like those the HHS IG found in Medicare HMO plans and because prior to the regulation, some plans had administrative expense as high as 30 percent of premium revenues.

This bill would never begin to address all the problems patients experience with managed care in this country. That is why we also need a strong Patients Bill of Rights bill. I hope, however, this bill will discourage abuses like those the HHS Inspector General found and will help assure people that their health care dollars are spent on health care and are not wasted on outings, parties, and other activities totally unrelated to providing health care services.

I call on my colleagues to join me in enacting this bill.

By Mrs. FEINSTEIN (for herself, Mr. Byrd, and Mrs. Boxer):

S. 2976. A bill to amend title XXI of the Social Security Act to allow States to provide health benefits coverage for parents of children eligible for child health assistance under the State children's health insurance program; to the Committee on Finance.

FAMILY HEALTH INSURANCE PROGRAM ACT OF 2000

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President. today, Senators BYRD, BOXER and I are introducing legislation to allow States. at their option, to enroll parents in the State-Children's Health Insurance Program, known as S-CHIP. This bill could provide insurance to 2.7 million parents nationwide and 356,000 parents in California by using unspent allocations States will otherwise lose on September 30, 2000. Congress has appropriated a total of $12.9 billion for S-CHIP for fiscal years 1998, 1999, and 2000, or about $4.3 billion for each fiscal year. California received $854.6 million in 1998, $850.6 million in 1999, and $765.5 million in 2000. Right now California stands to lose $588 million just in fiscal year 1998 funds because California has faced many hurdles in enrolling children. That is in part why we are introducing this bill, to enhance enrollment of more children and to help states use available S-CHIP funds.

S-CHIP is a low-cost health insurance program for low-income children up to age 19 that Congress created in the Balanced Budget Act of 1997. After three years, S-CHIP covers approximately two million children across the country, out of the three to four million children estimated to be eligible.

Congress created it as a way to provide affordable health insurance for uninsured children in families that cannot afford to buy private insurance.

States can choose from three options when designing their S-CHIP program: (1) expansion of their current Medicaid program: (2) creation of a separate State insurance program; or (3) a combination of both approaches. In California, S-CHIP, known as Health Families, is set up as a public-private program rather than a Medicaid expansion. Healthy Families allows California families to use federal and State S-CHIP funds to purchase private managed care insurance for their children. Under the federal law. States generally cover children in families with incomes up to 200 percent of poverty, although States can go higher if their Medicaid eligibility was higher than that when S-CHIP was enacted in 1997. In California, eligibility was raised to 250 percent in November 1999, increasing the number of eligible children by 129,000.

Basic benefits in the California S-CHIP program include inpatient and outpatient hospital services, surgical and medical services, lab and x-ray services, and well-baby and well-child care, including immunizations. Additional services which States are encouraged to provide, and which California has elected to include, are prescription drugs and mental health, visions, hearing, dental, and preventive care services such as prenatal care and routine physical examinations. In California, enrollees pay a $5.00 co-payment per visit which generally applies to inpatient services, selected outpatient services, and various other health care services.

The United States faces a serious health care crisis that continues to grow as more and more people are becoming uninsured. Despite the robust health of the economy, the U.S. has seen an increase in the uninsured by nearly five million since 1994. Currently, 44 million people (or 18 percent) of the non-elderly population are uninsured. In California, 23.5 percent, or 7.3 million, are uninsured. One study cited in the May 2000 California Journal found that as many as 2,333 Californians lose health insurance every day. A May 29, 2000 San Jose Mercury article cited California's emergency room doctors who "estimate that anywhere from 20 percent to 40 percent of their walk-in patients have no health coverage." This a problem that needs to be addressed now.

The bill we are introducing would allow States to expand S-CHIP coverage to parents whose children are eligible for the program. In my State, that would be families up to 250 percent of the federal poverty level. For the year 2000, the federal poverty level for a family of four is $17,050. In California, with the upper eligibility limit of 250 percent of poverty, families of four making up to $42,625 are eligible. This bill could reach approximately 2.7 million parents nationwide and more than 356,000 parents in California. The bill we are introducing retains the current funding formula, State allotments, benefits, eligibility rules, and cost-sharing requirements.

An S-CHIP expansion should be accomplished without substituting S-CHIP coverage for private insurance or other public health insurance that parents might already have. The current S-CHIP law requires that State plans include adequate provisions preventing substitution and my bill retains that. For example, many States require that an enrollee be uninsured before he or she is eligible for the program.

This bill is important for several reasons. Many State officials say that by covering parents of uninsured children we can actually cover more children. More than 75 percent of uninsured children live with parents who are uninsured. If an entire family is enrolled in a plan and seeing the same group of doctors—in other words, if the care is convenient for the whole family—all the members of the family are more likely to be insured and to stay healthy. This is a key reason for this legislation, bringing in more children by targeting the whole family.

Private health insurance in the commercial market can be very expensive. The average annual cost of family coverage in private health plans for 1999 was $5,742, according to the Kaiser Family Foundation. California has some of the lowest-priced health insurance, yet the State ranks fifth in uninsured for 1998-1996. In California, high housing costs, high gas prices, expensive commutes, and a high cost-of-living make it difficult for many California families to buy health insurance. According to the California Institute, the median price of single family home rose 17 percent, to $231,710, from February 1999 to February 2000. The California Housing Affordability Index, which measures the percentage of Californians that are able to purchase midpriced homes, declined 11 percent from 1999 to 2000. With prices like these, many families are unable to afford health insurance even though they work full-time.

Many low-income people work for employers who do not offer health insurance. In fact, forty percent of California small businesses (those employing between three and 50 employers) do not offer health insurance, according to a Kaiser Family Foundation study in June.

We need to give hard-working, lower income American families affordable, comprehensive health insurance, and this bill does that.

The President has proposed to cover parents under the S-CHIP program. The California Medical Association and Alliance of Catholic Health Care support our bill.

Current law requires States to spend federal S-CHIP dollars within three years of the appropriation. Many States, including California, could lose millions of dollars of unspent federal Fiscal Year 1998 funds on September 30, 2000. I am working to get an extension of that deadline. In the meantime, we could begin to cover parents while getting that extension and working to increase funds for the program. According to estimates from the Health Care Financing Administration, the following 39 States could lose the following amounts, totaling $1.9 billion. Arizona, California, Georgia, Illinois, Louisiana, Michigan, New Mexico, and Texas stand to lose the most money. These eight States alone would lose $1.4 billion.

Our bill would offer another option for States like mine to use these unspent funds.

I urge my colleagues to join us in supporting and passing this bill. By giving States the option to cover parents—whole families—we can reduce the number of uninsured with existing funds and encourage the enrollment of more children and we can help keep people healthy by better using this valuable, but currently under-utilized program

S. 2977. A bill to assist in the establishment of an interpretive center and museum in the vicinity of the Diamond Valley Lake in southern California to ensure the protection and interpretation of the paleontology discoveries made at the lake and to develop a trail system for the lake for use by pedestrians and nonmotorized vehicles; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

BILL TO ESTABLISH AN INTERPRETIVE CENTER AROUND DIAMOND VALLEY LAKE

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, I am pleased to introduce a bill today to benefit 17 million citizens of Southern California and visitors from around the country and world through the development of the Western Center for Archaeology and Paleontology. At this center, visitors will be able to marvel at the archaeological and paleontological past of inland southern California.

This bill would help create an interpretive center and museum around Diamond Valley Lake to highlight the animals and habitat of the Ice Age up to the European settlement period.

I understand that the paleontological resources are world class and include hundreds of thousands of historic and pre-historic artifacts. These include a mastodon skeleton, a mammoth skeleton, a seven-foot long tusk, and bones from extinct species previously not believed to have lived in the area, including the giant long-horned bison and North American lion.

Additionally, visitors will enjoy unprecedented recreational opportunities through a system of hiking, biking, and equestrian trails wandering through the grasslands, chaparral, and oak groves that surround the reservoir.

The total cost of the project is $58 million. The State has agreed to commit one quarter of the tab, the Metropolitan Water District has agreed to contribute one-quarter, and other local governments will also contribute one-quarter. This bill would authorize the federal government's share of one-quarter or $14 million.

I urge the Senate to adopt this legis-

By Mr. DASCHLE (for himself, Mr. BINGAMAN, Mr. CONRAD, Mr. BAUCUS, Mr. KERREY, Mr. KOHL, Mr. AKAKA, Mr. JOHNSON, Mr. REID, Mr. KENNEDY, and Mr. DODD):

S. 2978. A bill to recruit and retain more qualified individuals to teach in Tribal Colleges or Universities; to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

THE TRIBAL COLLEGE OR UNIVERSITY LOAN FORGIVENESS ACT.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President. our tribal colleges and universities have come to play a critically important role in educating Native Americans across the country. For more than 30 years, these institutions have proven instrumental in providing a quality education for those who had previously been failed by our mainstream educational system. Before the tribal college movement began, only six or seven out of 100 Native American students attended college. Of those few, only one or two would graduate with a degree. Since these institutions have curricula that is culturally relevant and is often focused on a tribe's particular philosophy, culture, language and economic needs, they have a high success rate in educating Native American people. As a result, I am happy to say that tribal college enrollment has increased 62 percent over the last six years.

The results of a tribal college education are impressive. Recent studies show that 91 percent of 1998 tribal college and university graduates are working or pursuing additional education one year after graduating. Over the last ten years, the unemployment rate of recently polled tribal college graduates was 15 percent, compared to 55 percent on many reservations overall

While tribal colleges and universities have been highly successful in helping Native Americans obtain a higher education, many challenges remain to ensure the future success of these institutions. These schools rely heavily on federal resources to provide educational opportunities for all students. As a result, I strongly support efforts to provide additional funding to these colleges through the Interior, Agriculture and Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education Appropriations bills.

In addition to resource constraints, administrators have expressed a particular frustration over the difficulty they experience in attracting qualified individuals to teach at tribal colleges. Geographic isolation and low faculty salaries have made recruitment and retention particularly difficult for many of these schools. This problem is increasing as enrollment rises.

That is why I am introducing the Tribal College or University Loan Forgiveness Act. This legislation will provide loan forgiveness to individuals who commit to teach for up to five years in one of the 32 tribal colleges nationwide. Individuals who have Perkins, Direct, or Guaranteed loans may qualify to receive up to $15,000 in loan forgiveness. This program will provide these schools extra help in attracting qualified teachers, and thus help ensure that deserving students receive a high quality education.

This measure will benefit individual students and their communities. By providing greater opportunities for Native American students to develop skills and expertise, this bill will spur economic growth and help bring prosperity and self-sufficiency to communities that desperately need it. Native Americans and the tribal college system deserve nothing less. I believe our responsibility was probably best summed up by one of my state's greatest leaders. Sitting Bull. He once said. "Let us put our minds together and see what life we can make for our children '

I am pleased that Senators BINGA-MAN, CONRAD, BAUCUS, KERREY, KOHL, AKAKA, JOHNSON, REID, KENNEDY, and DODD are original cosponsors of this bill, and I look forward to working with my colleagues to pass this important legislation.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the Tribal Colleges or University Loan Forgiveness Act be printed in the RECORD following my remarks.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2979. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to clarify the status of professional employer organizations and to promote and protect the interests of professional employer organizations, their customers, and workers; to the Committee on Finance.

PROFESSIONAL EMPLOYER ORGANIZATION WORKERS BENEFITS ACT OF 2000

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, today along with my Finance Committee colleague, Senator MACK, I am introducing the Professional Employer Organization Workers Benefits Act of 2000. This legislation will expand retirement and health benefits for workers at small and medium-sized businesses in this country.

The bill makes it easier for certified professional employer organizations (PEO's) to assist small and mediumsized businesses in complying with the many responsibilities of being an employer. It permits PEO's to collect Federal employment taxes on behalf of the employer and provide benefits to the small business' workers. For many of these workers, the pension, health and other benefits that a PEO provides would not be available from the small business itself because they are too costly for the small business to provide on its own. The average client of a PEO is a small business with 18 workers and an average wage of $20,000. PEO's have the expertise and can take advantage of economies of scale to provide health and retirement benefits in an affordable and efficient manner.

A recent Dunn & Bradstreet survey of small businesses reveled that only 39 percent offered health care and just 19 percent offer retirement plans. We must take every opportunity to assist these small businesses in providing retirement and health benefits to their employees. PEO's offer one creative way to bridge the gap between what workers need and what small businesses can afford to provide. In fact, one analyst at Alex. Brown & Sons estimates that 40 percent of companies in a PEO coemployment relationship upgrade their total employee benefits package as a result of the partnership with the PEO. Twenty-five percent of those companies offer health and other benefits for the first time.

Over the past few years, small and medium-sized businesses have sought out the services offered by PEO's. In response, many states have created programs to recognize, license and regulate PEO's to ensure that a viable industry could grow. Unfortunately, federal law has not kept pace. Current rules for who can collect employment taxes and provide benefits do not fit with the PEO model. Under some interpretations, PEO's would be prohibited from performing the very services that small businesses are asking them to undertake.

This legislation clarifies the tax laws to make it clear that PEO's meeting certain standards will be able to assist small businesses in providing employee benefits and collecting Federal employment taxes. This bill is a narrower version of a provision that was included in the pension legislation I sponsored in the last Congress. This new bill incorporates comments we received from interested parties over the course of the past year, including those received from the Treasury and Labor Departments. As a result the bill we are introducing today is much improved from previous versions.

In addition, I would like to make clear what this bill does not do. Unlike earlier versions, this legislation applies only to PEO's, and not to temporary staffing agencies. Further, this bill applies only to the two specific areas of tax law—employment taxes and employee benefits. It does not affect any other law nor does it affect the determination of who is the employer for any other purpose. The bill specifically provides that it creates no inferences with respect to those issues.

I am hopeful that, with this narrower focus, this legislation can be considered on its own merits, without getting bogged down in larger disputes involving contingent workforces and independent contractors. Those issues are important ones that Congress may want to examine, but we should not allow them to delay resolution of the unrelated PEO issued addressed by this bill.

I look forward to working with Senator Mack, my other colleagues on the Finance Committee, and the administration to move this bill during the 106th Congress so that we can help small- and medium-sized businesses operate more efficiently while at the same time expanding the benefits available to their workers.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the following explanation of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

TECHNICAL EXPLANATION OF PROFESSIONAL EMPLOYER ORGANIZATION WORKERS BENEFITS ACT OF 2000

The bill would amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to clarify the treatment of certain qualifying organizations—called Certified Professional Employer Organizations (CPEOs)—for employee benefit and employment tax purposes. Generally, the bill provides that an entity which meets certain requirements may be certified as a CPEO by the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) and will be allowed (1) to take responsibility for employment taxes with respect to worksite employees of an unrelated client and (2) to provide such workers with employee benefits under a single employer plan maintained by

While the legislation will allow the CPEO to take responsibility for certain functions, the bill expressly states (1) that it does not override the common law determination of an individual's employer and (2) that it will not affect the determination of who is a common law employer under federal tax laws or who is an employer under other provisions of law (including the characterization of an arrangement as a MEWA under ERISA). Status as a CPEO (or failure to be a CPEO) will also not be a factor in determining employment status under current rules.

CERTIFICATION OF PROFESSIONAL EMPLOYER ${\tt ORGANIZATIONS}$

In order to be certified as a CPEO, an entity must demonstrate to the IRS by written application that it meets (or, if applicable, will meet) certain requirements. Generally, the requirements for certification will be developed by the IRS using the ERO (electronic return originator) program and the requirements to practice before the IRS (as described in Circular 230) as a model. Standards will include review of the experience of the PEO and issuance of an opinion by a certified public accountant on the CPEOs financial statements. As part of the certification process, the applicant must disclose any criminal complaints against it, its principal owners and officers, or related entities, and any incidence of failure to timely file tax returns or pay taxes (either income or employment taxes) by it, its principal owners and officer, or related entities. The IRS would have the ability to do a background and tax check of the applicant, its principal owners and officers, or related entities, and may reject an application on the basis of information determined in that process. In addition, in order to be certified, a CPEO must represent that it (or the client) will maintain a qualified retirement plan for the benefit of 95% of worksite employees.

The CPEO must notify the IRS in writing of any change that affects the continuing accuracy of any representation made in the initial certification request. In addition, after initial certification, the CPEO must continue to file copies of its audited financial statements with the IRS by the last day of the sixth month following the end of the fiscal year. Procedures would be established for suspending or revoking CPEO status (similar to those under the ERO program). There would be a right to administrative appeal from an IRS denial, suspension, or revocation or certification.

CPEO RELATIONSHIP WITH PARTICULAR WORKERS

After certification, a CPEO will be allowed to take responsibility for employment taxes and to provide employee benefits to "worksite employees." A worker who performs services at a client's worksite is a "worksite employee" if the worker (and at least 85% of the individuals working at the worksite) are subject to a written service contract that expressly provide that the CPEO will:

- (1) Assume responsibility for payment of wages to the worker, without regard to the receipt or adequacy of payment from the client for such services:
- (2) Assume responsibility for employment taxes with respect to the worker, without regard to the receipt or adequacy of payment from the client for such services:
- (3) Assume responsibility for any worker benefits that may be required by the service contract, without regard to the receipt or adequacy of payment from the client for such services:
- (4) Assume shared responsibility with the client for firing the worker and recruiting and hiring any new worker; and

- (5) Maintain employee records.
- (6) Agrees to be treated as a CPEO with respect to the worksite employees covered under the agreement.

For this purpose, a worksite is defined as a physical location at which a worker generally performs service or, if there is no such location, the location from which the worker receives job assignments. Contiguous locations would be treated as a single physical location. Noncontiguous locations would generally be treated as separate worksites, except that each worksite within a reasonably proximate area would be required to satisfy the 85% test for the workers at that worksite.

While the determination of whether noncontiguous locations are reasonably proximate is a facts and circumstances determination, certain situations will be deemed not to be reasonably proximate. If the worksite is separated from all other client worksites by at least 35 miles, it will not be considered reasonably proximate. Thus, a client (or any member of its controlled group) that maintains two worksites that are more than 35 miles apart could treat the worksites as separate for purposes of applying the 85% standard. Within a 35-mile radius, a worksite will not be considered reasonably proximate to another if the worksite operates in a different industry or industries from other worksites within the 35-mile radius pursuant to standards similar to those established in Revenue Procedure 91-64 (relating to industry classification codes). For example, a client that maintained a restaurant and a hardware store in the same town could treat them as separate worksites because they are in different industries. In addition, based on all the facts and circumstances, under rules prescribed by the IRS, a worksite would not be reasonably proximate if it operates independently for a bona fide business reason (that is unrelated to employment taxes and employee benefits). For example, a convenience store and a restaurant which have no supervisory personnel in common but which are under common ownership control could, under rules prescribed by the IRS, be treated as different worksites. Similarly, two noncontiguous wholesale and retail operations owned by the same individual but which are operated independently (including pendent supervisory personnel) may, under rules prescribed by the IRS, be determined to be not reasonably proximate.

The 85% rule generally is intended to describe the typical, non-abusive PEO arrangement whereby a business contracts with a PEO to take over substantially all its workers at a particular worksite. The 85% rule is intended to ensure that the benefits of the bill are not available in any situation in which a business uses a PEO arrangement to artificially divide its workforce.

CPEO EMPLOYEE BENEFIT PLANS

To the extent consistent with the Internal Revenue Code and corresponding provisions of other federal laws, the CPEO may generally provide worksite employees with most types of retirement plans or other employee benefit plans that the client could provide. Worksite employees may not, however, be offered a plan that the client would be prohibited from offering on its own. For example, if the client is a state or local government, worksite employees performing services for that client may not be offered participation in a section 401(k) plan. Similarly, a CPEO may not maintain a plan that it would be prohibited from offering on its own (e.g., a section 403(b) plan). However, an eligible client could maintain such a plan.

Size Limitations.—In general, employee benefit provisions (in the Internal Revenue Code and in directly correlative provisions in other Federal laws) that reference the size of the employer or number of employees will generally be applied based on the size or number of employees and worksite employees of the CPEO. For example, worksite employees will be entitled to COBRA health care continuation coverage even if the client would have qualified for the small employer exception to those rules. Similarly, a CPEO welfare benefit plan will be treated as a single employer plan for purposes of Internal Revenue Code section 419A(f)(6). Plan reporting requirements are met at the CPEO level. However, a client which could meet the size requirements for eligibility for an MSA or a SIMPLE plan could contribute to such an arrangement maintained by the CPEO.

Nondiscrimination Testing.—The legislation intends that clients of a CPEO will not generally receive significantly better or worse treatment with respect to coverage, nondiscrimination or other Internal Revenue Code rules than they would get outside of the CPEO arrangement. Consequently, nondiscrimination and other rules of the Code relating to retirement plans (including sections 401(a)(4), 401(a)(17), 401(a)(26), 401(k), 401(m), 410(b) and 416 and similar rules applicable to welfare and fringe benefit plans such as section 125) will generally be applied on a client-by-client basis.

The portion of the CPEO plan covering worksite employees with respect to a client will be tested taking into account the worksite employees at a client location and all other nonexcludable employees of the client taking into account 414(b), (c), (m), (n) (with respect to workers not otherwise included as worksite employees) and (o), but one client's worksite employees would not be included in applying the coverage or other discrimination rules (1) to portions of the CPEO plan covering worksite employees of other clients, (2) to the portion of the CPEO plan covering nonworksite employees, (3) to other plans maintained by the CPEO (except to the extent such plan covers worksite employees of the same client), or (4) to other plans maintained by members of the CPEO's controlled group.

The legislation also treats any worksite employees as "per se" leased employees of the client, thus requiring clients to include all worksite employees in plan testing. In accordance with current leased employee rules, the client would take into account CPEO plan contributions or benefits made on behalf of worksite employees of that client. Consistent with this treatment of worksite employees, the client would be permitted to cover worksite employees under any employee benefit plan maintained by the client and compensation paid by the CPEO to worksite employees would be treated as paid by the client for purposes of applying applicable qualification tests.

For example, assume a CPEO maintained a plan covering worksite employees performing services for Corporation X, worksite employees performing services for Corporation Y, and employees of the CPEO who are not worksite employees. In that case the nondiscrimination tests would be applied separately to the portions of the plan covering (1) worksite employees performing services for Corporation X; (2) worksite employees performing services for corporation Y. and (3) CPEO employees who are not worksite employees, as if each of (1), (2), and (3) were a separate plan. In addition, worksite employees performing services for Corporation X, for example, would be per se leased employees of Corporation X and thus would be included in testing any other plans maintained by Corporation X or any members of Corporation X's controlled group. Similarly, the CPEO workforce (other than worksite employees) will be treated as a separate employer for testing purposes (and will be included in applying the nondiscrimination rules to any plans maintained by the CPEO or members of its controlled group).

In applying nondiscrimination rules to plans maintained by other entities within the CPEO's controlled group for workers who are not worksite employees, worksite employees will not be taken into account. Thus, in the example above, worksite employees performing services for Corporation X or Corporation Y would not be taken into account in testing plans maintained by other members of the CPEO's controlled group.

For purposes of testing a particular client's portion of the plan under the rules above, general rules applicable to that client would apply as if the client maintained that portion of the plan. Thus, if the terms of the benefits available to the client's worksite employees satisfied the requirements of the section 401(k) testing safe harbor, then that client could take advantage of the safe harbor. Similarly, a client that meets the eligibility criteria for a SIMPLE 401(k) plan would be allowed to utilize the SIMPLE rules to demonstrate compliance with the applicable nondiscrimination rules for that client.

Application of certain other qualified plan and welfare benefit plan rules will generally be determined as if the client and the CPOE are a single employer (consistent with the principle that the CPEO arrangement will not result in better or worse treatment). Thus, there would be a single annual limit under section 415. Section 415 will provide that any cutbacks required as a result of the single annual limit will be made in the client plan. Deduction limits and funding requirements would apply at the CPEO level. In addition, if the client portion of a plan is part of a top heavy group, any required top heavy minimum contribution or benefit will generally need to be made by the CPEO plan. There will be complete "crediting" of service for all benefit purposes. The "break in servrules for plan vesting will be applied with respect to worksite employees using rules generally based on Code section 413.

The bill also provides the Secretary with the authority to promulgate rules and regulations that streamline, to the extent possible, the application of certain requirements, the exchange of information between the client and the CPEO, and the reporting and record keeping obligations of the CPEO with respect to its employee benefit plans.

Worksite employees will not generally be entitled to receive plan distributions of elective deferrals until the worker leaves the CPEO group. In cases where a client relationship terminates with a CPEO that maintains a plan, the CPEO will be able to "spin off" the former client's portion of the plan to a new or existing plan maintained by the client. Where the terminated client does not establish a plan or wish to maintain the client's portion of the CPEO plan, the CPEO plan may distribute elective deferrals of worksite employees associated with a terminated client only in a direct rollover to an IRA designated by the worker. In the event that no such IRA is designated before the second anniversary of the termination of the CPEO/client relationship the assets attributable to a client's worksite employees may be distributed under the general plan terms (and law) that applies to a distribution upon a separation from service or severance from employment after that time.

Similar to IRS practice in multiple employer plans, disqualification of the entire plan will occur if a nondiscrimination failure occurs with respect to worksite employees of a client and either that failure is not corrected under one of the IRS correction programs or that portion of the plan is not spun off and/or terminated. If that portion of the plan is corrected or spun off and/or terminated, then the failure of a CPEO retirement plan to satisfy applicable nondiscrimination requirements with respect to that client will not result in the disqualification of the plan as applied to other clients. Existing government programs for correcting violations would be available to the CPEO for the plan and, in the case of nondiscrimination failures tested at the client level, to the client portion of the plan with the fee to be based on the size of the affected client's portion of the plan. Moreover, the CPEO plan will be treated as one plan for purposes of obtaining a determination letter.

EMPLOYMENT TAX LIABILITY

An entity that has been certified as a CPEO must accept responsibility for employment taxes with respect to wages it pays to worksite employees performing services for clients. Such liability will be exclusive or primary, as provided below. It is expected that the CPEO would (as provided by the Secretary) be required, on an ongoing basis, to provide the IRS with a list of clients for which employment tax liability has been assumed and a list of clients for whom it no longer has employment tax liability. Reporting and other requirements that apply to an employer with respect to employment taxes would generally apply to the CPEO for remuneration remitted by the CPEO (as provided by the Secretary). In addition, the remittance frequency of employment taxes will be determined with reference to collections and the liability of the CPEO.

Wages paid by the client during the calendar year prior to the assumption of employment tax liability would be counted towards the applicable FICA or FUTA tax wage base for the year in determining the employment tax liability of the CPEO (and vice versa). Exceptions to payments as wages or activities as employment, and thus to the required payment of employment taxes, are determined by reference to the client. Also, for purposes of crediting state unemployment insurance (SUI) taxes against FUTA tax liability, payments by the CPEO (or transmitted by the CPEO for the client) with respect to worksite employees would be taken into account. Thus, in determining FUTA liability, CPEO's would be treated as the employer for crediting SUI collection purposes on essentially the same terms as they would be authorized to process wage withholding, FICA and FUTA. The bill is, however, limited to Federal law and does not address the issue of whether a CPEO (i) would be eligible for successor status for SUI tax collection or (ii) how the state experience rating formula would be applied to the CPEO. Determinations with respect to these issues will be made pursuant to state law.

A CPEO will have exclusive liability for employment taxes with respect to wage payments made by the CPEO to worksite employees (including owners of the client who are worksite employees) if the CPEO meets the net worth requirement and, at least quarterly, an examination level attestation by an independent Certified Public Accountant attesting to the adequate and timely payment of federal employment taxes has been filed with the IRS.

The net worth requirement is satisfied if the CPEO's net worth (less goodwill and other intangibles) is, on the last day of the fiscal quarter preceding the date on which payment is due and on the last day of the fiscal quarter in which the payment is due, at $50,000 if the number of worksite employees is fewer than 500:

$100,000 if the number of worksite employees is 500 to 1,499;

$150,000 if the number of worksite employees is 1,500 to 2,499; $200,000 if the number of worksite employees is 2.500 to 3.999; and $250,000 if the number of worksite employees is more than 3 999.

ees is more than 3,999;
In the alternative, the net worth requirement could be satisfied through a bond (for employment taxes up to the applicable net worth amount) similar to an appeal bond filed with the Tax Court by a taxpayer or by an insurance bond satisfying similar rules.

Within 60 days after the end of each fiscal quarter, the CPEO will provide the IRS with an examination level attestation from an independent certified public accountant that states that the accountant has found no material reason to question the CPEO's assertions with respect to the adequacy of federal employment tax payments for the fiscal quarter. In the event that such attestation is not provided on a timely basis, the CPEO will cease to have exclusive liability with respect to employment taxes (regardless of the net worth or bonding requirement) effective the due date for the attestation. Exclusive liability will not be restored until the first day of the quarter following two successive quarters for which an examination level attestations were timely filed. In addition, the Secretary will have the authority, under final regulations, to provide limits on a CPEO's exclusive liability for employment taxes with respect to a particular customer in cases where there is an undue and large risk with respect to the ultimate collection of those taxes.

For any tax period for which any of these criteria for exclusive liability for employment taxes are not satisfied, or to the extent the client has not made adequate payments to the CPEO for the payment of wages, taxes, and benefits, the CPEO will have primary liability and the client will have secondary liability for employment taxes. In that instance, the IRS will assess and attempt to collect unpaid employment taxes against the CPEO first and may not generally take any action against a client with respect to liability for employment taxes until at least 45 days following the date the IRS mails a notice and demand to the CPEO. For this purpose, the statute of limitations for assessment or collection against the client will not expire until one year after the date that is 45 days after mailing of notice and demand to the CPEO (in the same manner as transferee liability under section 6901(c)). With respect to employment taxes attributable to periods during which a CPEO has liability, the client will be liable to the IRS for taxes, penalties (applicable to client actions or to the time periods after assessment of the client for the taxes), and interest (with such liability to be reduced by amounts paid to the IRS by the CPEO that are allocable, under rules to be determined by the IRS, to the client).

EFFECTIVE DATE

These provisions will be effective on January 1, 2002. The IRS will be directed to establish the PEO certification program at least three months prior to the effective date. The bill directs the IRS to accommodate transfers of assets in existing plans maintained by a CPEO or CPEO clients into a new plan (or amended plan) meeting the requirements of the legislation (e.g., client-by-client non-discrimination testing) without regard to whether or not such plans might fail the exclusive benefit rule because worksite employees might be considered common law employees of the client.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. President, I rise today to join my colleagues in introducing the "Rural Health Care in the 21st Century Act." I am pleased to have worked with my colleagues in crafting this bill that will address the needs of rural providers and beneficiaries as we begin the new century.

This legislation establishes a grant and loan program to assist rural providers in acquiring the necessary technologies to improve patient safety and meet the continually changing records management requirements. Rural hospitals and other providers do not have the capital needed to purchase these expensive technologies nor the resources to train their staff. This new program will enable these providers to purchase such crucial equipment as patient tracking systems, bar code systems to avoid drug errors and software equipped with artificial intelligence.

Another reason this legislation is so important is because it will bring equity to the Medicare Disproportionate Share Hospital (DSH) program, which has been inherently biased against rural providers since it was implemented in 1986. The premise of this program is to give hospitals that provide a substantial amount of care to low-income patients additional funding to assist with the higher costs associated with caring for this population.

Mr. President, the current DSH program does almost nothing for rural hospitals because different eligibility requirements have been established for rural and urban providers. To qualify for the increased payments the DSH program provides, urban hospitals are required to demonstrate that 15 percent of their patient load consists of Medicaid patients and Medicare patients eligible for Supplemental Security Income. However, rural hospitals must meet a higher threshold of 45 percent. Mr. President, there is no justification for this inequity. Our bill will level the playing field by applying the same eligibility threshold currently enjoyed by urban hospitals to all rural hospitals as well. According to the Medicare Payment Advisory Commission this reform will open the door for 55 percent of all rural hospitals to benefit from the DSH program—a significant increase over the 15.6 percent of rural hospitals currently participating.

The "Rural Health Care in the 21st Century Act" also addresses other inequities faced by rural providers because federal regulators do not adequately reflect the unique circumstances of delivering health care in rural America. This bill provides rural home health agencies with a 10 percent bonus payment as they have average per episode costs that are 20 percent higher than urban agencies.

Rural Health Clinics and Critical Access Hospitals are a key component of maintaining access to primary and emergency services in rural communities. This legislation makes modifications to the Balanced Budget Act to ensure these providers will continue to be an integral part of the rural health care delivery system.

Mr. President, I believe this bill is an important step in ensuring rural providers are treated equally under federal programs. This equalization must be accomplished so we can guarantee that rural Medicare beneficiaries have the same choices and access to services as their urban counterparts.

S. 2982. A bill to enhance international conservation, to promote the role of carbon sequestration as a means of slowing the building of greenhouse gases in the atmosphere, and to reward and encourage voluntary, pro-active environmental efforts on the issue of global climate change; to the Committee on Finance.

INTERNATIONAL CARBON SEQUESTRATION INCENTIVE ACT

Mr. BROWNBACK. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the International Carbon Sequestration Incentive Act. I am joined by Senators DASCHLE, DEWINE, BOB KERREY, GRASS-LEY and BYRD.

Environmental issues have traditionally been filled with controversy-pitting beneficial environmental measures against hard-working small business and state interests. It is unfortunate that the atmosphere surrounding environmental debate is filled with accusations of blame rather than basic problem-solving.

From listening to the public discourse concerning environmental issues, one would thing there is no other choice but to handicap our booming economy in order to have a clean environment, despite the fact that pollution is often, unfortunately, an unavoidable consequence of meeting public needs.

Mr. President, I stand here today to illustrate that there is a better way to deal with important environmental concerns. There is a way to encourage the best rather than expecting the worst. There is a way to create environmental incentives and environmental markets, rather than only environmental regulations. There is a way to chip away at environmental challenges, rather than demagoging an "all or nothing" stance.

This bill—the International Carbon Sequestration Incentive Act, takes a pro-active, incentive-driven approach to one of the most difficult environmental issues of our time-global climate change.

Specifically, this bill provides investment tax credits for groups who invest in international carbon sequestration projects—including investments which prevent rainforest destruction and projects which reforest abandoned native forest areas. These projects will reduce the amount of carbon dioxide emitted into the air—helping to offset climate change since carbon dioxide is one of the main greenhouse gases.

This bill achieves these environmental benefits by promoting carbon sequestration—the process of converting carbon dioxide in the atmosphere into carbon which is stored in plants, trees and soils.

Under this bill, eligible projects can receive funding at a rate of $2.50 per verified ton of carbon stored or sequestered—up to 50% of the total project cost. The minimum length of these projects is 30 years and the Implementing Panel can only approve $200 million in tax credits each year.

Why do this? Carbon dioxide is a greenhouse gas believed to contribute to global warming. While there is debate over the role in which human activity plays in speeding up the warming process, there is broad consensus that there are increased carbon levels in the atmosphere today.

Until now, the only real approach seriously considered to address climate change was an international treaty which calls for emission limits on carbon dioxide-which would mean limiting the amount that comes from your car, your business and your farm. This treaty—the Kyoto treaty, also favored exempting developing nations from emission limits—putting the U.S. economy at a distinct disadvantage. Approaching the issue of climate change in this fashion would be very costly and would not respond to the global nature of this problem.

Instead, my approach encourages offsetting greenhouse gases through improved land management and conservation—and by engaging developing nations rather than cutting them out of the process.

In addition to reducing greenhouse gas emissions, sponsored projects under this bill will also help to preserve the irreplaceable biodiversity that flourishes in the Earth's tropical rain forests and other sensitive eco-systems. In addition to diverse plant life, these projects will be protecting countless endangered and rare species.

This bill requires investors to work closely with foreign governments, nongovernmental organizations and indigenous peoples to find the capital necessary to set aside some of the last great resources of the planet. Rain forests have been called the lungs of the Earth—helping to filter out pollution and provide sanctuary for numerous pharmaceutical finds which may one day cure many of our human diseases.

This bill rewards the partnership and pro-active vision of companies that want to be part of the solution to climate change. We are lucky in the fact that private industry is already looking at this issue and working to find a way to contribute. An example of what this bill would promote can be seen by looking at the Noel Kempff Mercado National Park in Bolivia.

As you can see by looking at these photos [DISPLAY FOREST SCENES], Noel Kempff is a beautiful, biodiverse part of the world. This park spans nearly 4 million acres in Bolivia, hosts several hundred species of rare and endangered wildlife—including 130 species of mammals, 620 species of birds and 70 species of reptiles—not to mention 110 different species of orchids and grasses.

This park was in direct danger of deforestation. The land would have been cleared and eventually turned into large commercial farming operations. The loss of this park would have led to carbon dioxide emissions of between 25–36 million tons as well as increased commercial agricultural competition.

Instead, the Bolivian government came together with The Nature Conservancy, American Electric Power and other investors to preserve the park and conduct extensive verification of the carbon being stored in trees and soils of the now protected area.

Companies like American Electric Power, BP Amoco and PacifiCorp want to invest in projects like Noel Kempff because they want to promote the role of carbon sequestration as a means to combat climate change. These companies have taken a big step in contributing to the solution—think how much more good they, and other companies, could do if there were incentives to encourage this activity.

In the U.S., we are lucky enough to have programs like the Conservation Reserve Program and federal parks—which help preserve some of the natural resources of this great nation. Unfortunately, developing countries do not have access to the kind of capital it takes to make similar investments in their own countries. It is therefore, a worthy investment in the world environment—since climate change is a global problem, to chip away at this problem by doing what we know helps reduce pollution and greenhouse gases: planting and preserving trees.

This bill is designed to encourage more participation in projects like the Noel Kempff Park. By using limited and very targeted tax credits, we have an opportunity as a nation—to take a leadership role on climate change without crushing our own economy. This bill also furthers the goal of including developing countries in the climate change issue—since any agreement to reduce greenhouse gases must ultimately include these areas which will become the largest emitters.

Mr. President, I do not pretend that this bill will resolve the climate change issue. That is not my intent. Rather, this bill takes the view that where we do agree that good can be achieved—we should move forward. It is my hope that this bill will contribute to the solution on climate change and help to re-shape the way we view environmental problems.

By Mr. AKAKA (for himself and Mr. INOUYE):

S. 2983. A bill to provide for the return of land to the Government of Guam, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources

THE GUAM OMNIBUS OPPORTUNITIES ACT

Mr. AKAKA. Mr. President, I rise to introduce the Guam Omnibus Opportunities Act, which seeks to address important issues to the people of Guam dealing with land, economic development and social issues. On July 25, the House passed similar legislation, H.R. 2462, which was introduced by Congressman ROBERT UNDERWOOD, the Delegate from Guam. During the 105th Congress, the Senate passed similar provisions of H.R. 2462 as part of S. 210, an omnibus territories bill.

There are several provisions of the Guam Omnibus Opportunities Act. First, Section 2 of the bill provides a process for the Government of Guam to receive lands from the U.S. government for specified public purposes by giving Guam the right of first refusal for declared federal excess lands by the General Services Administration prior to it being made available to any other federal agency. It also provides for a process for the Government of Guam and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to engage in negotiations on the future ownership and management of declared federal excess lands within the Guam National Wildlife Refuge.

Section 3 provides the Government of Guam with the authority to tax foreign investors at the same rates as states under U.S. tax treaties with foreign countries since Guam cannot change the withholding tax rate on its own under current law. Under the U.S. Internal Revenue Code, there is a 30 percent withholding tax rate for foreign investors in the United States. Since Guam's tax law "mirrors" the rate established under the U.S. Code, the standard rate of foreign investors in Guam is 30 percent. It is a common feature in U.S. tax treaties for countries to negotiate lower withholding rates on investment returns. Unfortunately, while there are different definitions for the term "United States" under these treaties, Guam is not included. This omission has adversely impacted Guam since 75 percent of Guam's commercial development is funded by foreign investors. As an example, with Japan, the U.S. rate for foreign investors is 10 percent. This means that while Japanese investors are taxed at a 10 percent withholding tax rate on their investments in the fifty states, those same investors are taxed at a 30 percent withholding rate on Guam.

While the long-term solution is for U.S. negotiators to include Guam in the definition of the term "United States" for all future tax treaties, the immediate solution is to amend the Organic Act of Guam and authorize the Government of Guam to tax foreign investors at the same rates as the fifty states. It is my understanding that all other U.S. territories have remedied this problem in one way or another. Therefore, Guam is the only U.S. jurisdiction in the country that is not extended tax equity for foreign investors.

With an unemployment rate of 15 percent, Guam continues to struggle economically due to the Asian financial crisis. That is why I believe it is vitally important for the federal government to assist Guam in stimulating its economy through sound federal policies and technical assistance. This section would greatly assist the Government of Guam in promoting economic development on the island and would provide long needed tax equity.

Section 4 considers Guam within the U.S. Customs zone in the treatment of betel nuts, which are part of Chamorro tradition and culture. While betel nuts are grown in the United States, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has an important alert for betel nuts from foreign countries in place due to the influx of betel nuts from Asian countries for commercial consumption and the FDA's contention that the betel nut is "adulterated." This means an automatic detention of betel nuts by U.S. Customs agents when entering the United States. Although Guam is a U.S. territory, Guam is considered to be outside the U.S. Customs zone. Betel nuts grown in Guam, therefore, are subject to the FDA ban in the same manner as foreign countries. This section narrowly applies to Guam, limits use to personal consumption, and ensure that the FDA ban against foreign countries remains in place.

Section 5 empowers the governors of the territories and the State of Hawaii to report to the Secretary of the Interior on the financial and social impacts of the Compacts of Free Association on their respective jurisdictions and requires that the Secretary forward Administration comments and ommendations on the report to Congress. This is an important issue to the State of Hawaii as the numbers of migrants to Hawaii from the Republic of the Marshall Islands, the Federated States of Micronesia, and the Republic of Palau continue to grow. The State of Hawaii has spent well over $14 million in public funds in the past year alone, with most of the funds being spent on our educational and health care systems.

Under the compact agreements, the Federal government made clear that it would compensate jurisdictions affected, yet the State of Hawaii has not received federal funding since the implementation of these agreements. This section seeks to improve the reporting requirements for Compact Impact Aid to address this situation.

Section 6 establishes a five-member Guam War Claims Review Commission to be appointed by the Secretary of the Interior. The goal of the Commission is to review the facts and circumstances surrounding U.S. restitution to Guamanians who suffered compensable injury during the occupation of Guam by Japan during World War II. Compensable injury includes death, personal injury, or forced labor, forced march, or internment. The Commission would review the relevant historical facts and determine the eligible claimants, the eligibility requirements, and the total amount necessary for compensation, and report its findings and recommendations for action to Congress nine months after the Commission is established claims by U.S. citizens against Japan. As a consequence, the U.S. inherited these claims, which was acknowledged by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles when the issue was raised during consideration of the treaty before the Committee on Foreign Relations in 1952.

The 1951 Treaty of Peace between the U.S. and Japan effectively barred

Considerable historical information indicates that the United States intended to remedy the issue of war restitution for the people of Guam. In 1945, the Guam Meritorious Claims Act was enacted which authorized the Navy to adjudicate and settle war claims in Guam for property damage for a period of one year. Claims in access of $5,000 for personal injury or death were to be forwarded to Congress. Unfortunately. the Act never fulfilled its intended purposes due to the limited time frame for claims and the preoccupation of the local population with recovery from the war, resettlement of their homes. and rebuilding their lives.

On March 25, 1947, the Hopkins Commission, a civilian commission appointed by the Navy Secretary, issued a report which revealed the flaws of the 1945 Guam Meritorious Claims Act and recommended that the Act be amended to provide on the spot settlement and payment of all claims, both property and for the death and personal injury.

Despite the recommendations of the Hopkins Commission, the U.S. government failed to remedy the flaws of the Guam Meritorious Act when it enacted the War Claims Act of 1948, legislation which provided compensations for U.S. citizens who were victims of the Japanese war effort during World War II. Guamanians were U.S. nationals at the time of the enactment of the War Claims Act, thereby making them ineligible for compensation. In 1950, with the enactment of the Organic Act of Guam, Guamanians became U.S. citizens.

In 1962, Congress again attempted to address the remaining circumstances of U.S. citizens and nationals that had not received reparations from previous enacted laws. Once again, however, the Guamanians were inadvertently made ineligible because policymakers assumed that the War Claims Act of 1948 included them. Section 6 brings closure to this longstanding issue.

In summary, Mr. President, the Guam Omnibus Opportunities Act will go a long way toward resolving issues that the Federal Government has been working on with the Government of Guam on land, economic development and social issues. I look forward to working with my colleagues in the Senate to resolve these issues to assist Guam in achieving greater economic self-sufficiency.

By Mr. CONRAD:

S. 2984. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 and to provide a refundable caregivers tax credit; to the Committee on Finance.

LONG-TERM CAREGIVERS ASSISTANCE ACT OF 2000

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, today I am introducing the Long-Term Caregivers Assistance Act of 2000, a proposal that would provide much needed assistance to individuals with long-term care needs and their caregivers.

Nationwide, more than 8 million individuals require some level of assistance with activities of daily living. Over the next 30 years, this number is expected to increase significantly as our nation experiences an unprecedented growth in its elderly population.

We know that for many people leaving their homes to obtain care is not their first choice—the cost of nursing home care can be prohibitive, and such care often takes individuals away from their communities. While federal support for long-term care is primarily spent on nursing home services, many people receive assistance with their long-term care needs in the home from their families, often without the help of public assistance or private insurance.

Nationwide, nearly 37 million individuals provide unpaid care to family members of all ages with functional or cognitive impairments. In my state, there are about 61,000 individuals providing informal caregiving services.

Unfortunately, the need for longterm care can cause substantial financial burdens on many individuals and their families. According to a recent study, almost two-thirds of those serving as caregivers suffer financial setbacks—setbacks that can total thousands of dollars in lost wages and other benefits over a caregiver's lifetime. This is a burden that caregivers and their families should not have to bear

For this reason, I am introducing this proposal to provide a $2,000 tax credit that could be used by individuals with substantial care needs or by their caregivers.

Taxpayers who have long-term care needs, or who care for others with such needs, may not have the same ability to pay taxes as other taxpayers—a reasonable and legitimate concern in a tax system based on the principle of ability-to-pay. Providing a tax credit is an equitable and efficient way of helping caregivers and individuals with long-term care needs meet their formal and informal costs.

I recognize that this tax credit is only a piece of the long-term care puzzle—but I believe it is an important piece. This credit could be used to help pay for prescription drugs or other out-of-pocket expenses. It could be used to pay for some formal home care services. It could also be used to help family members offset some of the expenses they incur in caregiving.

We must act now to address the longterm care needs of our nation. I urge my colleagues to support this important legislation.

By Mr. DURBIN (for himself and Mr. Kennedy):

S. 2985. A bill to amend the Agricultural Trade Act of 1978 to authorize the Commodity Credit Corporation to reallocate certain unobligated funds from the export enhancement program to other agricultural trade development and assistance programs; to the Committee on Finance.

PROVIDING SCHOOL LUNCHES TO HUNGRY CHIL-DREN—THE AGRICULTURAL FLEXIBILITY IN EXPORT DEVELOPMENT AND ASSISTANCE ACT OF 2000

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, if you had happened to be in the Senate Dining Room a few months ago, you might have seen a group of people having lunch and wondered what in the world would gather Ambassador George McGovern, Senators Bob Dole and TED KENNEDY, Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman, Congressmen JIM McGOVERN and TONY HALL and myself all at one table.

The answer to your question is that we were working together on a bipartisan initiative that could have a positive impact on children around the world and be of great benefit to America's farmers.

Former Senator and now Ambassador McGovern has advocated an idea to emulate one of the most beneficial programs ever launched on behalf of children in this country—the school lunch program.

He has worked with Senator Dole and others to establish an international school lunch program and President Clinton has jump-started this proposal with his announcement that the United States will provide $300 million in surplus commodities for the initiative.

Today, I am introducing legislation to provide a long-term funding source for international school feeding programs that will allow such programs to expand and reach more kids.

Today there are more than 300 million children throughout the world—more kids than the entire population of the United States—who go through the day and then to bed at night hungry. Some 130 million of these kids don't go to school right now, mainly because their parents need them to stay at home or work to pitch in any way that they can.

In January of this year, I traveled to sub-Saharan Africa, the epicenter of the AIDS crisis, with more than two-thirds of AIDS cases worldwide. There I saw first-hand the horrible impact AIDS is having on that continent. I met a woman in Uganda named Mary Nalongo Nassozzi, who is a 63-year-old widow.

All of her children died from AIDS and she has created an "orphanage" with 16 of her grandchildren now living in her home. People like Mary need our help to keep these kids in school.

Linking education and nutrition is not a new idea. Private voluntary organizations like CARE, Catholic Relief Services, ADRA, World Vision, Save the Children and Food for the Hungry are already helping kids with education, mother/child nutrition programs and school feeding programs.

These organizations and the World Food Program operate programs in more than 90 countries at this time, but typically can only target the poorest children in the poorest districts of the country.

Ambassador McGovern, Senator Dole, myself and others have called for an expanded effort, and as I noted earlier, President Clinton has responded. I applaud the President for the program he announced last Sunday in Okinawa. This $300 million initiative is expected to help serve a solid, nutritious meal to nine million children every day they go to school.

Think about it: for only 10 cents a day for each meal, we can feed a hungry child and help that child learn. With what you or I pay for a Big Mac, fries and a soft drink, we could afford to feed two classrooms of kids in Ghana or Nepal.

THE BENEFITS OF SCHOOL FEEDING PROGRAMS

While we need to consider the costs of an international school feeding program, I think we should also look at the benefits.

Malnourished children find it difficult to concentrate and make poor students. But these school feeding programs not only help concentration, they have many benefits, including increased attendance rates and more years of school attendance, improved girls' enrollment rates, improved academic performance, lower malnutrition rates, greater attention spans and later ages for marriage and childbirth.

These benefits ripple in many directions: higher education levels for girls and later marriage for women help slow population growth; greater education levels overall help spur economic development; and giving needy children a meal at school could also help blunt the terrible impact AIDS is having throughout Africa, where there are more than 10 million AIDS orphans who no longer have parents to feed and care for them.

DOMESTIC BENEFITS

Some will question our involvement in overseas feeding programs, so let me describe what we're doing at home and how we benefit from these efforts.

This year, we're spending more than $20 billion in our food stamp program. More than half of this amount goes to kids. We're also spending over $9 billion for school child nutrition programs, and more than $4 billion for the WIC program. While this sounds like a lot, we need to do more. Many people who are eligible for these programs are not aware of it and the Department of Agriculture must do a better job getting the word out. Still, these figures put the costs of an international school feeding effort in perspective: they will be a small fraction of what we're spending here at home.

Through our international efforts, we share some of what we have learned with less fortunate countries. But we also benefit.

An international school lunch program will provide a much-needed boost to our beleaguered farm economy, where surpluses and low prices have been hurting farmers for the third year in a row. Congress has provided more than $20 billion in emergency aid to farmers over the last three years. Buying farm products for this proposal would boost prices in the marketplace, helping U.S. farmers and needy kids in the process. It is a common-sense proposal for helping our farmers, and the right thing to do.

Second, the education of children leads to economic development, which in turn increases demand for U.S. products in the future. Some of the largest food aid recipients in the 1950s are now our largest commercial customers.

Finally, let's consider the positive foreign policy implications of this measure. It helps fulfill the commitments we made in Rome in 1996 to work to improve world food security and helps satisfy the commitment to net food importing developing countries we made in Marrakesh in 1995 at the conclusion of the Uruguay Round. It also supports the goals of "Education for All" made in April in Dakar to achieve universal access to primary education.

It goes beyond demonstrating our commitment to summit texts and documents and has a real impact on our national security. When people are getting enough to eat, internal instability is less likely. Most of the conflicts taking place right now around the world are related at least in part to food insecurity

WE CAN'T AND SHOULDN'T DO THIS ALONE

The United States shouldn't go it alone. This needs to be an international effort. If the full costs for this program are shared fairly among developed countries, as we do now for United Nations peacekeeping efforts or humanitarian food aid relief efforts, then our resource commitments will be multiplied many times over. I encourage the Administration to continue its efforts to gain multilateral support for this initiative.

We should also seek the involvement and commitment of America's corporations and philanthropic organizations. Companies can contribute books and school supplies, computer equipment, kitchen equipment, construction supplies and management expertise.

PROPOSED LEGISLATION

The food aid laws we already have in place allow USDA and USAID to start up these kinds of programs, but resources are limited.

The President's initiative is a concrete first step in the effort to assure that every kid is going to school, and that every kid going to school has a meal.

However—and this is not to detract in any way from the important action he has taken—the President's initiative relies on surplus commodities. That is a sensible approach at this time. But we may not always have an overabundance. We all hope for and are working for an end to the farm crisis, which means the quantity of surplus commodities will decline. We need to look at how we will continue to pay for this program in the future as it helps more children and as surplus commodities dwindle.

The legislation I am introducing today, the Agricultural Flexibility in Export Development and Assistance Act of 2000, addresses the longer-term funding issue.

My legislation authorizes the Secretary of Agriculture to reallocate unspent Export Enhancement Program (EEP) money to school feeding and other food aid programs. When EEP was first authorized, one of its main purposes was to increase demand for U.S. agricultural commodities—to put money in the wallets of farmers by promoting overseas demand for our products. Because U.S. commodity prices have come down, it hasn't been used to any major extent since 1995. We are sitting on a pot of money, authorized but not being spent, while the EU spends over $5 billion annually on similar programs. My legislation would free up the Secretary of Agriculture to devote those funds to school feeding and other food aid programs.

Because I recognize some would like to see a portion of the surplus EEP funds to be spent on export development programs, my bill also permits a portion of the funds to be spent on export promotion.

To maintain flexibility while ensuring our food aid goals are addressed, the measure would require that a minimum of 75 percent of reallocated EEP funding be spent for either PL480 (Title I or Title II) or Food for Progress food aid, with at least half of this amount devoted to school feeding or child nutrition programs. It would allow up to 20 percent of the reallocated funds to be spent on the Market Access Program to promote agricultural exports, and a maximum of five percent to be spent on the Foreign Market Development (Cooperator) program.

To ensure new artificial restraints don't block our intention in this legislation, the measure also raises the caps currently in place regarding the quantity of food aid permitted under Food for Progress and the amount that may be used to pay for the administrative expenses associated with the program.

Both the Coalition for Food Aid and Friends of the World Food Program support this measure. Major commodity groups such as the American Soybean Association and the National Corn Growers Association also support it

Mr. President, I urge my colleagues to join me as cosponsors of this legislation and in support of the broader effort to respond to the nutrition needs of 300 million children, 130 million of whom are not but could and should be in school. With our help, these statistics can change.

Mr. HUTCHINSON. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Just Opportunities in Bidding (JOB) Act which is necessary to ensure that companies who seek to do business with our government are treated fairly. The JOB Act would prohibit the implementation of proposed regulations which would dramatically amend the Federal Acquisition Regulation.

I have many concerns about these proposed regulations, but I am deeply troubled by the discrimination which it will inevitably foster when implemented. The regulations will de facto amend many of our nation's laws and give government contracting officers, who are not trained in the interpretation of these laws, unfettered discretion to deny contracts to companies based on any alleged violation of any labor and employment, environmental, antitrust, tax, or consumer protection laws over the three years immediately preceding the contract. This is a dramatic change from the current requirements of the Federal Acquisition Regulation which requires that violations must be substantial to trigger denial of contract eligibility and does not extend to unrelated, past violations.

The proposed regulations would also allow for the denial of contracts on the basis of a mere complaint issued by a federal agency, which often are based solely upon information provided by outside, interested parties. Moreover, the proposal's terminology is vague and extremely subjective—placing tremendous and unprecedented discretion in the hands of federal contracting officers. That is discretion that they do not need nor qualified to exercise. Terms such as "legal compliance" by bidding parties are well-intentioned, I am sure, however, I view this as a trial lawyer's greatest wish come true. What does "legal compliance" mean? Does it mean that employers must ensure that they are 100 percent in compliance with all of the pertinent laws? Can even the most prudent employers guarantee that they and their worksites are 100 percent in compliance with all federal tax, labor, environmental, and antitrust statutes and regulations? That's certainly a question which many creative lawyers will undoubtedly rush to answer in courthouses across our na-

This proposal is in direct contradiction to existing policy which is to fulfill governmental needs for goods and services at a fair and reasonable price from contractors who are technically qualified and able to perform the contract. Our current policy is based upon a good balance between our desire to get the best value for our constituents' taxdollars while being fair to all qualified companies who want to have the opportunity to provide their goods and services to the government. The proposed regulations will result in the unjustified exclusion of many of these companies from the bidding process and will result in less competition, reduced job opportunities for many employees—especially small businesses and less value for our constituents' taxdollars.

As elected representatives of our constituents, we cannot condone this and as a legislative body we must refuse to allow a continuation of this Administration's legislation by regulation. The JOB Act would require the GAO to thoroughly examine this issue and report back to Congress with its findings. To me, this is a sound and reasonable approach rather than a political one. If you agree that the proposed regulations—and the millions of American workers, employers, and taxpayers that they will profoundly affect—deserve more thorough consideration, join me in my effort to enact the JOB

I ask consent that the text of the bill be included in the RECORD.

By Mr. ROBERTS (for himself, Mr. GRASSLEY, Mr. JEFFORDS, and Mr. THOMAS):

S. 2987. A bill to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act to promote access to health care services in rural areas, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

RURAL HEALTH CARE IN THE 21ST CENTURY ACT OF 2000

Mr. ROBERTS. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Rural Health Care in the 21st Century Act of 2000.

This legislation will improve access to technology necessary to improve rural health care and expand access to quality health care in rural areas.

The future of health care in this country is being challenged by a variety of factors. The growing pains associated with managed care, an increasing elderly population and the drive to ensure the solvency of the federal Medicare Trust Fund are just a few of the factors placing pressure on health care facilities and health care providers across the country. Small, rural hospitals that provide services to a relatively low volume of patients are faced with even greater challenges in this environment.

The bill I am introducing today takes critical steps to improve access to high technology in rural areas and establishes a new high technology acquisition grant and loan program to improve patient safety and outcomes. At the same time hospitals need to update equipment, comply with new regulatory requirements and join the effort to reduce medical errors, many hospitals are finding it difficult to access the financial backing necessary to acquire the telecommunications equipment necessary to develop innovative solutions. This bill establishes a 5-year grant program through the Office of Rural Health Policy that allows hospitals, health care centers and related organizations to apply for matching grants or loans up to $100,000 to purchase the advanced technologies necessary to improve patient safety and keep pace with the changing records management requirements of the 21st Century.

This bill also increases Disproportionate Share Hospitals payments to rural hospitals. The Medicare DSH adjustment is based on a complex formula and the hospital's percentage of low-income patients. This percentage of low-income patients is different for each hospital, depending on where the hospital is located and the number of beds in the hospital. This bill establishes one formula to distribute payments to all hospitals covered by the inpatient PPS. This will give rural hospitals an equal opportunity to qualify for the DSH adjustment.

Twenty-five percent of our nation's senior citizens live in rural areas where access to modern health care services is often lacking. Telehealth technologies have evolved significantly and can serve to connect rural patients to the health care providers that they need. This bill includes provisions of S. 2505, a telehealth bill introduced by my colleague from Vermont, Senator JEF-FORDS. These provisions address eight areas of Medicare reimbursement policy that need improvement. It eliminates requirements for fee-sharing between providers and provides a standard professional fee to the health care provider who delivers the care. The site where the patient is presented is made eligible for a standard facility fee. The requirement for a telepresenter is eliminated and the codes that can be billed for are expanded to reflect current practice. All rural counties and urban HPSAs are covered by this legislation and demonstration projects are established to access reimbursement for store and forward activities. Also, the law is clarified to allow for home health agencies to incorporate telehomecare into their care plans where appropriate.

The Health Care Financing Administration is currently administering five telemedicine demonstration projects. This provision extends these projects an additional two years to give the projects adequate time to produce useful data.

The Medicare Rural Hospital Flexibility Program established by the Balanced Budget Act of 1997 allows rural hospitals to be reclassified as limited service facilities, known as Critical Access Hospitals. Critical Access Hospitals are important components of the rural health care infrastructure. They are working to provide quality health care services in sparsely populated areas of the country. However, they are restricted by burdensome regulations and inadequate Medicare payments. In addition to reduced staffing requirements, Congress intended to reimburse CAH inpatient and outpatient hospital services on the basis of reasonable costs. This legislation exempts Medicare swing beds in CAHs for the Skilled Nursing Facility (SNF) Prospective Payment System (PPS) and reimburses based on reasonable costs, and provides reasonable cost payment for ambulance services and home health services in CAHs.

In addition, this legislation directs the Secretary of HHS to establish a procedure to ensure that a single FI will provide services to all CAHs and allows CAHs to choose between two options for payment for outpatient services: (1) reasonable costs for facility services, or (2) an all-inclusive rate which combines facility and professional services.

This bill permanently guarantees pre-Balanced Budget Act payment levels for outpatient services provided by rural hospitals with under 100 beds, modifies the 50 bed exemption language and for Rural Health Clinics allows RHCs to qualify as long as their average daily patient census does not exceed 50, allows Physician Assistantowned RHCs that lose their clinic status to maintain Medicare Part B payments, and clarifies that when services already excluded from the PPS system are delivered to Skilled Nursing Facility patients by practitioners employed by the RHCs, those visits are also excluded from the PPS payment system. In addition, this bill increases payments under the Medicare home health PPS for beneficiaries who reside in rural areas by increasing the standardized payment per 60-day episode by 10 percent

Current law allows states the option to reimburse hospitals for Qualified Medicare Beneficiary (QMB) services attributable to deductibles and coinsurance amounts. However, many state Medicaid programs have chosen not to pay these costs, leaving rural hospitals with a significant portion of unpaid bad debt expenses. This is especially burdensome since federal law prohibits hospitals from seeking payment for the cost-sharing amounts from QMB patients. This legislation provides additional relief to rural hospitals by restoring 100% Medicare bad debt reimbursement for QMBs.

Although, as a general rule, scholarships are excluded from income, the Internal Revenue Service has taken the position that National Health Service Corp scholarships are included in income. Imposing taxes on the scholarships could have disastrous effects on a program that for over 20 years has helped funnel doctors, nurse-practitioners, physician assistants, and other health professionals into medically underserved communities. This provision excludes from gross income of certain scholarships any amounts received under the National Health Service Corps Scholarship Program.

Finally, this bill includes important technical corrections to the Balanced Budget Refinement Act of 1999. This bill extends the option to rebase target amounts to all Sole Community Hospitals and allows Critical Access Hospitals to receive reimbursement for lab services on a reasonable cost basis.

Exciting changes are taking place in rural America. This legislation will enable small rural hospitals to take advantage of the latest technology and improve health care for rural residents across the country. Mr. President, I invite my colleagues to join me in support of this endeavor. I am unanimous consent that a copy of the bill appear in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

By Mr. FRIST (for himself, Mr. BREAUX, Mr. BOND, and Mr. HOLLINGS):

S. 2988. A bill to establish a National Commission on Space; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

MILLENNIUM NATIONAL COMMISSION ON SPACE $$\operatorname{ACT}$$

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I rise to introduce the Millennium National Commission on Space Act.

The year 1999 proved to be very difficult for NASA. The Commerce Committee reviewed reports on such incidents as:

Workers searching for misplaced Space Station tanks in a landfill;

Loose pins in the Shuttle's main engine:

Failure to make English-metric conversions causing the failure of a $125 million mission to Mars;

Two-time use of "rejected" seals on Shuttle's turbopumps;

$1 billion of cost overruns on the prime contract for the Space Station with calls from the Inspector General at NASA for improvement in the agency's oversight;

Workers damaging the main antennae on the Shuttle for communication between mission control and the orbiting Shuttle:

Urgent repair mission to the Hubble telescope:

Approximately $1 billion invested in an experimental vehicle and currently no firm plans for its first flight, if it flies at all: and

The lack of long-term planning for the Space Station, an issue on which the Science, Technology, and Space Subcommittee of the Commerce Committee has repeatedly questioned NASA.

It is the last of these items, the lack of long-term planning for the Space Station and the lack of long-term planning of NASA and the civilian space program, that is of a concern to me. I feel that the civilian space program is in need of some guidance. Just as the space policy of the 1980's had changed since the creation of NASA in 1958, the space policy of the New Millennium needs to change from the 1980's.

Space has become more commercialized. Today, the private sector conducts more space launches than the government. There are many more companies developing plans to implement other new and innovative commercial ventures.

I feel that the long term civilian space goals and objectives of the nation are in need of some major revisions. As I mentioned earlier, today's environment has changed drastically since the last commission of this type was assembled.

This bill proposes a Presidential Commission to address these points.

The commission will do the "homework" that will form the basis for a revised civilian space program. The civilian space industry has proven to be a valuable national asset over the years. The goal of this bill will be to ensure that the U.S. maintains its preeminence in space.

This commission will consist of 15 Members appointed by the President based upon the recommendations of Congressional leadership. My hope is that today's new environment will be reflected in the make-up of the commission's members. For that reason, the bill sets limits on how many members shall be from the government and how many should serve on their first federal commission. Ex-officio members of the commission are also specified in the bill. Advisory members from the Senate and the House of Representatives are to be appointed to the commission by the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

The final report of the commission is to identify the long range goals, opportunities, and policy options for the U.S. civilian space activity for the next 20 years.

As Chairman of the Science, Technology and Space Subcommittee of the Commerce Committee, I will continue our oversight responsibilities at NASA. I look forward to working with other Members of this body to further perfect this bill.

Mr. President, I thank you for this opportunity to introduce this legislation which addresses these very important issues for the space community.

Mr. BREAUX. Mr. President, as the Ranking Democratic Member of the Commerce Committee's Science, Technology, and Space Supcommittee, I am joining my Chairman, Senator FRIST, in introducing legislation to establish a National Space Commission.

If past experience holds true, NASA will be a catalyst for scientific discovery in this new century. In the past year, NASA has worked on a variety of valuable projects from finding a value for the Hubble Constant which measures how fast the universe is expanding to docking with the International Space Station for the very first time. Earlier this week, NASA and the Russian Space Agency completed the docking of the Service Module to the International Space Station, setting the stage for the first permanent crew to occupy the station.

Now, our space exploration agency is poised at a crossroads. After several failures, management has made some changes and reinvested in the work force and in project oversight. During the next year, NASA will try to meet a very aggressive schedule for the assembly of the Space Station, and we will finally have our orbiting laboratory in space. At the same time, a new Administration will be entering the White House. It seems to be an appropriate moment to stand back and ask where our space program is going in the next twenty years.

Now is the time to look to the future. The Millennium National Space Commission will build on the work of the 1985 National Space Commission and help us formulate an agenda for the civilian space program. In doing so, it will help keep this nation in the forefront of scientific exploration of "the final frontier."

By Mr. McCAIN (for himself and Mr. KERREY):

S. 2989. A bill to provide for the technical integrity of the FM radio band, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

LOW POWER RADIO ACT OF 2000

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce a bill with my friend and colleague Senator Kerrey to resolve the controversy that has erupted over the Federal Communications Commission's creation of a new, noncommercial low-power FM radio service.

As you undoubtedly know, the FCC's low-power FM rules will allow the creation of thousands of new noncommercial FM radio stations with coverage of about a mile or so. Although these new stations will give churches and community groups new outlets for expression of their views, commercial FM broadcasters as well as National Public Radio oppose the new service. They argue that the FCC ignored studies showing that the new low-power stations would cause harmful interference to the reception of existing full-power FM stations.

Mr. President, legislation before the House of Representatives would call a halt to the institution of low-power FM service by requiring further independent study of its potential for causing harmful interference to full-power stations, and Senator GREGG has introduced the same legislation in the Senate. While this would undoubtedly please existing FM radio broadcasters. it understandably angers the many parties who are anxious to apply for the new low-power licenses. Most importantly, it would delay the availability of whatever new programming these new low-power licensees might provide, even where the station would have caused no actual interference at all had it been allowed to operate.

With all due respect to Senator GREGG and to the supporters of the House bill, Senator KERREY and I think we can reach a fairer result, and the bill we are introducing, the Low Power Radio Act of 2000, is intended to do just that.

Unlike Senator GREGG's bill, the Low Power Radio Act would allow the FCC to license low-power FM radio stations. The only low-power FM stations that would be affected would be those whose transmissions are actually causing harmful interference to a full-power radio station. The Commission would determine which stations are causing such interference and what the low-power station must do to alleviate it, as the expert agency with the experience and engineering resources required to make such determinations.

The Act gives full-power broadcasters the right to file a complaint with the Commission against any low-power FM licensee for causing harmful interference, and stipulates that the costs of the proceeding shall be borne by the losing party. Finally, to make sure that the FCC does not relegate the interests of full-power radio broadcasters to secondary importance in its eagerness to launch the new low-power FM service, the bill requires the FCC to complete all rulemakings necessary to implement full-power stations' transition to digital broadcasting no later than June 1, 2001.

Mr. President, this legislation strikes a fair balance by allowing non-interfering low-power FM stations to operate without further delay, while affecting only those low-power stations that the FCC finds to be causing harmful interference in their actual, everyday operations. This is totally consistent with the fact that low-power FM is a secondary service which, by law, must cure any interference caused to any primary, full-power service. This legislation will provide an efficient and effective means to detect and resolve harmful interference. By providing a procedural remedy with costs assigned to the losing party, the bill will discourage the creation of low-power stations most likely to cause harmful interference even as it discourages fullpower broadcasters from making unwarranted interference claims. And for these reasons it will provide a more definitive resolution of opposing interference claims than any number of further studies ever could.

Mr. President, in the interests of would-be new broadcasters, existing broadcasters, but, most of all, the listening public, I urge the enactment of the Low Power Radio Act of 2000.

Mr. KERREY. Mr. President, I am pleased to introduce today the Low Power Radio Act of 2000 with Senator McCain. Low power FM radio is an effort to bring more diversity to the airwaves. Though radio airwaves belong to the public, only a handful of people currently control what we hear on-air. Low power FM will expand that number by thousands, giving a voice to local governments, community groups, churches, and schools.

I understand that there is some concern that these new low-power signals will interfere with existing full-power stations. I believe these fears are greatly exaggerated. The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) has decades-long experience dealing with FM-spectrum issues, and they have conducted extensive testing to ensure that these new stations will not cause interference.

Should interference occur, however, I believe that full-power stations must have a process for alleviating the problem. The Low Power Radio Act allows any broadcaster or listener to file a formal complaint with the FCC. If the FCC determines that a low-power station is causing harmful interference, the low power station will be removed from the airwaves while a technical remedy is found. To discourage frivolous complaints, however, the FCC is authorized to assess reimbursement of costs associated with the proceeding as well as punitive damages onto any full-power station who files a complaint without any purpose other than to impede a low-power radio transmission.

This initiative has undergone a considerable period of testing and public comment. Delaying implementation will only result in more conflicting engineering studies without guaranteeing that interference will not occur. I believe that it is time to let low power FM go forward. The Low Power Radio Act gives the FCC the authority to resolve harmful interference complaints on a case-by-case, common sense basis. It is a compromise that can work to the benefit of existing broadcasters, potential low power licensees, and all radio listeners.

By Mr. KERRY (for himself and Mr. Feingold):

S. 2990. A bill to amend chapter 42 of title 28, United States Code, to establish the Judicial Education Fund for the payment of reasonable expenses of judges participating in seminars, to prohibit the acceptance of seminar gifts, and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

THE JUDICIAL EDUCATION REFORM ACT OF 2000

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, I send to the desk a bill for introduction. The bill is entitled the Judicial Education Reform Act of 2000. Mr. Feingold is cosponsoring the legislation.

Mr. President, as the arbiters of justice in our democracy, judges must be honest and fair in their duties. As importantly, if the rule of law is to have force in our society, citizens must have faith that judges approach their duties honestly and fairly, and that their decisions are based solely on the law and the facts of each case. Even if every judge were uncorrupt and incorruptible, their honesty would mean nothing if the public loses confidence in them. Court rulings are effectively only if the public believes that they have been arrived at through impartial decisionmaking. The judiciary must avoid the appearance of conflict as fastidiously as it avoids conflict.

Recent press coverage and an investigation by the public interest law firm Community Rights Counsel have revealed that more than 230 federal judges have taken more than 500 trips to resort locations for legal seminars paid for by corporations, foundations, and individuals between 1192 and 1998. Many of these sponsors have one-sided legal agendas in the courts designed to advance their own interests at the expense of the public interest. In many cases, judges accepted seminar trips while relevant cases were pending before their court. In some cases, judges ruled in favor of a litigant bankrolled by a seminar sponsor. And in one case a judge ruled one way, attended a seminar and returned to switch his vote to agree with the legal views expressed by the sponsor of the trip.

The notion that federal judges are accepting all-expense-paid trips that combine highly political legal theory with stays at resort locations from persons with interests before their courts creates an appearance of conflict that is unacceptable and unnecessary. At a minimum, it creates a perception of improper influence that erodes the trust the American people must have in our judicial system.

Fortunately, the problems posed by improper judicial junkets can be remedied and the appearance of judicial impartiality restored. The Judicial Education Reform Act will seek to amend the Ethics Reform Act of 1989 to close the loophole that allows for privately-funded seminars by requiring federal judges to live by the same rules that now govern federal prosecutors. The proposal is modeled after the successful Federal Judicial Center. It will ensure that legal educational seminars for judges serve to educate, not improperly influence. It will ensure that these seminars improve our judiciary through better-trained and better-informed judges, not undermine it by eroding public confidence in judicial neutrality.

Specifically, the legislation bans privately-funded seminars by prohibiting judges from accepting private seminars as gifts, providing appropriate exceptions, such as where a judge is a speaker, presenter or panel participant in such a seminar. The proposal establishes a Judicial Education Fund of $2 million within the U.S. Treasury for the payment of expenses incurred by judges attending seminars approved by the Board of the Federal Judicial Center. It requires the Judicial Conference to promulgate guidelines to ensure that the Board approves only those seminars that are conducted in a manner that will maintain the public's confidence the judiciary. Finally, the proposal requires that the Board approve a seminar only after information on its content, presenters, funding and litigation activities of sponsors and presenters are provided. If approved, information on the seminar must be posted on the Internet.

Mr. President, in introducing this legislation, I am not charging the federal judiciary or any single judge with improper behavior. I do not question the integrity of judges, rather I question a system that creates the clear appearance of conflict. I understand the need for education. Our economy has mainstreamed once exotic technologies in communication, medicine and other fields, and it is important that judges have access to experts to keep current on technological advances. And I recognize the need for judges to be exposed to diverse legal views and to test current legal views. The Judicial Education Reform Act legislation provides

$2 million for precisely that purpose. No judge will be without access to continuing education. But, that education will not be funded by private entities with broad legal agendas before the federal courts, or, as has happened in some of the most unfortunate cases, private entities with cases pending before participating judges.

Finally, Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to place in the record a statement from the Honorable Abner J. Mikva on this subject. Mr. Mikva is a former Chief Judge on the United States Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit and a current Visiting Professor of Law at the University of Chicago. His statement captures this the essence this issue and need for reform.

There being no objection, the material ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

STATEMENT OF ABNER J. MIKVA

The notion that judges must be honest for the system to work is hardly a profound statement. As early as the Declaration of Independence, our founders complained about judges who were obsequious to King George, rather than the cause of justice. But a pure heart is not all that judges must bring to the judicial equation. For the system to work as it should, the judges must be perceived to be honest, to be without bias, to have no tilt in the cause that is being heard.

That perception of integrity is much more difficult to obtain. After spending 15 years as a judge and a lifetime as a lawyer and law-maker, I can safely say that the number of judges who were guilty of outright dishonesty—malum in se—were happily very few. Even taking into account that I started practicing law in Chicago in the bad old days, the number of crooked judges was small. But that is not what people believe—then or now.

The framers and attenders to our judicial system have taken many steps to help foster the notion of the integrity of its judges. Some relate to smoke and mirrors—the high bench, the black robe, the "all rise" custom when the judge enters the room. Some, like life tenure for federal judges, the codes of conduct promulgated for all judges, are intended to create the climate for integrity and good behavior. (The Constitution limits the life tenure of federal judges to their "good behavior".)

All of those steps become meaningless when private interests are allowed to wine and dine judges at fancy resorts under the pretext of "educating" them about complicated issues. If an actual party to a case took the judge to a resort, all expenses paid, shortly before the case was heard, it would not matter what they talked about. Even if all they discussed were their prostate problems, the judge and the party would be perceived to be acting improperly. The conduct is no less reprehensible when an interest group substitutes for the party to the case, and the format for discussion is seminars on environmental policy, or law and economics, or the "takings clause" of the Constitution.

That's what this report is about. It is about the perception of dishonesty that arises when judges attend seminars and study sessions sponsored by corporations and foundations that have a special interest in the interpretation given to environmental laws. It may be a coincidence that the judges who attend these meetings usually come down on the same side of important policy questions as the funders who finance these meetings. It may even be a coincidence that very few environmentalists are invited to address the judges in the bucolic surroundings where the seminars are held. But I doubt it. More importantly, any citizen who reads about judges attending such fancy meetings under such questionable sponsorship, will doubt it even more.

The federal judiciary has a very effective Federal Judicial Center. It already provides many of the educational services that these special interest groups seek to provide to judges. Admittedly, since the Center is using taxpayer funds and must answer to Congress. the locals of their programs are not as exotic. (The last ones I attended were in South Bend, Indiana in October, and Washington, D.C. in December.) The purpose of Center sponsored programs is as vanilla as it claims: there is no agenda to get the judges to perform in any particular way in handling environmental cases. As a result, the programs are not only balanced as to presentation, but they provide no tilt to the judges' subsequent performance.

Unfortunately, the U.S. Judicial Conference, the governing body for all federal judges, has punted on the propriety of judges attending seminars funded by special interest groups. It advised judges to consider the propriety of such seminars on a "case by case" process. That delicacy has not begun to stem the erosion of public confidence in the fairness of the judicial process when it comes to environmental causes. One of the special interest sponsoring groups publishes "Desk Reference for Federal Judges" which it distributes to all its judge attendees. That must be a real confidence builder for an environmental group that sees it on the desk of a judge sitting on its case. One of the judges on the court on which I sat has attended some 12 trips sponsored by the three most prominent special interest seminar groups. I remember at least two occasions where co-panelist judges took positions that they had heard advocated at seminars sponsored by groups with more than a passing interest in the litigation under consideration.

When I was in the executive branch, all senior officials operated under a very prophylactic rule. Whenever we were invited to attend or speak at a private gathering, the government paid our way. Whether it was the U.S. Chamber of Commerce or the A.F.L.-C.I.O., nobody could even imply that the official was being wined and dined and brainwashed to further some special interest. Experience showed that such a policy was not sufficient in itself to restore people's confidence in the Executive Branch; at least we didn't make the problem worse.

If the Federal Judicial Center can't provide sufficient judicial education to the task, maybe the federal judges could use such a prophylaxis. If the judges want to go traveling, let the government pay for the trip. It may or may not change the places they go or the things they learn, but it will at least change the transactional analysis

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, at the very foundation of our system of justice is the notion that judges will be fair and impartial. Strict ethical guidelines have been in effect for years to remove even the hint of impropriety from the conduct of those we entrust with the responsibility of adjudicating disputes and applying the law.

In recent years, there have been disturbing reports of judges participating in legal education seminars sponsored and paid for by organizations that simultaneously fund federal court litigation on the same topics that are covered by the seminars. Some of these seminars have a clearly biased agenda in favor a certain legal philosophy. A recent report released by Community Rights Counsel found that at least 1,030 federal judges took over 5,800 privately funded trips between 1992 and 1998. The appearance created by these seminars is not consistent with the image of an impartial judiciary.

Some of these seminars are conducted at posh vacation resorts in locations such as Amelia Island, Florida and Hilton Head, South Carolina, and include ample time for expense-paid recreation. These kinds of education/vacation trips, which have been valued at over $7,000 in some cases, create an appearance that the judges who attend are profiting from their positions. Again, this is an appearance that is at odds with the traditions of our judiciary.

One-sided seminars given in wealthy resorts funded by wealthy corporate interests to "educate" our judges in a particular view of the law cannot help but undermine public confidence in the decisions that judges who attend the seminars ultimately make. I am pleased, therefore, to join with my colleague from Massachusetts, Senator KERRY, to introduce the Judicial Education Reform Act of 2000. Our bill instructs the judicial conference to issue guidelines prohibiting judges from attending privately funded education seminars. The bill also authorizes $2 million per year over five years so that the Federal Judicial Center. FJC. can reimburse judges for seminars they wish to attend, as long as those seminars are approved by the FJC under guidelines that will ensure that the seminars are balanced and will maintain public confidence in the judiciary. And the bill makes clear that the FJC cannot reimburse judges for the expense of recreational activities at the seminars.

Mr. President, I have expressed concern throughout my time in the Congress about the improper influence of campaign contributions and gifts on members of Congress and the executive branch. Community Rights Counsel's report has turned the spotlight on the judicial branch and what it reveals is not at all comforting. The influence of powerful interests on judicial decisionmaking through these education seminars should concern everyone who believes in the rule of law in this country. If judges are seen to be under the influence of the wealthy and powerful in our society, "equal justice under law" will become an empty platitude rather than a powerful aspiration for the greatest judicial system on earth. I believe this bill will help us fulfill the promise of that great aspiration, and I hope my colleagues will join Senator KERRY and me in supporting it.

I yield the floor.

S. 2993. A bill to enhance competition for prescription drugs by increasing the ability of the Department of Justice and Federal Trade Commission to enforce existing antitrust laws regarding brand name drugs and generic drugs; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

DRUG COMPETITION ACT

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I have heard a lot of outrageous examples of greed in my life but one of the worst is where pharmaceutical giants pay generic drug companies to keep low-cost drugs from senior citizens and from families.

If Dante were still alive today I am certain he would find a special resting place for those who engage in these conspiracies.

The Federal Trade Commission and the New York Times deserve credit for exposing this problem. Simply stated: some manufacturers of patented drugs—often brand-name drugs—are paying millions each month to generic drug companies to keep lower-cost products off the market.

This hurts senior citizens, it hurts families, it cheats healthcare providers and it is a disgrace.

These pharmaceutical giants and their generic partners then share the profits gained from cheating American families.

The companies have been able to get away with this by signing secret deals with each other not to compete. My bill, which I am introducing today, will expose these deals and subject them to immediate investigation and action by the Federal Trade Commission, or the Justice Department. This solves the most difficult problem faced by federal investigators—finding out about the improper deals. This bill does not change the so-called Hatch-Waxman Act, it does not amend FDA law, and it does not slow down the drug approval process. It allows existing antitrust laws to be enforced because the enforcement agencies have information about deals not to compete.

Fortunately, the FTC was able to get copies of a couple of these secret contracts and instantly lowered the boom on the companies

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that an editorial in the July 26, New York Times, called "Driving Up Drug Prices" be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

DRIVING UP DRUG PRICES

Two recent antitrust actions by the Federal Trade Commission and a related federal court decision have exposed the way some pharmaceutical companies conspire to keep low-priced drugs out of reach of consumers. Manufacturers of patented drugs are paying tens of millions of dollars to manufacturers of generic drugs if they agree to keep products off the market. The drug companies split the profits from maintaining a monopoly at the consumer's expense. The commission is taking aggressive action to curb the practice. It needs help from Congress to close loopholes in federal law.

Dissatisfied with the supply of generic drugs, Congress passed the Hatch-Waxman act in 1984 to encourage manufacturers to challenge weak or invalid patents on brandname drugs. The act grants temporary protection from competition to the first manufacturer that receives permission from federal authorities to sell a generic drug before the patent on a brand-name drug expires. For 180 days, the federal government promises to approve no other generic drug.

But as reported Sunday by Sheryl Gay Stolberg and Jeff Gerth of The Times, drug companies are undermining Congress's intent. Hoechst Marion Roussel, the maker of drugs to treat hypertension and angina, agreed in 1997 to pay Andrx Pharmaceuticals to delay bringing its generic alternative to market. The commission brought charges against the companies last March and a federal judge declared last month in a private lawsuit that the agreement violated antitrust laws.

In a second case, Abbott Laboratories paid Geneva pharmaceuticals to delay selling a generic alternative to an Abbott drug that treats hypertension and enlarged prostates. Geneva's drug could have cost Abbott over 30 million a month in sales. In both cases, the manufacturer of the generic drug used its claim to the 180-day grace period to block other generic drugs from entering the market.

The drug companies deny that their agreements violate the antitrust laws, presenting them as private preliminary settlements between companies engaged in patent disputes. That is untenable. The agreements are overly broad, temporarily stopping all sales of generic drugs. Typically in settlement of a patent dispute, the company infringing on the patent would pay the patent holder. In these cases it is reversed, stunting competition. The agreements are also private, going into effect before a court reviews the public interest.

Not all private settlements are anti-consumer. That is why the commission has taken a careful case-by-case approach. It could use a little help from congress. The 180-day grace period was designed to encourage generics to enter the market. Since it is being manipulated to impede competition, the grace period needs to be fixed so that the production of generic drugs cannot be blocked by a single company that decides not to compete.

Mr. LEAHY. This editorial neatly summarizes the problem and concludes that the FTC "is taking aggressive action to curb the practice. It needs help from Congress to close loopholes in federal law."

My bill slams the door shut on would-be violators by exposing the deals to our competition enforcement agencies.

Under current law, manufacturers of generic drugs are encouraged to challenge weak or invalid patents on brandname drugs so that consumers can enjoy lower generic drug prices.

Current law grants these generic companies a temporary protection from competition to the first manufacturer that gets permission to sell a generic drug before the patent on the brand-name drug expires.

This approach then gives the generic company a 180-day headstart on other generic companies.

That was a good idea—the unfortunate loophole exploited by a few is that secret deals can be made that allow the manufacturer of the generic drug to claim the 180-day grace period—to block other generic drugs from entering the market—while, at the same time, getting paid by the brand-name manufacturer to not sell the generic drug.

The bill I am introducing today will shut this loophole down for companies who want to cheat the public, but keeps the system the same for companies engaged in true competition with each other. This bill would give the FTC or the Justice Department the information it needs to take quick and decisive action against companies driven more by greed than by good sense.

I think it is important for Congress not to overreact in this case and throw out the good with the bad. Most generic companies want to take advantage of this 180-day provision and deliver quality generic drugs at much lower costs for consumers. We should not eliminate the incentive for them.

Instead, we should let the FTC and Justice look at every single deal that could lead to abuse so that only the deals that are consistent with the intent of that law will be allowed to stand.

This bill was quickly drafted because I wanted my colleagues to be able to look at it over the recess so that we can be ready to act when we get back in session.

I look forward to suggestions from other Members on this matter and from brand-name and generic companies who will work with me to make sure this loophole is closed. I am not interested in comments from companies who want to continue to cheat consumers.

I ask unanimous consent to print the bill in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

By Mr. ROBB:

S. 2994. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to provide tax incentives to encourage small business health plans, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

THE HEALTH INSURANCE EQUITY ACT

Mr. ROBB. Mr. President, I rise to introduce a new legislative proposal to help level the playing field for small businesses that try to provide health insurance for their employees and make health insurance more affordable for all Americans.

While our economy is the strongest it's ever been, the number of uninsured Americans has gone from 32 million in 1987 to more than 44 million today. And that number is rising. While our nation continues to forge ahead in improving the world's greatest health care system, we face the increasing problem of having a significant percentage of our population that has no way to access it

One of the largest sectors of the uninsured is employees who work for small businesses. While small businesses are the lifeblood of our economy, they also face some of the greatest challenges—particularly when it comes to providing health benefits for their employees. While the number of uninsured among employees who work for companies with more than 500 people is 1 in 8, that number soars among companies with fewer than 25 employees-to 1 in 3. This is because large employers can spread the costs of providing health insurance among their multitude of employees, while smaller companies have a much more difficult task. We need to help small business owners—and the employees who work for them—better afford quality health insurance.

Today, I propose that we lend a hand to the hardworking small businessmen and women of America, and their employees, to help them erase the gap in coverage between large and small businesses. The legislation I am introducing—the Health Insurance Equity Act-will give small businesses with less than 50 employees a 20% tax credit toward the cost of buying health insurance for their employees. To encourage small businesses to pool together and take advantage of the same benefits that their larger counterparts have. the credit will increase to 25% if the businesses join new "qualified health benefit purchasing coalitions" that can help them easily administer their new health plans and negotiate better rates with insurers.

In addition, this legislation makes a change in the tax code to ensure that these new coalitions can enjoy the full benefit of charitable contributions from private foundations. While some private foundations have indicated that they are willing to help fund some of the start-up costs of health purchasing coalitions, current law does not specify that these sorts of contributions would qualify as a charitable donation. For this reason, private foundations have been reluctant to make grants or loans to these coalitions. The bill I am introducing today will clarify that aid to qualified health benefit purchasing coalitions are entirely tax-deductible, which can help encourage private foundations and other interested parties to help the coalitions with their important duties.

By helping people get better access to basic health insurance—before they get very sick—we can save money for both hospital and patient, while helping millions of Americans live more healthy lifestyles.

With that Mr. President, I send my legislation to the desk, and ask that it be appropriately referred. I also ask unanimous consent that it be printed in the RECORD. I yield the floor.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2994

- S. 2995. A bill to assist States with land use planning in order to promote improved quality of life, regionalism, sustainable economic development, and environmental stewardship, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.
 - THE COMMUNITY CHARACTER ACT OF 2000
- Mr. L. CHAFEE. Mr. President, I rise today to speak of an issue which effects every American, and future generations of Americans.
- As the saying goes, "burn me once, shame on you, burn me twice, shame on me."

After the second World War, waves of returning GIs—looking for a better life for themselves and their families—helped create a unprecedented building boom in the United States. The potato fields of Long Island were turned into massive tracts of uniform new houses known as Levittown. This same post-World War II growth at one point so overwhelmed my own home town of Warwick, Rhode Island that the state newspaper described the city as "a suburban nightmare". Before long, strip retail development catering to the automobile became the trademark of the American landscape.

Our landscape has since heen incremental, happockmarked by hazard development, which too often offends the eye, and saps our economic strength by requiring very expensive investment for extending infrastructure farther and father into the country side. Driving down the street in Anytown USA you see an apartment house next to a fast food franchise, next to a fire station, next to an office building, next to a strip mall. That isn't planned development.

Over forty years after Levittown, we find ourselves in a strong economy sustained as never before. At the same time, every state in the country face significant problems relating to unplanned growth, from protecting open space in the east to protecting precious drinking water supplies in the west. We ought to seize the moment and learn from our previous mistakes—we should not be burned twice.

The last thing anyone needs, citizens and developers alike, is to have angry and divisive planning board, zoning board or city or town council meetings. The best thing we can do to ensure wise growth is to encourage decision makers to work together with the citizens, developers, interest groups and others to develop a consensus for planning for growth in an orderly manner.

That is what the Community Character Act does.

Mr. President, I rise today with my colleagues, Senators BENNETT, CLELAND, JEFFORDS, LEVIN, LIEBERMAN and LEAHY to introduce a bill that I believe will help states plan wise growth. This bill, Community Character Act of 2000, seeks to authorize $25 million over four years for a grant program to help states develop or update their land use statutes and Comprehensive Plans.

No state in the nation is immune from the effects of rapid unplanned development. Suburbanization is expensive, costing state and local taxpayers dearly for extending roads and infrastructure, and building new schools. Even states considered more rural are now facing rapid alterations in land use and quality of life.

Federal grants under this act would help states promote citizen participation in the developing of state plans, encourage sustainable economic development, coordinate transportation and other infrastructure development, conserve historic scenic resources and the environment, and sustainably manage natural resources.

I am pleased that this bill has such bipartisan support and hope that the full Senate will give it favorable action.

I thank the chair and ask unanimous consent that my full statement and the text of the bill appear in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I am pleased to join with Senators DEWINE, HATCH and VOINOVICH in introducing bipartisan legislation to provide common-sense tax incentives to help address asbestos liability issues.

I agree with Supreme Court Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg in the Amchem Products decision that Congress can provide a secure, fair and efficient means of compensating victims of asbestos exposure. The appropriate role for Congress is to provide incentives for private parties to reach settlements, not to take away the legal rights of asbestos victims and their families. Our bipartisan bill provides these tax incentives for private parties involved in asbestos-related litigation to reach global settlements and for asbestos victims and their families receive the full benefit of the incentives.

Mr. President, encouraging fair settlements while still preserving the legal rights of all parties involved is a win-win situation for business and asbestos victims. For example, Rutland Fire Clay Company, a family-run, 117vear-old small business in my home state of Vermont, recently reached a settlement with its insurers and the trial bar concerning the firm's asbestos problems. Unlike some big businesses that are trying to avoid any accountability for their asbestos responsibilities through national "tort reform" legislation, the Rutland Fire Clay Company and its President, Tom Martin, are doing the right thing within the legal system. Mr. Martin plans to lead the family-run business from bankruptcy this year as a stronger firm with a solid financial foundation for its employees in the 21st Century. The tax incentives in our bipartisan bill will support the Rutland Fire Clay Company and its employees while providing financial security for its settlement with asbestos victims.

I believe it is in the national interest to encourage fair and expeditious settlements between companies and asbestos victims. The legislation we are introducing today will protect payments to victims while ensuring defendant firms remain solvent. I urge my colleagues to support our bipartisan legislation.

By Mr. WELLSTONE:

S. 2996. A bill to extend the milk price support program through 2002 at an increased price support rate; to the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry.

DAIRY PRICE SUPPORT LEGISLATION

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce legislation that is intended to begin a long overdue discussion regarding the future of an industry, and a way of life that is basic not only to our agricultural economy but to the soul of America. I am talking about family dairy farming. To maintain this country's family dairy industry, we in the Senate need to act quickly before the end of this session. to effect a change in Federal dairy policy that will make a difference, a difference to dairy farmers who are struggling because they receive a price that is less than what it cost them to produce the product.

It is clear dairy farmers in this country are facing devastating times. The current dairy policies have brought chaos to family dairy farmers. Last year, the Class III milk price decreased from $16.26 cwt. in September to $9.63 cwt in December, and prices have still not recovered. Over the last ten months we have seen a drop of over forty percent in milk prices. How can our dairy farmers survive with such volatility in the market place? Dairy farmers need to have a stable and equitable market price, and that simply does not exist under our current dairy policy.

That is why I am pleased to introduce this legislation to set the milk support price at $12.50 per hundredweight. As my colleagues know, the dairy support price sets a floor on the price received by all producers, regardless of region, that should be set at a level sufficient to curb market volatility. However, the current support level of $9.90 cwt. is too low to act as a stabilizer for the market. The five year average for milk is $12.78 cwt, therefore this legislation to set the support price at $12.50 would protect against the huge drops producers have experienced in the past few years.

I want to make clear that this legislation is not intended to be the complete solution to the problems with our national dairy policy, or lack thereof. I firmly believe that we need to develop a supply management mechanism to complement an increase in the price support, however, for too long this Congress has ignored the economic crisis our nation's dairy farmers are facing

Mr. President, what we do here in Washington has to be rooted in the lives of the people we represent. It has to be based upon the reality of lives of people in our communities, including people in rural communities. I think it is vitally important to understand that there is a crisis in capital letters with dairy farmers that is evident when you go out and talk with people, talk to farmers, hardworking dairy farmers, good managers, sitting down in their kitchens adding up the figures trying to cash flow. There is simply no way they can do it. Talk to dairy farmers who try to convince their sons and daughters that there is no more honorable profession to go into than to be a farmer, to be a dairy farmer, to produce nutritious milk for people at affordable prices, and yet people do not get a decent price for their work.

In my State, fifty in the country in milk production, we have 8,000 dairy farmers with an average herd size of 59 cows. It is a family dairy industry. It is not a factory farm industry, and we want to keep it a family industry. The milk production from Minnesota farms generates more than $1.2 billion for our states' farmers each year, and a recent University of Minnesota study determined that dairy production in Minnesota creates an additional $1.2 billion in economic activity for related industry. Our dairy industry is efficient and it is innovative, and it produces a plentiful supply of pure wholesome milk at extremely reasonable prices, but it is also an industry in crisis. It is a crisis not only for dairy farmers themselves, but for rural communities throughout the country because the health and vitality of our rural communities is not going to be based upon the size of the herds but the number of dairy farmers who live in those communities, who buy in those communities, who go to churches in those communities, who support the school systems and businesses in those communities.

I am afraid, as I speak here on the floor of the Senate, that agriculture in our country is about to go through a transition where all of agriculture will be dominated by giant conglomerates. The result will be the total lack of a competitive sector, family farm sector, of agriculture. That will be a transition that we'll deeply regret and that is why we have to act now.

Mr. President, I hope we can respond appropriately to the pleas that are coming from any State and other agricultural States all around the country. Due to a drastic reduction in the prices paid to farmers for their milk during the past year, thousands of farmers are going out of business. Since 1990 the number of dairy farmers in Minnesota has been nearly cut in half. This year alone we have already lost almost 300 dairy farms. We will lose more if we do not change the course of policy. Federal dairy policy has allowed milk production and prices to fluctuate widely. This fluctuation has caused a tremendous amount of instability for producers and consumers but it has been especially bad for farmers. While retail prices for dairy farmers have gone down and while the price for farmers has been dramatically cut by 40 percent, we have seen no such decrease at the grocery store

The solution is a Federal policy that provides a decent living to hardworking family farmers producing needed milk. The average cost of production for milk in the United States is around $13 per hundredweight and yet farmers in my State are receiving less than $10 for the same hundredweight. We need a system that will match output to need, and pay farmers a fair price.

There is widespread support around the country for an increase in the price support. In fact the National Farmers Union and the National Farmers Organization, earlier this year, testified in support of an increase of the current price support of $9.90. Such a system will allow farmers to earn a price that covers the cost of production, and reduce the wild price fluctuations we have witnessed over the past few years.

I want to make it very clear that I believe the vitality of the dairy industry is important not only to my State's economic health, and to the economic health of agricultural States all across the country, but to the maintenance of viable rural communities throughout our nation. I think it is important if we are to protect the environment. I think it is important if we are to have diversity. I think it is important if we are to avoid more concentration in the agricultural sector of our country. I think it is important if we are to continue to have family farmers who can produce wholesome milk at a decent price for consumers. I think it is important because it represents the very best of what we have been about as a nation. I hope we can make substantive dairy policy reforms this year, and I believe an increase in the price support is an important component, as is a targeted supply management mechanism. It is clear we must act soon. And I hope we can do it before the close of Congress.

S. 2997. A bill to establish a National Housing Trust Fund in the Treasury of the United States to provide for the development of decent, safe, and affordable housing for low-income families; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

THE NATIONAL AFFORDABLE HOUSING TRUST FUND ACT

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, I come to the floor today to offer the National Affordable Housing Trust Fund Act which would establish a Trust Fund to fill the growing gap in our ability to provide affordable housing in this country.

We are living through a time of great economic expansion. Many Americans are benefitting from the growing economy. On the flip side however, is that the economy is fueling rising housing costs. While these costs skyrocket at record pace, there are many families in this country who are unable to keep HUD estimates that 5.4 million lowincome households have "worst case" housing needs. These families are paying over half their income towards housing costs or living in severely substandard housing. Since 1990, the number of families who have "worst case" housing needs has increased by 12 percent—that's 600,000 more American families who cannot afford a decent and safe place to live.

For these families living paycheck to paycheck, one unforseen circumstance, a sick child, a needed car repair, or a large utility bill can send them into homelessness. Just this week, on the front page of the Washington Post, an article detailed these problems right here in our own backyard. The article details the plight of low-income families living in apartments which are no longer affordable because the owners have decided to no longer accept federal assistance. For these families, the loss of their affordable housing unit means they may go without a home.

We mistakenly view the housing crisis in this country as confined to specific demographics. This is untrue. There is not one metropolitan area in the country where a minimum wage earner can afford to pay the rent for a two-bedroom apartment. A person needs to earn over $11 an hour to afford the median rent for a two bedroom apartment in this country. This figure rises dramatically in many metropolitan areas—an hourly wage of $22 is needed in San Francisco; $21 on Long Island; $17 in Boston; $16 in the D.C. area; $14 in Seattle and Chicago; and, $13 in Atlanta.

Working families in this country are increasingly finding themselves unable to afford housing. Using the numbers I just cited, a person in Boston would have to make over $35,000 just to afford a 2 bedroom apartment. This means teachers, janitors, social workers, police officers—these full time workers can have trouble affording even a modest 2-bedroom apartment.

A story from my home state of Massachusetts highlights the problems faced by working families. On Cape Cod, Susan O'Donnell a mother of three, earns $21,000 a year working fulltime. Nonetheless, she is forced to live in a campground because she cannot find affordable housing. The campground she is living at has time limits, so the only way she is able to stay for a prolonged period of time is through cleaning the campground's toilets. When her time runs out at the campground, she will again be forced to move with her three children, though it is not clear where she will be able to afford to move. Skyrocketing housing costs have pushed her, and other full time workers on the Cape out of their housing and into homelessness.

And, as I mentioned earlier, the problem is not only that we have failed to create additional affordable units. We have actually witnessed a tremendous loss in affordable housing. Between 1993 and 1995, a loss of 900,000 rental units affordable to very low-income families occurred. From 1996 to 1998, there was a 19% reduction in the number of affordable housing units. This amounted to a dramatic reduction of 1.3 million affordable housing units available to low-income Americans.

The Washington Post article I mentioned previously, helps to show the real impact of these losses. Because of the ability of higher wage earners to pay higher housing costs, building owners are now choosing not to rent to households assisted with Section 8 vouchers.

Right over the D.C. line, in Prince Georges County, Maryland, 300 tenants in a apartment complex were recently told that they would have to move because the owner will no longer accept Section 8. This means 300 families will lose their housing. And, it is not clear that there will be anywhere for them to go. The same article introduces us to a woman who experienced the same traumatizing eviction in Alexandria, Virginia. Ms. Evans is now living in a cockroach infested building with her children, because there are no decent units affordable to her. This, in part, stems from the fact that of 31 properties in Alexandria which accepted voucher holders in the past, 12 will not longer accept tenants with federal assistance.

The loss of this affordable housing has exacerbated the housing crisis in this country, and the federal government must take action.

However, the government has clearly not been doing enough. In fact, despite the fact that more families are unable to afford housing, we have decreased federal spending on critical housing programs over time. From fiscal year 1995 to fiscal year 1999, we engaged in what I call the "Great HUDway Robbery," diverting or rescinding over 20 billion dollars from federal housing programs for other uses. With a few exceptions, the funding increases of this past year have gone primarily to cover the rising costs of serving existing assisted families

We need to bring our levels of housing spending back up to where they belong. Between 1978 and 1995, the number of households receiving housing assistance was increased by almost 3 million. From 1978 through 1984, we provided an additional 230,000 families with housing assistance each year. This number dropped significantly to 126,000 additional households each year from 1985 through 1995.

And, in 1996, this nation's housing policy went all the way back to square one—not only was there no increase in families receiving housing assistance, but the number of assisted units actually decreased. From 1996 to 1998, the number of HUD assisted households dropped by 51,000. In this time of rising rents and housing costs, and the loss of affordable housing units, it is incomprehensible that we are not doing more to bring the levels of housing assistance back from the dead.

It is high time that we focused on housing policies in Congress and around the country because housing is an anchor for families.

It is no secret that housing, neighborhood and living environment play enormous roles in shaping young lives. Maintaining a stable home, made possible through housing assistance, has positive outcomes for low-income children. A child will be unable to learn if she is forced to change schools every few months because her family is forced to move from relative to relative to friend to friend because her parents can't afford the rent.

What I am doing today, is standing up before the Nation and saying, "no more." We have the resources we need to ensure that all Americans have the opportunity to live in decent and safe housing, yet we are not devoting these resources to fix the problem.

Today, I am proposing to address the severe shortage of affordable housing by establishing a National Affordable Housing Trust Fund which uses excess income generated by 2 federal housing programs—the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) and the Government Mortgage National Association (GNMA). These federal housing programs generate billions of dollars in excess income which currently go to the general Treasury for use on other federal priorities. It is time to stop taking housing money out of housing programs. These excess funds should be used to help alleviate the current housing crisis.

My proposal would create an affordable housing production, ensuring that new rental units are built for those who most need assistance—extremely low-income families, including working families. In addition, Trust Fund assistance will be used to promote homeownership for low-income families, those families whose incomes are below 80% of the area median income.

The Trust Fund aims to create longterm affordable, mixed-income developments in areas with the greatest opportunities for low-income families.

A majority of assistance from the Trust Fund will be given out as matching grants to the States which will distribute funds on a competitive basis like the low-income housing tax credit. Localities, non-profits, developers and other entities will be eligible to apply for funds. The remaining assistance will be distributed through a national competition to intermediaries, such as non-profits which will be required to leverage private funds for investment in affordable housing.

This proposal will bring federal, State and private resources together to create needed affordable housing opportunities for American families.

We can no longer ignore the lack of affordable housing, and the impact it is having on families and children around the country. It is not clear to me why this lack of housing has not caused more uproar. How many families need to be pushed out of their homes and into the streets, before action is taken. Earlier in this Congress, I proposed a program which would assist in maintaining the affordable housing stock that already exists. I hope that this preservation program is taken up this Congress and passed so that we can avoid losing anymore affordable units. However, we must also focus on producing additional housing, which is exactly what this Housing Trust Fund will do.

Mr. President, I asked of the housing policy experts and practitioners in Massachusetts to work with me to come up with a viable program which would put the government back in the business of producing affordable housing. This legislation is a result of collaboration among numerous organizations and experts. I want to thank in particular, Aaron Gornstein of the citizens Housing and Planning Association in Massachusetts for helping to bring all of the relevant actors to the table to formulate this proposal. I appreciate the help of many people and organizations, but want to mention some people in Massachusetts who were critical in shaping the ideas behind this legislation: Vince O'Donnell of the Community Economic Development Assistance Corp; Peter Gagliardi with the Hampden Hampshire Housing Partnership; Conrad Egan of the National Housing Conference: Joe Flately with the Massachusetts Housing Investment Corporation; Howard Cohen with Beacon Residential; and, Patrick Dober of Lendlease.

I urge you to support this legislation which restores our commitment to providing affordable housing for all families. We can no longer turn our backs on those families who struggle each month just to put a roof over their heads.

I ask unanimous consent to have the text of the legislation, along with a section-by-section summary, and letters of support from a number of organizations including the National Association of Homebuilders, the National Council of State Housing Agencies, the National Low-Income Housing Coalition, the National Coalition for the Homeless, the National Housing Conference, and others put in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

(ii) REPAYMENTS.—If an eligible intermediary awards assistance under this subsection in the form of a loan or other mechanism by which funds are later repaid to the eligible intermediary, any repayments received by the eligible intermediary shall be distributed by the eligible intermediary in accordance with the plan of use described in subparagraph (C) the following fiscal year.

SEC. 5. REGULATIONS.

Not later than 6 months after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall promulgate regulations to carry out this Act.

SECTION BY SECTION OF NATIONAL AFFORD-ABLE HOUSING TRUST FUND LEGISLATION

SECTION 1: SHORT TITLE

National Affordable Housing Trust Fund $\mathop{\rm Act}\nolimits$ of 2000.

SECTION 2: PURPOSES

The purpose of this Act is to use profits generated by federal housing programs to help alleviate the current housing crisis by funding new construction of affordable rental housing in mixed-income developments and homeownership activities.

SECTION 3: NATIONAL HOUSING TRUST FUND

This Section establishes a National Affordable Housing Trust Fund ("Trust Fund") in the Treasury of the U.S. Excess revenue generated by the Federal Housing Administration ("FHA") and the Government National Mortgage Association ("GNMA") will be transferred to the Trust Fund in fiscal year 2001 and each year thereafter for eligible uses.

FHA revenue, in excess of an amount necessary for the FHA to retain 3% capital, will be transferred to the Trust Fund. FHA is currently required to maintain 2% capital. GNMA revenues will also be captured, above what the Secretary determines is necessary for safe and sound operations.

SECTION 4: ADMINISTRATION OF NATIONAL AFFORDABLE HOUSING TRUST FUND

This Section describes how Trust Fund assistance will be allocated and for what uses. 75% of Trust Fund assistance will be given as matching grants to States and 25% will be awarded by HUD through a national competition, as follows:

Matching Grants to States. 75% of the Trust Fund will be given as matching grants to States on a formula based on factors related to need for housing in the State. States will be required to match 25% of the federal grant with non-federal funds. If a State does not come up with the requisite match, public and non-profit entities can apply for the State's portion of funds.

States will distribute assistance according to need and criteria, including: whether the development will be mixed income; whether the development is located in a low-poverty census tract or a community experiencing revitalization; and the amount of additional funding devoted to the project.

75% of Trust Fund assistance distributed by each State must be used for the construction of rental housing for extremely low-income households (income under 30% of area median income) in mixed income developments which must remain affordable for 40 years. The bill establishes a "Continued Assistance Rental Subsidy Program" under which a developer may use funds for up to three years of operating subsidy, so long as it partners with a local housing agency to ensure a stream of eligible tenants to the units, and the housing agency agrees to provide any tenant in those units with a voucher to move if the tenant so chooses.

The other 25% of assistance may be used for low-income families (incomes under 80% of area median income) for construction of rental housing or for homeownership activities.

National Competition

25% of the Trust Fund will be awarded by HUD through competitive grants to non-profit intermediaries, who will use and distribute the funds based on the same criteria as required by the States. While there is no specific matching requirement, HUD must give priority to those intermediaries which leverage the greatest amount of private and non-federal funds

Like the State grants, 75% of assistance must be used for rental housing for extremely low-income households in mixed income developments, and the units must remain affordable for 40 years, and the other 25% of assistance must be used for low-income families for rental housing or homeownership activities. However, if a project contributes to a community revitalization plan, these targeting requirements are waived, so long as the households assisted in the project have incomes under 60% of the area median income.

SECTION 5: REGULATIONS

HUD is required to promulgate regulations within 6 months of the date of enactment of this bill.

CITIZENS' HOUSING AND PLANNING ASSOCIATION, INC., Boston, MA, July 26, 2000.

Senator JOHN F. KERRY, Russell Senate Office Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR KERRY: On behalf of Citizens' Housing and Planning Association (CHAPA), I wanted to express our strong support for the national housing trust fund legislation that you will be filing this week. CHAPA is the largest and most diverse housing advocacy organization in New England, representing more than 1,500 housing providers, advocates, government officials, lenders, and others.

In Massachusetts, we are in the midst of the most acute housing crisis on record. The number of Massachusetts households with severe housing needs has reached an all-time high. Nearly 245,000 households pay more than half of their incomes for rent, a 21 percent jump since 1990. Since 1997, 10,000 Massachusetts families have been homeless each year, double the number since 1990.

The clear solution to this problem is to build and preserve more affordable housing for low income families. The trust fund legislation, which you are sponsoring, will lead to the creation of thousands of affordable rental units across the country. We are pleased that the focus of this program will be to create new housing for low income families who are facing the biggest housing squeeze.

We also are extremely pleased that the trust fund provides flexible funds to the states and non-profit developers so that these entities can tailor solutions to meet local needs. The proposed program encourages the leveraging of private funds and the creation of mixed income housing.

Thank you once again for playing an outstanding leadership role on affordable housing. We hope that Congress will act expeditiously on this critical legislation.

Sincerely,

 $\begin{array}{c} \text{AARON GORNSTEIN,} \\ \textit{Executive Director.} \end{array}$

NATIONAL HOUSING CONFERENCE, Washington, DC, July 27, 2000. Hon, JOHN F. KERRY.

DEAR SENATOR KERRY: We, the National Housing Conference, would like to extend our thanks to you for introducing the National Housing Trust Fund Act of 2000. The NHC is a broad-based nonpartisan advocate for national policies that promote suitable housing in a safe, decent environment across the nation. The NHC consists of members from across the entire spectrum of the hous-

We are writing to pledge our support for your act because we know you understand that:

(1) There is a compelling need for federal legislation to construct affordable housing. Last month, our research affiliate, the Center for Housing Policy, released a report titled "Housing America's Working Families." The report demonstrated that despite the unprecedented economic prosperity that this nation has been experiencing, one out of every seven families has a critical housing need—They are either spending over half their total income on rent or they are living in severely inadequate units. These families-many of them moderate-income working families—are teetering on an all-too precarious ledge. Housing is a fundamental human need and we believe that it is a shame that so many of America's families are faced with such pressing housing problems, particularly in an era of such economic abundance

(2) The National Housing Trust Fund Act of 2000 would help alleviate that need. The Act would allocate much needed funds toward the construction and preservation of a range of quality housing choices for low and moderate income people. An increase in affordable housing options would provide many needy families with better equalities of life. The National Housing Trust Fund would supplement and complement existing supplyoriented programs such as public housing, HOME, and the Low Income Housing Tax Credit. Furthermore, Ann Schnare, President of the Center for Housing Policy said in a testimony on June 20th before Senator Allard, "Many states and local jurisdictions have established Housing Trust Funds to capture revenue from many sources for affordable housing. An analogous trust fund should be established at the federal level. . It could further encourage and strengthen affordable housing efforts at the state and local levels by providing incentives and developing partnerships with various entities.

It is important to note that the National Housing Trust Fund would be in addition to existing appropriated funds and would not supplant those appropriations. It would be financed solely by excess income generated by the FHA and by Ginnie Mae. If we establish this National Housing Trust Fund we will ensure for countless future generations of Americans that there will always be dependable affordable housing options.

Clearly, the National Housing Trust Fund Act is a good step in the right direction. Too many people in our country are lacking a fundamental human necessity—adequate housing. This act would create provisions to mitigate some of this critical housing need. Trust funds have been developed in the past for other national priorities such as Social Security, highways, and airports. We're glad that you agree that it is about time for us to make housing a national priority as well.

Sincerely, $\begin{array}{c} \text{ROBERT J. REID,} \\ \text{\textit{Executive Director.}} \end{array}$

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS, Washington, DC, July 26, 2000.

Hon. John F. Kerry,

Subcommittee on Housing and Transportation, Committee on Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR KERRY: On behalf of the more than 760,000 members of the National Association of Realtors, I am pleased to indicate our support for your legislation. The National Affordable Housing Trust Fund Act of 2000. We believe this important legislation reduces the barriers to affordable housing production and closes the gap in needed housing opportunities for American families, and we welcome the opportunity to work with you to gain its passage.

As you know, millions of working American families are facing a housing affordability crisis despite an unprecedented run of economic growth and prosperity. This phenomenon is exacerbated by the continuing decline of our nation's affordable housing stock. The increase in demand coupled with the diminishing supply of affordable units are straining housing capacity in many communities nationwide, leading to a rise in homelessness for many worthy American working families.

The National Association of Realtors believes the time is appropriate to address our nation's affordable housing crisis as a national priority and forge a coherent and focused set of policies for immediate adoption. Your legislation establishing a trust fund utilizing revenues created through the popular and successful FHA homeownership program for usage in other critical housing areas is an insightful and innovative response to the shortage of affordable housing units. We strongly support this objective and we stand ready to work with you and the Subcommittee during deliberation of your

Hon. JOHN KERRY,

Ranking Member, Senate Subcommittee on Housing and Transportation, Russell Senate Office Building, Washington, DC.

Office Building, Washington, DC.
DEAR SENATOR KERRY: On behalf of the 200,000 members of the National Association of Home Builders (NAHB), I want to extend to you our appreciation and support for your efforts to introduce legislation to establish a "National Affordable Housing Trust Fund".

NAHB supports your proposal to establish a National Affordable Housing Trust Fund for the production of affordable housing. Indeed, your goal to divert funds from both the "surplus" existing within the Mutual Mortgage Insurance Fund (MMI Fund) and excess revenue generated by the Government National Mortgage Association into affordable housing development, is laudable. The growing need for decent affordable housing is well documented. We appreciate your work and interest in this issue and want to assist you in any way to facilitate movement of this legislation.

Again, thank you for your efforts to address the shortage of affordable housing in America.

Sincerely,

Gerald M. Howard, Senior Staff Vice President.

NATIONAL COUNCIL OF STATE HOUSING AGENCIES, Washington, DC, July 26, 2000.

Hon. John F. Kerry, Russell Senate Office Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR KERRY: On behalf of the housing finance agencies (HFAs) of the 50 states, the National Council of State Housing Agencies (NCSHA) commends you for introducing the "National Affordable Housing Trust Fund Act" (Trust). Given the tremendous and ever-growing need for decent and affordable housing, it is imperative that any surplus the FHA fund generates be rededicated to housing America's low income families.

In this era of unprecedented economic prosperity, the number of families experiencing worst case housing needs has increased dramatically. According to a recent study published by The Center for Housing Policy, 13.7 million families had critical housing needs in 1997, including six million working and nearly four million elderly households. In the face of these alarming statistics, the affordable housing stock has lost over one million units between 1993 and 1998.

Housing need, though great everywhere, varies dramatically among and within the states. In some states, newly produced rental housing for very low income families is the greatest need. In others, preserving the irreplaceable low-cost rental inventory is the highest priority.

Your bill responds effectively to these diverse housing needs by allocating Trust funds directly to the states. States understand their housing needs and are in the best position to leverage these funds with other housing resources. The sound and efficient administration of the Housing Credit and the HOME programs are clear evidence of states' capacity to administer the Trust fund.

We look forward to working with you as you move this bill forward to design a delivery system that relies on the states and their private and public sector partners to direct these precious resources to their most pressing housing needs. Thank you for all you are doing to expand affordable housing opportunity.

Sincerely,

BARBARA J. THOMPSON,
Director of Policy and Government Affairs.

NATIONAL LOW INCOME HOUSING COALITION/LIHIS, Washington, DC, July 26, 2000.

Hon. John F. Kerry,

U.S. Senate, Russell Senate Office Building, Washington, DC. DEAR SENATOR KERRY: On behalf of the Na-

DEAR SENATOR KERRY: On behalf of the National Low Income Housing Coalition. I am pleased to offer our support for the National Affordable Housing Trust Fund Act of 2000, which you will introduce shortly. HLIHC is a membership organization dedicated solely to ending the affordable housing crisis in America. The National Affordable Housing Trust Fund that you propose offers concrete and sustainable resources towards achieving that goal.

The dimensions of the affordable housing crisis are well documented. As you know, nowhere in the United States can a full time minimum wage worker afford a one-bedroom unit at the fair market rent. The housing wage, that is, the hourly wage one must earn to afford the fair market rent, ranges from $8.02 in West Virginia to $17.01 in Hawaii. The supply of housing that is affordable to low wage workers and elderly and disabled people on fixed incomes is dwindling while the rents of the remaining units are escalating. Even those families that are fortunate enough to receive a federal housing voucher often are not able to find housing they can afford with the voucher. The need for new affordable housing production resources is serious and urgent.

The Housing Trust Fund provides a dedicated source of funding for the production or rehabilitation of rental housing. The use of excess revenue from FHA and Ginnie Mae for this purpose is sensible housing policy. We are very pleased that a majority of the funds will be targeted to housing that is to be affordable to extremely low income households for at least 40 years. This is the population with the most severe housing problems and for whom the fewest resources are available to increase the supply of affordable housing. We also commend the decision to make operating support an eligible activity for three years and the preference for projects that can demonstrate an ongoing source of operating subsidy.
We look forward to working with you to-

We look forward to working with you towards passage of this important new federal housing legislation. Thank you for your continued leadership on housing issues in the Congress.

Sincerely,

SHEILA CROWLEY,

President.

NATIONAL COALITION FOR THE HOMELESS, Washington, DC, July 26, 2000.

Senator JOHN KERRY, Russell Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR KERRY: "They've got jobs, they just can't find housing they can afford," is the comment we hear from local providers across the country as they talk about the unmet housing needs of an increasing number of families and individuals who have consequently become homeless in their communities. It is, therefore, with great enthusiasm that the National Coalition for the Homeless supports the National Affordable Housing Trust Fund, and strongly encourages its expedited enactment and implementation

As you know, for the past two decades, we have been consistently rescinding our commitment to "decent housing for all Americans". As a result, the need for affordable housing is profound throughout the nation, in communities of diverse sizes and socioeconomic circumstances, and most especially among extremely low-income households. For this reason, we are seeing an unprecedented number of employed men and women who have been forced into homelessness. I was recently visiting a 250-bed single men's shelter in a urban setting, where 70% of the residents were employed, most full time, and what they got for their efforts, was a thin mat on a concrete floor to call their 'home'. We are also finding very significant rates of homelessness among families who are doing what they have been asked to domoving from welfare to work—but because of their low-wages are not able to afford stable housing in healthy neighborhoods, which compromises both their long-term employability and the health and well-being of their children. We all want welfare reform to work: the missing link has always been affordable housing.

Knowing that the availability of affordable housing is fundamental to insuring that working families can expect to meet their basic needs, we are very grateful for your leadership in taking us as a nation down the path of truly valuing individual and family stability enough to ensure housing opportunities for those without the resources to do it alone. The National Affordable Housing Trust Fund represents America at her best—opportunities and basic resources being made available to all among us. Thank you for helping to bring America home again.

Sincerely,

MARY ANN GLEASON, Housing Policy Analyst.

THE ENTERPRISE FOUNDATION, Washington, DC, July 26, 2000.

Hon. John F. Kerry,

Ranking Member, Subcommittee on Housing and Transportation, Committee on Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs, Senate Hart Office Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR KERRY: On behalf of The Enterprise Foundation, the more than 1,500 community development organizations that we represent and the millions of low-income Americans living in poverty, we applaud your efforts to increase the number of permanently affordable homes available for those families most in need by establishing The National Affordable Housing Trust Fund. The proposed legislation, "The National Affordable Housing Trust Fund of 2000," provides additional funding to the states and nonprofit organizations for the development of decent, safe and affordable housing for low-income families.

The Enterprise Foundation is a national nonprofit housing and community development organization dedicated to rebuilding distressed neighborhoods. Central to our mission is to see that all low-income people in the United States have the opportunity for fit and affordable housing and to move up and out of poverty into the mainstream of American life. Therefore, we see firsthand the critical need for this legislation as a way to combat the growing affordable housing crisis faced by our nation.

At a time of unprecedented national prosperity, it is unconscionable that an ever larger number of Americans have trouble securing decent, affordable housing. In fact, it is a side effect of our booming economy that rents are rising faster than wages for poor working Americans. This historic legislation recognizes that now is the time to deal with our national need to produce more safe and sanitary housing for low-income Americans.

Your bill strikes a thoughtful balance between devolution to the states and federal innovation. It allows states to decide how to spend the majority of the grant funds according to their housing needs but also allows for federal funding of innovative private/public partnership models as a way to leverage limited public resources.

We look forward to working with you on this bill throughout the legislative process and admire your leadership and continued efforts to address the critical housing needs of our nation's lower-income families. With your support we look forward to continuing our mission to rebuild distressed communities by providing people the tools they need to move out of poverty.

Sincerely.

Kristin Siglin,
Vice President.

Mr. SARBANES. Mr. President, I come to the floor today to voice my support for the National Affordable Housing Trust Fund Act introduced by Senator KERRY. Establishing a National Affordable Housing Trust Fund is a necessary and timely legislative initiative.

The number of families in our country who live in substandard housing, or pay more than 50 percent of their income for housing costs—the factors considered in determining worst case housing need—is staggering. Recent studies show that 5.4 million American families have worst case housing needs. This is 100,000 more families than were classified as worst case housing needs just last year.

In addition, no family making minimum wage can afford the fair market rent for a two bedroom apartment in any metro area in the country. On average, a person needs to earn over $11 to afford an apartment in any American metro area, but this number is even higher in many parts of the country. For instance, in Baltimore a person must earn over $12 an hour, or $24,000 a year to afford the rent on a two bedroom apartment.

Traditionally, the government has helped families who do not earn enough to afford a place to live with section 8 vouchers. However, in today's booming real estate market, a section 8 voucher is no guarantee of finding a place to live.

Currently, families in Maryland wait upwards of 31 months to get a section 8 housing voucher. Once they receive the voucher, they face a new challenge: finding an apartment that is affordable for them.

Recent articles in the Washington Post have highlighted the trials of poor working families attempting to find affordable housing both with and without federal assistance. One Fairfax, Virginia woman working full time and living in a shelter called over 30 landlords, none of which had vacancies that she could afford. Another social worker commented that the voucher holders she counseled had to call close to 100 different developments to find a unit. The reality is that there are simply not enough affordable housing units in our country to meet the needs of low income Americans.

This situation is simply unacceptable. The working poor of our country deserve decent places to live. Adequate housing is an essential need for all Americans. It is the anchor that allows families to thrive.

Children can't learn if they are forced to attend 3 or 4 schools in a single year as their parents move from friend to friend because they cannot afford the rent. Workers can't find jobs or get training if they spend their days fighting to put a roof over their kids' heads. A sick person will not get well if she spends her days huddled on a grate, waiting for a bed in an emergency shelter.

Senator KERRY's bill would address our country's severe affordable housing crisis by establishing an Affordable Housing Trust Fund that will support the construction of additional affordable housing.

The Trust Fund is designed to create long-term affordable, mixed income housing developments in areas where low-income families will have access to transportation, social services, and job opportunities. It is also designed to help in areas where local governments are committed to revitalization. These priorities are explicitly laid out in the legislation.

The bottom line is that we need to provide more resources to states, local governments and non-profits who are working to build more affordable housing. Unless we build more affordable units we will not be able to solve the housing crisis we have today.

This bill is an opportunity for us to take advantage of our booming economy to do this. I encourage my colleagues to join me in supporting National Affordable Housing Trust Fund Act.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, I am proud to join my colleagues here today as co-sponsor of this bill which represents an important step forward in solving the shortage of affordable housing. The need for affordable housing has reached epic proportions and touches all of our communities. The time for action is now.

The National Affordable Housing Trust Fund will be used to produce housing that is affordable to very low income families. It will provide states matching grant funds to produce affordable housing and engage in homeownership activities. It will allow nonprofit intermediaries to compete for funds to produce housing. Most importantly, however, is it will use the proceeds from our investment in promoting homeownership to build homes for low income families.

Mr. President, in 1997, 5.4 million households with 12.3 million people paid more than one half of their income in rent or lived in seriously substandard housing. Who are these 12.3 million people? 1.5 million are elderly persons, 4.3 million are children and between 1.1 and 1.4 million are adults with disabilities. We can afford to do better. This is a prosperous nation that can afford to solve this problem.

In may own states of Minnesota, a worker must earn $11.54 an hour, 40 hours a week, 522 weeks out of the year to afford a fair market rent for a two bedroom apartment. $11.54. That's more than double the minimum wage. In fact, to afford a two bedroom apartment at minimum wage, families must work 88 hours a week. 88 hours. That's barely possible for a two parent family, and it is completely impossible for single parent families.

The poorest families are particularly hard hit. In Minneapolis-St. Paul, a study conducted by the Family Housing Fund found 68,900 renters with incomes below $10,000 in Minneapolis-St. Paul and only 31,200 housing units with rents affordable to those families. That is more than two families for each unit affordable to a family at that income level and there is every indication it is getting worse.

Given this information, it isn't hard to understand why the number of families entering emergency shelters and using emergency food pantries is on the rise. In fact, more and more of the homeless are working full time and are still unable to find housing.

Mr. President, we must do more. The shortage of affordable housing is so drastic that in Minneapolis-St. Paul, like many other cities, even those families fortunate enough to receive housing vouchers cannot find a rental unit. Landlords are becoming increasingly selective given the demand for housing and are requiring three months security deposit, hefty application fees and credit checks that price the poor and young new renters out of the market.

Let me share a story that truly struck me. In February, the Minneapolis Public Housing Authority distributed applications for families in the region interested in public housing. This was the first time since 1996 applications were accepted for public housing and it will likely to be last time for several years. Six thousand families sought applications for public housing in six days. An average of 1,000 families each day requested applications to reside in public housing in one metropolitan area.

Those families were not applying for free housing. Residents would be required to pay one third of their income in rent. This is not luxury housing. Many families seem to look upon public housing with disdain, though I know those communities are rich with the talents and contributions of their tenants. This is not even immediate housing. Many of those families will wait years to get into public housing.

Clearly this is a sign that the demand for housing far exceeds the supply. There is an immediate need to produce more affordable housing. Fortunately, we can afford to do this. Fortunately, we have a plan to do this.

Mr. President, I know it is hard to think about poverty when we are surrounded by so much prosperity. But economic prosperity has not touched every family. Instead the gap between income groups continues to widen and the gap between what low income families earn and what they must pay for housing also appears to be widening.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics report that between 1995 and 1997 rents increased faster than income for the 20 percent of American households with the lowest incomes. The Consumer Price Index for Resident Rent rose 6.2 percent, higher than the 3.9 percent rate of inflation for the same period.

The skyrocketing rents are fueled by the shortage of housing. The demand for housing exceeds the supply, so in the private market the rents spiral upwards and far beyond the reach of the poor and often well-beyond the reach of the middle class who find themselves priced out of the very communities they grew up in.

This affects families with children, elderly persons and persons with disabilities. It affects the well-being of businesses. The cost of housing has skyrocketed in some communities to a level that businesses cannot retain workers because their workers cannot afford to live in those communities. The shortage of housing is making it difficult for communities to retain some of our most essential workers. Police, firemen, teachers are all being priced out of the very communities they seek to serve!

Mr. President, I am proud to be part of this effort that will generate more affordable housing for low income families. It is time to heed the call we are all hearing from our constituents. There is not one town, county or metropolitan area in this nation where a family can afford a two bedroom fair market rental working full time, year round at minimum wage. Not one state where a family who receives TANF can afford a two bedroom fair market rental unit.

Families respond to the shortage of housing by crowding into smaller units. A one bedroom. An efficiency. Perhaps they rent seriously substandard housing, exposing their children to lead poisoning, living in neighborhoods where they don't feel safe allowing their children to play outdoors. Housing with leaky roofs, bad plumbing, rodents, roaches. Perhaps they pay more than the recommended 30 percent of their income in rent, maybe 40 percent, 50 percent or more.

Families may do without what we might consider necessities. Not luxuries, but necessities such as gas, heat, and electricity. Families so financially stressed that one small crisis can send them tumbling. Perhaps families double up, two families in a home. Multiple generations crowded under one roof. When the stress of multiple families becomes unbearable, they are left with homeless shelters.

Mr. President, in a recent study of homelessness in Minneapolis-St. Paul, The Family Housing Fund reported that more and more children experience homelessness. In one night in 1987, 244 children in the Twin Cities were in a shelter or other temporary housing. In 1999, 1,770 children were housed in shelter or temporary housing. Let me repeat that, 1,770 children in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area on one night alone sent the night in a homeless shelter or temporary housing. Seven times the number in 1987. And families are spending longer periods of time homeless. If they have a family crisis, if they lost their housing due to an eviction, if they have poor credit histories, if they can't save up enough for a two or three month security deposit, they will have longer stretches, longer periods of time in emergency shelters before they transition into homes.

Mr. President, we are experiencing unprecedented prosperity. It is time to make a commitment to ensuring families have access to decent affordable housing. We can afford to do this. In fact, we cannot afford not to do this.

S. 3000. A bill to authorize the exchange of land between the Secretary of the Interior and the Director of the Central Intelligence Agency at the George Washington Memorial Parkway in McLean, Virginia, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

BILL TO AUTHORIZE A LAND EXCHANGE BETWEEN THE SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR AND THE DIRECTOR OF THE CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY AT THE GEORGE WASHINGTON MEMORIAL PARKWAY IN MCLEAN VIRGINIA.

Mr. ROBB. Mr. President, the bill I am introducing today simply allows for a land exchange between the National Park Service and the Central Intelligence Agency. This exchange will enable the CIA to address security issues at the entrance to their complex, while preserving access to the Federal highway Administration's Turner-Fairbanks Highway Research Center.

The exchange is currently the subject of an Interagency Agreement between the National Park Service, George Washington Memorial Parkway, and the Central Intelligence Agency. This is a simple exchange that I am sure can be acted on in short order.

I ask unanimous consent that the bill in its entirety be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 3000

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled.

- (2) TIME LIMITATION.—The Director may not close access to the land under paragraph (1) for more than 12 hours during any 24-hour period unless the Director consults with the National Park Service, the Turner-Fairbank Highway Research Center of the Federal Highway Administration, and the United States Park Police.

SENATE RESOLUTION 345—DESIGNATING OCTOBER 17, 2000, AS A "DAY OF NATIONAL CONCERN ABOUT YOUNG PEOPLE AND GUN VIOLENCE"

Mrs. MURRAY (for herself, Mr. WAR-NER, Mr. BINGAMAN, Mrs. BOXER, Mr. CAMPBELL, Mr. L. CHAFEE, DASCHLE, Mr. DODD, Mr. DURBIN, Mrs. FEINSTEIN, Mr. GORTON, Mr. INOUYE, Mr. Jeffords, Mr. Johnson, Mr. Ken-NEDY, Mr. KERREY, Mr. KERRY, Mr. KOHL, Ms. LANDRIEU, Mr. LAUTENBERG, Mr. Leahy, Mr. Levin, Ms. Mikulski, Mr. Moynihan, Mr. Reed, Mr. Robb, Mr. SARBANES, Mr. SCHUMER, Mr. SPEC-TER, Mr. TORRICELLI, and Mr. Wellstone) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary:

S. RES. 345

Whereas every day in the United States, 12 children under the age of 19 are killed with

Whereas 31 percent of children aged 12 to 17 know someone in that age bracket who carries a gun;

Whereas during the 1996-1997 school year, 5,724 students were expelled for bringing guns or explosives to school:

Whereas the homicide rate for children under 15 years of age is 16 times higher in the United States than in 25 other industrialized nations:

Whereas over the past year, at least 50 people have been killed or injured in school shootings in the United States;

Whereas young people are our Nation's most important resource, and we, as a society, have a vested interest in enabling children to grow in an environment free from fear and violence:

Whereas young people can, by taking responsibility for their own decisions and actions, and by positively influencing the decisions and actions of others, help chart a new and less violent direction for the entire Nation.

Whereas students in every school district in the Nation will be invited to take part in a day of nationwide observance involving millions of their fellow students, and will thereby be empowered to see themselves as significant agents in a wave of positive social change; and

Whereas the observance of October 17, 2000, as a "Day of National Concern About Young People and Gun Violence" will allow students to make a positive and earnest decision about their future in that such students will have the opportunity to voluntarily sign the "Student Pledge Against Gun Violence", and promise that they will never take a gun to school, will never use a gun to settle a dispute, and will actively use their influence in a positive manner to prevent friends from using guns to settle disputes: Now, therefore, be it.

Resolved, That the Senate-

- (1) designates October 17, 2000, as a "Day of National Concern About Young People and Gun Violence"; and
- (2) requests that the President issue a proclamation calling on the school children of the United States to observe the day with appropriate ceremonies and activities.

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, I rise to introduce a resolution that has passed the Senate for the past four years unanimously. My resolution, which I am introducing today with Senator Warner and 31 original cosponsors establishes October 17, 2000, as a "Day of National Concern about Young People and Gun Violence." For the last several years, I have sponsored this legislation. I am pleased that Senator WARNER has joined me again in leading the cosponsorship drive as we pledge to our young people across the nation that we support their strong efforts to help stop the violence in their own schools and communities. I thank Senator WARNER for his help and partnership.

Sadly, this resolution has special meaning for all of us after the tragic events that occurred in the last couple of years. School shootings across the nation have paralyzed communities and shocked the country. In recent years, we've seen school shootings from Mississippi to Oregon. In fact, just two weeks ago, a thirteen year old boy in Seattle, Washington, opened fire in a crowded cafeteria at his junior high school. Luckily no one was hurt. These events have touched us all. Adults and young people alike have been horrified by the violence that has occurred in our schools, which should be a safe haven for our children. We are left wondering what we can do to prevent these tragedies.

I am again introducing this resolution because I am convinced the best way to prevent gun violence is by reaching out to individual children and helping them make the right decisions. This resolution establishes a special day that gives parents, teachers, government leaders, service clubs, police departments, and others a way to focus on the problems caused by gun violence. It also empowers young people to take affirmative steps to end this violence by encouraging them to take a pledge not to use guns to resolve disputes.

A Minnesota homemaker, Marv Lewis Grow, developed the idea of student pledges and for a "Day of National Concern for Young People and Gun Violence." In addition, Mothers Against Violence in America, the National Parent Teacher Association, the American Federation of Teachers, the National Association of Student Councils, and the American Medical Association have joined the effort to establish a special day to express concern about our children and gun violence and to support a national effort to encourage students to sign a pledge against gun violence. In 1999, more than two million students across the nation signed the pledge card.

The Student Pledge Against Gun Violence gives students the chance to make a promise, in writing, that they will do their part to prevent gun violence. The students' pledge promises three things: (1) they will never carry a gun to school; (2) they will never resolve a dispute with a gun; and (3) they will use their influence with friends to discourage them from resolving disputes with guns.

Just think of the lives we could have saved if all students had signed—and lived up to—such a pledge last year. Twelve children would have been alive today and 50 people would have escaped injury from a school shooting. The reality is we've lost many children in what has become the all-too-common violence of drive-by shootings, drug wars, and other crime and in self-inflicted and unintentional shootings.

We all have been heartened by statistics showing crime in America on the decline. Many factors are involved, including community-based policing, stiffer sentences for those convicted, youth crime prevention programs, and changes in population demographics. None of us intend to rest on our success because we still have far too much crime and violence in our society.

So, we must find the solutions that work and focus our limited resources on resources on those. We must get tough on violent criminals—even of they are young—to protect the rest of society from their terrible actions. And we, each and every one of us, must make time to spend with our children, our neighbor's children, and the children who have no one else to care about them. Only when we reach out to our most vulnerable citizens—our kids—will we stop youth violence.

I urge all of my colleagues to join in this simple effort to focus attention on gun violence among youth by proclaiming October 17 a "Day of Concern about Young People and Gun Violence." October is National Crime Prevention Month—the perfect time to center our attention of the special needs of our kids and gun violence. We introduce this resolution today in the hopes of getting every Senator to cosponsor it prior to this passage, which we hope will occur in early September. This is an easy step for us to help facilitate the work that must go on in each community across America, as parents, teachers, friends and students try to prevent gun violence before it ruins any more lives.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I rise today to once again introduce a resolution with my colleague from Washington, Senator MURRAY, to establish October 17, 2000, as the Day of National Concern About Young People and Gun Violence.

According to Health and Human Services Secretary Donna Shalala, 10 children and teens across the country are killed by firearms each day. This statistic is an alarming one, but, nevertheless, statistics can be so impersonal. We must remember that these 10 children lost everyday are real people. They are children, they are brothers, they are sisters, and they are grand-children to real people. They are also a lost part of our future as a country. When put in real terms such as this, it is difficult to imagine a more important task facing our great nation than eliminating gun violence among America's youth.

We all remember the events in Conyers, Georgia; Littleton, Colorado; Peal, Mississippi; West Paducah, Kentucky; Jonesboro, Arkansas; Springfield, Oregon, Neighborhoods in these areas have all been home to horrific school shootings. Youth gun violence, however, is not limited to these all too often incidences of school shootings. America has lost thousands of children in what has become the alltoo-common violence of drive-by shootings, drug wars and other crimes, as well as in self-inflicted and unintentional shootings.

The good news in our fight against youth gun violence is that child gun deaths in America have fallen every year since 1994. Nevertheless, Mr. President, 10 deaths a day is 10 too many.

While there is no simple solution as to how to stop youth violence, a Minnesota homemaker, Mary Lewis Grow, developed the idea of a Day of National Concern About Young People and Gun Violence. I believe this idea is a step in the right direction, as do such groups as Mothers Against Violence in America, the National Association of Student Councils, the American Federation of Teachers, the National Parent Teacher Associations, and the American Medical Association.

Simply put, this resolution will establish October 17, 2000, as the Day of National Concern About Young People and Gun Violence. On this day, students in every school district in the Nation will be invited to voluntarily sign the "Student Pledge Against Gun Violence." By signing the pledge, students promise that they will never take a gun to school, will never use a gun to settle a dispute, and will use their influence in a positive manner to prevent friends from using guns to settle disputes.

Just last year over 2 million young Americans signed the Student Pledge Against Gun Violence. I am confident the number of student's signing this year's pledge will be even greater. Though this resolution is not the ultimate solution to preventing future tragedies, if it stops even one incident of youth gun violence, this resolution will be invaluable. I urge all of my colleagues to join in this resolution to focus attention on gun violence among youth.

Whereas the 1951 University of San Francisco Dons football team completed its championship season with an unblemished record;

Whereas this closely knit team failed to receive an invitation to compete in any postseason Bowl game because two of its players were African-American:

Whereas the 1951 University of San Francisco Dons football team courageously and rightly rejected an offer to play in a Bowl game without their African-American teammates:

Whereas this exceptionally gifted team, for the most objectionable of reasons, was deprived of the opportunity to prove itself before a national audience;

Whereas ten members of this team were drafted into the National Football League, five played in the Pro Bowl and three were inducted into the Hall of Fame;

Whereas our Nation has made great strides in overcoming the barriers of oppression, intolerance, and discrimination in order to ensure fair and equal treatment for every American by every American; and

Whereas it is appropriate and fitting to now offer these athletes the attention and accolades they earned but were denied:

Now, therefore be it Resolved. That the Senate-

- (1) applauds the undefeated and untied 1951 University of San Francisco Dons football team for its determination, commitment and integrity both on and off the playing field; and
- (2) acknowledges that the treatment endured by this team was wrong and that recognition for its accomplishments is long overdue.

TRAFFICKING VICTIMS PROTECTION ACT OF 2000

BROWNBACK (AND WELLSTONE) AMENDMENT NO. 4027)

Mr. HATCH (for Mr. Brownback (for himself, and Mr. Wellstone)) proposed an amendment to the bill (H.R. 3244) to combat trafficking of persons, especially into the sex trade, slavery, and slavery-like conditions in the United States and countries around the world through prevention, through prosecution and enforcement against traffickers, and through protection and assistance to victims of trafficking; as follows:

Strike all after the enacting clause and insert the following:

SEC. 2. PURPOSES AND FINDINGS. (a) PURPOSES.—The purposes of th

- (a) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this Act are to combat trafficking in persons, a contemporary manifestation of slavery whose victims are predominantly women and children, to ensure just and effective punishment of traffickers, and to protect their victims.
 - (b) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that:
- (1) As we begin the 21st century, the degrading institution of slavery continues throughout the world. Sex trafficking is a modern day form of slavery and it is the largest manifestation of slavery today. Millions of people every year, primarily women and children, are trafficked within or across international borders. Approximately 50,000 women and children are trafficked into the United States each year.
- (2) Many of these persons are trafficked into the international sex trade, often by force, fraud, or coercion. The sex industry has rapidly expanded over the past several decades. It involves sexual exploitation of persons, predominantly women and girls, involving activities related to prostitution, pornography, sex tourism, and other commercial sexual services. The low status of women in many parts of the world has contributed to a burgeoning of the trafficking industry.

- (3) Trafficking in persons is not limited to the sex industry. This growing transnational crime also includes forced labor, and involves significant violations of minimal labor, public health, and human rights standards worldwide.
- (4) Traffickers primarily target women and girls, who are disproportionately affected by poverty, lack of access to education, chronic unemployment, discrimination, and lack of viable economic opportunities in countries of origin. Traffickers lure women and girls into their networks through false promises of decent working conditions at relatively good pay as nannies, maids, dancers, factory workers, restaurant workers, sales clerks, or models. Traffickers also buy children from poor families and sell them into prostitution or into various types of forced or bonded labor.
- (5) Traffickers often transport victims from their home communities to unfamiliar destinations, including different countries away from family and friends, religious institutions, and other sources of protection and support, leaving the victims defenseless and vulnerable.
- (6) Victims are often forced through physical violence to engage in sex acts or perform slavery-like labor. Such force includes rape and other forms of sexual abuse, torture, starvation, imprisonment, threats, psychological abuse, and coercion.
- (7) Traffickers often make representations to their victims that physical harm may occur to them or others should they escape or attempt to escape. Such threats can have the same coercive effects on victims as actual infliction of harm.
- (8) Trafficking in persons is increasingly perpetrated by organized, sophisticated criminal enterprises. Such trafficking is the fastest growing source of profits for organized criminal enterprises worldwide. Profits from the trafficking industry contribute to the expansion of organized crime in the United States and worldwide. Trafficking often is aided by official corruption in countries of origin, transit, and destination, thereby threatening the rule of law.
- (9) Trafficking includes all the elements of the crime of forcible rape, when it involves the involuntary participation of another person in sex acts by means of fraud, force, or coercion.
- (10) Trafficking also involves violations of other laws, including labor and immigration codes and laws against kidnapping, slavery, false imprisonment, assault, battery, pandering, fraud, and extortion.
- (11) Trafficking exposes victims to serious health risk. Women and children trafficked into the sex industry are exposed to deadly diseases, including HIV and AIDS. Trafficking victims are sometimes worked or physically brutalized to death.
- (12) Trafficking in persons involving slavery-like labor practices substantially affects interstate and foreign commerce. The United States must take action to eradicate the substantial burdens on commerce that result from trafficking in persons and to prevent the channels of commerce from being used for immoral and injurious purposes.
- (13) Trafficking of persons is an evil requiring concerted and vigorous action by countries of origin, transit or destination, and by international organizations.
- (14) Existing legislation and law enforcement in the United States and other countries are inadequate to deter trafficking and bring traffickers to justice, failing to reflect the gravity of the offenses involved. No comprehensive law exists in the United States that penalizes the range of offenses involved in the trafficking scheme. Instead, even the most brutal instances of trafficking into the sex industry are often punished under laws - that also apply to lesser offenses such as consensual sexual activity and illegal immigration, so that traffickers typically escape deserved punishment.

- (15) In the United States, the seriousness of this crime and its components are not reflected in current sentencing guidelines, resulting in weak penalties for convicted traffickers. Additionally, adequate services and facilities do not exist to meet the needs of health care, housing, education, and legal assistance, which safely reintegrate trafficking victims into their home countries.
- (16) In some countries, enforcement against traffickers is also hindered by official indifference, by corruption, and sometimes even by official participation in trafficking.
- (17) Existing laws often fail to protect victims of trafficking, and because victims are often illegal immigrants in the destination country, they are repeatedly punished more harshly than the traffickers themselves.
- (18) Victims of severe forms of trafficking should not be inappropriately incarcerated, fined, or otherwise penalized solely for unlawful acts as a direct result of being trafficked, such as for having used false documents, entering the country without documentation, or working without documentation.
- (19) Victims of trafficking often find it difficult or impossible to report the crimes committed against them or to assist in the investigation and prosecution of such crimes. This is because they are frequently unfamiliar with the laws, culture, and language of the countries into which they are trafficked. Also, they are often subjected to coercion, intimidation, physical detention, debt bondage, and fear of forcible removal to countries where they face hardship.
- (20) The United States and the international community agree that trafficking in persons involves grave violations of human rights and is a matter of pressing international concern. The international community has repeatedly condemned slavery and involuntary servitude, violence against women, and other elements of trafficking. through declarations, treaties. United Nations resolutions and reports, including the Universal Declaration of Human Rights: the 1956 Supplementary Convention on the Abolition of Slavery, the Slave Trade. and Institutions and Practices Similar to Slavery; the 1957 Abolition of Forced Labor Convention: the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights: the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination Against Women: the Convention Against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment: United Nations General Assembly Resolutions 50/167, 51/66, and 52/98; the Final Report of the World Congress against Sexual Exploitation of Children (Stockholm, 1996); the Fourth World Conference on Women (Beiiing, 1995); and the 1991 Moscow Document of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe.
- Trafficking in persons (21)transnational crime with national implications. To deter international trafficking and bring its perpetrators to justice, nations including the United States must recognize that trafficking is a serious offense. This is done by prescribing appropriate punishment, giving priority to the prosecution of trafficking offenses, and protecting rather than punishing the victims of such offenses. The United States must work bilaterally and multilaterally to abolish the trafficking industry by taking steps to promote cooperation among countries linked together by international trafficking routes. The United States must also urge the international community to take strong action in multilateral - for a to engage recalcitrant countries in serious and sustained efforts to eliminate trafficking and protect trafficking victims.

- (22) Trafficking in persons substantially affects interstate and foreign commerce. Trafficking for such purposes as involuntary servitude, peonage, and other forms of forced labor has an impact on the nationwide employment network and labor market. Within the context of slavery, servitude, and labor or services which are obtained or maintained through coercive conduct that amounts to a condition of servitude, victims are subjected to a range of violations.
- (23) Involuntary servitude statutes are intended to reach cases in which persons are held in a condition of servitude through nonviolent coercion. In United States v. Kozminski, 487 U.S. 950 (1988), the Supreme Court found that section 1584 of title 18, United States Code, should be narrowly interpreted, absent a definition of involuntary servitude by Congress. As a result, that section was interpreted to only criminalize servitude coerced through force, threats of force, or threats of legal coercion.

- (4) The country should make serious and sustained efforts to eliminate severe forms of trafficking in persons.
- (b) CRITERIA.—In determinations of whether a country is making serious and sustained efforts under subsection (a)(4), the following factors should be considered as indicia of a good faith effort to eliminate severe forms of trafficking in persons:

- (2) Whether the country cooperates with other countries in the investigation and prosecution of severe forms of trafficking in persons.
- (3) Whether the country extradites persons charged with acts of severe forms of trafficking in persons on the same terms and to the same extent as persons charged with other serious crimes.
- (4) Whether the country monitors immigration and emigration patterns for evidence of severe forms of trafficking in persons and whether law enforcement agencies of the country respond to any such evidence in a manner which is consistent with the vigorous investigation and prosecution of acts of such trafficking, as well as with the protection of human rights of victims and the internationally recognized human right to leave and return to one's own country.
- (5) Whether the country protects victims of severe forms of trafficking in persons and encourages their assistance in the investigation and prosecution of such trafficking, including provision for legal alternatives to their removal to countries in which they would face retribution or other hardship.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Under the rule, the bills will receive their second reading on the next legislative day.

AUTHORIZATION TO MAKE APPOINTMENTS

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that notwithstanding the upcoming recess or adjournment of the Senate, the President of the Senate, the President pro tempore, and the majority and minority leaders be authorized to make appointments to commissions, committee boards, conferences or interparliamentary conferences authorized by law, by concurrent action of the two Houses, or by order of the Senate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

ORDERS FOR TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 5, 2000

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate completes its business today, it adjourn until the hour of 12 noon on Tuesday, September 5. I further ask consent that on Tuesday, immediately following the prayer, the Journal of proceedings be approved to date, the morning hour be deemed expired, the time for the two leaders be reserved for their use later in the day, and the Senate then begin a period of morning business until 12:30 p.m., with Senators permitted to speak for up to 5 minutes each.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. I further ask consent that the Senate stand in recess from the hours of 12:30 p.m. to 2:15 p.m. for the weekly policy conferences to meet.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PROGRAM

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. When the Senate convenes on Tuesday, September 5, the Senate will be in a period of morning business from 12 to 12:30 p.m. Following morning business, the Senate will recess for the weekly party conference meetings. At 2:15 p.m., the 30 hours of postcloture debate on the China PNTR bill will begin. At 6 p.m., by previous consent, the Senate will begin consideration of the energy and water appropriations bill, with amendments in order. Under the agreement, these two bills will be considered simultaneously throughout the week.

ORDER FOR ADJOURNMENT

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. If there is no further business to come before the Senate, I now ask unanimous consent that the Senate stand in adjournment—

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT AGREEMENT—S. 1608

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, I ask consent that on or before September 15, 2000, the majority leader, after notification with the minority leader, will turn to Calendar No. 520, S. 1608, and it be considered under the following agreement:

That there be 2 hours equally divided for general debate on the bill; that there be a managers' amendment in the nature of a substitute; that there be up to two amendments for each leader, with one amendment of the minority leader to be offered by Senator BOXER; that they be first-degree amendments, relevant to the text of S. 1608, and limited to 1 hour each, to be equally divided in the usual form.

That following the disposition of the above described amendments, the use or yielding back of time, the Senate proceed to third reading and a vote on passage of S. 1608, as amended, if amended, without intervening action, motion, or debate.

I further ask consent that it be in order for either leader to vitiate the above agreement no later than 12 noon on Wednesday, September 6, 2000.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Mr. President, my colleague and I thank the staff and those who have waited this long time. I tell them and anyone who is concerned that the wait has been worthwhile. This bill is the product of a bipartisan pair of Senators who I think tonight have shown what can happen if we work together. We respect one another. We work for the good of the American people.

Every State with timber growing in it, with children growing in it, with roads needing repair in it, will be better because of what we have done tonight.

I salute my colleague and I thank him very much for his role this evening.

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL SEPTEMBER 5, 2000

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate, under the previous order, will stand adjourned until 12 noon on Tuesday, September 5, 2000.

Thereupon, the Senate, at 9:53 p.m., adjourned until Tuesday, September 5, 2000, at 12 noon.

EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

INITIAL VICTORY IN THE STRUG-GLE FOR FREEDOM OF THE PRESS IN RUSSIA—BUT THE FIGHT MUST GO ON

HON. TOM LANTOS

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Speaker, in the long and difficult fight for freedom of the press in Russia we have won an important victory today. The Russian prosecutor informed Vladimir Gusinsky—head of Russia's Media-Most media conglomerate—that the case against him has been dropped for "the lack of a fact of a crime."

Mr. Speaker, the prosecutor's action against Mr. Gusinsky was never simply a case of prosecuting a crime. From the beginning it has been a case of seeking to persecute and harass and intimidate and muzzle the free press in Russia. Vladimir Gusinsky is the head of Media-Most, which owns NTV television network, Russia's leading independent television network, as well as Echo of Moscow radio, and a number of other important independent media ventures.

It is significant, Mr. Speaker, that NTV and other Media-Most journalists have been critical of Russian President Putin and of the actions of the Russian government. Critical journalism is certainly nothing that would even raise eyebrows in the United States or Western Europe or other free countries around the world.

Mr. Speaker, the harassment of Mr. Gusinsky involved actions against him that go well beyond what would be done in a normal criminal proceeding involving such charges. Mr. Gusinsky was jailed for four days in June; in a high-handed fashion authorities seized documents from his company's offices several times; after he was released from jail, he was repeatedly called in for questioning; he was prohibited from traveling abroad; and steps were taken to freeze his personal assets.

On a number of occasions in the past, I have called to the attention of my colleagues in this House the systematic efforts to harass and intimidate the independent media in Russia. I hope that President Putin now understands that there is no room for Russia in the community of free and democratic nations if his government engages in efforts to oppress and threaten the free press in Russia.

Mr. Speaker, the dropping of charges against Mr. Gusinsky represents a victory for democracy and press freedom in Russia, but the battle is far from over. We must continue and strengthen our efforts to preserve free media in Russia.

INTRODUCTION OF THE FEDERAL INFORMATION POLICY ACT OF 2000

HON. THOMAS M. DAVIS

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to introduce legislation that will endow the Federal Government with the ability to better coordinate and manage information technology policies governmentwide and transform the Federal Government into a national model for information resources management and information security practices. The Federal Information Policy Act [FIPA] of 2000 establishes an Office of Information Policy with a Chief Information Officer [CIO] for the United States and creates within that body, an Office of Information Security and Technical Protection [IN STEP]. This legislation harmonizes existing information resources management responsibilities now held by OMB and provides IN STEP with the responsibility for facilitating the development of a comprehensive, federal framework for devising and implementing effective, mandatory controls over government information security. In this latter respect, the Act is the logical complement to legislation I introduced in April, the Cyber Security Information Act of 2000, which seeks to encourage private sector information sharing with government in order to protect our national critical infrastructure. The Federal Information Policy Act will force the Federal Government to put its house in order and become a reliable public partner for protecting America's information highways.

For nearly four decades, information technology has been an integral component of information resources management [IRM] by the Federal Government. The Government's role as the single largest procurer of IT products and services in the 1960s and 1970s spurred the development of the U.S. computer industries that now form the backbone of our nation's New Economy. A decade ago, technology stood as one of many factors important to the mission and performance objectives of the Federal Government. Now both our economy and our society have become information-driven, such that IT plays the critical role in facilitating the Federal Government's ability to be effective and efficient in managing federal programs and spending, communicating with and providing services to citizens, and protecting America's critical infrastructure.

Five years ago, Congress recognized the crucial role played by technology when we called on the Administration to appoint a top-level officer to focus exclusively on the Year 2000 computer problem that threatened to undermine national commerce and government. This determination—that a single individual was needed to coordinate national and local cooperation to remediate computer systems and develop contingency plans—was based in part on an understanding of the interconnectivity of information systems within government, between government and the private sector, and within the private sector. The President heeded our recommendation and appointed John Koskinen to a Cabinet-level position as the chairman of the President's Council on Year 2000 Conversion.

Moreover, the Year 2000 computer problem highlighted two important deficiencies in the current Federal IRM structure. First, the Y2K scenario presented an important reminder that technology does not fill some amorphous role within the Federal Government. It is the ubiguitous thread that binds the operations of the Federal Government, and its efficient or inefficient use will make or break the ability of government to perform everything from the most mundane of governmental functions to the most critical national security measures. Second, the high degree of interdepence between information systems, both internally and externally, exposes the vulnerability of the Federal Government's computer networks to both benign and destructive disruptions. This factor is tremendously important to understanding how we devise a comprehensive and flexible strategy for coordinating, implementing and maintaining federal information security practices throughout the Federal Government as the rising threat of electronic terrorism emerges.

In following the lessons learned from the Y2K problem as well as the recent Love Bug viruses that affected many federal computer systems, the Federal Information Policy Act accomplishes four main purposes: (1) to revise chapter 35 of title 44 of the U.S. Code to establish a Federal Chief Information Officer to head the Office of Information Policy (OIP) within the Executive Office of the President; (2) to consolidate and centralize IRM powers currently allotted to the Office of Management and Budget [OMB] within the OIP; (3) to establish within the OIP the Office of Information Security and Technical Protection [IN STEP]; and (4) to establish a comprehensive framework implementing mandatory information security standards, and annual independent evaluations of agency practices in order to provide effective controls over Federal information resources. The Act creates a new chapter 36 to retain OMB's paperwork clearance functions that are currently contained in chapter 35 and are performed by the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs.

This past May, at the Center for Innovative Technology in my congressional district, the House Government Reform Subcommittee on Government Management, Information, and Technology held a hearing in which we explored the strategies and challenges facing government in implementing electronic government initiatives. We learned that while electronic government initiatives promise to provide faster, more efficient, and convenient services, the Internet sets forth a wide array of challenges that must be addressed in order for the lower costs and improved customer service associated with electronic government to be realized. These include theft, fraud, consumer privacy protection, and the destruction of assets. To meet those challenges, the General Accounting Office [GAO] testified that "effective top management leadership, involvement, and ownership are a cornerstone of any information technology investment strategy."

The Paperwork Reduction Act [PRA] established the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs [OIRA] within OMB and gave the Office the authority to reduce unnecessary paperwork burdens and to "develop and maintain a Governmentwide strategic plan for information resources management." However, in a July 1998 report, the GAO found that OIRA had failed to satisfy some of its IRM responsibilities assigned by the PRA. And last year, the GAO found that improvements in broad IT management reforms "will be difficult to achieve without effective agency leadership support, highly qualified and experienced CIOs, and effective OMB leadership and oversight."

I am deeply concerned that current federal IRM policies are suffering from the lack of a focused, coordinating body. The Clinger-Cohen Act, passed in the 104th Congress, made an important contribution to Federal IT policy by mandating that federal agencies appoint Chief Information Officers and by recognizing the need to coordinate and facilitate interagency IT communication and policies, a role given to OMB. But having each agency develop IT policies independently of one another poses the potential risk of having a government unable to communicate and function and function amongst its own parts. A central IT management process is essential if government is going to be able to successfully achieve cost benefits similar to those experienced in the private sector and improve its responsiveness to the public through e-government initiatives and better-performing Federal operations. And that coordinating entity must be capable of deploying comprehensive policies that reflect the interdependence of federal information systems.

With its many management responsibilities. OMB is simply unable to devote the attention need for effective IRM. FIPA creates a CIO of the United States to fulfill that coordinating role, acting as the principal adviser to the President on the development, application and management of information technology government-wide. He or she will be able to encourage innovation in technology uses, coordinate inter-agency IRM initiatives and communication, and promote cost-effective investments in information technologies. The Act also formalizes the establishment of the Chief Information Officers Council, which currently exists by virtue of a 1996 Executive Order. Made up of the CIOs from the major Federal agencies, the CIO Council provides an important forum for interagency communication and for improving IT management policies, procedures, and standards. The Federal CIO will chair the Council, a position now held by the Deputy Director for Management at OMB, and must submit an annual report to the President and Congress on its achievements and recommendations for future initiatives.

A Federal CIO will allow OIRA to concentrate and improve on the critical function of paperwork reduction that is so important to our continued efforts to minimize bureaucratic burdens on individuals, small businesses, and others resulting from the collection of information by or for the Federal Government. It is for this reason that the paperwork clearance functions are maintained in FIPA.

Equally critical is the ability of the Federal Government to anticipate, monitor, and recover from intrusions into Federal computer networks. This important objective was detailed in the President's National Plan for Information Systems Protection, Version 1.0, issued in January 2000. Many sectors of the government have experienced, at one time or another, cyber security breaches. Under current law, rules and regulations governing the security of federal computer systems are guided by the Computer Security Act of 1987 and Annex III of OMB Circular A-130. The result is that several agencies including OMB, the National Institute of Standards and Technology [NIST], the General Services Administration, and the National Security Agency, all play a role in overseeing and implementing computer security procedures and reviews. Cyber security readiness is an intrinsic element of every information resources management. But like Federal IRM policy in general. the integrity of Federal information systems is being endangered by a lack of governmentwide coordination and implementation of proven information security practices.

Certainly, each Federal agency must bear the responsibility for assessing risk, detecting and responding to security incidents, and protecting its own operations and assets. It is for this reason that this legislation also adapts many of the provisions contained in the Government Information Security Act championed by Senate Governmental Affairs Committee Chairman FRED THOMPSON. It requires every Federal agency to develop and implement security policies that include risk assessment, risk-based policies, security awareness training, and periodic reviews.

However, in a March 2000 Senate hearing on the Government Information Security Act, the GAO pointed to compelling reasons for establishing strong central leadership for coordinating information security-related activities across government. Foremost is the inadequacy of information-sharing among agencies regarding vulnerabilities and solutions to those weaknesses, as well as the lack of a clear mandate for handling and reporting security incidents affecting federal information systems.

For instance, in a March 29, 2000 hearing, the House Government Reform Subcommittee on Government Management, Information and Technology examined the state of information security practices throughout the Federal Government. GAO shared its most recent review at that time of the Environmental Protection Agency [EPA]. Its tests found "numerous security weaknesses associated with the computer operating systems and the agencywide computer network that support most of EPA's mission-related and financial operations." Indeed, the EPA had recorded several serious computer incidents within the last two years but the GAO indicated that EPA's subsequent methods for strengthening its security procedures were inadequate. In an earlier report, the GAO stated that "resolving EPA's information security problems will require substantial ongoing management attention since security program planning and management to date have largely been a paper exercise doing little to substantively identify, evaluate, and mitigate risks to the agency's data and systems.'

As part of its testimony, the GAO referred to earlier findings that 22 of the largest federal agencies were providing inadequate protection for critical federal operations and assets from computer-based attacks. GAO reported that within the past year, it was able to identify systemic weaknesses in the information security practices of the Department of Defense, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, the Department of State, and the Department of Veterans Affairs. In each instance, sensitive data and/or mission-critical systems were penetrable by unauthorized users.

These results reflect government-wide systemic weaknesses and follow numerous GAO audits which have repeatedly identified serious failures in the most basic access controls for Federal information systems. In its May 1999 tests of NASA's computer-based controls, GAO was able to successfully gain access to several mission-critical systems, and could have easily disrupted command and control operations conducted through orbiting spacecraft. An independent auditor found last August that the State Department's mainframe computer was extremely vulnerable to unauthorized access that could expose, in turn, other computer operations connected to those mainframe computers. These are just a few examples of the many troubling indicators that currently plague Federal agency information security practices.

Another key challenge to making the Federal Government more secure lies in the mind set of many federal agencies vis-a-vis the importance of information security to their operations and assets. For many, implementing best practices for controlling and protecting information resources is a low priority. A centralized leader would be able to make information security one of the top priority missions of the Federal Government. It is this overarching responsibility that is given to the United States CIO in the Act, and is subsequently delegated to the Director of IN STEP. In establishing government-wide policies, the IN STEP Director will direct the implementation of a continuing risk management cycle within each Federal agency, implement effective controls on information to address identified risks, promote awareness of information security risks among users, and act as a continual monitor and evaluator of policy and control effectiveness of information security practices.

In addition, the Federal Information Policy Act tightens the responsibilities of each Federal agency for implementing security procedures and policies that ensure the protection of its information systems. The CIO, in consultation with the Director of IN STEP, will have enforcement authority over individual agencies through his or her ability to make recommendations to the Director of OMB with respect to funding for information resources. This provision is necessary to ensuring that IN STEP can ensure accountability within each agency for information security management.

And finally, two other important features are included that are vital for the long-term development of flexible and responsive information security controls. The first is investing authority in the Director of IN STEP, through the CIO, to require Federal agencies to identify and classify the security risks associated with each of their information operations, and to calculate the risk and magnitude of harm that would result from an intrusion. IN STEP will have simultaneous authority to oversee the development and implementation of mandatory minimum control standards developed by NIST, that would be required for each classification. For this purpose, final authority is given to the CIO, in consultation with the Secretary of Commerce, to decide and officially issue the standards. And the Act requires the Inspector General or an independent evaluator to conduct an independent evaluation of the information security program and practices of each agency on an annual basis, which will subsequently be reported to the U.S. CIO.

At the time when the growth and success of our competitive national economy is clearly demonstrating a correlation to the Information Revolution, the Federal Information Policy Act will secure the ability of our Federal Government to fully utilize information technology in order to better serve American citizens. And in a time when any entity-including governmentthat is connected to a computer needs to make information security a priority, we are finding that the Federal Government is dangerously behind the curve. We are losing time. FIPA will spur the actions needed to achieve readiness against future cyber security threats in a uniform and coordinated process. It is my hope that Congress will act on this measure as soon as possible so that the Federal Government will move forward and become a leader in the management and protection of governmental information systems.

VOLUNTEERS RESTORE ROSIE THE RIVETER'S VICTORY SHIP

HON. GEORGE MILLER

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, earlier this month, the House of Representatives unanimously passed my legislation to create a Rosie the Riveter National Historic Park in Richmond, CA. H.R. 4063, which has been the subject of a hearing also in the Senate Energy Committee, would honor all those who served, in uniform and in coveralls, wearing helmets or bandanas, hoisting a machine gun or a welder's torch.

Rosie the Riveter is, in the words of the National Park Service, "the most remembered icon of the civilian work force that helped win World War II and has a powerful resonance in the women's movement." Rosie has been commemorated on posters, in the famous Normal Rockwell painting, and on a U.S. postage stamp. She remains one of the most enduring images of the Second World War.

Another icon does remain that is worth remembering and preserving is one of the 747 ships that the Rosies—and the Wendys and Welder—constructed at the Richmond Kaiser shipyards: the Red Oak Victory, one of the last surviving Victory ships that served in World War II. Eventually, the Red Oak Victory will play a crucial and permanent role in the National Historic Park. Today, she is being carefully restored by a small navy of volunteers that is stripping paint, cleaning rust, and reconstructing this legacy of the greatest war in history.

I want to pay tribute to the men and women who are volunteering their time to spruce up the Red Oak Victory so that future generations of residents, visitors and students can learn first hand about the home front efforts to win the war and the tremendous economic, demographic and social changes generated by the war effort.

The San Francisco Chronicle has published an account of the restoration effort, and I would like to share that report with my colleagues.

ROSIE REVISITED—VOLUNTEER CREW IS RESTORING A WORLD WAR II VICTORY SHIP, REMNANT OF RICHMOND'S SHIPYARDS

(By Chip Johnson)

Every Tuesday for the past year, Owen Olson has left his Daly City home and stepped back in time aboard the Red Oak Victory, a World War II relic being brought back to life on the Richmond waterfront.

At 79 years old, the retired U.S. Navy lieutenant dons a pair of coveralls and safety glasses, and climbs down into the bowels of the ship's engine room to strip off layer upon layer of lead-based paint. His face streaked with oil, he is a Norman Rockwell image of an engine-room grease monkey.

Olson is one of the 30 volunteers, many of them retirees, who show up to paint, weld and repair the aging vessel. It is the only ship still afloat from Richmond's giant Kaiser Shipyards—a remnant of the glory days when 747 ships were built there during the war.

One day, they hope, the vessel will be docked at the Rosie the Riveter/World War II Home Front National Park in Richmond. The Rosie memorial, a 400-foot-long wall shaped like a section of a Victory ship, will tell the story of the working women—and men—of World War II. It is scheduled to be unveiled at a dedication ceremony in mid-October

Meanwhile, about 7,000 feet of space at the old Ford plant, which built 60,000 tanks during the war, will be converted into a visitor center near where the Red Oak Victory would be docked in the future.

The visitor center will provide information about the shipyards, the tank factory and other World War II-era sites in Richmond as well as war-factory sites in Massachusetts, Washington, Michigan, Ohio, New York, Louisiana and Connecticut.

When the park is approved by Congress, it will become eligible for funding from the National Park Service. The visitor center is scheduled to be completed in two years.

Meanwhile, there is a lot of work to be done on the Red Oak Victory, whose restoration must be funded by grants and donation in addition to the sweat of volunteers who hope to have the job finished in two years.

On his weekly trip to Richmond, Olson is joined by a collection of aging wise guys and characters who look like they were typecast for a remake of "McHale's Navy," a 1960s TV sitcom.

The crew is clearly more comfortable aboard the ship—a rusting giant cargo vessel pulled from the mothball fleet at Suisun Bay two years ago—than they are on land. Some of the officers' quarters have been restored by a volunteer group from Clearlake in Lake County, but the rusting exterior decks and walls of the ship need the most attention.

Mike Huntsinger, a career merchant sailor, serves as the chief mate. His job is to coordinate the tasks on the ship and perform a mechanical assessment of the ship's condition. A detailed 60-page restoration report has just been submitted to a firm that will estimate the cost of repairing the 441-foot vessel.

"The objective is to restore it to an operating vessel and make it look like it did the day it was launched," he said.

Right now, the boat is docked in Brickyard Cove Marina at an old city-owned dock, Terminal 9. She is a rusting gray lady, but there are signs of life aboard her. A gigantic winch used to load one of the ship's four huge cargo holds has been restored and is now operational.

The 5mm and 20mm guns aboard the vessel, which was used to ferry supplies to soldiers fighting the Japanese, lie on the deck until the day they are mounted on the gun tubs on the bow and stern of the ship.

But making the Red Oak Victory whole again will take far more than the elbow grease and old sea stories that Olson and J.P. Irvin, his mate in the engine room, or chief engineer Bill Jackson can muster.

The cost is staggering—about $3 million to $4 million worth of mechanical repairs would require the giant vessel to be dry-docked. An equally long list of cosmetic work, including a stem-to-stern paint job, would also require a substantial investment, he said.

Sea valves in the ship's hull that once allowed ocean water inside to cool the engines have been welded shut. The propeller needs to be balanced, auxiliary generators could use an overhaul, and ultrasound tests must be performed on the hull, just to name a few things, Huntsinger said.

"We'll pare down from there and see what the real world gives us," he said.

Lois Boyle, president of the Richmond Museum of History, which owns the boat, will try to raise money through federal transportation grants, corporate sponsors—including Kaiser Permanente, whose parent company built the vessel—and hundreds of others.

The museum has also applied to have the ship placed on the National Register of Historic Places, which would qualify it for funding.

Despite its state of disrepair, the Red Oak Victory—named after the tiny town in Iowa that suffered the heaviest losses per capita in World War II—was a working merchant ship in the Vietnam War before being decommissioned in 1969.

Jackson, a veteran seaman who sailed for 53 years, knows the feeling. The 82-year-old Oakland native was living in Costa Rica with a new wife and new son when he got a call in 1990 from an old sea buddy to help run a steam-powered supply ship in Operation Desert Storm.

A few years later, Jackson returned to Oakland, where he lives with family members and spends his days aboard the Red Oak Victory.

"I love this ship and the sea and the friendships with the men that have sailed them over the years," he said.

He must love ships because during World War II, he had two of them torpedoed from underneath him. He survived, but suffered injuries aboard the Courageous, which was sunk off the coast of Trinidad.

The Red Oak Victory has become a rallying point for old sailors and history buffs alike, a place where they can work and reminisce and shave 30 years away.

Huntsinger remembers the feeling he had the first time he saw the ship.

"I saw the mast from the highway, came aboard and the memories came flooding back." he said.

As much as he and the rest enjoy the work, they will never turn away volunteers.

"I have a love for these old ships," said Rolly Hauck, 77 a retired salesman from Novato who served in the merchant fleet.

He and his compatriots have but one collective wish when it comes to the Red Oak Victory.

"I want to see this ship live again," Hauck said.

DEVELOPMENTAL DISABILITIES ASSISTANCE AND BILL OF RIGHTS ACT OF 2000

SPEECH OF

HON. JAMES H. MALONEY

OF CONNECTICUT

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Tuesday, July 25, 2000

Mr. MALONEY of Connecticut. Mr. Speaker, this week marks the 10th anniversary of the Americans for Disability Act, which has helped all our fellow Americans to realize their full potential. In this regard, I was pleased to attend a ceremony last month here in the U.S. Capitol Building at which Pitney Bowes, a worldwide leader in messaging technology based in Connecticut, received the Blinded American Veterans Foundation's Corporate Award for their development of the Universal Access Copies.

This revolutionary copier incorporates many leading technologies, including the first-ever use of advanced speech recognition in a copier. This speech recognition software can "learn" any user's voice pattern, including those with speech disabilities, and respond to any language. This enables users to operate every feature of the copier merely by stating simple commands. In addition to voice activation, a touch screen and Braille keyboard allows operators to choose how they prefer to operate the system. The copier also adjusts to different heights allowing people with mobility limitations, including those in wheelchairs, to operate it. The Universal Access Copier assists those with disabilities in enjoying employment opportunities that may not have been previously available to them.

At the ceremony, John Fales, Jr., President of the Blinded American Veterans Foundation (BAVF), presented the award to Michael Critelli, CEO and Chairman of Pitney Bowes. This was the 15th annual George "Buck" Gillispie Congressional awards ceremony held as part of the 2000 Flag Week events. For those who may not know, BAVF was launched in 1985 by three American Veterans who lost their sight during service in Korea and Vietnam-John Fales (USMC), Don Garner (USN) and Dennis Wyant (USN). All these individuals had achieved successful careers despite their blindness but they realized that many sensory disabled veterans had not had the same opportunities afforded them. Accordingly, they determined to form the foundation and pursue its goals of research, rehabilitation and re-employment.

I am proud to say the Universal Access Copier was developed at the Pitney Bowes Technology Center, which serves as the company's "innovation incubator", and symbolizes Pitney Bowes' ongoing commitment to excellence in research and technological development. The Technology Center sits on a nineacre site in my congressional district in Shelton, Connecticut and provides a consolidated engineering campus for several hundred engineers, scientists, and programmers. The company was previously honored for development of the copier when it was presented the Computerworld Smithsonian Award which recognizes vision, leadership and innovation through outstanding use of information technology. Pitney Bowes' Universal Access Copier was singled out for the help it offers 34 million Americans with disabilities of working age in living and working more independently. The copier has also been inducted into the permanent Smithsonian Institution's Research Collection alongside such famous technological innovations as Samuel Morse's original telegraph.

The copier is only one of many Pitney Bowes' technological innovations. For the last 14 years, the company has ranked in the top 200 companies receiving U.S. patents. Pitney Bowes has received over 3,000 patents worldwide, with an average of more than 100 issued every year.

Mr. Speaker, Pitney Bowes unwavering commitment to bring innovative technologies to all, including those with disabilities, truly stands out. I commend them on their work and look forward to their continued success.

TRIBUTE IN APPRECIATION OF DANIEL ZARAZUA

HON. JAMES A. BARCIA

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. BARCIA. Mr. Speaker, today I congratulate Chief Master Sergeant Daniel Zarazua on his retirement from the Air Force and in appreciation for the many years of dedicated service that he has given to his family, his community, and his country.

Born August 5, 1952, Daniel Zarazua has lead a heroic and inspirational life. He joined the United States Air Force in 1970, and after completing basic training and technical school, he graduated as a Medical Service Specialist at Sheppard Air Force Base in Texas. He has served all over the world, including assignments in Taiwan, the Philippines, Italy, and Korea, and rose from the rank of Airman to Chief Master Sergeant in less than 20 years. He has received the Meritorious Service Medal, the Air Force Commendation Medal, and the Air Force Achievement Medal, among other decorations during his distinguished carear

But Daniel Zarazua has always been more than just a soldier. He has always been a dedicated family man. Ask his mother Lila, a truly remarkable woman in her own right, and she will tell you that her son, Dan, called her nearly every single Monday throughout his military career. And with a wife and two children of his own, seven natural siblings, nine step-siblings, he has had opportunities to be a husband, a father, a big brother, a little brother, and an uncle.

Throughout American history, there are stories of great heroism, tremendous sacrifice, and epic courage. America is safe and free because generations of men and women willingly endured the hardships and sacrifices required to preserve our liberty. They answered the call and were there to fight for the nation, so that all of us could enjoy the freedoms we hold so dearly. America is truly the land of the free and home of the brave because of men like Daniel Zarazua who were willing to risk their life at the altar of freedom.

It was General George Patton who said "Wars may be fought with weapons, but they are won by soldiers. It is the spirit of the soldier who follows and of the soldier who leads that gains the victory." Mr. Speaker, Daniel Zarazua has always been a "soldier who leads", and I ask all of my colleagues to join me in honoring him for his unending dedication to his family, his community, and his country. I could go on and on about Daniel's patriotism, but I wanted to recognize him for all that he has done, and wish him well in the days ahead, days that will be filled with all the good fruits of a well-deserved retirement. I know that he will spend even more time with his mother, his wife Sue, and his two children, Dan and Monica. Daniel Zarazua has lived a truly incredible life, and he serves as a role model and an inspiration to everyone who has had the pleasure to know him.

CONGRATULATING JAMES AND COKE HALLOWELL

HON. GEORGE RADANOVICH

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. RADANOVICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate James and Coke Hallowell for winning the Excellence in Business Hall of Fame Award for 2000.

James started working at his father's dealership in 1955, and assumed control of the company in 1968. It was a small company in a rural community. By 1999 Hallowell Chevrolet sold 2,000 vehicles and generated $65 million in sales. James retired from the business in 1999, when he sold the dealership to his partner Bill Hendrick.

Over the years James and Coke have received numerous honors. James has received the Leon S. Peters Award, Fresno Junior Chamber of Commerce Award as Fresno's Outstanding Young Man in 1969, Time Magazine's Quality Dealer Award in 1971, and Fresno State's Alumnus of the Year award in 1974. Coke has been the State Center Community College District trustee for two terms.

James and Coke have contributed their time, efforts, and money to charitable and civic causes as well. Coke has been deeply committed to the San Joaquin River Parkway since 1985. James has been active with the Fresno Philharmonic Orchestra, is currently president-elect of the Fresno Business Council, and has a seat on the Community Medical Center's Board of Directors.

Mr. Speaker, it is my pleasure to congratulate James and Coke Hallowell for winning the Excellence in Business Hall of Fame Award for 2000. I urge my colleagues to join me in wishing them many more years of continued success.

MABANK CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION

HON. RALPH M. HALL

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. HALL of Texas. Mr. Speaker, it is my privilege to rise today in recognition of the Centennial Celebration of MaBank, Texas in the fourth Congressional District. Mabank was established in 1889 when two ranchers, Mason and Eubank, convinced railroad officials to build their line through their ranches. Thus, the community Mabank was formed and named for these two ranchers—and one-hundred years later continues to be a thriving community beloved by its dedicated citizens and filled with community spirit.

To celebrate this important milestone, Centennial Committee Chairman Robert Eubank, and members Louann Confer, Larry Teague, Jim Clark, John Hyde, Tom Whatley, Hughla Beets and Andrea Pickens, along with Centennial Coordinators Vicky Watters and Scott Confer, are planning a festive week of activities from October 3 to 7, 2000.

The celebration will begin with a tribute to Veterans that will include a special salute flyover by F–16's from the 457th Fighter Squadron. The Mabank Band will present a patriotic concert and other Mabank Independent School District students will perform dances representative of various periods during the last century. There also will be a skit depicting the history of Mabank. Area churches will come together one evening for singing, and several groups, including the contemporary Christian band "Forty Days" will close the evening's events.

A carnival will run through the remainder of the week, and there will be an authentic representation of the Wild, Wild West, among other special events. Friday night the Mabank Panthers football team will take on their traditional rival, the Kemp Yellow Jackets. On Saturday, a parade commemorating the history of Mabank will begin at Mabank High School. The three acres adjacent to the new Pavilion and Rodeo Arena will be bustling with the carnival, a chili cook-off, classic and antique car show and an arts and crafts festival. Other activities include a quilting show and a domino tournament. Centennial week events will culminate with a concert starring Mark Chesnutt and Woody Lee as featured entertainers.

Mr. Speaker, centennial celebrations are important footnotes to our nation's history. We have much to be thankful for in our great nation, and I join the citizens of Mabank in celebrating the rich history of their hometown during their Centennial Celebration this year. I would have a difficult time in discussing Mabank and not remembering a great part of the bedrock of this city, county, state and nation-the late Andrew Gibbs. Space and time prevent me from listing his many contributions, and acts of kindness and friendship, but suffice it to say that he is missed by all who knew him. So as we adjourn today, let us do so by paying tribute to the Centennial Anniversary of Mabank, Texas, and to one of its most distinguished citizens, the late Andrew Gibbs.

JUSTICE FOR VICTIMS OF TERRORISM

SPEECH OF

HON. BILL McCOLLUM

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 25, 2000

Mr. McCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 3485, the Justice of Victims of Terrorism Act, which I introduced and which has strong bipartisan support in Congress. This bill amends law first passed in 1996 to allow justice for the victims of state sponsored terrorism and to hold terrorist states accountable for their conduct. Under current law, these victims are entitled to compensation out of frozen assets in the United States of the guilty terrorist state once the victim obtains a federal court judgment. Sadly, however, the Administration is denying these victims, such as Stephen Flatow, the Brothers to the Rescue families, Terry Anderson and the other victims of terrorism in Lebanon, the justice they deserve.

In response to the President's urging, Congress passed in April 1996 a provision in the Anti-Terrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act [28 U.S.C. 1605(a)(7) and 1610(a)(7)] which gave victims of terrorist acts the ability to sue the state sponsors of those acts in federal court. This is one of seven exceptions to the jurisdictional immunity of a foreign state. The 1996 Anti-Terrorism Act also made an exception to U.S. sovereign immunity in order for such victims who are awarded judgments to proceed against the frozen, or blocked, commercial assets of that terrorist state that are held in trust by the United States government. The Act gave victims the ability to proceed against terrorist-owned assets regardless of whether those assets were involved in the terrorist act itself.

In October 1998, Congress passed Section 117 of the Fiscal Year 1999 Treasury Department Appropriations Act to clarify the assets of terrorist states available to victims of terrorism for attachment and execution of judgments. At the insistence of the Administration, however, that legislation gave the President a waiver to block the attachment of certain assets, if he deemed it to be in the interest of national security. Instead, the President exercised that waiver to essentially nullify the law and deny compensation out of frozen assets in every case to date.

H.R. 3485 remedies the Administration's failure to enforce the law in two ways. First, the bill amends the definition of "agency or instrumentality of a foreign state" to allow victims to proceed against assets that are majority owned by terrorist states. This gives victims a practical remedy in collection upon terrorist assets. Second, the bill narrows and clarifies the President's national security waiver to explicitly allow the President to protect diplomatic property, but not commercial assets.

I am concerned that the President has exercised what was intended to be a narrow national security waiver too broadly and contrary to the clear intention of Congress both in the 1996 Anti-Terrorism Act and particularly, in the FY99 Treasury Department Appropriations bill. In Section 117 of the FY 99 Appropriations bill, Congress intended a narrow waiver as interpreted in the case of Alejandre v. Republic of Cuba. Let me make it absolutely clear on top of any reading of past statements or reading of the Committee Report in relation to H.R. 3485 that the waiver is a narrow one, and this bill replaces that waiver with language that limits the President's power to protect only diplomatic property as defined under the Vienna Convention.

I am also concerned about the difficulty that victims of terrorism have had in executing against the blocked assets of terrorism sponsoring states because of the lack of information available from the foreign state. H.R. 3485 is intended to make it easier for victims to execute against these assets by clarifying that the victims are not required to meet additional hurdles of proof, including the alter-ego test or a showing of a daily control as has been applied based on the Supreme Court's 1983 decision in Bancec. Again, let me make it clear that H.R. 3485 eliminates any of these additional hurdles not intended to be imposed under Section 117, and instead allows for a showing of majority ownership by terrorist states.

The President and Administration officials encouraged victims to take terror states to court under the 1996 Anti-Terrorism Act. Yet now, in contradiction to the President's words, the Administration refuses to allow compensation out of the frozen assets of terrorist states against whom judgment have been rendered. As a consequence, those who have committed acts of terror resulting in the death of American citizens are effectively going unpunished.

In addition to the Brothers to the Rescue families who suffer from Cuba's shootdown of civilian aircraft, this legislation assists two well-known victims of Iranian-sponsored terrorism. In a tradic case, the family of Alisa Flatow won a judgment against the government of Iran for its involvement in a bus bombing in Israel in April 1995 that took her life. Months after Stephen Flatow received his judgment in federal court, the President exercised the national security waiver to prevent the Flatow family from attaching Iranian assets in the United States. Another example is the horrific story of Terry Anderson, who as we all recall, was barbarically held in Beirut by terrorists sponsored by Iran for over seven years. Several months ago. Terry Anderson won a judgment against Iran and he now joins other former Iranian hostage sin seeking compensation and justice. Recently, the Eisenfeld and Duke families own a judgment for the murder in a bus bombing in Israel of their son and daughter, who were engaged to be married at the time. Also, Robin Higgins whose husband, U.S. Marine colonel, was brutally murdered by terrorists sponsored by Iran in Lebanon is currently in the process of seeking her judgment.

The Administration has used a variety of evolving arguments to deny these victims the justice they deserve. These arguments were presented before a Committee hearing in the other body, discussed in a hearing I chaired in the Subcommittee on Immigration and Claims, and enumerated in responses to questions I submitted to Treasury Deputy Secretary Stuart Eizenstat. I have considered the Administration's arguments and have determined, along with other colleagues of mine, they do not hold up.

I hope my colleagues on both sides of the aisle will support this important and necessary legislation to finally bring justice to the victims of terrorism and to deter terrorist acts against U.S. citizens by making those state sponsors of terrorism pay.

INTRODUCTION OF THE "VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN CIVIL RIGHTS RESTORATION ACT OF 2000"

HON. JOHN CONYERS, JR.

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I am proud and honored today to be joined by Ms. BALDWIN, Ms. MALONEY and 40 other co-sponsors to introduce the "Violence Against Women Civil Rights Restoration Act of 2000."

The Violence Against Women Act of 1994, or "VAWA," was historic legislation that contained a broad array of laws and programs to address domestic violence and sexual assault in our country.

In addition to funding numerous programs such as law enforcement and prosecution grants to combat violence against women, a National Domestic Violence Hotline, and battered women's shelters and services, VAWA created both civil and criminal causes of action to target domestic violence and sexual assault.

A few months ago, the Supreme Court struck down a provision of VAWA, which allowed victims of gender-motivated violence to sue their attackers in federal court. Importantly, that case, United States v. Morrison, did not affect the validity of the rest of VAWA, which is clearly constitutional.

But, Morrison is just the latest in a series of cases in which the Supreme Court has, in my view, improperly narrowed Congress' authority to legislate under the Commerce Clause.

The Court's 5–4 majority disregarded the mountain of evidence that Congress had amassed through four years of hearings, documenting the effects of violence against women on interstate commerce. The Court's majority substituted its own judgment for that of Congress—and this from supposedly "conservative" Justices who purport to defer to Congressional findings.

The Morrison decision vividly demonstrates the important role the next President will have in shaping the composition of the Supreme Court, and ensuring that the Court respect Congress' authority to protect the civil rights of our citizens.

In response to the Morrison decision, I am introducing the "Violence Against Women Civil Rights Restoration Act of 2000." This legislation will restore the ability of victims of gendermotivated violence to seek justice in federal court, where there is a connection to interstate commerce.

For example, a rape victim could bring a civil suit against her attacker in federal court where the attacker crosses a state line; if he uses a facility or instrumentality of interstate commerce—such as the roads, the telephone, or the Internet; or if he uses a gun, weapon, or drug that has traveled in interstate commerce. In addition, she could bring a case where the intent of the offense is to interfere with her participation in commercial or economic activity.

The bill also authorizes the Attorney General to prevent discrimination in the investigation and prosecution of gender-based crimes. This bill will ensure that all victims have fair and equal access to the courts.

I want to thank the domestic violence and sexual assault communities for their support of this legislation, especially NOW Legal Defense and Education fund, who defended Christy Brzonkala before the Supreme Court, and who has been instrumental in drafting this bill.

I look forward to working with the Majority, the Senate, and the White House to help pass this bill into law and restore the civil remedy for victims of gender-based violence.

TRIBUTE TO LT. COL. RICHARD F. BLANSETT, 174TH FIGHTER WING

HON. JAMES T. WALSH

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Speaker, on October 1, 2000 Lt. Col. Richard F. Blansett is retiring as the comptroller for the 174th Fighter Wing of the New York Air National Guard located at Hancock Field in Syracuse, NY. He assumed the position of comptroller on October 1, 1989. In this capacity, he is responsible for the development and administration of the Wing's $29 million annual budget as well as a variety of military personnel resources.

Lieutenant Colonel Blansett was born on December 25, 1944 in Watertown, NY and graduated from Watertown High School in June of 1962. He holds a bachelor of arts degree from Union College and a master of science degree in Human Resource Management from Chapman University.

Lieutenant Colonel Blansett began his military career as a traditional guardsman with the 174th Fighter Wing, enlisting as an administrative clerk assigned to the Fuels Branch in 1967. Since then, he has served the Wing in its Support Group Orderly Room, Supply Squadron Executive Support Office and Combat Support Squadron. He has served as Squadron Executive Support Officer, Squadron On-the-Job Administrator, Base Chief Career Counselor and Base Utilization Officer, rising in rank to staff sergeant, to second lieutenant and to captain.

In 1981, then Captain Blansett became a full-time member of the Guard as the Wing Logistics Plans Officer. In 1985, he was transferred to the Resources Squadron to serve as budget officer and cost analysis officer. He continued to be a leader in logistical deployments as the air cargo officer—a heavy additional duty that he maintains to date.

In 1989, then Major Blansett was assigned to his current position as comptroller. During Operation Desert Shield and Desert Storm in 1990–91, when the 174th Fighter Wing was deployed to the Persian Gulf, Major Blansett served as the acting Deputy Commander for Resources.

On September 19, 1993 Major Blansett was promoted to lieutenant colonel. Throughout his tenure in this position, Lieutenant Colonel Blansett implemented and managed a variety of programs at base level and has been instrumental in managing the evolution of financial management processes from paper to electronic systems. In his 11 years in this position, Lieutenant Colonel Blansett has maximized unit resources and played a crucial role in the improvement of Hancock Field's infrastructure.

He has served as chairman of the Comptroller Advisory Board for the entire Air National Guard and, most recently, has advised and assisted the 174th in its Aerospace Expeditionary Force Deployment Operation. He also has played a key role in shaping the first home-station Operational Readiness Inspection conducted by Air Combat Command.

During his time in service Lieutenant Colonel Blansett has received numerous medals and commendations. More importantly, he has earned the respect and admiration of the men and women who serve with him.

In addition to his work duties, Lieutenant Colonel Blansett has been actively involved in the Boy Scout organization, serving as both a scoutmaster and Explorer advisor. Lieutenant Colonel Blansett and his wife, Julie, have a son, Christoper, daughter-in-law, Jen, and daughter Kimberly, all of whom reside in the Syracuse area.

I take this opportunity to applaud and commend Lieutenant Colonel Blansett for his 30-plus years of service to the 174th Fighter Wing and wish him well as he conquers new challenges in retirement. We are all better off for his years of dedication and sacrifice.

25TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE HELSINKI FINAL ACT

HON, CHRISTOPHER H. SMITH

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, next Tuesday marks the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Helsinki Final Act, which organized what has become known as the Helsinki or OSCE process, a critical venue in which the United States has sought to advance human rights, democracy and the rule of law. With its language on human rights, the Helsinki Final Act granted human rights of a fundamental principle in regulating international relations. The Final Act's emphasis on respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms is rooted in the recognition that the declaration of such rights affirms the inherent dignity of men and women and are not privileges bestowed at the whim of the state. The commitments are worth reading again. Among the many pages, allow me to quote from several of the documents:

In the Helsinki Final Act, the participating States commit to "respect human rights and fundamental freedoms, including the freedom of thought, conscience, religion or belief, for all without distinction as to race, sex, language or religion."

In the 1990 Charter of Paris for a New Europe, the participating states declared, "Human rights and fundamental freedoms are the birthright of all human beings, are inalienable and are guaranteed by law. Their protection and promotion is the first responsibility of government."

In the 1991 Document of the Moscow Meeting of the Conference on the Human Dimension of the CSCE, the participating States "categorically and irrevocably declare[d] that the commitments undertaken in the field of the human dimension of the CSCE are matters of direct and legitimate concern to all participating States and do not belong exclusively to the internal affairs of the States concerned."

In the 1990 Charter of Paris for a New Europe, the participating States committed themselves "to build, consolidate and strengthen democracy as the only system of government of our nations."

The 1999 Istanbul Charter for European Security and Istanbul Summit Declaration notes the particular challenges of ending violence against women and children as well as sexual exploitation and all forms of trafficking in human beings, strengthening efforts to combat corruption, eradicating torture, reinforcing efforts to end discrimination against Roma and Sinti, and promoting democracy and respect for human rights in Serbia.

Equally important, the standards of Helsinki. which served as a valuable lever in pressing human rights issues also provided encouragement and sustenance to courageous individuals who dared to challenge repressive communist regimes. Many of these brave men and women-members of the Helsinki Monitoring and affiliated Groups in Russia, Ukraine, Lithuania, Georgia, Armenia, and similar groups in Poland and Czechoslovakia and elsewhere, Soviet Jewish emigration activists, members of repressed Christian denominations and others-paid a high price in the loss of personal freedom and, in some instances, their lives, for their active support of principles enshrined in the Helsinki Final Act.

Pressure by governments through the Helsinki process at various Helsinki fora, thoroughly reviewing compliance with Helsinki commitments and raising issues with Helsinki signatory governments which violated their freely undertaken human rights commitments, helped make it possible for the people of Central and Eastern Europe and the former Soviet Union to regain their freedom and independence.

With the dissolution of the Soviet Union and Yugoslavia, the OSCE region has changed dramatically. In many of the States, we have witnesses widespread and significant transformations and a consolidation of the core OSCE values of democracy, human rights and the rule of law. Unfortunately, in others, there has been little if any progress, and in some, armed conflicts have resulted in hundreds of thousands having been killed and in the grotesque violation of human rights.

Mr. Speaker, this milestone anniversary presents the President an appropriate opportunity to issue a proclamation in recognition of the obligations we and the other OSCE States have committed to uphold. It is important to keep in mind that all of the agreements of the Helsinki process have been adopted by consensus and consequently, each participating State is equally bound by each document. In addition to committing ourselves of the faithful implementation of the OSCE principles, the President should encourage other OSCE signatories as all of us have recognized that respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms, democratic principles, economic liberty, and the implementation of related commitments continue to be vital elements in promoting a new era of democracy and genuine security and cooperation in the OSCE region. Each participating State of the OSCE bears primary responsibility for raising violations of the Helsinki Final Act and the other OSCE documents.

In the twenty-five years since this historic process was initiated in Helsinki, there have been many successes, but the task is far from complete. Mr. Speaker, we can look at OSCE's past with pride and its future with hope, keeping in mind President Ford's concluding comments at the signing of the Helsinki Final Act: "History will judge this conference not by what we say here today, but by what we do tomorrow—not by the promises we make, but by the promises we keep."

TRIBUTE TO ANNE WILLIS, LONGTIME CHICAGO EDUCATOR

HON. WILLIAM O. LIPINSKI

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. LIPINSKI. Mr. Speaker, today I pay tribute to a longtime educator who is retiring from the Chicago Public School system (CPS) this year. After 36 years of tremendous service for the Chicago Board of Education (CBE), Anne Willis will be leaving Byrne Elementary School in Southwest Chicago. This teacher is a perfect example of the continuously hardworking, but often-unrecognized efforts of educators in the Third Congressional District of Illinois. It gives me great pride to share with you her story and accomplishments.

Anne Willis brought to the Chicago public schools an extensive advanced education. In 1957, Anne earned a bachelors of arts from St. Xavier University in Chicago. Ten years later, she earned a masters of education from Chicago State. In 1978, Mrs. Willis completed another masters degree from Rush University's College of Nursing.

Besides years of tremendous medical care for Chicago students, Anne was active in important community organizations. For example, she served as a school nurses delegate to the Chicago Teacher's Union (CTU), and participated in the Courtesy Classroom of the Region 4 Nurses Club.

With her duly earned free time, Anne plans to join the "Walkers of the USA" and walk across the Earth's most beautiful locations. When commenting on her retirement, Anne stated admirably: "The most important people for me are the children I serve, my family and friends."

Again, I was pleased to learn of the retirement and wonderfully productive life of Anne Willis. In a time when she is receiving numerous recognition and praise, I gladly echo my own thanks from the Halls of the U.S. Congress. This educator represents the day-to-day hard work and compassion that steer Chicago's youth toward successful and healthy futures. Mr. Speaker, I wish Anne Willis a well-deserved long and happy retirement.

A TRIBUTE TO PITNEY BOWES' COMMITMENT TO DISABLED AMERICANS

HON. JAMES H. MALONEY

OF CONNECTICUT

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. MALONEY of Connecticut. Mr. Speaker, this week marks the 10th anniversary of the Americans with Disabilities Act, which has helped all our fellow Americans to realize their full potential. In this regard, I was pleased to attend a ceremony last month here in the U.S. Capitol Building at which Pitney Bowes, a worldwide leader in messaging technology based in Connecticut, received the Blinded American Veterans Foundation's Corporate Award for their development of the Universal Access Copier.

This revolutionary copier incorporates many leading technologies, including the first-ever use of advanced speech recognition in a copier. This speech recognition software can "learn" any user's voice pattern, including those with speech disabilities, and respond to any language. This enables users to operate every feature of the copier merely by stating simple commands. In addition to voice activation, a touch screen and Braille keyboard allows operators to choose how they prefer to operate the system. The copier also adjusts to different heights allowing people with mobility limitations, including those in wheelchairs, to operate it. The Universal Access Copier assists those with disabilities in enjoying employment opportunities that may not have been previously available to them.

At the ceremony, John Fales, Jr., President of the Blinded American Veterans Foundation (BAVF), presented the award to Michael Critelli, CEO and Chairman of Pitney Bowes. This was the 15th annual George "Buck" Gillispie Congressional awards ceremony held as part of the 2000 Flag Week events. For those who may not know, BAVF was launched in 1985 by three American Veterans who lost their sight during service in Korea and Vietnam-John Fales (USMC), Don Garner (USN) and Dennis Wyant (USN). All of these individuals had achieved successful careers despite their blindness but they realized that many sensory disabled veterans had not had the same opportunities afforded them. Accordingly, they determined to form the foundation and pursue its goals of research, rehabilitation, and re-employment.

I am proud to say the Universal Access Copier was developed at the Pitney Bowes Technology Center, which serves as the company's "innovation incubator," and symbolizes Pitney Bowes' ongoing commitment to excellence in research and technological development. The Technology Center sits on a nineacre site in my congressional district in Shelton, Connecticut and provides a consolidated engineering campus for several hundred engineers, scientists and programmers. The company was previously honored for development of the copier when it was presented the Computerworld Smithsonian Award which recognizes vision, leadership and innovation through outstanding use of information technology. Pitney Bowes' Universal Access Copier was singled out for the help it offers 34 million Americans with disabilities of working age in living and working more independently. The copier has also been inducted into the permanent Smithsonian Institution's Research Collection alongside such famous technological innovations as Samuel Morse's original telegraph.

The copier is only one of many Pitney Bowes' technological innovations. For the last 14 years, the company has ranked in the top 200 companies receiving U.S. patents. Pitney Bowes has received over 3,000 patents worldwide, with an average of more than 100 issued every year.

Mr. Speaker, Pitney Bowes' unwavering commitment to bring innovative technologies to all, including those with disabilities, truly stands out. I commend them on their work and look forward to their continued success.

TRIBUTE TO MARC REISNER

HON. GEORGE MILLER

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to announce the untimely passing of Marc Reisner, a leading environmental author who helped awaken the nation and this body to the urgent need to reform the way we thought about water policy.

Mr. Reisner's 1986 book, "Cadillac Desert," is not only one of the great pieces of environmental literature ever written, but a marvelous study of the political process. It is often said that in the American West, whiskey is for drinking and water is for fighting. Mr. Reisner's account of the historic water battles that have rocked California over the past 100 years puts new meaning into that old truism.

Having spent much of the last quarter century working to bring federal water policy into the modern era, I salute Mr. Reisner for bringing these issues, and the urgency of adopting a new water ethic, before the public in a comprehensive and effective history. We continue the arduous and seemingly never-ending battle to modernize water policy, and much of what we have achieved, including the landmark Central Valley Project Improvement Act of 1992, has profited by the understanding of water policy and water politics promoted by Mr. Reisner and "Cadillac Desert."

I want to express my condolences to his family, including his wife Lawrie Mott who is a scientist with the Natural Resources Defense Council, and their two daughters. While his passing is a devastating loss and unacceptingly premature, I hope they can find comfort in knowing that his work helped change this nation for the better, and will continue to influence policymakers and private citizens for many years to come.

I submit for the RECORD at this point a story from the San Francisco Chronicle on Marc Reisner.

The article follows:

[From the San Francisco Chronicle, July 24, 2000]

MARC REISNER, LECTURER, AUTHOR OF "CADILLAC DESERT"

(By Glen Martin)

Marc Reisner, a writer and conservationist who wrote the seminal text on the West's perennial water wars, died Friday of cancer at his Marin County home. He was 51.

Mr. Reisner wrote and lectured extensively on environmental issues, but he was best known for his 1986 book, "Cadillac Desert," an angry indictment of water depletion in the American West.

The book was a wake-up call about destructive dam-building, pork barrel water subsidies, and the general frittering away of the West's scarce water resources.

It stimulated a campaign for water policy reform that continues to the present.

Mr. Reisner was born in St. Paul, Minn., and was a 1970 graduate of Earlham College in Indiana. From 1972 to 1979, he was a staff writer and communications director for the Natural Resources Defense Council.

He was awarded an Alicia Patterson Journalism Fellowship in 1979, and began the research on water policy that ultimately resulted in "Cadillac Desert."

Mr. Reisner's book was a finalist for the National Book Critics Circle Award in 1986. The book was the basis for a $2.8 million documentary film series, which was first shown on national Public Broadcasting stations in 1997. The film won a Columbia University/Peabody Award.

"Cadillac Desert" was ranked by the Modern Library as 61st among the 100 most notable nonfiction English language works published in the 20th century.

Mr. Reisner was also the author of "Game Wars," a 1991 book that elucidated the career of Dave Hall, a now retired special agent for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service who specialized in busting international poaching rings.

With author Sarah Bates, he co-wrote "Overtapped Oasis" in 1989, an examination of Western water policy. During the course of his career, his elegantly written essays and articles appeared in dozens of magazines and newspapers.

At the time of his death, Mr. Reisner was working on a book about the role natural disasters have played in shaping California history and politics.

In recent years, Mr. Reisner devoted much of his time to promoting solutions to California's environmental problems.

He was a consultant to the Pacific Coast Federation of Fishermen's Associations on removing antiquated dams that were interfering with anadromous fish runs.

He also co-founded the Ricelands Habitat partnership, a coalition of farmers and conservationists that worked to promote environmentally friendly agriculture, improve waterfowl habitat on cropland and minimize the negative impact on fisheries caused by water diversions.

Mr. Reisner was also involved in two private "green" ventures.

He managed the Vidler Water Co., which promoted environmentally benign ground-water storage and water transfer programs as an alternative to dams. And he worked with a group of California rice farmers and engineers to make fiberboard and other products from compressed rice straw.

Recently, Mr. Reisner served as a distinguished visiting professor at the University of California at Davis, lecturing on the interaction of human civilization and the environment.

He was a member of the board of the Natural Heritage Institute, an honorary trustee of the Tuolumne River Preservation Trust, a Rene Dubos Fellow and a recipient of the Bay Institute's Bay Education Award. He also received a special commendation from the American Whitewater Affiliation for his efforts to promote river conservation.

Earlier this year, Mr. Reisner was awarded a Pew Fellowship in marine conservation. He intended to use the funds to restore native salmon habitats in California.

Environmentalists remember Mr. Reisner as someone who was determined to mitigate the environmental problems he covered in his writing his writing.

"Before 'Cadillac Desert,' the general public perception was that dams and water manipulation were an unmitigated good thing," said Michael Sherwood, a staff attorney for the Earth Justice Legal Defense Fund who is involved in litigation on endangered salmon and steelhead runs.

"Marc was instrumental in raising awareness of the damage being done to fish and wildlife," said Sherwood, "and in recent years, he showed ways environmentalists and irrigators could work together to find solutions that both protected natural resources and allowed commercial uses for water. We can be thankful he was here to open our minds on both issues."

Mr. Reisner is survived by his wife, Lawrie Mott, a senior scientist for the Natural Resources Defense Council; and two daughters, Ruthie and Margot, all of Marin County. Memorial services are pending.

SUPPORTING THE OLDER AMERICANS ACT

HON. DAN MILLER

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. MILLER of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I would like to bring your attention to an issue important to the American people, and especially to the people of my district in Florida. The Older Americans Act authorization expired in 1995, and we are on the cusp of reauthorizing this program and improving the services offered to our seniors.

This act provides important programs such as Meals-on-Wheels, in-home services for elderly Americans, and services for residents of long-term care facilities. I have personally helped deliver meals to homebound seniors with the Manatee County Meals on Wheels. I recognize the importance of programs like these to assist our older population, and I will not turn my back on America's seniors.

I continue to support the programs within this act, and believe that this Nation has a responsibility to care for our elderly population. However, last year, I was not supportive of H.R. 782, which would reauthorize the Older Americans Act because the funding did not accurately account for the concentration of seniors in States such as Arizona, California, Texas, and my home State of Florida. For example, under the present formula, Florida is slated to lose $40 million over 5 years. The formula for allocation of funds relies on outdated census figures from 1987. We all know people are moving south. It makes no sense that we are providing services and dollars in the year 2000, based on where seniors lived 13 years ago. We need to focus on how we can best provide support to the elderly population, and that includes accurately assessing the needs of each State. As chairman of the Census Subcommittee. I know we are spending almost $6 billion this year to provide accurate numbers. Why get these numbers if we are not using them?

Although the House version of the Older Americans Act has some flaws, a recent bipartisan agreement in the Senate reformulates the funds allotted to State based upon their senior population in 2000. I believe this is our chance to move forward with legislation and be more responsive to seniors in our country. I urge the House to move toward helping our seniors and to consider and pass the Older Americans Act as agreed upon in the Senate.

RECOGNIZING IMPORTANCE OF CHILDREN IN THE UNITED STATES AND SUPPORTING GOALS AND IDEAS OF NATIONAL YOUTH DAY

SPEECH OF

HON. BILL McCOLLUM

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Tuesday, July 25, 2000

Mr. McCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support H. Con. Res. 375 to recognize an "American Youth Day." This legislation, which I introduced with strong bipartisan support, recognizes the importance of America's youth and supports the ideas and goals of an American Youth Day. The bill encourages such organizations as General Colin Powell's group, America's Promise.

American Youth Day is about recognizing our youth and providing them with the role models and skills they need to be successful. By investing in our nation's most valuable resource—our children—we help create a better future for all of us. H. Con. Res. 375 recognizes and supports a nationwide Youth Day to be observed annually on a Saturday near the beginning of the school year, with the date to be specifically determined by the local community.

The concept of this legislation was inspired by one of my constituents, retired Navy Captain George Marshall Bates, who has advocated the establishment of an American Youth Day since the 1960's. While Captain Bates' proposal is broader and more encompassing in specificity than this Resolution, the ideals and principle objectives are the same and I am very fortunate to have had his assistance in producing this legislation. Captain Bates is a distinguished retired Navy JAG officer, and the youth of this nation are the beneficiaries of his persistence and effective advocacy of this cause.

The resolution acknowledges that today's oppressive influences on youth include violence, drugs, abuse and even stress. Regardless of economic status, ethnic or cultural background, or location, our youth feel the pressures of contemporary society.

The resolution also acknowledges the wonderful efforts of America's Promise—The Alliance for Youth, led by General Colin L. Powell, United States Army (retired). America's Promise is one of the Nation's most comprehensive nonprofit organizations dedicated to building and strengthening the character and competence of youth by mobilizing communities around the nation to fulfill the organization's "Five Promises" for America's young people. American Youth Day seeks to promote local and national activities that fulfill the five promises of America's Promise, which are as follows:

- 1. Ongoing relationships with caring adults;
- 2. Safe places with structured activities during non-school hours;
 - 3. A healthy start and future:
- 4. Marketable skills through effective education: and
- 5. Opportunities to give back through community service.

In order to secure a future for our youth, Americans must spend time, share traditions, and communicate values to children. Often it is even more important to make a special effort to do this during teen years. Many youth live in single parent homes and seldom get the nurturing and guidance of a complete family: for them the time mentors take to spend with them in immensely important. This bill encourages local schools and communities across the nation to highlight our children and share their successes and give them the attention and encouragement so many miss by participating in an American Youth Day. I hope my colleagues will join in me in supporting this important and worthwhile endeavor.

IN HONOR OF DOUGLAS FLATT

HON. RALPH M. HALL

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. HALL of Texas. Mr. Speaker, it is my privilege to rise today to pay tribute to an exceptional citizen of Tyler, Texas. The Texas Section of the American Society of Engineers recently honored Douglas E. Flatt, P.E. with its Service to People Award, a distinguished award that recognizes those who have made significant contributions to their community.

Mr. Flatt has served as both president and director of the East Texas Chapter of the Texas Society of Professional Engineers and Northeast Branch of the Texas Section of the American Society of Civil Engineers. He is a life member of the National Society of Professional Engineers as well as the American Society of Civil Engineers. Additionally, he has served on the Board of Directors for the Texas Section of the ASCE. In 1985, he received TSPE's East Texas Engineer of the Year Award and in 1988 he received ASCE's Professional Services Award.

He has also served as Chairman of the Southern Division of the Association of Independent Scientific, Engineering and Testing Firm as well as President of the Texas Council of Engineering Laboratories in 1982 and 1983. Currently he serves on both the Legislative Committee and the Membership Committee of the Consulting Engineers Council of Texas and is a member of the American Society for Testing and Materials Committee E–50 for Environmental Site Assessments.

Mr. Flatt formed ETTL Engineers and Consultants in 1965 and currently serves as Chairman of the Board. Prior to forming his successful corporation, he was employed by the Texas Department of Transportation, first as senior laboratory engineer and later as senior resident engineer.

Mr. Flatt's recent award, however, is a testament to the time and effort that he has devoted to his community. He has served on the City of Tyler's Airport Advisory Board and the Board of Adjustment of Planning and Zoning. He has been Chair of the Tyler Chamber of Commerce Highway Transportation Committee. President of the Smith County Youth Foundation, Chairman of the Board of the Tyler YMCA, and the advisory board of the East Texas Crisis Center, and on the board of the Texas Society to Prevent Blindness. He is also a member of the Tyler Rotary Club where he is a Paul Harris fellow, and actively serves the First Presbyterian Church of Tyler as deacon, elder and trustee.

Mr. Flatt graduated from Terrell High School in 1949 and earned B.S. Degrees in Agricultural and Civil Engineering from Texas A&M University in 1953 and 1955. He received a Master of Science Degree in 1957 from Texas A&M University following his discharge from active duty as First Lieutenant in the U.S. Army Field Artillery. He maintains close ties with his alma mater, serving as vice-president and board member of the Texas A&M Association of Former Students. He is an endowed Century Club member, member of the 12th Man Foundation as well as the Pillars of A&M. He is also a contributor and participant in A&M's Spencer J. Buchanan Chair in Civil Engineering.

Mr. Speaker, throughout his life, Douglas Flatt has upheld high standards in all that he has done. He has achieved success in his profession—and he has also dedicated much of his life in services to others. I join his wife, Maxine; his son, Darrell, and daughter-in-law, Donna; and his grandchildren, John and Madeline, all of whom are residents of Tyler, in congratulating him on his Service to People Award.

COMMUNITY RENEWAL AND NEW MARKETS ACT OF 2000

SPEECH OF

HON. CHARLES B. RANGEL

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 25, 2000

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I am sorry to say that one very important American community will receive little or no help from this legislation; the American citizens of Puerto Rico. Puerto Rico cannot benefit from this legislation because of its unique tax relationship with the mainland. Along with Mr. CRANE, I am a sponsor of H.R. 2138 to extend job creation incentives for new activities in Puerto Rico. Despite significant efforts at the local level, unemployment in Puerto Rico remains stubbornly high and incomes are not catching up. H.R. 2138 would encourage U.S. companies to preserve or expand current operations in Puerto Rico, rather than taking these U.S. jobs to foreign countries with much lower wage bases and no U.S. labor and environmental protections.

We owe our fellow citizens in Puerto Rico some continuing help toward economic growth and opportunity. I hope we can work together this year to ensure that these opportunities are inclusive, not exclusive, by considering section 30A incentives for the U.S. companies operating in Puerto Rico. We should not leave these 4 million Americans behind.

IN RECOGNITION OF NORMAN PAPPAS, FOUNDER AND PRESIDENT OF THE ENTERPRISE GROUP

HON. JOE KNOLLENBERG

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Mr. Speaker, one of our most revered institutions, the family-owned business, is under assault from the federal estate tax (death tax).

According to the Center for the Study of Taxation, 70 percent of family-owned businesses fail to make it to the second generation and 87 percent don't make it to the third. The death tax is one of the major contributors to this disturbing statistic. To pay this unfair tax, which can reach as high as 55 percent of the value of an estate, many family-owned businesses must be liquidated or sold off entirely after the owner dies.

For several years, a bipartisan coalition in Congress has worked to provide relief from the death tax. In fact, on June 9, 2000, the House of Representatives overwhelmingly passed H.R. 8, The Death Tax Elimination Act. This much-needed bill would strengthen family-owned businesses and encourage savings and investment by repealing the death tax over a ten-year period.

Unfortunately, it appears as though business owners will have to continue waiting for significant relief from the death tax, as President Clinton has indicated that he will veto H.R. 8 if it reaches his desk.

That being said, there are still many steps that business owners can take to minimize the negative impact of the death tax. Norman Pappas, founder and president of The Enterprise Group, a company located in Southfield, MI, has recent written an important book that I enthusiastically recommend to every business owner who want to ensure that his company remains strong and is kept in the family after he dies.

Mr. Pappas' book, "Passing the Bucks— Protecting Your Wealth from One Generation to the Next," reveals the secrets of effective business succession and estate tax planning that can help reduce or even eliminate the risk of losing most of the assets a business owner worked so hard to accumulate.

For the last 30 years, The Enterprise Group and other financial and estate planners have helped business owners protect what is rightfully theirs. For example, Mr. Pappas has assisted over 1,500 businessmen and women to traverse the complicated practice of business succession and estate planning as they wrestle with the federal tax burden. Mr. Pappers' expertise experience in solving the complicated financial problems of family-owned businesses is evident throughout "Passing the Bucks." One of the primary lessons we have learned is that we must eliminate the death tax and I am proud that we have done just that in this House.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today to acknowledge the accomplishments of Mr. Pappas and his colleagues in the practice of estate planning and to commend his efforts to protect family-owned businesses from the onerous provisions of the death tax.

A TRIBUTE TO VIRGINIA L. DORIS

HON. PATRICK J. KENNEDY

OF RHODE ISLAND

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. KENNEDY of Rhode Island. Mr. Speaker, today I would like to bring attention to the work of Virginia L. Doris of Warwick RI. As a Rhode Island historian for over 40 years, Ms. Doris has put great effort into her quest to bring proper honor and recognition to America's "poet and patriot," Francis Scott Key, author of our National Anthem. As we near the 221 year anniversary of the birth of this American legend, I would like to submit this poem by Ms. Doris into the RECORD, so that we might renew the call for an official day honoring Francis Scott Key's contribution to our national heritage.

Francis Scott Key—America's Ultimate Poet and Patriot

Anthem, Mighty Anthem! our voices resound,

Poem by God's blessing, unsceptered, uncrowned

Anthem, Sacred Anthem! our pulses repeat, Warm with life-blood, as long as they beat! Listen! The reverence of his soul imbued doth thrill us still,

In the old familiar places beneath their emerald hill.

Here at this altar our vows we renew, Still in thy cause be loyal and true—

True to thy flag on the field, and the wave, Living to honor it, dying to save!

Wake in our breast the living fires,

The Holy faith warmed our sires,

Thy spirit shed through every heart,

To every arm thy strength impart!

Our lips should fill the air with praises, and pay the debt we owe,

So high above this hymn we raise, the floods of garlands flow.

Harken! The reverence of his soul imbued doth thrill us still.

In the old familiar places beneath their emerald hill.

Anthem, Mighty Anthem! our voices resound.

Poem by God's blessing unsceptered uncrowned!

Anthem, Sacred Anthem! our pulses repeat, Warm with the life-blood, as long as they heat!

HONORING AN AMERICAN HERO

HON. RALPH M. HALL

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. HALL of Texas. Mr. Speaker, it is an honor and a privilege today to remember and pay tribute to a great American and a good friend, Allen Gordon Smith Sr., of Diana, TX, who died on April 21 of this year. Mr. Smith was an American war hero, a prisoner of war, and an outstanding citizen of East Texas. His influence on his community and his friends and family will be felt for many years to come, and his dignity shall not be diminished by time.

In October 1939, Mr. Smith voluntarily joined the U.S. Army Air Corps at Barksdale Air Force Base in Louisiana—a decision that would change his life. He became a member of the 27th Bomb Group of the 16th Squadron. The group was sent to the Philippines, landing in November 1941. Mr. Smith was captured by the Japanese on April 9, 1942, at the fall of Bataan. He survived the infamous Bataan Death March and spent 42 months in Japanese prisoner of war camps. No words could adequately tell his story about this experience—so suffice it to say that he emerged from the war as a true American hero and a strong advocate for veterans.

Mr. Smith was a leader and a life-time member of the American Ex-Prisoners of War as well as the Disabled American Veterans. He served two terms as national director of the American Ex-Prisoners of War and one term as commander of the Department of Texas Ex-Prisoners of War. He also was a Veterans Administration Service officer, in which capacity he worked on behalf of fellow veterans. His distinguished service in defense of our Nation and in support of veterans will be long remembered.

Following his service in the war, Mr. Smith returned to Longview and married Helen Florence Jones on November 22, 1946. He attended the University of Houston. In 1956, Mr. and Mrs. Smith moved to Diana, where they devoted much of their time working with the youth in their community. They served on a governor-appointed committee to work with youth in Upshur, Camp, and Wood Counties, and Mr. Smith served on the board of directors for Baseball for Boys in East Texas. Mr. Smith also worked with youth through the Cub Scouts and the 4–H Club.

After 24 years of service, Mr. Smith retired from Lone Star Steel. He was a member of the Judson Road Church of Christ in Longview.

Mr. Smith is survived by his wife, Helen; his son and daughter-in-law, Allen Jr. and Elayne Smith; his daughter and son-in-law; Daneila Smith Woods and John Woods; four grand-daughters and granddsons-in-law; one grandson and granddaughter-in-law; two great-granddaughters; four step-great-grandchildren; a sister and brother-in-law, Julia and Robert Crowder; a brother and sister-in-law, Alvin and Patsy Smith; and a number of other relatives and friends.

Mr. Speaker, Allen Gordon Smith was a man of dignity and honor who lived a distinguished life in service to his country, his community, and to his family and fellow citizens. He was a wonderful role model to many children in East Texas, and his influence will be felt for generations to come. Mr. Speaker, as we adjourn today, I ask my colleagues to join me in remembering, honoring, and paying our last respects to this outstanding American—Allen Gordon Smith, Sr.

RECOGNITION OF THE FIRST AFRI-CAN BAPTIST CHURCH OF CO-LUMBUS' 160TH ANNIVERSARY

HON. MAC COLLINS

OF GEORGIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, 170 years ago, while the manacles of slavery were still fastened on African Americans, twelve Christians—11 whites and a slave named Joseph—founded Columbus' first church, the Ephesus Baptist Church, which was renamed the First Baptist Church. This was in 1830, one year after Columbus, Georgia was granted its charter. Blacks and whites, slaves and free, worshiped God under one roof.

In 1840, after construction of a new building, the First Baptist Church gave the old sanctuary to the mixed black and white congregation, who reorganized as the African Baptist Church. Today, one hundred and sixty years later, after war, reconstruction, oppression, economic depression, and hardships, the First African Baptist Church is still spreading the gospel in Columbus.

This church has a long history of service to its community. Up to the advent of the Civil War, it had an ethnically diverse congregation. After the war, the church gave birth to three different churches: the Metropolitan Baptist Church in 1890, the Friendship Baptist Church in 1906, and the Mt. Tabor Baptist Church in 1908. The church sanctuary has changed four times. Today's main sanctuary was erected in 1915, when the church adopted its present name, the First African Baptist Church.

The congregation of the First African Baptist Church has weathered many storms, but the worst may have been the Great Depression. In 1936, creditors foreclosed on the church. But all was not lost, because four trustees stood in the gap and pledged their personal property to pay the debts. These men were W.A. Talley, J.J. Senior, J.H. Williams, and G.F. Rivers. The congregation stood by these four men of faith and worked to raise the funds to retire the debt.

Mr. Speaker, the First African Baptist Church congregation has been a force for good in Columbus.

Under the leadership of the Rev. Dr. Robert M. Dickerson Jr., it continues to play a key role in the city. Rev. Dickerson began the "Gathering of the Children," and restructured the Youth Program. He reorganized the Christian Education ministry. He started the Tuesday noon Bible Study time, the Early Sunday morning worship services, and the Riverfront Easter Sunrise Service. He ordained 11 new deacons and established the Capital Improvement Fund for mid-range and long-range improvements. He also added three ministers to the Ministerial Staff. Additionally, Dr. Dickerson instituted the "Pastor's Unsung Hero" Award presented each November.

He is continuing his work to add new programs to bring the word and comfort of God to the people of Columbus.

Mr. Speaker, I want to commend the First African Baptist Church of Columbus, its congregation and its leaders. They have been doing a great work in the city for 160 years, and I trust that, Lord willing, they will be spreading the Gospel a hundred years hence.

PARSONS FAMILY FIFTIETH REUNION

HON. WAYNE T. GILCHREST

OF MARYLAND

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. GILCHREST. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize and celebrate the fiftieth reunion of the Thomas Edward Parsons family. The Parsons family is gathering in Oxford, Talbot County, Maryland, on July 29th, to celebrate their reunion at the home of Elaine Valliant Cox. The Parsons family reunion was first held in Royal Oak, Talbot County, Maryland, at the home of William Harris Valliant and instituted to preserve family relationships as their family began to spread beyond Talbot County. The Parsons' family history has been documented in Talbot County, Maryland back to the early nineteenth century. The first reunion was advertised in a local newspaper asking descendants of Thomas and Susan Benson Parsons to gather on August 20, 1951. One hundred eleven members of the Parsons family gathered on the Valliant lawn coming from Idaho, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Delaware, West Virginia, Maryland and Washington, DC. The oldest family member in attendance was Mrs. Margaret Parsons of Oxford, Maryland, wife of Edward Thomas Parsons. She was ninety years

This year the eldest family member in attendance is Mrs. Louise Valliant Willis of Oxford, Maryland, She is ninety-nine years of age and is the daughter of Susan Parsons Valliant, the youngest member of the original twelve Parsons siblings. The youngest member will be Natalie Chance Schmidt of Easton, Maryland. About sixty Parsons family members are expected to attend from all over the country. In recent years, family members have attended the Eastern Shore reunion from as far away as Seattle, Washington.

The current generation of Parsons family members represents all walks of life from many parts of the country and from around the Eastern Shore of Maryland. The Parsons family reunion officers are Jan Valliant O'Neal of Kensington, Maryland, Marguerite Schimpff Webster of Washington, District of Columbia, Cathy Newton Schmidt of Easton, Maryland, and Robert Thomas Valliant, Jr., of Oxford, Maryland.

Mr. Speaker, in conclusion, I want to congratulate the Parsons family for celebrating their fiftieth family reunion and honoring the significance of family in the building of our great nation.

HONORING KEVIN BRACKEN

HON. WILLIAM O. LIPINSKI

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. LIPINSKI. Mr. Speaker, today I honor Kevin Bracken, a native of Chicago, IL. Kevin, through many amazing feats of athletic prowess, has earned himself a place on the U.S. Olympic Greco-Roman wrestling team. He is the only member of the Greco-Roman team from Illinois, which consists entirely of first-year Olympians. This is truly a remarkable accomplishment, and I know he will represent his country with great pride, strength, and skill.

Kevin grew up on the south side of Chicago, placing third in the 1990 State Championships for St. Laurence High School. He then attended Illinois State University, where he was a three-time qualifier for the NCAA and received the 1994 Male Athlete of the Year award. Since those early achievements in his life, he has only gone forward, constantly surpassing expectations of all those around him, no matter how high set.

His friends, family, and former teammates must be, and should be proud to witness what he has accomplished, and what he will certainly continue to accomplish in the future. Kevin is a credit to all those who have held faith in him, and through perseverance and extraordinary effort, he has earned his place among the elite of his profession.

Mr. Speaker, I offer my congratulations to Kevin Bracken, and wish him the best of luck in his continuing career. I am sure he will continue to make them proud.

RECOGNIZING BRADENTON, FL, AS A GREAT PLACE TO LIVE

HON. DAN MILLER

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. MILLER of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I rise this morning to congratulate a city in my congressional district, Bradenton, FL. Bradenton has been recognized in the July 2000 issue of Money magazine as one of the best places to retire. Money quotes Bradenton as, "a perfect Florida beach town for sun and sailing." I agree and believe it is much more than that.

With 238 sunny days a year it is no surprise to me that this area made headlines. The coastal community with a population under 50,000 is located just south of Tampa Bay. Bradenton's 27 miles of beautiful, white and beaches provide the perfect environment for sailing, skiing, fishing and various outdoor activities.

The criteria used by Money to evaluate nearly 500 communities included population, opportunities for educational advancement, outdoor activities, cultural amenities, quality of medical care, and accessible transportation. Factors that also influenced the ratings were cost of living, taxes, and home prices. Today's seniors live an active lifestyle, so each community was also evaluated on the various activities in the area.

Bradenton offers an array of cultural attractions including the Golden Apple Dinner Theater and the Florida West Coast Symphony. The South Florida Museum and Bishop Planetarium is a unique complex that features cultural and historical exhibits and laser light shows. The ballet, the opera, art galleries, historical parks, and museums are all within the city limits. Retirees can stay busy at the various outdoor festivals throughout the year.

Bradenton is home to the Pittsburgh Pirates spring training complex and is within an hour's drive to three professional sports teams. Retirees can enjoy the areas 24 nationally recognized golf courses, including Legacy Golf Course designed by Arnold Palmer.

The warm weather and casual atmosphere truly make Bradenton a wonderful retirement community. I am honored that Bradenton received such outstanding recognition.

It is not just the weather, infrastructure, healthcare system, and recreation opportunities that make Bradenton a nationally recognized place to retire; it is the great people who live there. The people of Bradenton are truly second to none and make everyone feel welcome. I know, I moved there over 40 years ago and am proud it to call it my home. Money magazine has further shown the country just how great my hometown is.

IN RECOGNITION OF DONALD VICKERS

HON. RALPH M. HALL

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. HALL of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor and pay tribute to a fine American and great Texan, Mr. Donald Vickers of Blossom, TX.

In 1942, at the age of 16, Donald Vickers felt the need to fight for his country during World War II. He left his home in Blossom and joined the Army, and his service to his country lasted 31 years and 7 months, during which time he fought in World War II, Korea, the Cuban conflict, and Vietnam.

This fine gentleman, who is revered by friends and family and lovingly called "Papa Donald", received his early training at Camp Shelby, MS, and soon after was sent to fight in North Africa. Later he trained in England and was a part of the fateful landing on D-Day, during the Normandy Invasion. He served in the European theater operation from 1943 to 1945, being assigned to a Tank Destrover Battalion. In 1946 he re-enlisted and later served in Korea as an advisor to the 59th Republic of Korea Army Tank Company. During the Cuban conflict he was deployed off Cuba in the LST's, which were ready to land both men and equipment. His first tour in Vietnam from December 1965 to December 1966 was with the 25th Infantry Division, 69th Armor Battalion. After serving stateside in 1967, he was assigned to serve with the Military Advisors Corp in Vietnam from December 1968 to December 1969. His other tours of duty included Germany and Hawaii. Stateside, he served in Mississippi, Kansas, Georgia, California, New Jersey, New Mexico, and later, back home in Texas, before he retired from the service in August 1974.

Donald Vickers, now Sergeant Vickers, has been awarded numerous decorations during his many years of service. These include the Combat Infantry Badge, Purple Heart with 2 Clusters, Bronze Stars with V device and 2 Clusters, ARCOM with 3 Clusters, Good Conduct Medal with Silver Bar and 1 Leaf, Vietnam Service Medal with 1 Silver and 3 Bronze Service Stars, WWII Victory Medal, European and Middle Eastern Campaign Medal, National Defense Service Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster and Korean Service Medal. In addition, he has received written commendations from his commanding officers which reflect their recognition of his courage, his patriotism, leadership and dedication to his country, his men, and the Army.

Mr. Vickers has been married for many years to Mary Jo Vickers. They have 5 children, 10 grandchildren and 4 great-grandchildren. It was one of their granddaughters, Mrs. Cassidy Fuess, of Denton, TX, who in her devotion to her grandfather and desire to share his history with others, contacted me to tell his story. My thanks to Cassidy, her grandfather, and their family for their devotion to those values that Americans hold dear—love of their country and love for their family. I am proud that they are from my district, and I appreciate the opportunity to recognize Sgt. Donald Vickers and his family today.

THE CHILD PROTECTION/ALCOHOL AND DRUG PARTNERSHIP ACT

HON. CHARLES B. RANGEL

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, the National Center on Addiction and Substance Abuse (CASA) at Columbia University released a report last vear which found that alcohol and drug abuse cause or exacerbate 7 out of every 10 cases of child abuse or neglect. Regrettably, child welfare workers and judges are not always sufficiently trained in how to detect and cope with substance abuse problems. And of even greater concern, when accurate assessments are made, there is often a lack of available treatment. In fact, the Department of Health and Human Services reports that 63 percent of all mothers with drug problems do not receive any substance abuse treatment within a year.

To combat this threat to child safety and family stability, I am introducing the Child Protection/Alcohol and Drug Partnership Act, which would improve the prevention, screening, and treatment of substance abuse for parents with children in the child welfare system. The bill would provide $1.9 billion over the next five years to States that develop cooperative arrangements between their substance abuse and child abuse agencies to provide services to the parents of at-risk children. Bipartisan companion legislation has been introduced by Senators SNOWE, ROCKEFELLER, DEWINE, and DODD.

Under the bill, the funding would be disbursed to States based on the number of children in the State. To receive their allotment under the program, States would be required to spend a match starting at 15% in 2001, rising to 25% in 2005. In addition, they would be required to provide a detailed analysis of their current efforts to address substance abuse issues for families in the child welfare system and specify the additional steps they intend to pursue with the new funding (supplanting of existing funds would be prohibited). Funding could be used for a variety of specific activities, including: providing preventive and early intervention services for children of parents with alcohol and drug problems; expanding the availability of substance abuse treatment, including residential treatment, for parents involved with the child welfare system; and improving the screening and assessment of substance abuse problems for families in the child welfare system.

I urge my colleagues to join me in sponsoring this proposal, which is strongly supported by the Children's Defense Fund, the Child Welfare League of America, the National Association of State Alcohol and Drug Abuse Directors, and the American Public Human Services Association.

DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION CAN REDUCE ACCIDENTS

HON. DIANA DeGETTE

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Ms. DEGETTE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to call attention to one of the leading causes of injury and death to small children—backing vehicles. Most Americans probably do not give much thought to backing out of their driveway, or a parking space at the local supermarket. Yet reversing the car presents a danger to our children, as well as to the disabled and elderly, that can no longer be ignored.

Children under the age of two are more likely to suffer non-traffic-related injuries or fatalities in driveways, parking lots, or sidewalks than any other age group. Moreover, over half of all pedestrian injuries to children in this age group occurs when a vehicle is backing up. Toddlers are especially vulnerable because they are exposed to traffic threats that exceed their cognitive, developmental and sensory abilities. Children have difficulty judging speed, spatial relationships and distance. The risk to disabled individuals and the elderly must also be considered, as they can be unable to move out of the way of a backing vehicle. The risk is augmented as cars get bigger and taller, increasing a driver's "blind spot" behind the car, making the driver unaware of what my lie be-

Unfortunately, families in my home state of Colorado are already painfully aware of the danger posed by backing vehicles. In Greeley, Colorado, a grandfather accidentally backed over his 18-month-old grandson with a Sports Utility Vehicle (SUV), killing the child last December. A few months later, tragedy struck a couple in Denver when an elderly man on an electric scooter was fatally injured when his wife accidentally backed their minivan into him in the driveway of their home.

At this time, there are no concrete studies to show the dangers of backing vehicles. I ask the Department of Transportation to conduct a study to determine the number of fatalities, injuries and property damage caused by slow-speed backing vehicle accidents. I urge my colleagues to support such a study.

HONORING DONALD WEBER

HON. ANTHONY D. WEINER

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. WEINER. Mr. Speaker, today I invite my colleagues to pay tribute to Donald Weber on the occasion of his retirement as Superintendent of Community School District 21.

Donald Weber has long been known for his commitment to the children of Community

School District 21 and to providing them with the finest educational opportunities that public education can provide. Donald Weber is truly representative of the best that our community has to offer.

As Superintendent of Community School District 21 for the last seventeen years, Donald Weber developed numerous special programs including: Mark Twain Intermediate School for the Gifted and Talented, Project ADAPT (a model program that is an alternative to suspension), a strong parent involvement program as evidence by the activities of the District Parents' Workshop, the Brooklyn Secondary School, a Studio model inclusionary middle/high school and The Bay Academy For the Arts and Sciences, a magnet school for children interested in the sciences.

Under the dedicated leadership of Donald Weber, standardized reading and math scores of District 21's students continue to rank among the highest in New York City and the number of students achieving at or above grade level continues to increase.

In recognition of his stature as a dynamic educator and for his efforts on behalf of the students of Community School District 21, Donald Weber has received numerous awards including being named as the New York State Superintendent of the Year 1999–2000.

Donald Weber is a lifetime resident of Community School District 21 and is a product of its schools. A graduate of Public School 177, Donald Weber has routinely demonstrated his commitment to community service and to enhancing the quality of life for all New York City residents. He is former member of Community Planning Board 13 and is a founding member of the Shorefront Friends For Hospice, Inc.

Donald Weber has long been known as an innovator and beacon of good will to all those with whom he has come into contact. Through his dedicated efforts, he has helped to improve my constituents' quality of life. In recognition of his many accomplishments on behalf of my constituents and their children, I offer my congratulations to Donald Weber on the occasion of his retirement as Superintendent of Community School District 21.

SUPPORTING REAUTHORIZATION OF VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN ACT PROGRAMS

HON. ANNE M. NORTHUP

OF KENTUCKY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mrs. NORTHUP. Mr. Speaker, I rise to pay tribute to the Violence Against Women Act and to encourage its reauthorization by Congress and the President.

As you know, legislation proposing a federal response to the problem of violence against women was first introduced in 1990, although violence against my gender has been recognized as a serious social problem since the late 1970's. Previous enactment of Violence Against Women Act (VAWA) measures have resulted in grant programs and new penalties aimed at increasing awareness and reducing the occurrence of crimes against women. Reauthorization of VAWA ensures that our protection of women and perseverance in this area does not lapse, and provides support for the next five years to the law enforcement, hotlines, shelters and services, and community initiatives that assist our cities and localities in dealing with these types of crimes.

Through this program, we have been able to better educate the American public how to respond to crimes against women. This funding has allowed us to bring bring domestic violence out of the shadows and into the forefront. For example, in my district of Louisville, since VAWA money has become available our area has become a model for other jurisdictions because of its multi-disciplinary approach to domestic violence. Agencies and organizations, previously struggling to cooperate with each other, now are working together.

As a community we have received approximately $5.5 million in VAWA money. Our police are better trained and educated concerning the cycle of domestic violence. Victim advocates now work side by side with the police to provide a better response to victims of domestic violence. More evidence is being collected than ever before, and more victims are taking the brave step of coming forward and more convictions are stopping the cycle of abuse.

Violence against women is not solely a problem for women. Every case that is left unaddressed has the potential to create more violence, to fuel a downward spiral of mental and physical abuse and to destroy more families. I believe the initiatives begun in 1990 go a long way in addressing the need for a tougher stance in this area. We must continue our commitment to increasing personal safety for everyone, and focus our efforts on programs that work to educate the public and prevent future crimes. We must work to limit the devastating consequences that occur to our women, our families and society as a whole.

I encourage Congress to again support the VAWA programs which are so vital to combatting the occurence of domestic abuse, before authorization expires on September 30, 2000.

DR. FRANK LEGGETT—FAMED BASSFIELD DOCTOR RETIRES

HON. RONNIE SHOWS

OF MISSISSIPPI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. SHOWS. Mr. Speaker, I stand before you, my colleagues and the American people to tell you about an American treasure—Dr. Frank Leggett of Bassfield. Dr. Leggett has been a judge, mayor, coroner, alderman, football team physician, church deacon, and hospital chief of staff. In his spare time, Dr. Leggett delivered 300 precious lives to the community of Bassfield and our part of Mississippi. He brought lives into this world, then he nurtured them, served them and took care of them. Dr. Leggett gave more than he received. Our home, my home, Bassfield, is forever a better place because of the contributions of Dr. Frank Leggett.

Dr. Leggett was born in Brookhaven, MS, back in 1926. His early life was marked by our Nation's Great Depression and our greatest war—World War II. Dr. Leggett is part of the greatest generation who not only endured, but survived and built and gave. He and his generation gave us the greatest nation on the planet. He is a graduate of Ole Miss and Baylor. He worked in Meridian and then came to Bassfield in 1956.

He says he retired on June 30 of this year. But, I have to say, after 40 years on the Bassfield Board of Alderman, and Medical Staff President for 25 years at Jefferson Davis County Hospital (now Prentiss Regional Hospital) I don't think we will really allow this retirement to happen. He will still be with us. Dr. Leggett will be with us caring and giving and sharing like he always has. Dr. Leggett will be at church and across our community serving us as always.

Dr. Leggett loves to travel. He has seen most of our world. But he always made it back home to Bassfield where he belonged and where we needed him. I am indeed honored to stand before the American people and say thank you to Dr. Frank Leggett.

STRICT CRIMINAL LIABILITY REFORM FOR OIL SPILL INCIDENTS

HON. DAVID VITTER

OF LOUISIANA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. VITTER. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased today with Congressmen COBLE and CLEMENT to introduce legislation to eliminate the application of strict criminal liability for maritime transportation-related oil spills. Contrary to the objectives of the Oil Pollution Act of 1990, commonly referred to as OPA90, strict criminal liability serves to undermine the safe and reliable maritime transportation of oil products, and prevents timely, effective and cooperative cleanup operations in the diminishing number of situations when an oil spill occurs.

Through comprehensive congressional action just a decade ago that led to the enactment and implementation of OPA90. the United States has successfully reduced the number of oil spills in the maritime environment and has established a cooperative public/private partnership to respond effectively to the diminishing number of situations when an oil spill occurs. The Congress, though the enactment of OPA90, carefully balanced the imposition of stronger criminal and civil penalties with the need to promote enhanced cooperation in spill prevention and response efforts. In so doing, the Congress clearly enumerated the circumstances where stringent criminal penalties could be imposed in maritime oil spill incidents.

But this carefully crafted approach is being undermined in practice. Antiquated, unrelated "strict liability" statutes that do not require any showing of "knowledge" or "intent"-specifically-the Migratory Bird Treaty and the Refuse Act—are increasingly utilized as a basis for criminal investigation and prosecution for oil spill incidents. As stated in a U.S. Coast Guard directive, a company and employees, in the event of an oil spill, "could be convicted and sentenced to a criminal fine even where [they] took all reasonable precautions to avoid the discharge". Such turn-of-the-century statutes as the Migratory Bird Treaty Act and Refuse Act, in effect, have turned every oil spill into a potential crime scene without regard to fault or intent, and thus have undermined the cooperation and responsiveness that Congress sought to foster when it enacted OPA90.

Furthermore, strict criminal liability forces responsible members of the marine transportation industry to face and extreme dilemma in the event of an oil spill-provide less than full cooperation and response as criminal defense attorneys will certainly direct, or cooperative full despite the risk of criminal prosecution that would result from any additional actions or statements made during the course of the spill response. The only method available to companies and their employees to avoid the risk of criminal lability completely is to get out of the Marine oil transport business altogether.

Mr. Speaker, in May 1998, the House Coast Guard and Maritime Transportation Subcommittee conducted oversight hearing on criminal lability for oil pollution. The Coast Guard, the primary federal maritime agency tasked with the implementation and enforcement of OPA90, testified at that hearing that it does not rely on strict criminal liability statutes in assessing culpability for oil split incidents. With the support of other organizations, including the Chamber of Shipping of America, INTERTANKO, the Transportation Institute, and the Water Quality Insurance Syndicate (WQIS), American Waterways Operators (AWO) and two tank vessel captains testified as to the adverse impact that strict criminal liability has on the oil spill prevention and response objectives of OPA90. Notably, one tank vessel captain observed that "strict criminal liability does not make [him] do [his] job better; it only produces counterproductive stress". He continued by stating the following: "Because of the current [criminal lability" situation I cannot and will not encourage my children to follow in my footsteps. Nor can I encourage anyone else to enter the marine petroleum transportation business. Yet the industry needs good people. Strict criminal liability is a tremendous deterrent to anyone considering entering the industry at this time."

Similarly, the other tank vessel captain testified that responsible vessel owners and operators do everything humanly possible to avoid accidents, but that "the sea being a place of infinite peril, if accidents occur, despite human precautions, we must use all of the marines' skills to contain damage and to get the oil out of the water". He continued by stating that the "increased emphasis on applying criminal sanctions to incidents where oil gets into the water, regardless of whether the spill is caused by reckless or grossly negligent human actions, will undermine our ability to respond successfully in the case of the spill." The captain further stated that the "masters, officers and crew of tank vessels should be the best in the business", but that "if they are driven from this area by criminal enforcement policies, we will end up with mediocrity where we should have excellence." I concur with these observations. Strict criminal liability does not improve the marine transportation industry's ability to attract or retain experienced vessel masters and crews, and does not further the oil spill prevention and response goals of OPA90.

Mr. Speaker, again in March 1999, the House Coast Guard and Marine Transportation Subcommittee and the House Water Resources and Environment Subcommittee conducted an oversight hearing to review the implementation of OPA90 on the 10th anniversary of the EXXON VALDEZ oil spill in Alaska. Notably, the issue of criminal liability in oil spill incidents are raised several times during the hearing where AWO, the American Petroleum Institute (API), INTERTANKO, and the Chamber of Shipping of America all stated that the threat of strict criminal liability of oil pollution incidents requires immediate reform and that the issue is their top legislative priority.

The Coast Guard recently confirmed that its "criminal prosecution of environmental crimes is reserved for only the most egregious cases, where evidence of willful misconduct, culpable negligence, failure to report a spill, or attempts to falsify records, is considered with significant harm to the environment or the thread of such harm." However, despite the fact that the "Coast Guard has never a case based on strict liability violations", other agencies, including the U.S. Department of Justice, have prosecuted at least four vessel pollution cases since the enactment of OPA90 using strict criminal liability statutes. The availability and use of such statutes continues to undermine cooperative and effective oil spill prevention and response efforts.

Mr. Speaker, the legislation we are introducing today will not change the tough criminal sanctions, that were imposed in OPA90. Rather, the legislation will reform the preeminent role of OPA90 as the statute which provides the exclusive criminal penalties for oil spills. In so doing, it will eliminate the unjustified use of strict liability statutes that undermine the very objectives which OPA90 sought to achieve, namely to enhance the prevention of and response to oil spills.

RECOGNIZING AN EAST TEXAS STUDENT

HON. RALPH M. HALL

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. HALL of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in recognition of Taylor Garrett of Van. TX, for his research efforts in Madrid, Spain, last summer that formed the basis for his Honors thesis during his senior year at Southwestern University in Texas. He and his professor, Dr. Daniel Castro, spent 6 weeks at the Archivo Historico Nacional de Madrid researching 16th to 19th century documents dealing with the Spanish Inquisition. To be chosen for this research opportunity was a great honor, and Taylor was chosen due to his proficiency in the Spanish language and his strong interest in the history of this period.

Once in Madrid, these two researchers catalogued materials from archives in an effort to discover the role of women and other "voiceless" constituencies during the colonial Inquisition. For 6 weeks Taylor's main role was to translate paleography—a symbolbased language-into English. Southwestern University supports collaborative research between students and faculty, and I am proud that this young Texan from my district was selected to participate in this important project.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to have the opportunity to recognize the achievements of Taylor Garrett and to commend him for his enthusiasm for learning, his willingness to work hard, and his commitment to high academic standards—qualities that are crucial to our Nation's continued leadership in research and discovery efforts in all fields.

THE FERES DOCTRINE

HON. PAUL E. KANJORSKI

OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. KANJORSKI. Mr. Speaker, I rise to seek recognition to introduce a bill that will overturn what has come to be known as the "Feres doctrine." In introducing this legislation I hope to rectify a grave injustice that has been perpetuated upon our servicemen and women and pay tribute to a truly inspirational young woman, Kerryn O'Neill. Kerry O'Neill grew up in Kingston, Pennsylvania in my Congressional District, and I had the pleasure of nominating her for admission to the United States Naval Academy.

On December 1, 1993, Kerry O'Neill, a "graduate with the distinction" of the United States Naval Academy in the top ten percent of her class, was brutally murdered by her former fiance, Ensign George Smith, while sitting in her on-base apartment watching a movie with a friend, who was also killed. Ensign Smith, who was to have commenced his first tour of duty on a nuclear submarine the next day, then shot himself.

O'Neill had a superb record at the Academy setting athletic records for the fastest time run by an Academy cross-country runner and for the indoor and outdoor track 5,000 meter runs. In 1992 she was the first female athlete in any Naval Academy sport to qualify for the NCAS Division I Championships. She was also the recipient of the Vice Admiral William P. Lawrence Sword as the outstanding female athlete in her class.

Her accomplishments, however, paled in comparison to her intelligence, dedication, and enthusiasm, which made her an "inspiration" to those who knew her. As James E. Brockington, Jr., Commander, USN wrote of Kerry, "Gone too soon is that smile that brightened the darkest of days. Lost are those sparkling eyes that mirrored our quest for perfection. A leader, a dreamer, a source of unparalleled excellence-she is gone too soon.

In attempting to understand this tragedy, and what could have caused Ensign Smith to commit such murderous act, Kerry's parents learned that Ensign Smith had scored in the 99.99th percentile for aggressive/destructive behavior in Navy psychological tests. To evaluate his psychological fitness for the unique demands of submarine duty, Ensign Smith had, two months before the shooting, been required to submit to the Navv's "Subscreen" test. Ensign Smith scored more than four standard deviations above the normal levels for aggressive/destructive behavior and more than two standard deviations above normal levels in six other categories. Because Ensign Smith's results were well above the two-standard deviations above norms in multiple categories, under non-discretionary Navy regulations his abnormal test results were referred to a Navy psychologist, who in turn was required to conduct a full evaluation. The Navy civilian psychology responsible for reviewing the unusual scores and evaluating Smith, simply fail to conduct any such review or evaluation. This failure to review was a clear violation of Navy regulations (Compl. Paragraphs 10-15; Pet. App. 15a-17a). A psychological evaluation could have identified the potential for this destructive act and possibly prevented this tragedy from occurring.

Based on this negligent behavior by the Navy psychologist, the O'Neills filed suit seeking damages for the injury and death of their daughter under the Federal Tort Claims Act. Their case was dismissed pursuant to the Feres doctrine, based on the reasoning that because at the time of her death Kerry O'Neill was in her military quarters and was on active duty status, her injuries and death were "incident to military service."

In the 1950 case of Feres v. United States, the Supreme Court created a broad exception to the federal government's general liability under the Federal Tort Claims Act, where the service member's injury arises out of or is "in the course of activity incident to service.' Since this initial ruling, the Court has departed from the original justifications for its holding and has expanded the ruling based on vague and broad policy justifications, not intended by Congress when it enacted the Federal Tort Claims Act. In passing the Federal Tort Claims Act, Congress intended to prohibit tort claims against the federal government by a military member or his or her family only when the injuries arise "out of the combatant activities of the military or naval forces, or the Coast Guard, during time of war." Kerry O'Neill's death was the result of a social relationship and the negligent failure of a Navy civilian psychiatrist to further evaluate Ensign Smith, not due to her involvement in combat, and in actuality, not incident to her service.

Congress wrote the statute to prohibit claims for injuries "arising out of the combatant activities of the military or naval forces, or the Coast Guard, during time of war," because we do not want to allow soldiers or their families to be able to sue the government in a combat situation, when countless decisions are made that ultimately result in the death or injury of the service member. In order to protect the integrity of military command decisions, we cannot have any and all instances of death or injury brought and questioned by juries.

Such considerations, however, do not necessitate that military personnel lose their ability to recover for clearly negligent behavior by the federal government, just as every other individual in this country is allowed to do. Unfortunately, the individuals hurt most by the Feres doctrine are those men and women who commit their lives to the service of their country. These individuals should be protected by our laws, not punished. As case after case has demonstrated, the consequences of this doctrine are unjust. Private Charles A. Richards, Jr., who was off-duty, was killed by an Army truck, whose driver had run a red light. He was driving home from work at Fort Knox to care for his then-pregnant wife. His wife was unable to recover damages. Another service woman, who had given birth to twins, discovered one of her twins suffered bodily injury and the other died due to the nealigent prenatal care at a military hospital. She was unable to recover damages. Such unjust outcomes were clearly not the intention of Con-

The Feres doctrine has been the subject of harsh criticism. In dissenting from the denial of rehearing en banc in Richards v. United States, four judges of the Third Circuit, including Chief Judge Becker, called the Feres doctrine a "travesty" and urged the Supreme Court to consider the case. Numerous law review articles have also been written on the case, decrying the doctrine. Additionally, Feres's critics have included at least three current Justices of the Supreme Court, who have argued that Feres was wrong when decided.

My legislation, like the companion bill introduced by the senior Senator from the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, simply seeks to overturn the judicially created Feres doctrine, while leaving in place the original intention of Congress to prohibit tort claims arising out of combatant activities during times of war. The legislation amends the Federal Tort Claims Act to specifically provide that the Act applies to military personnel on active duty to the same as it applies to anyone else. There is no reason to deny our military men and women the just compensation they deserve when they are injured or killed as a result of the negligent actions of the Federal government or its agents outside the heat of combat.

Mr. Speaker, the legislation will not bring back Kerryn O'Neill, or the other two service members, who were harmed by their government in this one instance. Nor will this legislation bring compensation to their families. But hopefully, this legislation will right this unjust doctrine, and help to prevent similar tragedies in the future. We need to address this situation as quickly as possible and I urge my colleagues to support this bill.

HONORING CARYN BART OF RIVER EDGE, NEW JERSEY

HON. STEVEN R. ROTHMAN

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. ROTHMAN. Mr. Speaker, today I pay tribute to Caryn Bart of River Edge, New Jersey, a nurse who works at Holy Name Hospital in Teaneck, who went far beyond the call of duty to help a family with their struggle through a horrible tragedy.

Armando and Erika Herrera, from Garfield, New Jersey, who both work at Holy Name Hospital, recently suffered the tragic loss of their seven-year-old son, Daniel. On June 9, 2000, mother and son traveled to visit relatives in Hungary. Two days later, while Mrs. Herrera lay down flowers at her mother's grave, an elevated headstone tipped over, fell, and fractured Daniel's skull.

As Mr. and Mrs. Herrera were naturally stunned and dazed by these events, not knowing what to do, Caryn Bart took it upon herself to help the Herrera's in their time of need. Ms. Bart, who has four children and is married to Steve Bart, became a registered nurse in 1997 after graduating from Bergen Community College.

Through Ms. Bart's facilitation, the Herreras received calls from doctors in London, Helsinki and New York. A special flight was arranged to take them to a children's hospital in London. All that could have been done was done. Unfortunately, Daniel died of his injuries a few days later.

Álthough nothing can help Armando and Erika Herrera through this terrible loss, the efforts of Ms. Bart must be acknowledged. She is truly a great American and worthy of much praise and thanks. What Ms. Bart did is a wonderful example of the gift of loving kindness. She is an inspiration and an example of what compassion generosity are for all of us.

Angels walk among us and many of the nurses of America, like Caryn Bart, are these angels.

FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS SHOULD PROVIDE LENDING CAPITAL FOR ENVIRONMENTALLY RESPONSIBLE DRY AND WET CLEANING SMALL BUSINESSES

HON. DONALD A. MANZULLO

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. MANZULLO. Mr. Speaker, today, I am introducing a Sense of the Congress Resolution that would urge financial institutions to promote environmentally responsible dry and wet cleaning processes and to work with business enterprises to provide streams of capital to protect the environment.

I am offering this important resolution to help bring to light the situation that our nation's small dry and wet cleaning businesses face with regard to the cleaning process that most of the small cleaning establishments utilize—namely, percholoroethelyne (perc) and petroleum based solvents. Perc and petroleum based solvents are known pollutants; they contaminate the air, land and groundwater. However, there are other options available to small dry and wet cleaning businesses.

On Thursday, July 20, 2000, the Small Business Subcommittee on Tax, Finance and Exports, which I chair, held an extraordinarily important hearing on H.R. 1303, the Environmental Dry Cleaning Tax Credit Act. This bipartisan bill, introduced jointly by Representatives DAVE CAMP and DAVID PRICE, is an incentive-based approach to resolving the complex environmental problems the dry cleaning industry faces as a result of its use of perc, a hazardous waste when it is emitted into the air and groundwater. There are nearly 35,000 dry cleaners across the country. Most employ only a handful of workers. They are truly small businesses.

H.R. 1303 provides a 20 percent tax credit toward the purchase of new equipment that uses non-hazardous waste producing wet and dry cleaning technology. Recent technological developments utilize carbon dioxide—the same chemical compound found in sodas (or pop, depending on what part of the nation you represent). Carbon dioxide is obviously not harmful to the environment, since we consume it and our vegetation thrives on it.

Like all new ideas on the market, this technology is expensive. That is exactly why the tax credit is necessary. While there are costs associated with H.R. 1303, they are far outweighed, in our view, by the expenses associated with cleaning up the dry cleaning solvents that have been used for decades. For example, in North Carolina, it is estimated that once the assessment and remediation for sites contaminated from the use of perc, costs using the state's own "cost-per-site" estimates could approach $72 million to $90 million annually. The State of Florida has estimated that it has 2,700 contaminated dry cleaning sites that are requiring almost $1.5 billion needed for clean-up. The numbers are staggering for nationwide clean up costs, which could approach nearly $20 billion—far outweighing the costs estimated for H.R. 1303.

After we heard testimony from the witnesses at our hearing, I was approached by a gentleman from the Bank of America, who shared with me the situation facing the dry and wet cleaning industry from the perspective of banks. He stated that the "severe and costly nature of environmental issues has virtually eliminated dry cleaners' access to conventional bank capital over the past seven to eight years." He pointed to one overwhelming reason: fear over liability as a result of contamination from perc and petroleum solvents.

I submit his letter for printing in the RECORD. However, I want to share with you the assessment by the Bank of America that financial institutions face because of these environmental risks. These include: (1) direct legal liability; (2) complete asset value loss; (3) partial asset value loss; and (4) indirect operation risk.

Mr. Speaker, it is quite obvious that the concerns of our nation's financial industry are serious enough to shy away from lending to a specific industry. But what is striking is the extent upon which the Bank of America is willing to share with Congress about why they will not lend to dry cleaners that use perc or petroleum based solvents.

What is encouraging is that the Bank of America, along with other lending institutions, such as the Central Carolina Bank, have determined that dry and wet cleaning processes that utilize carbon dioxide technology and other non-hazardous waste causing substances deserve financial backing. I am sure that other banks across the country have similar lending policies. Although I do not know specifically which one, I invite those banks to contact and confirm this with me. I, in turn, will share this information with my colleagues.

I want to reiterate the important of this resolution. There is a need that must be met. We have an enormous number of dry and wet cleaning businesses in the United States that find it difficult to obtain financial backing from lending institutions because of environmental concerns. The reason I am offering this resolution, along with my colleagues, is that I believe the American public needs to be aware of this safer, environmentally sound dry and wet cleaning technology. There are options out there, and I encourage our financial institutions to work with our dry and wet cleaners to expand this new environmentally safe technology.

BANK OF AMERICA, SMALL BUSINESS RISK MANAGEMENT,

Raleigh, NC, July 25, 2000.
Re H.R. 1303, the Environmental Dry Cleaning Tax Credit Act.

Hon. DONALD A. MANZULLO,

Member of Congress, Chairman, House Small Business Subcommittee on Tax, Finance, and Exports, Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRMAN MANZULLO: Thank you for speaking with me at last Thursday's post-hearing luncheon briefing. As I stated then, the severe and costly nature of environmental issues have virtually eliminated dry cleaners' access to conventional bank capital over the past 7–8 years. There is one overwhelming reason for this—chemical contamination from perchloroethylene and petroleum solvents.

The historical environment risk to banks of lending to dry cleaners can be broken down into four groups:

(a) Direct Legal Liability—Simply being in

(a) Direct Legal Liability—Simply being in the chain of title after a foreclosure can create varying degrees of bank responsibility for funding property cleanups.

(b) Complete Asset Value Loss—The extent of

(b) Complete Asset Value Loss—The extent of contamination is often such that banks will "walk away" from foreclosure and write off the entire asset value.

(c) Partial Asset Value Loss—Even if the bank is not liable for cleanup operations, or the cleanup is not so extensive to justify a complete loss, banks can only sell contaminated, foreclosed properties for a small fraction of what the appraised value was at loan origination—before the contamination! Banks must write off the difference.

(d) Indirect Operational Risk—Even if the bank is not taking a lien on real property, there is still a high risk due to the potential for significant unexpected expenses associated with dry cleaning operations. These expenses include spill clean-up costs, regulatory fines, operational interruption due to permit loss, and increased costs due to various employee health issues.

Regardless of how much better today's perchloroethylene or petroleum based dry cleaning machines are when compared to older machines, the risks noted above persist. While updated perchloroethylene and petroleum equipment may decrease the discharge of hazardous chemical solvents, they cannot eliminate them. Thus, banks will continue to avoid financing the equipment, the property on which they're located and the operator who uses them.

The complete elimination of the risks noted above by the CO2 process would clearly be the single most important positive development in the relationship between banks and dry cleaners in over a decade. However, this does not mean that banks will immediately be welcoming back dry cleaners. The removal of the environmental bank risk due to hazardous solvents is replaced with the financial risk of high leverage due to the cost of the new CO2 technology. Tax incentives such as those included in H.R. 1303 would significantly help to make this important new technology financially viable for dry cleaners and thus create a credit risk atmosphere acceptable to federally insured banks and banking regulatory agencies.

Bank of America is the leading lender to small businesses in the United States with $6.8 billion in commercial loans to businesses with less than $10 million in annual revenue. The average dry cleaner personifies what we would love to include in our portfoliosmall, hard working, mostly family owned businesses with close ties to their communities. Legislation such as H.R. 1303 should allow these business owners to replace existing high interest loans, expensive leases, and less than desirable commercial locations with access to the conventional bank capital needed for commercial viability and sustainable long-term growth.

Sincerely,

JOSEPH C. BONNER, Vice President, Small Business Risk Management, Commercial Credit Policy Development.

HONORING CANDACE GUYTON AND BYRON C. SMITH

HON. MARTIN FROST

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, today I congratulate Candace Guyton and Byron C. Smith, two Arlington, TX, teenagers whose artistic achievements earned them medals in a scholastic competition held at the NAACP national convention earlier this month.

Byron won a second-place silver medal and $750 in scholarship money for his entry in the film making-video category at the NAACP-sponsored Afro-Academic, Cultural, Technological and Scientific Olympics (ACT SO) competition. Byron beat out more than 20 other students from across the country with his three-minute documentary cartoon about Bill Pickett, a Texas cowboy who pioneered the process of "bulldogging."

Candace won a $500 scholarship and a third-place bronze medal in the vocal contemporary music category. Not only did Candace demonstrate her tremendous vocal skills, but she performed an original song, "A Thing Called Love."

Congratulations again to Byron Smith and Candace Guyton and the proud parents of these wonderfully talented teenagers. Your tremendous achievements in Baltimore have made our North Texas community proud. Your success in the ACT SO competition is proof that you can succeed in anything you choose.

DEVELOPMENTAL DISABILITIES ASSISTANCE AND BILL OF RIGHTS ACT OF 2000

SPEECH OF

HON. BARBARA LEE

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 25, 2000

Ms. LEE. Mr. Speaker, today we are commemorating the 10th anniversary of the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA). This law has proven to make a tremendous impact on the lives of 54 million individuals in our country.

In the past decade, Americans with disabilities have been provided protection in employment, public services, public accommodations, as well as services operated by private entities, and transportation, telecommunications providers.

Since the passage of the ADA, millions of Americans have had the opportunity to contribute to society by being able to work in all fields of employment.

This monumental law has also allowed disabled Americans to enjoy life by increasing their access to recreational activities as well as removing obstacles to business and leisure travel.

Because of the ADA more and more individuals are able to travel with their families or guide dogs with better accommodations and less barriers. People with disabilities now have more access to shopping areas, dining facilities, theaters, travel services, and much more.

The ADA has helped to ensure equal employment opportunity as well as allowed individuals to materialize their educational and professional goals.

This law has opened up many doors to millions of Americans by allowing them to lead independent and self-sufficient lives. The ADA has been an important tool in the fight to eliminate all forms of discrimination. The ADA has provided reasonable accommodations in the workplace. The ADA has made major differences in the lives of many individuals.

Let's all celebrate the anniversary of the passage of this important law and celebrate the lives of millions of Americans.

LETTER FROM CARMEN SABRIA

HON. HOWARD P. "BUCK" McKEON

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. McKEON. Mr. Speaker, this letter was brought to my attention by a constituent of mine in the 25th district of California, and I find it fitting to include it in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. I believe Ms. Sabria sheds a whole new light on the Elian Gonzalez case, in retrospect, and highlights many of the freedoms Americans take for granted.

LETTER TO THOSE WHO MAY NOT UNDER-STAND: Elianated yet? I am. And duly so. It seems like an unending saga and we're all sick of it by now. But after Holy Saturday's events, even I, a pretty impartial Cuban-American, feel obligated to at least help you, my Anglo-American and African-American friends understand why the Cuban community is so outraged!

To reunite a little boy with his father is a beautiful thing. To do it with a gun at his head is not! If I can remember the small trauma when I was only two years old and my father put me and my mother in the bathroom while he nailed the ironing board to the front door to protect us from a big hurricane, I am certain this six year old will never forget this day! To take a little boy back to his real home is wonderful. But Elian is not going home to Cardenas, his home town, oh no . . . He's going to an 11-room mansion in Havana where he is going to live with his parents, yes, but also with other children and some "teachers" . . . Is that "home" or an indoctrination camp?

To some of you, most of the impassioned Cubans you have seen on T.V. today may seem irrational in their desire to keep that little boy in this free land. To us who see a child miraculously saved from the treacherous, shark-filled waters of the Florida strait, after his mother risked his life and lost hers to bring him to a place where he could be raised as a free man, where is wonderful spirit could develop and his ideas find expression, it seems criminal to send him back to a country where individual thought is an abomination, and free speech a crime.

A beautiful, fertile land that could still be as it was four decades ago, the most prosperous and advanced of all Latin America, where now children can only drink milk for a few years before their "quota" is removed. where medical doctors give up their practice to work as taxi drivers so they can earn U.S. dollars to feed their families because the peso has no value anymore; where young women prostitute themselves to tourists as the only way to earn that precious "dollar" that will buy their children some shoes; where children must join the communist 'pioneros'' movement with their red berets and are taught to sing communist songs and hate Americans, and youngsters grow to be "Communist Youth" members and are kept from dreaming dreams by being fed stories of upcoming invasions from "the enemy"; a country where artists and writers can only produce art that follows the government line; and fathers like Juan Miguel must obey what Fidel Castro orders him to say and do rather than do what is best for his child.

Do you know that Elian's father asked for a U.S. visa twice before little Elian came, and that he called his relatives here to let them know his child was coming here with his mom?

But little Elian will soon be reunited with his father and with his grandparents in that paradise island and we should be happy about that. No, maybe we're not acting out of concern over Elian and what his life is going to be like when he goes back "home". Maybe we're acting out of the pain that's in every one of these acclimated, prosperous, hard-working Cuban-Americans who cannot forget.

How can I forget the eight months I had to work in the fields shoveling dirt and pulling weeds as punishment because I had requested a visa to leave the country? How can I forget that my friends and I were kicked out of the University of Havana, even though we had the highest scores in our class, just because we had not joined the Communist Party's Cuban Youth group? How can I forget the long year my godmother spent in jail for suspicion of counter-revolutionary activities and was never the same woman again? How can I forget Eddy who died of suffocation when they packed them like sardines in a truck after being captured in Bay of Pigs... He was a handsome young man in his early twenties. How can I forget the months my cousin Ramon spent in the dungeons of La Cabana Castle right after the BoP invasions (just for being a young man and not belonging to the communist militia), where they almost starved him to death and where he heard the shots every night of those who were being executed. How can my friend Marta forget the ten years she waited in Castro's Cuba while her husband, a young poet, wasted away most of the time in solitary confinement, surrounded by rats and roaches, and the ten more years she spent in the States struggling to get him out? This poet is the former U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations Commission on Human Rights, Armando Valladares. Do you know that due to the terrible tortures and malnutrition he suffered when they finally got together after 20 years, he could not give her the children she had longed for and they had to adopt? Or Emilita, who sent her children to live with her parents in the States to keep them safe while she stayed behind with her husband who was serving 20 years in political prison? When she saw her children again, they were no longer children.

The stories are endless, my friends, every Cuban in this country has a story, and it is those stories that are crying out today. The story of a people who felt betrayed after the Missile Crisis when President Kennedy signed a pact with Soviet Premier Nikita Khruschev never to allow Cubans to plot another invasion to free their land . . . The story of a people who are feeling betrayed again because one of our own who was saved from the sharks is now being sent back to the biggest shark of all . . . Fidel Castro, who will indoctrinate him and turn him into an icon of his propaganda or, if he doesn't succeed, will destroy his spirit by turning him into a frustrated youngster with no way out

My friends, I apologize for this "speech" but I thought it was time for this formerly not very outspoken Cuban to speak out. I know you will understand.

CARMEN SABRIA, Miami, Florida.

TRIBUTE TO LT. GEN. JOE N. BALLARD

HON. IKE SKELTON

OF MISSOURI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, let me take this opportunity to pay tribute to Lt. Gen. Joe N. Ballard, 49th Chief of Engineers and Commander, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, who is retiring from his post after 35 commendable years of service to our Nation.

Lt. Gen. Ballard assumed command of the Corps of Engineers on October 1, 1996, and has been responsible for an annual budget of over $12 billion and a leadership of a workforce of more than 35,000 civilian and military personnel worldwide.

During his tenure as Chief of Engineers, Lt. Gen. Ballard led the Corps of Engineers in a number of significant accomplishments. Among them were restructuring all levels of the organization, streamlining major changes in business practices, reemphasizing the Corps' missions in support of the Army and Department of Defense, and strengthening the organization's commitment to serve the nation and its vital interests.

Lt. Gen. Ballard has managed Army Corps of Engineers missions—including the nation's vast Civil Works Program, environmental restoration, and construction on military installations. His leadership has guided the Corps in assisting with recovery from natural disasters as well as regulating work in the Nation's waterways and wetlands, conducting research and development, serving as the Army and Air Force real estate agent, and providing engineering services to 60 other Federal agencies and more than 80 other nations. Earlier, he served as Commander of Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri, with great distinction.

In addition to the military honors that he has achieved, the Council of Deans of Historically Black Colleges and Universities and the Career Communications Group recognized Lt. Gen. Ballard as the 1998 Black Engineer of the Year. He has also been the 1998–1999 president of the Society of American Military Engineers and a member of the National Engineering Honor society, Tau Beta Pi.

Mr. Speaker, Lt. Gen. Ballard has had an outstanding career in the Corps of Engineers and with the Army. He will surely be missed by everyone at those organizations. As he retires, I wish Joe and his wife Tessie all the best. I am certain that the Members of the House will join me in paying tribute to this outstanding American.

HONORING MEMBERS OF THE VOLUNTEER HONOR ROLL

HON. JOHN J. DUNCAN, JR.

OF TENNESSEE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. DUNCAN. Mr. Speaker, I am rising today to honor five of my constituents who have been named to the Honor Roll of Volunteers by the Appalachian Trail Conference [ATC].

Phyllis Henry, Jim Botts, Lionel Edney, Bill Kerr, and Dick Ketelle are among the 75 people who received this award because of their hard work which symbolizes the efforts and dedication of thousands of volunteers who help manage and protect the Appalachian Trail.

The Volunteer Honor Roll was established to celebrate ATC's 75th anniversary this year. Founded in 1925 to promote, build, and protect the Appalachian Trail, ATC is one of the most successful volunteer-based conservation and outdoor recreation organizations in the United States.

As you know, the Appalachian Trail is one of America's premier hiking trails and the world's longest footpath. Located within a day's drive of two-thirds of the U.S. population, it is used each year by up to four million individuals from around the world.

It is only through the great work and leadership of individuals like these five people and organizations like the Smoky Mountain Hiking Club, to which they all belong, that we are able to protect and maintain this great national treasure.

Each of these individuals has dedicated thousands of hours over the years so that we could enjoy the Appalachian Trail. I would like to take the time to personally thank them for all of their work and to honor their great volunteer spirit for which Tennessee has been recognized for hundreds of years.

LORI BERENSON

HON. JERROLD NADLER

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, today I support the recent letter signed by a majority of members of the House of Representatives urging the President to work for the release of Lori Berenson, an American Citizen illegally detained in a military prison in Peru.

It is ridiculous that I must bring up this issue yet again after four years. How many letters must we send to the President of Peru on Ms. Berenson's behalf. How many times must Mark and Rhoda Berenson appeal to members of their own government before they are reunited with their child?

Ms. Berenson was convicted four years ago of treason and sentenced to life imprisonment in Peru. The details of her case read like the script of a movie, secret Peruvian military tribunal, conviction in violation of international law, maximum security isolation, and now reports that her health is seriously threatened.

Ms. Berenson was convicted by a judicial system which has been characterized by the U.S. State Department as "inefficient, often subject to corruption, and easily controlled by the executive branch." The state department further states that "* * proceedings in the military courts—and those for terrorism in civilian court—do not meet internationally accepted standard of openness, fairness, and due process." Ms. Berenson's conviction has been condemned by the Organization of American States and the United Nations High Commission on Human Rights.

How does the American government, the most powerful government on the globe, the world's hegemon, sit by and allow this to happen. How can we continue to tell Mark and Rhoda Berenson "We're sorry, but there is nothing the United States of America can do to help free your daughter."

I cannot express in words, the pain I would feel if my child was being held illegally, health deteriorating. All of us in this chamber should try to imagine for just a moment the pain that is felt each and every day by the Berensons. We must then turn that sadness into a collective cry for action on the part of the administration. United States citizens must not be treated in such a barbaric manner.

I call on the President to act decisively. To use the vast resources of this great nation and demand Lori Berenson's release.

TAI KAI ATLANTA 2000

HON. BOB BARR

OF GEORGIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, on August 18, 2000 a gathering will take place in Atlanta, Georgia of teachers and students of the traditional Japanese martial art of Ninjutsu. The International Bujinkan Tai Kai, as the gathering is called, will host visitors from every corner of the globe. They will be in Georgia to train under the guidance of Dr. Masaaki Hatsumi, the Grandmaster of Ninjutsu. Dr. Hatsumi is the 34th Grandmaster of Ninjutsu, is the founder of the Bujinkan Dojo, and is considered a national treasure by the Japanese government. Bujinkan, which means "Divine Warrior Hall," was named in honor of his teacher, Toshitsugu Takamatsu.

I am extremely pleased Dr. Hatsumi has chosen Atlanta, Georgia as the host city for International Bujinkan Tai Kai 2000. It is my sincere hope each participant will benefit from the principles of discipline, self respect, and respect for fellow man, at the heart of Bujinkan.

I submit the following for the RECORD.

Tai Kai, Atlanta 2000, July 1, 2000.

Re: Request for Proclamation or Special Letter of Welcome

Congressman BOB BARR,

c/o Slade Gulledge, Marietta Congressional Office, Marietta, GA.

DEAR MR. GULLEDGE: With regard to a conversation you had with a member of my staff, Sean Gerety, and later an e-mail, I am requesting a Proclamation from Bob Barr to Dr. Masaaki Hatsumi. Atlanta has been selected as the site of the International Bujinkan Tai Kai by Dr. Masaaki Hatsumi, the 24th generation grandmaster of the Bujinkan system. Dr. Hatsumi is the only grandmaster of the traditional Japanese martial art of ninjutsu, and consequently his selection of Atlanta for the Tai Kai constitutes an important event.

The Bujinkan Atlanta Dojo, America's original school of Japan's oldest martial art will be sponsoring the Tai Kai for the fifth time. Bud Malmstrom is the owner and 11 degree Black Belt instructor of this school. He began his training over 22 years ago. Bud's wife Bonnie, 9th degree Black Belt instructor has been the organizer of all five Tai Kai conventions. She was the first non-oriental and the third woman only in the would to pass the fifth degree black belt test.

Hatsumi's last visit to Atlanta was during the Olympic year, 1996. He decided in 1996 that he would like to revisit the fair and beautiful city of Atlanta for the Millennium 2000 American Tai Kai training celebration. August 18th 600 ninja scholars and enthusiasts from every corner of the world will convene in the Grand Ballroom of the OMNI Hotel at CNN Center to begin a four day training event with the grandmaster of ninjutsu. Ninjutsu simply stated; the skill of the ninja is the art of winning . . . "attaining that which we need while making the world a better place in which to live."

Please see the information included and provide us with a Proclamation if at all possible. We will have an opening reception August 18th and plan to bestow this to Dr. Hatsumi as a gesture of welcome. If there is anyone from your office who could present this award to Dr. Hatsumi, it would be wonderful. Please let me know where and when we can pick up the proclamation. Thanking you sincerely,

With warmest regards,

BONNIE G. MALMSTROM,

Secretary/Treasurer.

NICO FERRARO: 2000 LABOR LEAD-ER OF THE YEAR OF THE SAN DIEGO COUNTY BUILDING AND CONSTRUCTION TRADES COUN-CIL, ALF-CIO

HON. BOB FILNER

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. FILNER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize Nico Ferraro, business manager of the Plumbers & Pipefitters, Local 230, as he is honored by the San Diego County Building and Construction Trades Council, AFL–CIO at the Eighteenth Annual John S. Lyons Memorial Banquet.

Nico Ferraro is being honored as the 2000 Labor Leader of the Year because he is an active labor leader who has gained a reputation for getting things done. His activism caught the attention of Local 230, and he was elected to the executive board in 1989. In 1992, he was elected pipefitter business representative and served in that capacity until his appointment as business manager in 1997.

As business manager of Local 230, he represents the 1600 member local union in many ways. He is a trustee to the pension and health and welfare funds, the secretary to the Joint Apprenticeship Committee, delegate to the District Council, and executive board member to the Building Trades and the Central Labor Council. He serves on a statewide committee for the International Union and is also a hearing officer for the International Union. He is a management trustee for the OPEIU pension.

Nico is dedicated to improving the wages, pension, and working conditions of his membership and demonstrating to all of San Diego the benefits of union membership. He has spoken before the Industrial Welfare Commission, the California Apprenticeship Council, to church groups and to community college students on the benefits of being a union member.

He is involved in all aspects of the labor movement. A number of his pro-union letters to the editor have been published in San Diego newspapers. He co-chairs the Labor Council Street Heat Committee. He raises money for Local 230's scholarship fund. Recently, he was appointed to the Industrial Welfare Commission Wage Board where he will be asked to determine the wages, work hours, and working conditions for the mining, drilling, and construction industries.

Nico's dad, uncles, brothers and neighbors in New York City were union members. He learned at an early age the value of union membership. He served a five-year steamfitter apprenticeship with one of the original United Autoworkers locals, Local 638. From the minute he was initiated into the union, he knew it was for him! A highlight was his work on the 110 story World Trade Center twin towers building in New York.

Nico has been married for the past fourteen years to his wife Lynn, who is a member of the California Teachers Association.

As a friend and supporter of the working man and woman, I want to sincerely congratulate Nico Ferraro on receiving this prestigious award for his long hours and intensive work in the cause of justice. It is an honor to know him and to support his work!

SECTION 907 OF THE FOREIGN ASSISTANCE ACT

HON. JOE KNOLLENBERG

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Mr. Speaker, today I stress the importance of retaining Section 907 of the Foreign Assistance Act in the Foreign Operations Bill.

For more than 10 years Azerbaijan has cut off the transportation of food, fuel and medicine from the United States and the United Nations to our ally Armenia. Armenia and its neighbor, Nagorno-Karabagh are both landlocked, and these blockades are virtually isolating them from the rest of the world.

Section 907 prohibits United States aid to Azerbaijan and constitutes a focused, appropriate message to the government of Azerbaijan that the United States won't support efforts to marginalize, via blockade, entire populations of neighboring states.

Section 907 must remain in place until the President of Azerbaijan confirms that country is taking steps to cease blockades and offensive uses of force against Armenia and Nagorno-Karabagh.

I encourage my colleagues to support Section 907 in the Foreign Operations bill.

AUTHORIZING BUREAU OF REC-TO PROVIDE COST LAMATION SHARING FOR ENDANGERED FISH RECOVERY IMPLEMENTA-PROGRAMS TION FOR UPPER COLORADO AND SAN JUAN RIVER BASINS

SPEECH OF

HON. MARK UDALL

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 25, 2000

Mr. UDALL of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, as a cosponsor of H.R. 2348, I rise to urge its approval.

This bill is an important one for Colorado and the other States within the upper basin of the Colorado River and the basin of the San Juan River.

The recovery program for endangered fish in the upper basin of the Colorado river is a cooperative program involving the State of Colorado and our neighboring States of Utah and Wyoming; the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Bureau of Reclamation, and Western Area Power Administration, environmental organizations, and water-development interests in all three states.

The State of Colorado is also a participant in the recovery program for the San Juan program, along with New Mexico, the Southern Ute and Ute Mountain Ute tribes, USFWS and Bureau of Reclamation, the Navajo Nation, the Jicarilla Apache Tribe, and water development interests.

Both recovery programs are aimed at recovering the endangered fish in ways that meet the requirements of the Endangered Species Act while minimizing conflicts and allowing continued utilization of the area's scarce water resources for this and other purposes in ways that are consistent with applicable state laws, interstate compacts, and Supreme Court decrees allocating water among the states.

The purpose of the legislation is to provide a specific authorization for the funding that is necessary for implementation of these programs. Such funding has been consistently provided in recent years, but having such a specific authorization will provide greater certainty for all concerned.

The bill is the product of a cooperative effort among the participants in the programs and other interested parties. It is a sound and balanced measure that merits strong support. I am glad to have the opportunity to join with Chairman HANSEN and the other sponsors of this legislation in urging its passage by the House and hope that the Senate will act promptly to send it to the President for signature into law.

H.R. 1248, THE VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN REAUTHORIZATION ACT

HON. SUE W. KELLY

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mrs. KELLY. Mr. Speaker, the U.S. Department of Justice estimates that between 1 million and 4 million women are physically abused by their husbands or live-in partners each year.

Justice also reports that females account for 39 percent of the hospital emergency department visits for violence-related injuries.

According to another poll, up to 40 percent of teenage girls age 14 to 17 report knowing someone their age who has been hit or beaten by a boyfriend.

Family violence costs the nation upwards of $10 billion annually in medical expenses, police and court costs, shelters and foster care, sick leave, absenteeism, and non-productivity.

Mr. Speaker, I have only touched on the tip of the iceberg. Unlike many people, we are in a position to help turn these statistics around.

We can begin by passing H.R. 1248, the Violence Against Women Reauthorization Act and help the thousands of men and the millions of women who face abuse in their own homes feel a little safer in knowing that we are here and we are listening and will once again fulfill/our promise and help them escape from abuse and end the cycle of violence.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support this important legislation, not only for the men and women being abused today but for our children who may be the victims of tomorrow.

LARRY LUCCHINO: THE JOHNS FELLOWSHIP AWARD OF THE SAN DIEGO COUNTY BUILDING AND CONSTRUCTION TRADES COUNCIL, AFL-CIO

HON. BOB FILNER

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. FILNER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize Larry Lucchino, as he is honored by the San Diego County Building and Construction Trades Council, AFL-CIO at the Eighteenth Annual John S. Lyons Memorial Banquet

Larry Lucchino, President and Chief Executive Officer of the San Diego Padres, is being recognized for his contribution to the community of San Diego and for fulfilling three fundamental commitments of ownership which he made as he purchased the San Diego Padres baseball team on December 21, 1994.

First and foremost, the Padres, under the leadership of Larry Lucchino have become active participants in the community, assisting the children of the region in their education, recreation, and health. The Padres Scholars Program was established in 1995 to aid students with college scholarships. The Little Padres Parks Program has committed to building or refurbishing 60 youth ballfields in San Diego and Northern Baja. The Cindy Matters Fund, named for a lifelong Padres fan who inspired Padres players and staff during her fight against cancer, pledges assistance in the fight against children's cancer and provides funding to the UCSD Medical Center's Pediatric Oncology Research Laboratory.

Second, he has helped to rebuild the club so that they were recognized as the most improved team in the National League in 1995 and champions of the National League West in 1996. In 1998, the Padres captured the National League West Championship and then proceeded to the World Series to play against the New York Yankees

He has also created a warm and fan-friendly environmental at the local Qualcomm Stadium, and his passion for the internationalization of baseball has led to historic achievements with the Padres playing games in Mexico and Hawaii, and establishing relations with teams in Japan and Korea.

in addition, Larry Lucchino is active in both civic and charitable institutions in San Diego, serving on the CEO Roundtable, the Board of Directors of the Economic Development Corporation, the Binational Advisory Council on Border-Crossing Process, and the Board of Directors of the Padres Foundation.

He has the unique distinction of earning a Final Four watch with Princeton in 1965, a Super Bowl ring with the Washington Redskins in 1983, and the World Series ring with the Baltimore Orioles in 1983. He has earned a reputation as one of baseball's modern-day innovators. As President and CEO of both the Baltimore Orioles from 1988–1993 and the San Diego Padres since 1995, he has broken ground in ballpark design and planning, the development of new marketing concepts, and the furthering of player-owner relations.

Larry Lucchino is being honored by a very special award. The JOHNS Fellowship Award was established to commemorate the late John Lyons of the Teamsters who was one of the founders of the San Diego Chapter of the Leukemia Society of America. The proceeds from the Memorial Banquet will be used to support local charitable causes including bone marrow testing and local research grants.

My sincere congratulations go to Larry Lucchino, and I am proud to salute him and to recognize his accomplishment with this statement in the United States House of Representatives. Thank you, Larry.

TREASURY AND GENERAL GOV-ERNMENT APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2001

SPEECH OF

HON. CONSTANCE A. MORELLA

ΟΕ ΜΑΡΥΙ ΔΝΟ

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 20, 2000

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union had under consideration the bill (H.R. 4871) making appropriations for the Treasury Department, the United States Postal Service, the Executive Office of the President, and certain Independent Agencies, for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2001, and for other purposes.

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Chairman, I want to support the efforts of Congressman WYNN and his desire to provide funding for FDA consolidation in Montgomery County, Maryland. In last week's Treasury Postal Appropriations bill, no funding was made available for the consolidation project. I wholeheartedly agree with Rep. WYNN's request that greater consideration for the project be made in conference.

Presently, the FDA has approximately 39 different buildings in 21 different locations and 6,000 employees throughout the Washington, DC metropolitan area. The purpose of the consolidation project was to condense those buildings, employees, and locations into one site, the former Naval Surface Warfare Center in White Oak Maryland. There are several benefits of this consolidation: one, it would allow for the design and construction of a Center for Drug Evaluation and Research Laboratory (CDER). Two, there would be a savings of more than $200 million in lease costs over a ten year term. Three, it would help fill the void left by the closure of the 700 acre White Oak Naval Surface Warfare Center.

I am aware that no construction projects were funded by the Treasury/Postal sub-committee; however, this project benefits the nation by establishing a much needed drug evaluation and research laboratory while reducing costs for taxpayers.

I urge the conferees to restore the funding that was part of the President's proposed FY 2001 budget.

A TRIBUTE TO DETECTIVE MATT EATON

HON. GARY G. MILLER

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. GARY MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, I rise to congratulate Detective Matt Eaton, of the Montclair, California Police Department, for earning the Montclair Chamber of Commerce 1999 Annual Achievement Award.

Detective Eaton was hired as a full-time police officer in 1989, working the cornerstone of policing, patrol enforcement. Over the past eleven years, Detective Eaton has developed his highly specialized skills through training and daily experiences.

Known for his energy and enthusiasm, Detective Eaton is quick to volunteer to help others with their tasks. He commits great effort and dedication to his job, often working late on his days off His vision and leadership led to the development of a county-wide standardized Crimes Against Children Protocol. However, Detective Eaton's dedication is not limited to the City of Montclair. He drafted a California State Assembly Bill designed to protect all residents from the invasion of concealed cameras.

Detective Eaton has been recognized by Project Sister, Child Protective Services, the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department, San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department, and he has been honored by his own department as the recipient of their Annual Achievement Award.

Detective Eaton's eleven years of exemplary service distinguishes him as a true American hero, worthy of this Congress' praise and gratitude.

HONORING THE CHILDREN'S INN AT NIH

HON. CONSTANCE A. MORELLA

OF MARYLAND

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, I rise to recognize and celebrate the 10th Anniversary of the Children's Inn at the National Institute of Health, located in Bethesda, Maryland. The Children's Inn has provided the critical service of a warm, friendly, and comfortable environment for seriously ill pediatric patients and their families since June of 1990.

The NIH is the premier biomedical research facility in the world. Children from across the nation and around the world regularly travel to the NIH to receive extraordinary treatments for many illnesses and disorders. While patients receive their medical treatments, the Children's Inn provides a comforting, stable environment for families going through the emotionally draining experience of treating a seriously ill child.

During the past 10 years, nearly 4,000 children and their families have made 23,263 visits to The Children's Inn. The facility provides a welcome solace for both patients and families. A warm group of staff members and volunteers assure that each resident of the Children's Inn is comfortable and feels at home. At the end of long days filled with tests and treatments, the young patients are greeted at the Inn with a variety of activities. The children can enjoy arts and crafts, bingo, movies, video games, computers, and the fellowship of other children sharing similar experiences.

Families staying at the Children's Inn are provided a 24-hour support network of gracious and compassionate staff, volunteers, and other parents caring for children. This provides an invaluable resource in boosting morale, and makes the treatment process not only bearable, but also enjoyable for both patients and family members.

A recent story in a local Montgomery County, Maryland newspaper told the story of a mother of a terminally ill child who was a resident at The Children's Inn on various occasions. Speaking of the positive influence the Children's Inn has had on her family, she said, "The Inn was one of the greatest gifts I could receive."

Congratulations to the Children's Inn for 10 years of devoted service to our community. Keep up the great work!

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. LIPINSKI. Mr. Speaker, these students are all credit to their families and the Chicago community. I wish them tremendous success in their continuing education and future aspirations. Mr. Speaker, I am again pleased to offer my sincere congratulations the winners of my 2000 Spirit of Achievement Award program.

RICHARD H. BLADES, 1930-1999: PUBLIC SERVANT

HON. STEPHEN HORN

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. HORN. Mr. Speaker, late last year, we lost a remarkable man—a man who made significant contributions to every field he touched: the non-profit sector, business, politics, and government, including the House of Representatives.

Richard H. Blades was an expert in public relations who never sought publicity for himself, a political strategist of the first rank who never held office, a man of comfortable means who never forgot those less fortunate, and a man with a great sense of humor who never failed to confront the serious issues of his community, state, and nation.

Dick Blades was born in Huntington Park, California, and established a reputation in high school, and at the University of Southern California, as a skilled debater. After graduating from U.S.C. in 1952, Dick began work as a public relations consultant and political strategist. He also established an extraordinary partnership with Alphonzo Bell.

In the 1950s, Al Bell was a major figure in the California Republican Party serving as Chairman of the State Republican Central Committee, and later as Chair of the Los Angeles County Republican Central Committee. Dick worked with Al Bell on some of the legendary internal battles of the Republican party in the 1950's—featuring such larger-than-life figures as Governor Goodwin Knight, Senator William F. Knowland, the Republican Leader of the United States Senate, Senator Thomas H. Kuchel, the Republican Whip, and Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

Alphonzo Bell was then elected to the House of Representatives in 1960 from Los Angeles and would serve for sixteen very distinguished years. During those years, Dick assisted Congressman Bell in a variety of capacities, including campaign manager, field representative, and administrative assistant. Dick also found time to consult on Nelson Rockefeller's 1964 campaign for President, and Charles Percy's victorious 1966 campaign for United States Senate in Illinois.

The partnership of Congressman Bell and Dick Blades enjoyed great success and they had many significant legislative accomplishments in the 1960's and 1970's, especially in the areas of education, space and technology, and the environment. Their proudest achievements included initiating the preservation of the Santa Monica Mountains and the Channel Islands, and establishing the San Onofre area as a public beach.

Dick had great respect for the House of Representatives as an institution where diverse people and interests would come together to resolve conflicts. He is an example of what makes this institution work—the dedicated staff member who serves his Representative, Congress, and the country, with honor, wisdom, and loyalty. Dick also respected the electoral process and was known for his keen understanding of the issues. The campaigns he managed spoke honestly and intelligently to the people, and Dick treated the voters as independent citizens capable of exercising good judgment, not as a pliable mass to be manipulated with modern media techniques.

After Congressman Bell's retirement, Dick provided consulting services to Bell Petroleum and embarked on another extraordinary career as a volunteer board member in the non-profit world. All of the skills Dick displayed in the political world were now being used to help charities—many of them very small or new organizations doing innovative work.

Dick's qualities of judgment, wisdom, and ability to get things done, along with his skills in finance, public relations, policy, and personnel, made him a revered and sought after board member in a variety of worthy causes, especially in the areas of health care, disability rights, and literacy. Dick was a life-long asthmatic who ultimately succumbed to respiratory failure. He served as President of the Asthma and Allergy Foundation of Southern California and helped begin the Breathmobile project which brings critical medical services to inner city children. The Breathmobile program has been credited with saving hundreds, if not thousands, of lives, and was later expanded to the entire country.

Dick was also a valued board member and officer of Centro Latino Educacion Popular, which trains Spanish-speaking adults to read and write, the Western Law Center for Disability Rights at Loyola Law School, and the Rose Foundation for Communities and the Environment.

Although Dick was unquestionably a man of the sensible center, he had a diverse collection of friends who ranged from the far right to the far left. He helped to moderate them, but he, in turn, learned from them and was always open to good ideas from any source.

At Dick's memorial service, there was an astonishing array of friends from all walks of life—business, charities, education, politics, and entertainment—and from all stations in life, young and old, the wealthy and those of modest means, celebrities and those whose names have never been in the papers.

What they had in common, along with Dick's friends who could not attend, was deep affection and respect for an extraordinary man who had no children but who touched the lives of many, and who leaves a legacy of achievement and generosity of spirit that is a model for us all.

IN HONOR OF EMILIO MILITO NAVARRO, EUGENE GENE SMITH AND WILMER RED FIELDS

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, today I honor Emilio "Milito" Navarro, Eugene "Gene" Smith, and Wilmer "Red" Fields; three players who have made a celebrated contribution to the baseball history of America.

Emilio Navarro played for the Cuban Stars and is the last known living player from the Eastern Colored League. Considered an excellent hitter, in 1928 Emilio was the regular shortstop and lead off batter for the Cuban Stars and posted a .337 batting average in the following season. Frequently listed as "Milito" in the box scores, he was a star in his homeland of Puerto Rico, and was elected to the Puerto Rican Hall of Fame in 1992.

Eugene Smith played in the Negro Leagues from 1939 to 1950 and pitched for the Cleveland Buckeyes in 1947. He was regarded as a power pitcher with a good fastball and slider, and was one of the "Big Four" on the St. Louis Stars" pitching staff.

Wilmer "Red" Fields was an ace pitcher for the Homestead Grays team that won the National Negro League Championship in 1948. He registered a 7-1 record in league games that year, appeared in the All-Star game, and pitched in two World Series games. After the Grays disbanded, Fields was offered positions with five major league teams, but turned all the offers down. He did, however, play for Toronto in the International League, as well as playing in several Latin American Leagues during winters.

My fellow colleagues, please join with me in honoring these three admirable athletes, whose talents are being recognized at the Third Annual Negro/Hispanic Baseball Legends Celebration this year.

INTRODUCTION OF THE NORTHERN FRONT RANGE ROADLESS AREA AND MOUNTAIN BACKDROP PROTECTION ACT AND THE COLORADO FOREST RESTORATION AND FIRE REDUCTION ACT

HON. MARK UDALL

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. UDALL of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, Colorado's forest lands are one of the things that makes our state a very special place to live. But as our population increases, so do the pressures on our forests and the potential damage that can result from intense wildfires in the areas where residential areas press against the forests.

Today, I am introducing two bills that respond to at least some aspects of these two serious problems. One will provide protection for roadless areas in the Congressional District I represent. The other would put new emphasis on cooperative efforts to restore forest lands and prevent catastrophic forest fires in areas of high risk throughout Colorado.

PROTECTION FOR ROADLESS AREAS

The first bill is the Northern Front Range Roadless Area and Mountain Backdrop Protection Act. Under that bill, the Forest Service would manage over 80,000 acres on the Arapaho-Roosevelt National Forest as "protected roadless areas." All of these areas are within Colorado's Second Congressional District. They are areas that the Forest Service identified as roadless in its 1997 Revision of the Land and Resource Management Plan for the Arapaho-Roosevelt. Most of these areas would be appropriate additions to existing wilderness areas, and they are also included in President Clinton's Roadless Conservation Proposal for the national forests.

The Arapaho-Roosevelt National Forest is within a few minutes drive for more than 2.5 million people in the Front Range Denvermetro area. As a result, it is experiencing increasing use of all kinds, especially recreational use. I have supported the President's roadless area initiative in part because I know how those increasing pressures are affecting the Arapaho-Roosevelt and the other national forests in Colorado. And, with respect to relevant lands within my own Congressional District, I want to build on what the President has proposed. So, my first bill would undergird the President's initiative with a statutory requirement that the Forest Service manage these areas to preserve their roadless qualities until Congress determines otherwise.

With this interim protection in place, the bill would also require the Forest Service to study and evaluate these areas and then make recommendations to Congress regarding their future management. That report would be submitted within three years. In the meantime, and until Congress decides otherwise, these roadless areas would be managed under the "recommended for wilderness" management category in the Forest Plan, and require the Forest Service to study and report to Congress in three years about management options for these lands. The report would include recommendations about the suitability of wilderness designation for some or all of these lands but can also include any other recommendations the Secretary of Agriculture decides to make. The bill will thus maintain all options and allow the Congress to ultimately resolve the status of these roadless lands.

ROCKY FLATS MOUNTAIN BACKDROP STUDY

The bill also contains a section intended to help local communities preserve the Front Range Mountain Backdrop just west of the Rocky Flats Environmental Technology site.

As all Coloradans know, Rocky Flats is just a few miles north and west of Denver. Once, it was a nuclear weapons production facility. But now that mission is over and the task of the Rocky Flats workforce is to carry out a thorough, prompt, and effective cleanup and closure. I strongly support that effort, and am also working to have the prairie land within the site's 6,500 acres protected as wildlife habitat and open space. But I think we need to look beyond the site's perimeters.

So far, development in the Denver-metro area has not yet surrounded the Rocky Flats site. However, growth and sprawl are heading its way. Now is the time to shape the future of this part of the Front Range, and I think we have a real but fleeting opportunity to establish Rocky Flats and lands to its west as a "crown jewel" of open space and wildlife habitat that will be of inestimable value for Coloradans for generations to come. I also think the federal government can help achieve that goal. So, my bill would call on the Forest Service to examine the land ownership patterns west of Rocky Flats, identify lands that are undeveloped, and recommend options on how these areas could be preserved.

FOREST RESTORATION AND WILDFIRE PREVENTION

The second bill I am introducing is the Colorado Forest Restoration and Fire Reduction Act. This bill complements the roadless-area protection bill by addressing some of the most pressing forest issues in other areas—the parts of Colorado's forests that adjoin urban development and that are at greatest risk for intense fires that can despoil watersheds and destroy homes.

As the news headlines continue to report, wildfires on national forests and other forested lands are a serious problem this summer—especially in Colorado. Right now, a major fire is still burning at the Mesa Verde National Park, another fire threatens the watershed of Glenwood Springs, and people are trying to recover from earlier fires that destroyed homes in areas of the Front Range.

Part of the problem results from hot, dry weather. But there are other, contributing factors. For many years, the Forest Service had a policy of trying to suppress nearly every fire, even though fire is an inescapable part of the ecology of western forests like those in Colorado. Today, in many parts of the forests there is an accumulation of underbrush and small diameter trees that is greater than would be the case if there had been more, smaller fires over the years. They provide the extra fuel that can turn a small fire into an intense inferno. Add to that our growing population and increasing development in the places where communities meet the forests-the so-called "urban interface"—and you have a recipe for worse problems ahead.

Properties, lives, and wildlife habitat are at risk, and so is the environment. Uncontrolled wildfires strip the land of its protective vegetative cover, making it highly susceptible to erosion. We have seen what that means in places like Buffalo Creek, where the eventual rain storms wash sediment and forest material into waterways, polluting and clogging sources of drinking water. In addition, wildfires also have serious adverse effects on the quality of the air.

Working with state and local partners, including our state forest service, the U.S. Forest Service has identified the interface areas at greatest risk of fire—the areas they call the "red zone." My second bill deals just with those areas.

Red zone areas in Colorado are situated in regions that contain complex land ownership patterns—frequently involving federal, state, Tribal, county, private and city lands. Those patterns make it difficult for any one agency to deal with the problem and so makes the problem that more intense. My bill would address these problems by establishing a program to share costs and provide incentives for collaborative efforts at forest restoration and fire-prevention projects in the red zone.

The bill calls on the Forest Service to work with state and local agencies, independent scientists, and stakeholder groups to identify priorities and develop projects for forest restoration and fire prevention. The bill spells out clear and sound requirements that such projects would have to meet to be eligible for funding—including preservation of old trees and trees larger than 12" in diameter. It also specifies that preservation of roadless areas would be required, and that all projects would have to meet the requirements of all federal and state environmental laws.

To help assure the integrity of the program, the bill would require establishment of a technical advisory panel, including independent scientists as well as representatives of relevant agencies and stakeholder groups, to provide additional guidelines and set priorities. It would also require that the projects authorized under the bill be monitored and evaluated for their benefits and any potential adverse impacts to make sure the program is working as intended. The bill also authorizes funding to provide the federal share of the costs of the projects developed and implemented under the program.

Ultimately, the objective of this bill is to develop new collaborative relationships between the Forest Service and state, local and private forest experts and landowners—together with the public—to get out on the land and address problems before they become uncontrollable. The theory of this bill is that it is cheaper and more effective to prevent fires than to fight them. Reducing fire risks and restoring natural balance on our forested lands can help us accomplish that goal.

Mr. Speaker, these bills were not written overnight and they do not reflect just my own ideas. In developing them, I have drawn upon the technical expertise of federal and state agencies and have consulted with members of the Colorado conservation community as well as with other Coloradans who are familiar with the resources, values, and problems of our forests. I think these bills are sound, balanced measures that can help address some of the most pressing of those problems. I look forward to working with other Members of the Colorado delegation and the Congress as a whole to achieve the important goals of this legislation.

NOW IS THE TIME TO RENEW THE VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN ACT

HON. MARK UDALL

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. UDALL of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, we've had a busy agenda this week. But one important bill has been missing—the bill to reauthorize the Violence Against Women Act, or "VAWA." The House should take it up without delay

VAWA is very important for Colorado. Through last year, our state received almost $15 million in VAWA grants. That money has helped assist victims of domestic violence, but it has also done much more.

In fact, according to a letter from our Attorney General, Ken Salazar, and his colleagues from other states, VAWA "has enabled us to maximize the effectiveness of our state programs that have made a critical difference in the lives of women and children endangered by domestic violence, sexual assault, and stalking." The current authorization for VAWA expires this year. Because I know the importance of renewing and strengthening this vital measure. I have joined in cosponsoring H.R. 1248, the VAWA reauthorization bill. I was encouraged when the Judiciary Committee approved it for consideration by the full House. But that happened on June 27th—a full month ago-and still the bill has not reached the floor, even though many less important measures have been considered.

I call on the leadership of both parties to bring the VAWA reauthorization bill to the floor without further delay. This is too important a matter to neglect.

A TRIBUTE TO CARY J. BRAIRTON

HON. GARY G. MILLER

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. GARY MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, it is with great pleasure that I celebrate the 50th Birthday of Cary J. Brairton of Pittsford, NY

Mr. Brairton was born on August 19 to his father and mother, James and Arax Brairton in Rochester, NY and has been living in the Rochester-area for all of his 50 years. His father was a member of the Rochester City Council and owner of a small business in the heart of downtown Rochester. Mr. Brairton graduated from the Rochester Institute of Technology in 1972. He has been an employee of the Eber Brothers Corporation for 27 years.

Mr. Brairton has been an active member in the community and to youth development. He has come to the aid of many youth athletic teams to ensure the kids would have the opportunity to play little league baseball, football or soccer by becoming a coach, volunteer or referee when no one else would agree to do

But his biggest achievement has been his devoted love to his two sons. Michael and Scott. Mr. Brairton lost his father in 1963 and grew up much of his life without the benefit of a paternal influence. For this reason, he has been a loving father and role model to his sons. Mr. Brairton's greatest accomplishment has been his overwhelming commitment to encourage and support his children in whatever activities they chose to participate in, whether it was sports, musicals, or other activities. He almost never missed one of his children's activities, even when his older son was playing lacrosse in college six hours away or when his youngest was participating in soccer tournaments all along the eastern shore.

Mr. Brairton will also be celebrating his 28th Wedding Anniversary on August 19. Mr. and Mrs. Brairton met while they were students at Eastridge High in Irondequoit, NY in 1967. The couple weathered the strains of a long distance relationship as Mr. Brairton attended 2 years at Heidelberg College in Ohio while Mrs. Brairton enrolled at Buffalo State. Hundreds of weekend visits to his wife-to-be allowed their love to flourish and in 1972, the two were wed at Saint James Church in Rochester, NY

Cary J. Brairton has been a committed father demonstrating great family values and deserves the congratulations of this Congress on his 50th Birthday and the anniversary of his 28 years as a dedicated husband.

INTRODUCTION OF THE BOOK STAMP ACT JULY 27, 2000

HON, RUSH D. HOLT

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. HOLT. Mr. Speaker, in this new century, an education is more important to Americans than ever before in our nation's history. We have progressed from the agricultural-based economy of our forefathers to one that is knowledge-based and dependent on information and communications technology.

Today, in order to succeed and even just to function in this new economy, Americans must have a solid education and foundation of skills. In addition, Americans must be equipped with the skills necessary to continue learning. They must be prepared to survive in a world of rapid social and technological change.

Literacy is the primary tool needed for lifelong learning. It opens up doors to new opportunities and experiences.

Yet, today, too many Americans are unable to read a single sentence. In fact, nearly 40 percent of our nation's children cannot read at grade-level by the end of the third grade. In disadvantaged communities, this failure rate is a shocking 60 percent. Without the basic skill of literacy, these children are likely to fall to the wayside in our new economy.

We must combat illiteracy. However, we cannot wait until these children start school; we must reach them earlier. We should eagerly seek to give these children the excitement, the satisfaction, the empowerment, and the impetus for growth that comes from reading

Studies have confirmed that reading to young children in the years before age 5 has a profound effect on their ability to learn. Doctors have told us that a child's brain needs intellectual stimulation to grow to its full potential, so we must read to our children from birth through school age. But many families do not have access to children's books. A recent study found that 60 percent of kindergarten children who performed poorly in school did not own a single book.

The Book Stamp Act, which I am introducing today along with my colleagues Mr. UPTON, Mr. ANDREWS, Mr. MILLER, Mr. OWENS, Mr. PAYNE, and Mr. ROMERO-BARCELO, and which was recently introduced in the Senate by Senators Kennedy and Hutchison, will help provide children with their own books before they enter school.

The act authorizes an appropriation of $50 million a year for this purpose. It also creates a special postage stamp, which will feature an early learning character and which will sell at a slightly higher rate than the normal 33 cents, to create additional revenues for the Book Stamp Program.

The resources will be distributed through the Child Care and Development Block Grant to the state child care agency in each state. The state agency then will allocate its funds to local child care research and referral agencies throughout the state on the basis of local need.

These non-profit agencies will work with established book distribution programs such as First Book, Reading is Fundamental, and Reach Out and Read to coordinate the buying of discounted books and the distribution of the books to children.

However, since these young children cannot read on their own. These agencies will also work with parents and child care providers to educate them on the best ways to read to children and the most effective use of books with children at various stages of development.

Illiteracy is a serious problem. For our Nation to continue to thrive in this new century, we must ensure that all children have the ability to read and learn. The Book Stamp Act will help achieve this goal.

I urge all of my colleagues to join me in support of this bill.

HONORING LOUIS' LUNCH ON ITS 105TH ANNIVERSARY

HON. ROSA L. DeLAURO

OF CONNECTICUT

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Speaker, it is with great pleasure that I rise today to celebrate the 105th anniversary of a true New Haven landmark: Louis' Lunch. Recently the Lassen family celebrated this landmark as well as the 100th anniversary of their claim to fame—the invention and commercial serving of one of America's favorites, the hamburger.

A hundred years ago, Louis Lassen, founder of Louis' Lunch, ran a small lunch wagon selling steak sandwiches to local factory workers. A frugal business man, Louis did not like to waste the excess beef from his daily lunch rush. So, he ground up the excess, grilled it, and served it between two slices of bread--without ketchup. With a meat grinder and a streak of that infamous Yankee ingenuity, Louis changed the course of American culinary history, serving America's first hamburger. This is the story that each faithful patron will hear when they visit the small Crown Street luncheonette still owned and operated by the third and fourth generations of the Lassen family. Hamburgers are still the specialty of the house where steak is ground fresh each day and hand molded, still slow cooked on the same turn-of-the-century gas grills, broiled vertically, and served between two slices of toast with your choice of three acceptable garnish: cheese, tomato, and onion. Requests for ketchup or mustard are briskly declined. This is the home of the greatest hamburger in the world--a claim that is not easily contested-perhaps best known for allowing their customers to have a burger their way or not at all.

More than just another diner, Louis' Lunch has held a special place in the hearts of the residents of New Haven for more than a century. Thousands turned out in the 1960s and 1970s when the city announced plans to raze Louis' to make room for a new high rise building—testimony to its immeasurable popularity and special place in our City's history. After fighting City Hall for ten years, Ken Lassen, Louis' grandson, agreed to move the luncheonette to its present Crown Street location. To help with the reconstruction, patrons donated bricks for the new walls. Today, as he takes you on the "tour of the walls", Ken recounts each brick's unique story and can point to stones from Rome's Colosseum, paving bricks from Lisbon, Portugal, even a chunk of rock from the Church of the Holy Sepulchre in Jerusalem. Designated an historic landmark in 1967, it was with great pride that I nominated Louis' Lunch as a part of the Library of Congress' "Local Legacies" project earlier this year. The Lassens and the community of New Haven shared unparalleled excitement when the Library of Congress named Louis' Lunch a "Connecticut Legacy"--nothing could be more true.

The Lassen family has left an indelible mark on our community's history—and our country's history. I know the New Haven community will join me as I stand today to extend my heartfelt congratulations to Ken Lassen and his family on the 105th anniversary of Louis' Lunch. My best wishes for another century of success.

IN CELEBRATION OF THE 65TH AN-NIVERSARY OF SOCIAL SECU-

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to celebrate a great day in our nation's history. On August 14, 1935, President Franklin Delano Roosevelt signed into law the historical Social Security Act. This law has been improving Americans' lives for sixty-five years, and I recognize the anniversary of its signing.

Social Security represents a sacred compact between the generations that benefits both seniors and younger members of our nation. Senior citizens have earned the right to these benefits from a lifetime of work. Social Security has granted our elders the peace to live independently and with dignity. In addition. the great pressures placed on our younger generations to support their elderly parents are lessened because of America's Social Security program.

Complementing retirement benefits, the Social Security Administration also provides citizens with disability, survivor, Medicare, and family benefits. In fact, one in three social security beneficiaries is, in fact, not a retiree. As a result, Social Security has grown into a family protection plan which forms a base of economic security in today's society. In my view, Social Security is the most successful federal program in history.

As President Roosevelt explained upon signing the Social Security Act, "this law . . . represents a cornerstone in a structure which is being built but is by no means complete.' As he predicted, the program has been amended many times throughout the past sixty-five years. With each change, the Social Security Administration has extended its aid to another group of needy Americans. Once again, as Roosevelt foreshadowed, the law has served to "take care of human needs and at the same time provide the United States an economic structure of vastly greater sound-

These social insurance programs have blessed America with a reputation of protecting her citizens. As the Declaration of Independence famously states, our government has the responsibility to secure the rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. In the past sixty-five years, the Social Security Administration has been safeguarding these rights for citizens who otherwise may easily be overlooked. Our great nation has earned its reputation for greatness in partial measure because of the accomplishments the Social Security Administration has achieved in the past sixty-five years.

Mr. Speaker, I congratulate the Social Security Administration, Congress, and the American people for their commitment to the social security system. I look to the past and recognize the magnitude of the Act's effect: I look to the future and envision the achievements that are yet to come. I ask my colleagues to ioin me in this celebration and recognize the sixty-five years that Social Security has been improving America.

NATIONAL ADVISORY COMMISSION ON TAX REFORM AND SIM-PLIFICATION

HON. JIM DeMINT

OF SOUTH CAROLINA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. DEMINT. Mr. Speaker, the journey of a thousand miles begins with a single step. This was true when our founding fathers decided to pledge their lives, their fortunes, and their sacred honor to secure freedom and democracy in our country. It is also true of our work in Congress, where even the most difficult tasks must begin with a single step.

Today we are here to take the first-step on an issue crucial to the American people and to me-fundamental tax reform. My friend ROB PORTMAN and I are introducing legislation creating a national commission on fundamental tax reform and simplification. The Portman/ DeMint bill establishes a commission to study tax reform. and report to Congress with findings and recommendations, so we can go forward.

A similar commission was passed as part of my friend STEVE LARGENT's bill which would sunset the Federal Tax Code and allow Congress to debate a replacement. I am still hopeful the Senate will do the right thing and take up that bill. However, it is becoming increasingly clear that this is an issue that, if we hope to make serious progress, we must have a serious study. A serious and comprehensive report to Congress and the President will allow us to move forward on this issue with some foundation.

The Tax Code has become so intrusive, it invades the daily decisions of families and businesses. I know this from my own experience in starting and running a small business, as well as from raising a family. As Americans, I know we can do better.

There is no question that fundamental tax reform is desperately needed. The Federal Tax Code is 7 million words long, a patchwork maze of complexity and confusion. It is intrusive, invasive, and overly complex—as my constituents continually remind me.

The majority of Americans now turn to tax professionals to prepare their tax forms. This is hard to believe, but it is true. Many have no choice—they simply do not understand all the tricks and traps. Unfortunately, many of these same tax professionals are calling for tax reform and simplification as well. I have spoken with accountants and tax professionals from my district who have told me of their struggles and uncertainty.

This is not just my district. In 1998, Money Magazine asked 46 tax professionals to calculate a hypothetical family's tax responsibilities. Not one got the correct answer, and no two even got the same answer. When tax professionals do not understand the Federal Tax Code, what about American families?

There are exemptions you may never know you qualified for, and deductions you forgot to take. There are different rates, and different dates by which you need to file different forms to qualify for those rates. There are ways in which money must be moved through a complex series of traps to avoid paying maximum taxes, and there are mine fields of forms you may never have known existed, which you needed to file last week to avoid the fine you just received. And there are people who make their living mapping out the maze and guiding others through this code. I do not fault these people-it is a good living, and they are only dealing with something that we in Congress created. But is this the best we can do? Is this in keeping with a government of the people, by the people, for the people?

The Internal Revenue Service, which is generally made up of honorable men and women, has been given the task of managing this monster. It takes 136,000 people to administer our federal tax laws. The FBI employs less than 30,000—and they combat terrorism.

Since 1986, there have been over 5400 modifications to the Tax Code—and it is still not fixed.

We must return fairness and simplicity to our federal tax policy. I recognize this will not be an easy task, I know that some are comfortable with the way things are, but I believe it is the right thing to do.

I believe we are most secure when we are most free, and the complexity and confusion of the federal tax code hinders our freedom. I am convinced that we can do better.

The journey of a thousand miles begins with a single step. When I came to Congress, I came with a dream of increasing freedom for people. In this, I continue to dream of a world in which Americans live under a tax code that is simple and fair, a code that makes sense. To get there, it takes courage. To get there, we must take the first step.

I invite my colleagues to cosponsor the Portman/DeMint tax reform commission bill and help us move forward on this issue in a responsible way. We can get a handle on this issue, and get a foothold to move forward with fundamental tax reform. This is what the American people have entrusted us to do, and I ask for your help in securing the future for our country.

KASHMIRI LEADER RAISES AU-TONOMY ISSUE—OTHER STATE LEADERS FOLLOW HIS LEAD

HON. DAN BURTON

OF INDIANA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, the Chief Minister of Kashmir, Farooq Abdullah, recently called for greater autonomy for the state of Kashmir. However, Abdullah is closely allied with India's ruling BJP, and the BJP government firmly rejected the demand. Other state leaders like Gurcharan Singh Tohra and Simrangid Singh Mann asked Chief Badal to pass a similar measure in the Punjab Assembly.

Under India's constitution, Kashmir was supposed to have a special status, but India has systematically chipped away at it. How would Chief Minister Abdullah make sure that they do not do so under his autonomy plan? The Indian government has imposed President's Rule on Punjab nine times. How would Punjabi leaders ensure that it would not happen again if Punjab has autonomy?

When India forcibly and illegally occupied Kashmir, they promised that there would be a plebiscite on Kashmir's status. That promise has not been kept. The Sikhs in Punjab were promised "the glow of freedom" in Punjab. That promise, too, has been broken. India proclaims its democratic principles loudly, but fails to live up to them when the time comes.

Mr. Speaker, the book The Politics of Genocide by Iderjit Singh Jaijee reports that the Indian government has murdered over 250,000 Sikhs since 1984, over 70,000 Kashmiri Muslims, more than 200,000 Christians in Nagalim, and thousands of others. According to Amnesty International, thousands of innocent civilians are being held as political prisoners. Christmas of 1998 unleashed a waive of violence against Christians that has resulted in church burnings and bombings, the murders of priests and missionaries, and other atrocities. Just recently, two extensive, independent studies concluded that the Indian government killed 35 Sikhs in Chithi Singhpora. Amnesty International has also said that India is responsible. How is autonomy going to prevent these things from happening?

America should support self-determination for all the peoples and nations of South Asia. We should act against the atrocities by cutting off American aid against India until basic human rights are enjoyed by all people within its borders. We should declare India a terrorist nation. And we should declare our support for self-determination in South Asia by calling for a free and fair plebiscite on the question of independence. Not autonomy, but independence. That is the only solution, the only way to bring true freedom to all the peoples and nations of South Asia. If India is truly a democracy, why can't it allow the people of Kashmir to have the plebiscite fifty-two years ago? Why can't it allow the people of Khalistan, Nagalim, and the other nations seeking their freedom to vote on their status the democratic way? Is that too much to ask of democracy?

IN RECOGNITION OF OFFICER MOSES HART, UPON HIS RETIRE-MENT FROM THE UNITED STATES CAPITOL POLICE FORCE

HON. ALBERT RUSSELL WYNN

OF MARYLAND

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. WYNN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor a constituent and one of Capitol Hill's finest, Officer Moses Hart. Officer Hart was appointed to the United States Capitol Police Force on October 15, 1973. He will be retiring on July 31, 2000, after almost 27 years of distinguished service. He has spent his entire career assigned to the House Division of the Capitol Police. For the past 10 years, he has been assigned to the Ford House Office Building. Over these years, Moses has made a tremendous difference in the lives of Members of the House, Congressional staff, and visitors from throughout the world.

I wish him well in his retirement and hope he will take the time to enjoy fishing, one of his favorite hobbies. In addition, I am sure he will devote time to his number one love, barbering. Moses has been a licensed barber for more than 30 years.

Mr. Speaker, I ask that my colleagues join me in extending our sincerest appreciation and best wishes to Moses Hart upon his retirement for the United States Capitol Police Force

NATIONAL UNDERGROUND RAILROAD FREEDOM CENTER ACT

SPEECH OF

HON. BARON P. HILL

OF INDIANA

Tuesday, July 25, 2000

Mr. HILL of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of H.R. 2919, the National Underground Railroad Freedom Center Act. As the Representative of a Southern Indiana district that housed many "stops" on the Underground Railroad, I am a co-sponsor of this legislation to promote preservation and public awareness of the Underground Railroad and those who helped African American slaves escape to freedom in the North.

As we all know, the Underground Railroad was an informal system of transporting runaway slaves to freedom in the North and Canada. The "stations" of the Railroad were homes of slavery's staunchest opponents, and the "conductors" took the fugitives at night to the next station along the secret routes. The brave individuals who took these runaway slaves into their homes, fed them, hid them from authorities, and transported them to the next stop up the road did so at high risk, as those who aided fugitives were prosecuted, especially after the passage of the Fugitive Slave Act of 1850.

I am proud to say that Southern Indiana played a key role in the Underground Railroad, one of the most powerful and sustained multiracial human rights movements in world history. The Ohio River, which separates Kentucky and Indiana, represented the border between slavery in the South and freedom in the North. There were twelve major crossing points for runaway slaves along the Ohio River, three of which were in my Congressional district. Once the slaves crossed the Ohio River, they were not only in free territory, Indiana, but they had placed that wide river between themselves and their pursuers.

In Indiana, fugitives could find refuge at Bill Crawford's farm near the town of Corydon. Conductors transported fugitives from the mouth of Indian Creek in Corydon across Jackson County or Jennings County on their way towards Ohio. Those who took a different route over the Ohio River found refuge in Jeffersonville and Rising Sun. John B. Todd's house in Madison, the site of some of the busiest Underground Railroad activity in the state, was a well-known safe haven for escapees. There were an estimated 600 to 800 successful escapees through Kentucky and Indiana each year due to these brave efforts.

Mr. Speaker, I salute both the Hoosiers who helped the fugitive slaves through the Underground Railroad and the slaves whose love for freedom motivated them to risk their lives by escaping to the North. The Freedom Center in Cincinnati, Ohio, will facilitate a greater understanding of our nation's history and honor those who risked their own freedom to stand by their conviction that no person should be slave to another.

A TRIBUTE TO THE 2000 "SPIRIT OF ACHIEVEMENT AWARD" WINNERS

HON. WILLIAM O. LIPINSKI

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. LIPINSKI. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate the participants of my 2000 Spirit of Achievement Award program. In 1982, when the current citizens of the 3rd District of Illinois elected me to represent them in the United States Congress, I introduced this very successful program. Since then, every middle school in the 23rd Ward of Chicago annually selects a graduating 8th grade boy and girl who they feel represents overall outstanding academic achievement, community service and extracurricular activities. Today, it gives me great pleasure to recognize the hard work of 28 young achievers and future leaders from the 23rd Ward of Chicago.

TAKE YOUR KIDS TO VOTE DAY

HON. CONSTANCE A. MORELLA

OF MARYLAND

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, today I introduce a piece of legislation that will designate November 7, 2000 as National Take Your Kids to Vote Day.

Since 1972, voter participation in national elections has dropped dramatically. In 1972, nearly two-thirds of eligible adults cast their ballots. In 1996, the last Presidential election, less than half of all eligible voters (43 percent) exercised their right to vote. Even more disturbing, however, is the drop-off in voter participation rates among younger adults, ages 18–24. Since the 1972 election there has been nearly a 20-percentage point decline, with only 32 percent going to the polls in 1996.

If we are going to turn this trend around, we have to start with our children. Parents need to talk to their children about the importance of voting. In fact, parents, if they have the opportunity, should take their children to the polls on Election Day.

Studies indicate that young people whose parents vote in every election are twice as likely to vote as those whose parents vote infrequently or not at all. And it's even more important for parents to talk to their children about the value of voting and democracy. Children whose parents talk to them about government and politics are far more likely to vote when they become adults. Kids Voting USA, a nonprofit, nonpartisan organization that has been working to involve youth in the election process for nearly a decade now says that "Taking your child to the polls is one of the most important things you can do as a citizen and parent."

This is something that all of us—Republicans, Democrats, and Independents—should agree upon. Democracy is too important to waste. I urge my colleagues to support this legislation and help make voting a family tradition

SANTA ROSA AND SAN JACINTO MOUNTAINS NATIONAL MONU-MENT ACT OF 2000

SPEECH OF

HON. MARY BONO

OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mrs. BONO. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of my legislation, H.R. 3676, the Santa Rosa and San Jacinto Mountains National Monument Act.

Congress has an opportunity to enact legislation which was originated by the constituents of California's 44th Congressional District. When these residents came to see me and suggested that I introduce legislation to designate our local mountains a National Monument, I decided it was an idea worth pursuing.

For years, my family has enjoyed these scenic wonders and recreational opportunities that are abundant in this remarkable range. I have often hiked the canyons and hills above our home in Palm Springs, sharing with my children, Chianna and Chesare, the beauty of an ecosystem that continues to thrive despite its close proximity to a highly urbanized community. I have developed a profound respect for the people who, over the past century, have served as stewards of these lands. They have done a remarkable job in balancing the preservation of these mountains with the inevitable development that has occurred in Southern California.

It is appropriate that we also recall the original caretakers of this land, the Cahuilla people. For centuries, the Agua Caliente Band of Cahuilla Indians made the canyons and hills above Palm Springs their home. And the Cahuilla people roamed throughout the desert and mountains of this entire region living in harmony with this unique environment. Their culture and heritage is an integral part of the history of this region. And even today, the Indian Canyons near Palm Springs offer a welcome respite from the hectic pace of the urban areas of the Coachella Valley.

One of the tangible benefits that will be derived from this Monument designation is the preservation of tribal lands and historic artifacts. The Agua Caliente Tribe has been a partner in this process from the start, and I want to thank the Tribal Council and all the Cahuilla people for their support of this legislation.

In crafting this bill, I was confronted with a challenge to balance traditional uses and private property rights that the people of the region enjoy with the need to preserve these mountain vistas.

The intention of H.R. 3676 is not to diminish the decisionmaking authority of Local Government (City, County, Water District, School District, etc.,) over land use decisions on private property located next to or inside the boundary of the proposed Santa Rosa and San Jacinto National Monument.

The bill provides that "nothing in the legislation shall be construed as affecting any private property rights within the boundaries of the National Monument". Therefore, if a local City or County has a General Plan designation on property within the Monument boundary, for urban land uses such as hotel, resort, golf course or residential uses, then the legislative intent of Local Government shall not be changed, modified or impeded solely by this Federal Law.

H.R. 3676 has eliminated the concept of buffer zones or protective perimeters around the boundary of the proposed National Monument. This elimination of buffer zones is designed to protect private lands located both on the outside and inside of Monument boundaries. The intent is to protect private land nearby and within the boundary from any form of Federal Monument regulation by this Congress or the Federal Administration. The right to use private land by private land owners is paramount in H.R. 3676.

This bill's intent would not allow any federal administrative agency the existence of this proposed Monument to exact mitigation, money or other land use restrictions on private lands, directly or indirectly. The regulation of land use and authority over private lands inside or near to the Monument boundaries is solely vested in Local Government and is totally outside the purview of this bill.

In addition, I would like to emphasize that no existing Federal law or Federal Agency governing air quality, water quality or any other regulated resource shall seek to regulate or affect local land use control over private land near to or inside the Monument with any reference to a negative impact on this proposed National Monument by virtue of impacts on the above mentioned regulated resources.

So, we returned to the fundamental concept of how our system of government should work. I went directly to the people of the 44th district and sought their participation and input on how best to draft legislation that would reflect their commitment to both environmental preservation and private property rights protection. The result of their efforts is contained in the bill before you today.

Mr. Speaker, the best way our constituents can be heard on matters such as these is if Congress, not the Administration, takes this action. With all due respect to those who serve in Washington, the people who live in this area know better than any federal worker how to resolve these issues. Therefore, it was encouraging that early on, the Secretary of the Interior took a personal interest in this effort and publicly supported the Congressional process as the preferred vehicle for this designation. I thank the Secretary and Bureau of Land Management offices out of Washington, Sacramento and Palm Springs for working with me on this issue.

With this bill, we are able to protect private property rights with strong buffer zone language, willing seller provisions and clearly worded access language. And we are able to further protect these mountains by prohibiting future withdrawals, curbing motorized vehicle use and controlling cattle grazing.

I have said many times that I would not go forth with a bill which does not protect the rights of those individuals who live within the proposed boundary lines and those who live right at the foot of the mountains. This bill strikes an appropriate balance by protecting the rights of affected constituents as well as these unique mountains. I wish to thank Chairman HANSEN and his able staff, Allen Freemyer and Tod Hull, for assisting me in this process so that I could achieve this balance.

In addition, I would like to thank the Coachella Valley Mountains Conservancy under the direction of Bill Havert, the Desert Chapter of the Building Industry Association and its Executive Director Ed Kibbey and the local branch of the Sierra Club and its head, Joan Taylor.

Too often, environmentalists and private property rights advocates are at odds with one another. In my heart, I believe that we can work to achieve the goals of each group for the betterment of all. It may be the more difficult course to chose, but one well worth taking. So, I would also like to thank my many colleagues, my Legislative Director, Linda Valter and the rest of my staff who have helped me along this way.

Mr. Speaker, as a child, my parents drove our family all over this wonderful country, visiting National Parks and awe inspiring lands throughout the West. Now, my constituents have given me the opportunity to do something that will allow future families the same privilege. I hope you will all join me to achieve this worthy goal.

OCEANS ACT OF 2000

SPEECH OF

HON. ANNA G. ESHOO

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 25, 2000

Ms. ESHOO. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of S. 2327, The Oceans Act of 2000. This important bill pays tribute to and increases support for one of the most important environmental resources we have—our oceans.

This bill would establish a 16-member Commission on Ocean Policy to review existing federal ocean policy and make recommendations to Congress on a new, coordinated, comprehensive policy.

The oceans play a vital role in the daily lives of millions of Americans. Not only do we go to the ocean for recreation but we also depend upon the resources for our survival. Coastal communities like those in my congressional district, use the ocean for fishing, tourism, and business, among other things. Our oceans also play an important role in the ecological system by providing habitat for numerous species of life and influencing whether we will reduce or worsen other environmental threats such as global warming, flooding, water pollution, endangered species survival, and coral reefs existence.

The coasts and oceans have seen a flood of new development and population migration over the past few decades. In fact, approximately 50 percent of the United States population now live in coastal areas. This will only increase in the future with estimates expecting 75 percent of our population to live in coastal areas by 2025.

We need to ensure that we have a coordinated policy to deal with the pressures our oceans and coastal areas face. Our last effort to update our national policies on oceans was the Commission on Marine Science, Engineering, and Resources—known as the Stratton Commission—in 1969. I'm pleased that many of the Commission's recommendations are now the law of the land, but it has been far too long since we last updated our ocean policies.

State and local jurisdictions have enacted numerous laws and policies to deal with the environmental problems that have occurred in our oceans and coastal communities. This has resulted in overlapping and conflicting rules between the federal and state levels. The bill we consider today will help alleviate this problem by bringing ocean policy into the 21st Century by creating new coordinated and comprehensive policies.

I'm proud to be a co-sponsor of the House version of The Oceans Act of 2000 that my good friend from California, Mr. FARR, introduced. His work on this issue has inspired me and has done a great deal to ensure that our oceans are taken care of.

I urge all of my colleagues to support this important bill today and I thank the leadership for bringing it before the House for consideration.

TRIBUTE TO THE GREATER NEW HOPE MISSIONARY BAPTIST CHURCH

HON. NICK LAMPSON

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. LAMPSON. Mr. Speaker, today I recognize the Greater New Hope Missionary Baptist Church as it hosts the inaugural session of the American Baptist General Convention of Texas Congress of Christian Workers & State Youth Convention. I want to congratulate Pastor William H. King, III who's leadership touches his congregation and the community in somany ways. I would also like to welcome Pastor Adrian Johnson, president of the convention, along with the young people attending to the city of Dickinson.

Today's youth are growing up in a world very different from the one I knew years ago. We live in an age where most families require two incomes to make ends meet, and nearly half of all marriages end in divorce. Our children simply do not have as much supervision or guidance as we did. Add to that, the dangers of drugs and the prevalence of gangs and violence in our schools—as any parent knows, it is not an easy time to raise a family or to be a student.

My father died when I was a young boy, leaving my mother to care for me and my brothers and sister. She couldn't have done it alone. In those days, neighbors looked out for each other and watched out for each other's kids. Our family received support from the entire community. In fact, our friends and neighbors considered us an extension of their own families. That's an important reason why my siblings and I were able to achieve our goals and live the American Dream.

Mr. Speaker, now more than ever, our schools, churches, synagogues, mosques, and temples need to stand together with our families to set an example for our children. Our kids are the future and we must invest as much time and energy into their well-being as possible. I offer my sincere congratulations to the Greater Hope Missionary Baptist Church and all of the conventioneers as they come together next week in spirit and in faith to learn and grow with one another.

IN HONOR OF THE 10TH CONGRES-SIONAL DISTRICT YOUTH CON-GRESS

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, today I honor the 10th Congressional District Youth Congress, whose work on school violence is an inspiring vision of the potential for peace in the human spirit. The tireless work of these students stands as a testament to the ability of youth to lay the foundation for long lasting peace in our schools and communities.

The 10th Congressional District Youth Congress convened in 1998 to work on advancing democratic principles by involving youth in activities to improve their schools and communities. Providing an open forum for discussion, the Youth Congress brings students together to establish themselves as a strong voice in community issues and initiatives.

A student run organization, the Youth Congress is an advocate for parent and community participation in shaping students to reach their maximum potential. The Youth Congress endeavors to embrace and promote all forms of diversity in race, religion, gender, and sexual orientation, and works to bring understanding and acceptance to every aspect of local schools and communities. The students work to achieve these goals through promoting nonviolent organizing principles, and encouraging their schools to actively embrace peace.

Concerned about the overwhelming presence of violence in their schools and a growing intolerance for diversity, the Youth Congress conducted a year long study of all aspects of violence, including peaceful resolutions. The students assembled a district-wide coalition of public officials, police forces, school administrators, teachers and parents, to form a network of experience, expertise, and idea exchange. Drawing on this wealth of knowledge, the Youth Congress drafted a resolution to encourage and inspire action by their school administrators and the government officials.

The action points of the resolution are as follows:

We, the Students of the 10th Congressional District Youth Congress, for our safety and continued growth as problem solvers, critical thinkers, and involved citizens, urge you to adopt the following policies and programs:

Establish a core curriculum throughout all high schools on conflict resolution and diversity education. This program should devote time evenly to nonviolent conflict resolution training and in-depth studies of diversity training and acceptance. The diversity training should include, but not be limited to, studies of the civil rights movement, gay and lesbian issues, native American history, a study of the Holocaust, and a wide range of cultural and ethnic education studies.

Implement peer mediation and other proven student-to-student problem-solving initiatives.

Form a parent/student advisory board and task force charged with development and promotion of honor codes and disciplinary policies. The advisory board and task force will work to increase parent education and establish workshops to help parents teach and support nonviolent and cooperative problem-solving for families and communities.

Establish student review boards with oversight of honor codes and disciplinary policies. The review board will also promote on-going conflict resolution awareness and training for all students and staff.

Establish a policy that no student be removed from the student population without due process, and a plan for the student's eventual reentry or a clear and specific action plan for the student and family.

Review the role of uniformed and non-uniformed police officers as well as security staff. Promote the role of police and security as facilitators or models of effective conflict resolution. Police officials should be resources to encourage students and staff to respect differences, as well as being informed liaisons with youth- and family-serving organizations in the community.

Work to reduce class size to create an atmosphere conducive to appropriate learning and one that is less prone to create conflict.

Provide access to mental health services, through creative partnerships with community-based health and mental health providers. Establish the presence in all schools of a full range of mental health services for students and staff. Special emphasis should be placed on continuing staff training, assessment and mental health counseling for all students and families, and establishing strong links with community social service agencies.

Pass reasonable and uniform gun control laws within our cities, including registration and safety lock laws.

Study the impact of a culture that among other things, has sold violence as entertainment and promotes insensitivity to human suffering. Encourage print and electronic news media to balance their coverage of tragedy, terror, death and disaster with attention to the aspects of human existence that ennoble, enrich and empower students, families and communities and in doing so begin to tell new stories about all of us

The students and youth of the Cleveland area will play a significant role in replacing our culture of violence with a culture of peace. The model they set forth this day can be used as a model in cities all across our nation.

My fellow colleagues, please join me in honoring the work of the 10th Congressional District Youth Congress, as these students continue to lead the way in establishing long lasting peace in our schools and communities.

BRING GEN. AUGUSTO PINOCHET TO JUSTICE IN THE UNITED STATES

HON. GEORGE MILLER

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, the murder in Washington, D.C. of Orlando Letelier and his assistant Roni Karpen Moffit by the Chilean intelligence agency (DINA) has been a point of contention for the Chilean and United States governments since it occurred in September of 1976. Letelier was an important figure in the democratically elected government of President Salvador Allende and he came to this country after being imprisoned and beaten in Chile and then released by the Pinochet dictatorship from the position he had held. Chile's ambassador to the U.S. There is compelling evidence that Gen. Pinochet ordered his assassination. Moffit died because she happened to be driving in the car with him which had been wired with a bomb.

Now that Pinochet has had his immunity revoked by a Chilean court, U.S. authorities have begun to review whether sufficient grounds exist to authorize his extradition.

Joshua G. Hill, a Research Associate with the Washington-based Council on Hemispheric Affairs (COHA), authored a brief research memorandum on Pinochet's involvement in the assassinations and steps being taken to bring him to justice. I commend to my colleagues this brief paper on a case that has remained of such great importance to so many people in the U.S. and Chile.

"Pinochet and the Letelier Case," by Joshua Hill, research associate, Council on Hemispheric Affairs, Washington, D.C.

PINOCHET AND THE LETELIER CASE
BACKGROUND

Chilean dictator Augusto Pinochet's seventeen-year reign was one of terror and murder. Not only were well over three thousand political opponents killed or "disappeared" in Chile (including several U.S. citizens), but Pinochet's murderous group extended into the United States as well. Orlando Letelier, one of the most famous Chilean dissidents living abroad was murdered September 21, 1976 on the streets of Washington, D.C. Now that the Santiago Court of Appeals has removed General Pinochet's immunity, the U.S. Department of Justice is reviewing the possible extradition of Pinochet to stand trial for the car bombing murders of Letelier and Roni Moffitt, an American colleague of Letelier's at Washington's Institute for Policy Studies. According to the evidence presented at the time of the trial, the bomb was detonated by remote control. Letelier was killed instantly, while Roni Moffitt died when a metal shard pierced her body. Her husband, Michael, who was in the back seat, miraculously survived the blast.

THE INITIAL TRIALS

The Department of Justice led by Attorney General Janet Reno reopened the Letelier case once Pinochet returned to Chile after being held under house arrest, in Great Brit-Accusations arising in Chilean and ain. Spanish courts have rejuvenated interest in bringing Pinochet to justice for the fatal car bombing. In a 1978 U.S. federal trial, Gen. Manuel Contreras, the former head of the Chilean National Intelligence Directive (DINA) was convicted along with seven others, including the DINA operation director, Pedro Espinoza, in the deaths of Letelier and Moffitt. In subsequent trials between 1978 and 1990, two more DINA operatives and two Cuban exiles were also convicted. The Espinoza trial exposed evidence that could have possibly implicated Pinochet in the murders, but until now, Pinochet has been able to hide behind his immunity clause that he himself implemented before he left office.

THE MOUNTING EVIDENCE AGAINST PINOCHET

In March and April of this year, the U.S. Justice Department and FBI investigated and interviewed witnesses in Chile They were allowed to submit questions through a Chilean judge to forty-two subpoenaed people. John Dinges, a journalist and author who obtained a secret memo from a Chilean reporter, claims that an affidavit exists attesting to the existence of an order from Pinochet to Espinoza to murder Letelier. Compounding this testimony, it is a fact that Pinochet revoked Letelier's Chilean citizenship only ten days before his assassination in a response to growing outcries by Letelier against Chile's atrocious human rights policy. "What was important to me about the stripping of his citizenship was the timing of it-just 10 days before the assassination," said E. Lawrence Barcella Jr., a former federal prosecutor who won two other cases against Chileans involved in the murder of Letelier. "It clearly shows that the efforts of Letelier was making to bring pressure on Chile-were working. He was getting under the junta's skin."

After his imprisonment in the United States, the Chilean government sentenced Contreras in 1995 to seven years for murder. Since it is highly doubtful that Contreras was acting without the President's approval, this conviction strengthens the case against Pinochet. In fact, in Contreras's 1997 affidavit, he stated that no DINA missions were ever undertaken without prior consent from Pinochet.

U.S. DOMESTIC PRESSURE IS APPLIED

Adding to the domestic political pressure in the U.S., on May 26 California Congress-men George Miller and thirty-four other Congressmen sent a letter to President Clinton to insist that the U.S. continue to press the Chilean government for greater assistance in carrying out the investigation of Pinochet's complicity. They labeled the Letelier case the worst incident of terrorism committed by a foreign government on U.S. soil and the letter requested the president to focus on discussing the investigation in his meeting with Chilean President Ricardo Lagos in Berlin on June 2. It also called for the possible extradition of Pinochet to the United States if the evidence continues to point toward a significant connection between the former Chilean dictator and Letelier's murder.

The extradition of Pinochet may be unlikely due to his advanced age and ailing health, but many members of Congress and others still are calling for a trial and a conviction to reinforce the principle that the U.S. will not tolerate terrorism on its soil. The Letelier case represents the effort to demonstrate that no one is above the law, not even a former dictator and self-proclaimed president.

INTRODUCTION OF THE ISRAEL DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS ACT

HON. JOSEPH CROWLEY

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. CROWLEY. Mr. Speaker, today, I am introducing legislation, along with Congress-woman NITA LOWEY, in an effort to correct a grave injustice being committed against our friend and ally in the Middle East; Israel.

Many of my colleagues may not be aware that a number of nations have not established full diplomatic relations with Israel. Israel currently maintains diplomatic relations with 162 countries. Approximately 25 countries do not have any diplomatic relations with Israel at all. Another 4 countries have only limited relations.

In order for Israel to be a full member of the world community, she must establish diplomatic relations. The Israeli Embassy tells me that Israel is actively seeking to establish and upgrade their relations with several countries. This has proven difficult with many of the Islamic nations, such as Pakistan and Indonesia.

In 1994, Representative Lee Hamilton had language included in the State Department Foreign Relations FY94–95 Authorization bill that stated the Secretary of State should make the issue of Israel's diplomatic relations a priority and urge countries that receive U.S. assistance to establish full diplomatic relations with Israel.

Unfortunately, despite this provision, the U.S. government has not made this issue a priority.

At the beginning of this year, during an International Relations Committee hearing, I asked Secretary of State Madeleine Albright about Israel's diplomatic relations with countries receiving U.S. assistance. The Secretary replied that she considers Israel's relations with the world community and other nations essential to peace and stability and has been actively encouraging countries, such as Indonesia, to establish full relations with Israel. I could not agree more.

I believe the U.S. should be doing everything possible to help Israel establish these relations. In fact, Congresswoman LOWEY and I worked together to include a provision in the Report to the FY 2001 Foreign Operations Appropriations bill that urges Israel's Arab neighbors to establish full diplomatic relations with Israel.

However, more needs to be done. That is why Congresswoman LOWEY and I are introducing the "Israel Diplomatic Relations Act," to help promote Israel's role in the international community.

Our legislation spells out clearly the importance of Israel's status in the international community and the need for Israel to receive the recognition she deserves. It also requires an annual report to Congress by the U.S. Department of State on U.S. government activities to help promote Israel's diplomatic relations in the world community.

This report is of critical importance because it will require our embassies to focus attention on Israel's diplomatic relations.

I urge my colleagues to help us promote peace and stability in the Middle East by supporting and cosponsoring this critical legislation.

HONORING NORM ANTINETTI

HON. GARY A. CONDIT

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. CONDIT. Mr. Speaker, today I honor a very special person, Mr. Norm Antinetti as he enters into a well-deserved retirement after 40 years of dedicated service to Oakdale High School.

Norm's list of accomplishments is impressive. He has the distinction of holding the longest tenure in the history of Oakdale High. During that career he coached football, baseball and the love of his life, basketball.

There's a saying in Oakdale, Mr. Speaker: If you grew up in Oakdale and played basketball, you know Norm. He's as much a fixture on the court as his red Oakdale Mustangs baseball cap or jacket is on him.

As a coach, he guided teams to four Valley Oak League championships and won four other major tournament championships. He coached the Kiwanis Large Schools South All-Star basketball team twice and started Oakdale's 30-year-old Rotary Holiday Classic Basketball Tournament.

He's been named the California Interscholastic Federation—San Joaquin Athletic Director of the Year, Stanislaus District Coach of the Year, Valley Oak League Varsity Coach of the Year and Fellowship of Christian Athletes Coach of the Year to name only a few of his accolades.

It is rare that we are able to recognize such a selfless person. He is a fitting example of what is right about getting involved with our young people and being a positive role model for them.

I consider it a privilege to call him friend and am very proud to ask my colleagues to join me in honoring Norm Antinetti.

HONORING MINNIE ELIZABETH SAPP

HON. VAN HILLEARY

OF TENNESSEE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. HILLEARY. Mr. Speaker, it is with great joy that today I honor Minnie Elizabeth Sapp, who recently celebrated her one-hundredth birthday. Mrs. Sapp had the rare fortune of seeing a complete century unfold. It was on July 12, 1900 that Mrs. Sapp was born—in the log house built by her grandfather, James Waymon Mitchell, on Lost Creek in White County, and it was on July 12, 2000 that we celebrated her one-hundredth birthday.

On Christmas Day in 1921, Mrs. Sapp married Homer Floyd Sapp in the same room in the log house where she was born. The couple traveled by buggy to Homer's father's home, at what is now Rim Rock Mesa at Bon Air. Six years later they moved to a forty-acre farm on Corolla Road.

The couple had seven children. The two boys died as infants, and sadly one daughter, Helen, passed away at 14. The other four daughters survived: Josephine, Norma, Evelyn, and Betty. Although her husband Homer died in 1980, Mrs. Sapp continues to live at the farm that the couple moved to 73 years ago.

In 1993, Mrs. Sapp wrote her personal memoirs, and among her memories are recollections of lighting the house with coal lamps and making lye and soap. The United States has changed much since the days of her childhood, but her memories of quilting, walking barefoot to free school and later attending boarding school at Pleasant Hill Academy, carrying water from the spring, and keeping the fire going year round have shaped a strong, loving woman who is devoted to her family and friends.

Two weeks ago I had the honor of attending Mrs. Sapp's birthday celebration, and on the 16th of July the Bon Air United Methodist Church honored her with a service, singing, and presentation of a plaque. The family and friends who surround her serve as a testament to the impact this amazing woman has on all who meet her.

Truly, Minnie Elizabeth Sapp is a blessing to her community. Mrs. Sapp's devotion to family and religion has seen her through 100 years, and I am confident that it is her love of life which will fill every day that is to come. That is why it is in the spirit of all who know and love her that I wish to congratulate Mrs. Sapp on her one-hundredth birthday celebration.

IN RECOGNITION OF THE CONTRIBUTIONS MADE BY FRANK PUCKETT

HON. CHARLES W. STENHOLM

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Speaker, today I draw my colleagues' attention to the years of service that Mr. Frank Puckett has provided to the city of Abilene and I congratulate Frank upon his retirement from the Abilene Reporter-News, the largest newspaper in the 17th Congressional District where he was employed for 19 years. Both with the newspaper and in the community, Frank's leadership has been tireless and productive.

It took Frank awhile to find his way to us out in West Texas. Having begun his life in Indiana, he journeyed through the wilderness of Ohio and Illinois before making it to the Promised Land of Abilene in 1981. We're glad he persevered.

Frank joined the Reporter-News in 1981 as executive vice president and general manager. It took him only two years to be promoted to the position of president and then in 1995 he assumed the publisher's mantle.

While his role with the newspaper has been significant, it may be that his involvement with the city of Abilene has been even more farreaching. During the 1980s when the Texas economy presented numerous challenges to local residents, Frank was instrumental in providing the leadership necessary to move towards greater economic development and security. He chaired ACT-NOW, which successfully orchestrated Abilene's economic recovery. He also served on the boards of the Chamber of Commerce, the West Texas Rehabilitation Center, Abilene Industrial Foundation. Hendrick Home for Children. Tax Increment Financing District, Abilene Improvement Corp and Abilene Community Foundation.

With Dyess Air Force Base fulfilling such a significant role in Abilene's economy, Frank took on a major responsibility when he became chairman of the Military Affairs Committee for Abilene's Chamber of Commerce. In that capacity, he has focused on helping the base secure new missions and update current facilities. With Frank, I share a fond hope that Dyess will one day house the Air Borne Laser program. In recognition of his contributions, Frank has been named Outstanding Citizen by both the Strategic Air Command and the Air Mobility Command.

While all of us in Abilene join in wishing Frank the very best in his retirement from the newspaper, none of us expect or hope to see Frank's retirement from all of the other many activities which have made his presence in Abilene so valuable. We know that he has much yet to contribute and we look forward to our continued mutual efforts to strengthen our beloved community and District.

COMMEMORATING HUMBOLDT COUNTY'S PARTICIPATION IN THE NINTH ANNUAL RELAY FOR LIFE.

HON. MIKE THOMPSON

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. THOMPSON of California. Mr. Speaker, today I recognize Larry Olson and the citizens of Humboldt County, California for their recent efforts in the fight against cancer. At the Ninth Annual "Relay for Life" on July 14th and 15th, 2000, the local chapter of the American Cancer Society raised a record-breaking $640.000.

Mr. Larry Olson was the event's chairman and under his leadership the Humboldt County

"Relay for Life" was the top fundraising community in the state of California and one of the top ten nationwide for the third consecutive year. The spirit and the generosity of the people of the North Coast are what make this "Relay For Life" such a success. Hundreds of individuals, small businesses and organizations made generous donations. Their dedication and commitment should echo across the nation.

This 24-hour event embodies the spirit of community and fellowship. There were 232 teams who competed, each consisting of 12 members. Combined with hundreds of volunteers, the total number of participants exceeded 3,500. Among the hundreds of participants were over 500 cancer patients and survivors. Their participation underscores the sense of hope that one day there will be a cure to this devastating disease.

Mr. Speaker, it is appropriate at this time that we acknowledge the outstanding accomplishments of Larry Olson and the people of Humboldt County for their effort in the fight against cancer.

THE HOUSING FINANCE REGULATORY IMPROVEMENT ACT

HON. PAUL RYAN

OF WISCONSIN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin. Mr. Speaker, H.R. 3703, the Housing Finance Regulatory Improvement Act, if enacted, would enhance the regulatory structure of the housing GSEs—Fannie Mae, Freddie Mac, and the Federal Home Loan Banks (FHLBanks).

While I do not agree with every proposal under this bill, I support advancing a constructive dialogue between Congress, the housing GSE's, their regulators and all industries involved. Continued work is needed to guarantee GSE mission compliance to forestall unfair competition into non-mission related products, as well as to ensure GSE safety and soundness to limit taxpayer liability.

Currently, the housing GSEs are under good management and are in sound operating condition. That is why it is important to examine the systemic risk that these entities may pose to our financial system at the present time.

Overall, I believe that the duties of the housing GSE's are somewhat divergent. On one hand, they have a mission to homebuyers to maintain liquidity in the housing markets and to stabilize mortgage rates. On the other hand, they are publicly traded companies that must return a profit to their shareholders. The means for a high shareholder return is manipulation of the GSE's implicit government subsidy, and there is a fine line between how much of the subsidy's benefits should be returned to homeowners and how much should be passed on to shareholders.

Regardless, the GSEs have played an important role in bringing together homebuyers, lenders and capital from across the country and reducing mortgage rates. Again, while I do not support all provisions of H.R. 3703, I believe it is a step in the right direction. Introduction of this legislation has been a catalyst for serious discussion over the housing GSE's mission and the implications of financial failure. In cosponsoring this bill, I want to advance a dialogue to make certain that tax-payers and the private sector are protected from excessive risk and unfair competition.

PAYING TRIBUTE TO THE LIVES OF LT. CMDR. GARETH RIETZ AND LT. RAYMOND O'HARE

HON. STENY H. HOYER

OF MARYLAND

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, today I recognize the unfortunate deaths of two Navy test pilots at the Patuxent River Naval Air Station on July 11, 2000. Lt. Cmdr. Gareth Rietz, 33, and Lt. Raymond O'Hare, 33, lost their lives while training to become test pilots at the prestigious U.S. Naval Test Pilot School. The students were flying on a familiarization flight aimed at refreshing their flying proficiencies following a short break. Both seniors, they were experienced aviators and were scheduled to graduate in December 2000.

Commander Bob Stoney, the Naval Test Pilot School's Commanding Officer, in an interview with the Washington Post following the incident, commented, "What they would have wanted us to do is get back on our horses and ride." There are safety and legal investigations under way, but life is returning to normal as a new class is beginning its training Gareth Rietz, a native of Washington State, "was the cheerleader for everybody, the coach, the quarterback," Stoney said. A graduate of Washington State University, he leaves his wife and daughters behind.

Raymond O'Hare, a native of Illinois, was, as Stoney said, "a tremendously gifted man who seemed to have a calling to higher things. He was extremely smart, good at everything he did." A graduate of Harvard University, he is survived by his wife and three children. Before he died, he had been selected for the grade of Lieutenant Commander.

Their untimely deaths should prompt us all to take a moment to reflect on the sacrifices that they and thousands of others have made to keep this Nation safe and free. We should also take this time to re-evaluate the benefits for our troops and their families. It is easy for us to take the military for granted in this time of relative peace and prosperity. But the crash at Pax River should remind us that what our military does each and every day is still dangerous.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues in the House to join me in expressing our sincere condolences to the families of these two proud Americans who have sacrificed their lives for their Country. We should all pause to reflect on the loss of these two distinguished individuals who were being trained as test pilots, an occupation that directly benefits the safety and performance abilities of aircraft weapons systems. I also would ask my colleagues to join me in recognizing the men and women who are left behind at the Test Pilot School to carry on the proud mission of this small elite program which has produced so many American heroes, both the famous, including John Glenn, dozens of Space Shuttle astronauts, and the unsung heroes who quietly dedicate their careers to pushing the technology envelope for aviation systems.

Past and present members of the U.S. Armed Forces deserve to have our full and continued support and we should not wait for another tragedy like the one at Pax River, to remind ourselves that our troops are in danger on a daily basis, whether in harm's way or preparing to go into conflict. The men and women of our armed services are defending this nation so that we may go about our daily lives feeling safe and protected. I look forward to continuing to work with my colleagues in the Congress to ensure that we provide them with the latest and best weapons systems available and that we continue to recognize their hard work and honor the sacrifices they make on a daily basis.

ON BEHALF OF LORI BERENSON

HON. JOHN JOSEPH MOAKLEY

OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, today I call for action on behalf of Lori Berenson. Tomorrow, Peruvian President Fujimori will be inaugurated for another term and President Clinton will most likely congratulate him and wish him success. But what our President should be doing is raising the issue of Lori's release. And our diplomats should be working on it every minute of every day.

This is an American citizen, Mr. Speakerone of our own. As a result of a conviction by a secret military tribunal, Lori has toiled in a Peruvian jail for more than 4 years now, and has endured severe health effects as a result. Throughout this ordeal, Lori has maintained her absolute innocence. Numerous international human rights organizations, the United Nations, and the Organization of American States have all called for her release and pointed to widespread corruption in the Peruvian courts. But still, the United States has not taken the action necessary to obtain Lori's re-

Mr. Speaker, our nation has an excellent working relationship with the government of Peru. We cooperate on a wide range of issues together. The release of Lori should be one of those issues that is important to our nation. This is the time we must use the influence we've gained in Peru. It is time that President Clinton demands Lori's release at the highest levels it is time this nation stands up for Loriit is time for Lori Berenson to come home.

THE HOME OWNERSHIP TAX CRED-IT ACT: MAKING THE AMERICAN DREAM A REALITY FOR ALL AMERICANS

HON. LUCILLE ROYBAL-ALLARD

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Thursday, July 27, 2000

Ms. ROYBAL-ALLARD. Mr. Speaker, today, am introducing the Home Ownership Tax Credit Act (HOTCA). This bill will help address a crisis in home ownership among low-income Americans.

The booming economy has helped boost the national home ownership rate to a record high level. However, home ownership among low-income households, minorities, women and families living in rural areas still lags behind. Although the national average of home ownership is 67%, only 45% of low-income families own their homes.

While present Federal policy promotes home ownership for higher income families by allowing taxpayers to deduct mortgage interest and real estate taxes, it does little to help lowincome families achieve home ownership. The deductions of mortgage interest and real estate taxes benefit almost exclusively middle and upper-income Americans. In fact, only 10% of these tax benefits go to home owners who make less than $40,000 a year. Rental assistance is available for poor families through a variety of federal subsidies (primarily HUD's Section 8 program), but there's little help for low to middle income families who want to make the transition from renters to home owners.

This legislation will lend a hand to our hardworking families so that they too can achieve home ownership. By leveraging private resources and without creating new programs or bureaucracies, this bill will help hundreds of thousand of families finally realize the American dream of home ownership.

This tax credit tackles the two leading obstacles of home ownership: affordability and lender risk. First, many low income families simply cannot afford the monthly mortgage payments and initial downpayment for even a modest home in their area. The home ownership tax credit addresses this "wealth hurdle" by offering interest-free second mortgages to the low-income buyer. This is critical because this second mortgage will reduce the buyer's down payment and monthly mortgage costs by as much as 30%.

Second, lenders are often reluctant to make so-called "risky" loans due to fear of foreclosures. By lowering the loan amount needed for the first mortgage, the home ownership tax credit reduces the risk for the lender.

Similar programs implemented in North Carolina and New York have already proven successful in increasing homeownership for low-income families and jump-starting formerly distressed neighborhoods. It's time we take this program nation-wide and help families throughout the country achieve the American dream of owning their own home.

I urge my colleagues to join me and cosponsor the Home Ownership Tax Credit Act.

TREASURY AND GENERAL GOV-ERNMENT APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2001

SPEECH OF

HON. DENNIS MOORE

OF KANSAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Thursday, July 20, 2000

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union had under consideration the bill (H.R. 4871) making appropriations for the Treasury Department, the United States Postal Service, the Executive Office of the President, and certain Independent Agencies, for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2001, and for other pur-

Mr. MOORE. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in opposition to H.R. 4871, the FY 2001 treasury-postal appropriations bill.

I am pleased that the committee reported an appropriations bill that strongly supports law enforcement efforts in this country. Fully funding the administration's gun-law-enforcement initiatives, including a proposal to add 600 employees to the agency to more fully enforce existing gun laws, suggests that this Congress is finally getting serious about stopping the scourge of gun crimes that have crippled this nation.

I hope this is a sign of more to come in promoting public safety and preventing these senseless crimes by approving legislation on juvenile justice which has languished in a conference committee for over a year.

This bill also contains a provision that I strongly support which would roll back the 0.5% surcharge on federal employee retirement contributions. This increase was mandated by the 1997 balanced budget law and has disproportionately affected federal employees by taxing more of their gross income for retirement than their private sector counterparts contribute.

Just yesterday, the CBO announced that we will run in FY 2001 a surplus of over $100 billion. Mr. Speaker, the budget is balanced: it is time to stop funding surpluses at the expense of our hard working federal employees.

While I support many of the priorities in this bill and commend the committee on a job well done in allocating finite resources, I remain concerned about one provision in this bill that suggest this Congress is not serious about holding the line on spending.

Mr. Chairman, about a decade ago, through legislative slight of hand, Congress passed a law to allow for the automatic annual increase in Members' salaries. This was a politically motivated move to shield Congress from casting embarrassing votes to increase their own pay. While we were technically afforded the opportunity to vote against an increase by casting a no vote on a procedural issue, the fact remains that by voting in support of this legislation, we will be voting for our own pay raises.

This will be a vote that comes at the expense of other mandates an earlier Congress created: Two years ago the House voted overwhelmingly for the IRS Reform and Restructuring Act which followed recommendations of a commission that studied the IRS and stated that IRS budgets "should receive stable funding for the next three years so that the leaders can . . . improve taxpayer service and compliance."

Mr. Chairman, this bill, contrary to the recommendations of a bipartisan commission and contrary to the will of this House, cuts $465 million from the administration's request. If this Congress is serious about holding the line on spending, we would not hold our other priorities hostage to our desires of a larger pay-

I will be voting against this bill and I will be voting against a pay increase-I urge my colleagues to put their money where their mouth is and reject final passage of this legislation.

DEVELOPMENTAL DISABILITIES ASSISTANCE AND BILL OF RIGHTS ACT OF 2000

SPEECH OF

HON. WILLIAM F. GOODLING

OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 25, 2000

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 4920, the Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act of 2000. The legislation would improve service systems for individuals with disabilities, including state developmental disability councils that assist individuals with disabilities, protection and advocacy systems for individuals with disabilities, and university affiliated programs for research and public service programs. I am pleased to see that others here in Congress are taking up this fight, particularly Rep. RICK LAZIO, the sponsor of this legislation we are now considering.

Rep. Lazio has done an outstanding job of bringing the need for this legislation to the attention of Members. Under his leadership, H.R. 4920 has been crafted to provide many quality services for individuals with disabilities. Mr. Lazio's bill builds upon the programs in current law to create a well-rounded approach toward assisting individuals with disabilities.

I also find it very appropriate that we consider this legislation on the 10th anniversary of the Americans with Disabilities Act. In its ten years, the ADA has done much to improve the daily lives of individuals with disabilities. The ADA has helped move these individuals into the mainstream of American life.

The Committee I chair has jurisdiction over several laws that provide assistance and protections for individuals with disabilities, including the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), and the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA). Throughout my time in Congress, I have consistently fought for improved programs and funding for individuals with disabilities

I am particularly pleased with the increases in funding for IDEA that we have seen over the past five years, although we still have a long way to go.

I am pleased to support this bill.

THE REGISTER GUARD

HON. PETER A. DeFAZIO

OF OREGON

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Speaker, I submit for the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, an Opinion Editorial written by my predecessor, former Congressman Jim Weaver. In the article, printed in the Register Guard, Wednesday, July 26, 2000, Weaver discusses his encounters with Governor Bush's newly appointed running-mate, Dick Cheney. I recommend Jim Weaver's well-crafted, thought-provoking article to my colleagues for its insight and importance.

CHENEY HAS SHOWN HE'S SOFT IN NATURE, BUT TOUGH ON ISSUES

(By Jim Weaver)

Dick Cheney and I were members of the House Committee on the Interior in the 1970s and 1980s. We sat opposite each other on the upper tier of the committee bench, he on the Republican side, and I on the Democratic side.

Cheney was always cordial, even gentle in demeanor, willing to discuss any matter and listen to other views. I grew to like him and conferred with him often.

While writing a book on the U.S. House of Representatives, he discovered that an ancestor of mine, James B. Weaver, had conducted a filibuster in the House in 1888 on the Oklahoma Land Bill. As I, too, had filibustered a bill, he told me the story. I appreciated his personal consideration.

So it always surprised me that when decisions were actually made in the committee, Cheney was hard as steel, and uncompromising on the hard-fought issues over forest preservation, revision of the 1872 mining act, grazing on public lands or nuclear power. He was three or four places down from the ranking Republican on the committee, but there was little question as to who controlled the Republican side—Dick Cheney. This very strong, highly intelligent, determined man kept the Republicans unanimous against any environmental incursions the Democrats attempted.

The chairman of the committee at that time was Mo Udall of Arizona. He bent over backward to conduct the committee fairly and to give the Republicans every parliamentary opportunity. His reward, offered by Cheney and his cohorts, was constantly and vehemently to accuse him and the Democrats of tyranny and railroading our bills. I only wish we had done so.

After the accident at the Three Mile Island nuclear plant in 1979, a House committee was chosen to conduct an investigation. I was named chairman and Cheney vice chairman. It was an intensive inquiry and resulted in many revelations. Cheney was an admirable person to work with. Conscientious and penetrating, Cheney helped make the inquiry the best of the presidential, Senate and House investigations.

But when the committee reported its findings, Cheney wrote a minority report to accompany my majority report.

My report blamed the accident on the extreme technological complications of nuclear power while Cheney, as did the other reports, blamed "human error." Cheney concluded with the NRC estimate that the accident would take a year and $60 million to repair. My report predicted 10 years and $1 billion dollars. Ten years later and more than a billion dollars spent, they were still cleaning up the last remnants.

I think Cheney would make an outstanding Republican vice president; actually, an outstanding Republican president. If I were a dyed in the wool Republican, I could not find a better person to vote for. But I am not a Republican.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. WILLIAM L. JENKINS

OF TENNESSEE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, on rollcall No. 439, on motion to suspend the rules and pass, as amended, Bulletproof Vest Partnership Grant Act, had I been present, I would have voted "yea"; on rollcall No. 440, on motion to suspend the rules and pass Illegal Pornography and Prosecution Act, had I been present, I would have voted "yea"; on rollcall No. 441, on passage disapproving the extension of the waiver authority contained in section 402(c) of the Trade Act of 1974 with respect to Vietnam, had I been present, I would have voted "yea"; on rollcall No. 442, on agreement to providing for consideration of H.R. 4942, making appropriations for the District of Columbia for fiscal year 2001, had I been present, I would have voted "yea."

AMERICORPS

HON. CHARLES W. "CHIP" PICKERING

OF MISSISSIPPI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. PICKERING. Mr. Speaker, I submit the following two articles for the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD and recommend that all members read and consider them when looking at the issue of AmeriCorps. These articles were brought to my attention by former Pennsylvania Senator Harris Wofford, and I hope that members find them helpful when considering reauthorization of AmeriCorps.

[From The Hill, June 21, 2000] WHY I CHANGED MY MIND ABOUT AMERICORPS (By Dan Coats, former Republican Senator from Rhode Island)

When I was in the Senate, I did not support the legislation that created AmeriCorps because of my fundamental belief in private voluntary service and my skepticism about government-based solutions. I thought that government-supported volunteers would undermine the spirit of voluntary service and that new federal resources might subvert the mission and the independence of the civic sector.

My faith in the civic sector has not diminished one bit; in fact, it is stronger today than ever before. However, I have changed my mind about AmeriCorps. Instead of distorting the mission of the civic sector, AmeriCorps has proved to be a source of new power and energy for nonprofit organizations across the country.

My changed view about AmeriCorps is in no small measure because of the leadership that Harris Wofford, my Democratic former Senate colleague from Pennsylvania, has given to that program. Wofford and I did not vote on the same side very often in the Senate, and we still differ on many issues. But his leadership of AmeriCorps has convinced me that I should have voted with him on this issue.

First, thanks to Wofford's steadfast commitment to place national service above partisanship, AmeriCorps has not become the political program that some of us initially feared. Second, he shares my belief that the solutions to some of our most intractable problems lie in the civic sector. Accordingly, he has set AmeriCorps to the work of supporting, not supplanting, the civic sector.

I have seen firsthand how AmeriCorps members have provided a jolt of new energy to the civic sector from my experience as president of Big Brothers Big Sisters of America. As Millard Fuller, founder of Habitat for Humanity and another former skeptic of government-supported volunteers, also discovered, the leadership provided by fulltime AmeriCorps members is a key addition for nonprofit and faith based organizations that are tackling the most difficult community and human problems.

AmeriCorps members, through their idealism, enthusiasm and can-do spirit, have multiplied the impact of organizations like Big Brothers Big Sisters and Habitat, and hundreds of other organizations large and small.

The number of Republicans who have changed their mind about AmeriCorps continues to grow.

In the last years, Sens. John McCain (R-Ariz.) and Mike DeWine (R-Ohio) and Rep. John Kasich (R-Ohio) have spoken out about the positive role AmeriCorps plays in strengthening the civic sector. Together, we join a growing bipartisan list of present and former federal and state legislators, governors and civic leaders in support of AmeriCorps.

Their support is part of a quiet, yet remarkable, transformation in American politics that has occurred since the white-hot debate that took place a few years ago between those who believed that government should take the lead in solving community problems and those who thought government could accomplish little or nothing, and was even likely to be a negative force.

Now, as evidenced by both major party presidential candidates and by growing bipartisan support in Congress, a new middle ground has emerged, leading to a unique partnership between AmeriCorps, the non-profit organizations and private and religious institutions that are critical to strengthening our communities. It is these institutions that transmit values between generations that encourage cooperation between citizens, and make our communities stronger.

In a recent speech to the nation's governors, retired Gen. Colin Powell declared himself "a strong supporter of AmeriCorps." After spending two years working with the organization Powell concluded, "[W]hat they do in terms of leveraging other individuals to volunteer is really incredible. So it is a tremendous investment in young people, a tremendous investment in the future. . . . "

Later this month, a bipartisan coalition in the Senate will introduce legislation to reauthorize AmeriCorps and its parent agency, the Corporation for National Service. I hope that Congress will move quickly to enact this legislation so that AmeriCorps can continue to work with the nonprofit and faithbased sectors to strengthen our communities and build a better future for us all.

[From The NonProfitTimes, March 2000] TWO PRESIDENTS: A SHARED LEGACY

(By Harris Wofford, CEO, Corporation for National Service and Bob Goodwin, President, Points of Light Foundation)

Most people would not think that Presidents George Bush and Bill Clinton have that much in common. But, Presidents Bush and Clinton share an important legacy. By making citizen service a central idea of their presidencies, these two presidents have fundamentally changed the land-scape of the civic sector by moving citizen service from the margins to the center of the public agenda.

It wasn't always this way. In 1988, President Bush called for a "thousand points of light" in his inaugural address and thereafter created the Points of Light Foundation. President Bush recently told us that he never imagined the Points of Light would be viewed as a Republican venture. Nonetheless, Democrats were dubious and sometimes belittled it as an inadequate substitute for government action.

Today, much of that skepticism has passed. With bipartisan support, the Points of Light Foundation was included as part of the National Service Act of 1993 and receives regular funding through the Corporation for National Service. The foundation's network of hundreds of volunteer centers, often part of the United Way, is thriving—helping to connect local residents with opportunities to serve. And two years, President Clinton joined with President Bush to resume the Daily Points of Light Award.

Simiarly, President Clinton's special contribution to citizen service—AmeriCorps—faced still opposition from some Republican skeptics. After the Republican takeover of Congress in 1994, there were recurring threats to eliminate AmeriCorps.

But President Clinton was steadfast, governors and mayors, Republicans and Democrats, and local and national nonprofits and faith-based organizations rallied in support, and the critics have been quieted.

By a large majority, including many Republicans, the Senate has voted for two years in a row to continued support for AmeriCorps. Republican Sen. Kit Bond stated, "The battle over whether we ought to have an AmeriCorps program or not is over. It has been decided." And Colin Powell has said, "It is a tremendous investment in young people, a tremendous investment in the future, and I am a strong supporter of AmeriCorps."

Today, the partisan bickering around service and volunteering has almost disappeared. The call for citizen service is a major theme of presidential candidates of both parties. Al Gore, George W. Bush, John McCain and Bill Bradley all have spoken powerfully on the need for citizen service and the role that nonprofits and faith-based organizations can play in solving community problems and uniting us as a nation.

While the political winds have been shifting, two great streams of civilian service—community volunteering and intensive national service—have become partners in communities across the country.

These collaborations work because the Points of Light and AmeriCorps are founded on the same fundamental belief: through service we can bring people together to solve the problems that still plague our country. Their operating principle is to provide resources—usually people power—to thousands of nonprofits, with government playing the role of junior partner, supporting the work of these organizations, not guiding it.

Three years ago the Points of Light Foundation and the Corporation for National Service cemented and elevated their partnership when Presidents Bush and Clinton came together to convene the Presidents' Summit for America's Future in Philadelphia. They enlisted Colin Powell to chair the Summit and to lead the continuing campaign for America's Promise.

Powell's mandate is to rally the forces of all the great institutions in this country, businesses, the nonprofit sector, governments at all levels, and committed individuals, traditional volunteers and those in full-time service, to make a concerted effort to assure the conditions for success for all young Americans.

In coming weeks this partnership between

In coming weeks this partnership between the Corporation for National Service and the Points of Light Foundation will be demonstrated again as a bipartisan coalition in the United States House of Representatives and United States Senate introduces legislation reauthorization the Corporation and its three main programs—AmeriCorps, the Senior Corps, and student service learning. This legislation will extend the life of the Corporation and support for the Points of Light Foundation into the next Administration. Presidents Bush and Clinton pressed—and Presidents Bush and Clinton pressed—and are still pressing—an idea and an ideal. Together they have raised a standard to which, as George Washington said at the Constitutional Convention, "the wise and the honest may repair."

This is a legacy of which they can jointly and justly be proud.

By passing this legislation, Congress will honor and share in this important bipartisan and nonpartisan legacy.

HONORING MARY MIYASHITA

HON. ROBERT T. MATSUI

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, today I honor a woman with a remarkable career in public service, Mary Miyashita. To say that Mary has a flair for politics would only begin to skim the surface of the extraordinary contributions that she has made to numerous candidates and causes over the years.

Mary first got involved in politics during the 1948 gubernatorial campaign of Adlai Stevenson and has been a dedicated social and political activist ever since. The best way to describe Mary's political interests and involvement is exhaustive. I consider her presence to be a staple in the Democratic Party. She carries with her enough charisma to charm a crowd as well as the political savvy and assertiveness needed to fight the good fight. She has been selected as a Delegate to the Democratic National Convention five times in the past 30 years, served as Co-Chair of the California Affirmative Action Committee in 1976 as well as Co-Chair of the California Democratic Party Budget and Finance Committee in 1976.

She has done everything from Chairing the 1980 Kennedy Caucus to hosting political leaders at her home. In fact, the only thing that stretches farther than Mary's dedication is her knowledge of the political scene. By just glancing at her impressive list of political involvement, it is easy to attest that Mary is a true champion of public service.

Over the years, Mary has been recognized by a host of organizations for her Herculean efforts. In 1975 she was named Democratic Woman of the Year and Key Woman of the Democratic Women's Forum in 1960. This year she is being recognized once more, this time by the esteemed publication Asia Week for her many years of public service. As a founding member of the first Asian Pacific Caucus in 1976, Mary helped to pave the way for equal and just treatment of Asian Pacific Americans. Time and time again she has succeeded in ensuring that the interests of the Asian Pacific Community are heard and protected. She has been the shining light that has inspired scores of youth to get involved in politics. I can think of no one else more deserving of this honor than Mary.

Her involvement is not exclusive to strictly politics. She is an active member of the PTA, ACLU, Women for Peace and the League of Women Voters to name a few. Programs such as Meals on Wheels, and the Woman and Children Crisis Shelter would not have found the success that they have enjoyed without Mary to support them.

Her continuous leadership is a true testament to public service. If a template for leadership could be made, it would bear the resemblance of my good friend Mary Miyashita. Her career thus far as a social and political activist is commendable, and happily far from being over.

TO COMMEMORATE THE 150TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE HUNTS-VILLE ITEM

HON. JIM TURNER

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I have a special opportunity today to honor the Huntsville Item, a fine newspaper in East Texas, which will be celebrating its 150th birthday on August 18.

The Huntsville Item is the second oldest continually published newspaper in the state of Texas. Over the last century and a half, it has reported the everyday challenges facing East Texans, as well as the triumphs and tragedies of our great nation.

The Huntsville Item began publication in Huntsville, Texas on August 20 1850, under the editorship of George Robinson, who was born in Liverpool, England. From 1863–1864, during Robinson's enlistment in the Civil War, the Item was irregularly published due to Robinson's war duties and scarce supplies.

A fire destroyed the printing house of the Item on May 4, 1878, and the paper had to be printed several blocks away. But again, six years later, fire struck down the printing house, interrupting the Item's distribution for several weeks while printing was relocated to nearby Willis. Later that year, George's youngest son, Fred, took over management of the paper, moving all its operations back into Huntsville.

For several years early in the twentieth century, the Huntsville Item operated as the Huntsville Post-Item under publisher J.A. Palmer. In 1915, the paper was sold to Ross Woodall, who, along with his wife, published the paper until 1967.

The Item is currently owned by Community Holdings Newspapers, Inc.

The faded headlines of this newspaper tell the story of our nation's history.

Through the Civil War, two World Wars, Korea, Vietnam, the Persian Gulf, and Kosovo, the Item relayed news of brave American soldiers to their parents, siblings, and loved ones. Its newsprint has captured the Great Depression, the Baby Boom, the Oil Rush, the S&L crash, and the digital revolution. Its columns have examined Nolan Ryan, Willie Nelson, LBJ and Sam Rayburn.

I congratulate all the editors, photographers, and reporters who have made this newspaper last through the test of time. Even after four fires and other challenges, the paper has survived and flourished.

I hope that the stories it reports in the next hundred and fifty years will mirror the same growth, progress, and success that our nation has experienced since its first copy, published in 1850.

TRIBUTE TO POSTMASTER ROY C. BUNCH

HON. WALTER B. JONES

OF NORTH CAROLINA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. JONES of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, today I pay a special tribute to Postmaster Roy C. Bunch who resides in North Carolina's Third Congressional District, which I have the privilege to represent.

Next week friends, family, and officials will gather at the Albemarle Plantation in Hertford to recognize Mr. Bunch for 50 years of dedicated service to the federal government.

Mr. Bunch began his career in the United States Navy on August 24, 1944 and served our Nation until March 6, 1946.

His career as Postmaster of the Belvidere facility began on January 24, 1952 where he has tirelessly served for over 48 years.

After fifty years of service to the Federal Government and to the men, women and children of our great Nation, Mr. Bunch is not slowing down.

He is in wonderful health and has mentioned no plans of retirement.

He currently resides in Belvidere, North Carolina with his wife of 51 years, Clemma Bunch. Together Roy and Clemma have one son and a daughter.

He continues to be an exemplary example of an outstanding public servant and for that I would like to take this opportunity to thank Mr. Bunch.

All of our federal employees deserve great thanks from this Nation. It is not an overstatement to say that without federal employees our country would not be able to function. They touch every aspect of our lives and provide immeasurable benefits to us all. Without the dedication to service that federal workers such as Mr. Bunch provide, our Nation would not be the great country it is today.

Mr. Roy Bunch, "thank you," I salute you.

INTRODUCTION OF THE MINGE-HOOLEY COMPREHENSIVE RURAL TELECOMMUNICATIONS ACT

HON. DAVID MINGE

OF MINNESOTA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. MINGE. Mr. Speaker, today I announce the introduction of landmark legislation to help maintain the viability of America's rural economy. I join with my colleague Representative DARLENE HOOLEY and members of the Democratic Rural Task Force in introducing the Comprehensive Rural Telecommunications Act

Several months ago, I was given the opportunity to chair the Democratic Rural Task Force. This task force was developed with the aim of pursuing initiatives which ensure our rural communities are not left behind in the new millennium. Many factors comprise a robust economy. That is true in an urban, suburban or rural community. It was my job to decide which economic sectors of rural America we could most realistically pursue.

With the advice and input of the telecommunications innovators in my Congressional district, I saw the important need for a strong investment in telecommunications infrastructure to provide for the maintenance and future growth of rural America. The Internet creates great commercial opportunities; therefore, telecommunications infrastructures are more than ever a crucial tool of our economic development. However, rural communities are at a real disadvantage when it comes to building these new advanced networks, given their distance from urban centers and low population densities. Telecommunication providers often prefer to deploy advanced telecommunication systems in urban areas, where fixed costs are spread over more customers and volume is greater.

The gentlewoman from Oregon and I set to work on an ambitious proposal that would take a comprehensive approach rather than several fragmented efforts. This collaborative effort led to the three part Comprehensive Rural Telecommunications Act. Our legislation combines incentives for infrastructure creation along with the educational opportunities needed to ensure a population who can utilize the new infrastructure.

The legislation establishes National Centers for Distance Working which would provide training, referral, and employment-related services and assistance to individuals in rural communities and Indian Tribes to support the use of teleworking in information and high technology fields. These centers would help people in rural areas link up with employers so they could take advantage of new career opportunities even if they do not live in areas with numerous employers.

To encourage infrastructure creation, the legislation provides a 10% to 15% tax credit on expenditures by companies deploying broadband (1.5 MBPS) or enhanced broadband (10 MBPS) in rural areas. The legislation also authorizes the USDA's Rural Utility Service to provide up to $3 billion in loans or credit extensions to eligible telecommunications carrier providers to finance the deployment of broadband service in rural communities

A special thanks goes to the esteemed Senators Dorgan, Rockefeller, and Wellstone. Much of this legislation is based on individual bills they have previously introduced. I would also like to thank the Chairman of the Democratic Caucus, Representative Martin Frost.

Mr. Speaker, I request that my House colleagues join with me in supporting and passing the Minge-Hooley Comprehensive Rural Telecommunications Act, which is critical to rural America's future.

FREE SPEECH AND MEDIA IN THE OSCE REGION AFTER 25 YEARS

HON. JOSEPH R. PITTS

OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. PITTS. Mr. Speaker, today freedom of the press and media in the OSCE participating States is deteriorating and regressing, largely unnoticed by the peoples of the region. This is happening in Western and Central Europe in much the same way one cooks a frog. Place the frog in cold water and start the fire. As the water heats up, the frog is gradually cooked—having never known he was in danger. This type of political gradualism is a true threat to the peoples and States of Europe.

Recent hearings held by the Helsinki Commission, on which I serve, have noted a number of high profile cases in Eastern Europe showcasing the situation. We have heard of the rise of influence and pressure from heavy-handed government authorities who feel the need to control the views and reports of independent journalists. Such actions have been especially evident in Bosnia, Azerbaijan, and Ukraine. The recent arrest of Vladimir Gusinsky, head of Media Most and an outspoken critic of Russian President Putin, has raised our concern about Russia's approach to an agenda of free media.

A key OSCE commitment allows for the development and protection of freedom of expression, permitting independent pluralistic media. Three years ago, the OSCE States were concerned enough about the problems in this area that they mandated the creation of the position of Representative on Freedom of the Media. The 25th Anniversary of the Helsinki Final Act marks an appropriate occasion to review the past relations between the OSCE governments and the media, and to review the current situation of free media in the region.

Last year, 11 journalists were killed in the region, with a number of the deaths accompanied by suspicious circumstances. In addition to those killed while reporting the news, many others were arrested under suspicious circumstances and without due process. Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty reporter Andrei Babitsky's story is a frightening example of just how badly the situation for reporters has deteriorated in Russia. While covering and reporting on the war in Chechnya, Babitsky was arrested by Russian troops for "participating in an armed formation," and yet later was traded to Chechen rebels in an exchange, thus being placed in grave danger. Babitsky was later retrieved by Russian forces and subsequently charged with using false papers.

While Babitsky was fortunate to have survived and received international exposure, most other journalists are not so lucky in Russia. In Vladimir Putin's first "state of the union" speech, he said that he supported a free Russian press, but was angered that media owners could influence the content. That is, while Putin openly declares support for a free media, he chills the media in his next utterance. Likewise, Gusinsky's arrest has heightened our concern as we see the tightening of the noose on the throat of a free press in Russia

Actions by governments in Southeastern Europe are also a cause for concern. Turkey and the Balkan States present serious impediments towards promoting and allowing free media. Serbia continually threatens, harasses, and fines all media that do not follow the official line. Milosevic has seen to the gradual demise of any independent Serbian media, not the least through fines totaling $2.1 million last year. Turkish authorities continue to block free media in key areas, with either the Kurdish issue or criticism of the military most likely to land journalists in jail.

Mr. Speaker, I could continue. Such developments are rife throughout the Caucasus and Central Asia. It is not enough for OSCE States to ardently promote the idea of free speech and media. Collective accountability must be used, along with public diplomacy, if the OSCE is to consist of States that rise to the standard envisioned at Helsinki 25 years ago regarding free speech and media.

RECOGNIZING THE NYSP PRO-GRAM AT THE UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN—EAU CLAIRE

HON. RON KIND

OF WISCONSIN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. KIND. Mr. Speaker, today I recognize a fantastic program that benefits young people throughout the nation, and to pay special tribute to the chapter in my congressional district.

Earlier this month, I had the pleasure to spend some time at the National Youth Sports Program (NYSP) on the University of Wisconsin—Eau Claire campus. This is the twentieth year that an NYSP summer camp has operated in the Chippewa Valley region of western Wisconsin, at which disadvantaged youth take part in athletic, math and science activities for five weeks. The sports component of the program emphasizes instruction, competition, physical fitness and lifetime sports. The classroom programs cover nutrition, drug and alcohol awareness, higher education preparation and career discussions in addition to the science and math curriculum.

Of the 180 or so NYSP programs that operate nationwide each summer, the University of Wisconsin—Eau Claire camp has been recognized as one of the top five programs seven times. It has also been rated as the top program twice in the last decade.

NYSP is an excellent example of how federal partnerships with communities can work for the betterment of America's young people. Funds for NYSP are provided through the Department of Health and Human Services and are administered through the NCAA. In my home state, additional funds for food services are provided through the Department of Agriculture.

NYSP provides the kids who participate in the camps with wonderful opportunities they would not otherwise have to learn, play, and form new friendships in friendly, safe and supportive environments. This year at UW—Eau Claire, 589 young people participated in NYSP.

Mr. Speaker, I congratulate all of the many staff and volunteers who run the NYSP program at UW—Eau Claire. In particular, I wish to recognize Lisa McIntyre, Bill Harms, Jeff Lutz, Tom Platt and Tony Hudson, whose dedication to the program is very admirable, and who make sure I am kept up-to-date about the progress and success of NYSP each year.

I offer a special word of congratulations and thanks to Diane Gibertson, who has been the Activities Director of NYSP in Eau Claire. Diane is retiring this year, and was instrumental in establishing NYSP in the Chippewa Valley twenty years ago. Diane's tireless efforts over the years on behalf of youth in our community serves as a shining example for all of us—young and old—to follow our dreams, and to take time to help make the dreams of our children come true.

Once again, Mr. Speaker, on behalf of the residents of western Wisconsin, I congratulate and thank all those who have made the NYSP program an amazing success. Our children, and our communities, are certainly the better for their efforts.

THE TECHNOLOGY EDUCATION AND TRAINING ACT

HON. JERRY WELLER

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. WELLER. Mr. Speaker, today, I am introducing a bill with Mr. MORAN, Mr. COX, Mr. TAUZIN, Mr. TOM DAVIS, Mr. DRIER, Mr. ADAM SMITH, Mr. SALMON and Mrs. TAUCHER to address the severe worker shortage in technology related industries. The Technology Education and Training Act provides a $1,500 tax credit for information technology training expenses.

This tax credit is necessary to address the serious shortage in the United States of trained technology professionals. This shortage has a dramatic effect on the U.S. economy. According to the CompTIA Workforce Study, as a result of unfilled IT positions, the U.S. economy loses $105.5 billion in spending that would otherwise go to salaries and training. This reduces household income by $37.2 billion and prevents the creation of 1. 6 million jobs. Currently, an estimated 268,740 (10%) of IT service and support positions are unfilled. This results in $4.5 billion per year in lost worker productivity. An ITAA study released April 11, 2000 predicts a shortage of 843,328 for the 1.6 million new IT workers needed in

The tax credit we establish in this bill would be available to both individuals and businesses for training and educational expenses for individuals being trained in technology related industries. The allowable credit would be $1,500. For small businesses, or businesses and individuals in enterprise zones, empowerment zones, and other qualified areas, the credit would equal $2,000. The training program must result in certification.

This bill encourages a private-public sector partnership which allows the private sector to determine who, what, where and how to train workers. It also helps to fill the IT worker pipeline with thousands of new and retrained IT skilled workers which would otherwise leave thousands of jobs in cities across America unfilled.

Mr. Speaker, thank you for the opportunity to speak on behalf of The Technology Education and Training Act.

THE IMPORTANCE OF A GLOBAL SCHOOL LUNCH AND GLOBAL WIC PROGRAM

HON. JAMES P. McGOVERN

OF MASSACHUSETTS IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. McGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I was very excited to read the July 23, 2000 statement by President Clinton at the G–8 Summit in Okinawa, Japan, announcing a $300 million initial start-up program in support of a universal school and pre-school feeding program for the over 300 million hungry children of the world. On July 27th, the Senate Agriculture Committee held a hearing on this issue and invited former Senators George McGovern and Bob Dole, the two chief proponents of this initiative, Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman, Senator RICHARD DURBIN, myself, and several others to testify.

This is a remarkable initiative to promote education and reduce hunger among children world wide. I would like to enter into the RECORD the President's statement describing this initiative, as well as the testimony of Ambassador George McGovern and my own testimony before the Senate Agriculture Commitee.

THE CLINTON-GORE ADMINISTRATION: BUILDING A STRONGER GLOBAL PART-NERSHIP FOR INTERNATIONAL DEVEL-OPMENT THROUGH SUPPORT FOR BASIC EDUCATION AND CHILDHOOD NUTRITION—JULY 23, 2000

Today, President Clinton announced new Initiatives to expand access to basic education and improve childhood development in poor counties. Part of the Okinawa Summit's unprecedented emphasis on international development, these measures include:

(1) A new $300 million U.S. Department of Agriculture international school nutrition pilot program to improve student enrollment, attendance, and performance in poor countries. (2) Endorsement by the G-8 of key international "Education for All" goals, including the principle that no country with a strong national action plan to achieve universal access to primary education by 2015 should be permitted to fail for lack of resources. (3) A now commitment by the World Bank to double lending for basic education in poor countries—an estimated additional $1 billion per year, (4) An FY 2001 Administration budget request to increase funding for international basic education assistance by 50% ($55 million) targeted to areas where structural weaknesses in educational systems contribute to the prevalence of abusive child labor.

Better access to basic education can be a catalyst for poverty reduction and broader participation in the benefits of global economic integration. Literacy is fundamental not only to economic opportunity in today's increasingly knowledge-intensive economy but also to maternal and infant health, prevention and treatment of HIV-AIDS and other infectious diseases, elimination of abusive child labor, improved agricultural productivity, sustainable population growth and environmental conditions, and expanded democratic participation and respect for human rights.

(1) The U.S. will launch a $300 million school feeding pilot program working through the UN World Food Program in partnership with private voluntary organizations. Building on ideas promoted by Ambassador George McGovern and former Senator Robert Dole and explored at the World Food Program (WFP), the USDA's Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) would purchase surplus agricultural commodities and donate them for use in school feeding and pre-school nutrition programs in poor countries with strong action plans to expand access to and improve the quality of basic education.

For the first year of the program, the USG would spend $300 million for commodities, international transportation, and other costs under the current CCC authorities, feeding as many as 9 million schoolchildren and preschoolers.

The program would be initiated working through the WFP in partnership with Private Voluntary Organizations (PVOs), the U.S. share of which could grow over time depending upon participation by other donors and eligibility by developing countries.

Selection criteria would be based on need and include a commitment and contribution of resources by the host government, technical feasibility, good progress toward a strong national action plan to achieve the Dakar Education, for All goals, and a commitment by the host government to assume responsibility for operating the program within a reasonable time frame where feasible

A portion of the commodities could be sold to provide cash resources for incountry program management, funding any associated programs (e.g. feeding equipment purchases and local-commodity purchases, etc.), Incountry product storing, processing, handling and transportation, and purchasing the appropriate foods for the local program.

Funding would come from USDA's Commodity Credit Corporation under the surplus removal authority of the CCC Charter Act, and Section 416(b) of the Agricultural Act of 1949, which provides for overseas donations of commodities in CCC's inventory to carry out assistance programs in developing countries and friendly countries. The last several years have seen record food surpluses in the U.S., with corresponding record donations of food overseas. USDA analysts project continued surpluses over the next few years.

(2) The G-8 has strongly endorsed Education for All goals and called for increased bilateral, multilateral, and private donor support for country action plans. At the initiation of the U.S., the G-8 has agreed to endorse the goals of a recently concluded international conference on access to basic education. Held in April 2000 in Dakar, Senegal, the World Education Forum gathered over 1,000 leaders from 145 countries to increase the world community's commitment to basic education in poor countries by:

Ensuring that no country with a strong national action plan to expand access to and improve the quality of basic education should be permitted to fail to implement its plan for lack of resources;

Ensuring that by 2015 all children, particularly girls, children in difficult circumstances and those belonging to ethnic minorities, have access to and complete free and compulsory primary education of good

Achieving a 50% per cent improvement in level of adult literacy by 2015, especially for women:

EliminatIng gender disparities in primary and secondary education by 2005; and Expanding and improving comprehensive early childhood care and education.

(3) In connection with the Summit and at the suggestion of the U.S., World Bank President James Wolfensohn has pledged that the Bank will increase education lending by 50% and devote the increase to basic education in support of the Dakar Framework—a $1 billion increase or doubling of the Bank's lending for this purpose. This step could galvanize action on the part of the developing countries and other public and private donors to develop a deeper partnership in support of educating the world's youth.

(4) The G-8 action builds on the President's FY 2001 budget initiative to increase by 50% ($55 million) US assistance to strengthen educational systems in areas of developing countries, targeted to areas where abusive child labor is prevalent. The International Labor Organization has estimated that 250 million children work worldwide. A lack of educational alternatives exacerbates this problem. The Administration initiative would complement direct efforts to reduce abusive child labor such as those by the International Labor Organization by providing support for improvements in educational systems.

The Okinawa Summit's focus on basic education in developing countries builds on one of the primary achievement of last year's G-7/G-8 Summit, the Cologne Debt Initiative, which will triple the scale of debt relief available to countries undertaking economic reforms and committing to devote the resources freed up by lower foreign debt repayments to the education and health of their people. The President has requested $435 million in appropriations for this years participation in the Cologne Debt Initiative, $810 million including FY 2002 and 2003.

The intemational community has set a goal of achieving universal access to primary education by 2015; however, half of children in developing countries do not attend school and 880 million adults remain illiterate. An estimated 120 million children in developing countries do not attend any school at all, and an additional 150 million children drop out of school before completing the four years of schooling needed to develop sustainable literacy and numeracy skills able literacy and numeracy skills. Girls represent over 60% and perhaps as many as two-thirds of the children who are not in school.

Where 20% of women or less read and write, those women have an average of six children each. By contrast, in countries in which female literacy has reached 80% or more, this figure drops to fewer than three children each.

Each year of maternal education reduces childhood mortality by eight percent, deworming medicine.

In Sub-Saharan Africa, 40% of children (42 million) are out of school. In South Asia, 26% (46 million) are not enrolled in primary education. Of those children who do enroll, 33% never finish in Sub-Saharan Africa, 41% in South Asia, and 26% in Latin America.

The United Nations World Food Program estimates that 300 million children in developing countries are chronically hungry. Many of these children are among the nearly 120 million who do not attend school. Others are enrolled in school but underperform or drop out due in part to hunger or malnourishment.

A 1996 World Bank study concluded that when children suffer from hunger or poor nutrition and health, their weakened condition increases their susceptibility to disease, reduces their learning capacity, forces them to end their school careers prematurely, or keeps them out of school altogether.

An estimated 210 million children suffer from iron deficiency anemia, 85 million are at higher risk for acute respiratory disease and other infections because of vitamin A deficiency, and 60 million live with iodine deficiency disorders. Each condition adversely affects cognitive development, physical development, and motivation, yet each is susceptible to cost effective treatment because the body requires only minute quantities of the nutrients in question.

By helping to address these problems, school feeding and pre-school child nutrition programs have been shown to have a significant positive impact on rates of student enrollment, attendance and performance.

The Presidents international school feeding pilot program and the G-8's support for basic education in poor countries are part of the G-8's unprecedented emphasis on development. One of the principal objectives of the Okinawa Summit has been to strengthen the partnership of developed and developing countries, international institutions, the private sector, and civil society in support of global poverty alleviation. The Summit will create a framework for significantly increased bilateral, multilateral, and private sector assistance to poor countries with effective policies in three interrelated areas: infectious diseases, basic education, and information technology. The goal is to mobilize a more comprehensive response by the international community in response to developing countries that exert leadership at home on these issues. No issue is more fundamental to human progress that basic education:

Primary education is the single most important factor in accounting for diffierences in growth rates between East Asia and sub-Saharan Africa because it leads to greater achievement of secondary education, according to the World Bank.

Ān education helps people understand health risks, including AIDS, and preventative steps and demand quality treatment.

Education opportunities are also critical to eliminating abusive child labor. Around the world, tens of millions of young children in their formative years work under hazardous conditions, including toxic and carcinogenic substances in manufacturing, dangerous conditions in mines and on sea fishing platforms, and backbreaking physical labor. Some children labor in bondage, are sold into prostitution, or are indentured to manufacturers, working against debts for wages so low that they will never be repaid.

TESTIMONY OF GEORGE McGOVERN, U.S. AMBASSADOR TO THE AGENCIES ON FOOD AND AGRICULTURE, ROME, ITALY—JULY 27, 2000

Mr. Chairman and distinguished members of the Committee, I'm pleased to be associated once again with this important committee. During eighteen years as a Senator from South Dakota, I served every day as a member of this Committee: That was one of the deep satisfactions of my life. I also enjoyed my service on the Foreign Relations Committee, the Joint Economic Committee and my Chairmanship of the Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs. But Agriculture was my bread and butter committee.

This morning I'm especially pleased to be accompanied by my friend and longtime Senate colleague, Bob Dole. As you know, Bob and I represent opposing parties. But we fonned a bipartisan coalition in the Senate on matters relating to food and agriculture. That coalition reformed the field of nutrition and virtually put an end to hunger in America. We reformed and expanded food stamps for the poor; we improved and expanded the school lunch and breakfast programs; we launched the WIC program for pregnant and nursing low-income women and their infants. In the 1980's and 1990's there has been some slippage in the coverage of these excellent programs and that needs to be corrected. It is embarrassing that in this richest of all nations we still have an estimated 31 million Americans who do not have enough to eat.

But today I want to describe a new vision for you. It is a vision that would commit the United Nations, including the U.S., to providing a nutritious meal every day for every child in the world.

There are now 300 million hungry school age children in Asia, Africa, Latin America and Eastern Europe. Most of them do not have a school lunch or breakfast. One hundred and thirty million of them do not attend school and are condemned to a life of illiteracy. Most of those not in school are girls because of the favoritism toward boys and discrimination against girls.

How can we draw these children into the classroom? The most effective attraction anyone has yet devised to bring youngsters into the schools and keep them there is a good school lunch program. The American school lunch program is the envy of the world. At the recent convention in St. Louis of the American School Food Service Association there were visitors from half a dozen foreign countries, including Japan, who were to find out how they should erect school lunch programs.

By actual test results, a school lunch program will double school attendance; it will also dramatically improve the learning process and academic achievement. Children can't learn on an empty stomach. Nutrition is the precondition of education.

Nearly 40 years ago when the late President Kennedy brought me into the White House as Director of Food for Peace—a bipartisan program under P.L. 480 launched in the Eisenhower Administration—I received a telephone call from the Dean of the University of Georgia. He said, "Mr. McGovern, I'm calling to tell you that the federal school lunch program has done more to stimulate the social and economic development of the south than any other single program. It he said, "brought our youngsters into the schools, improved their learning capability, made them stronger, faster and healthier athletes, and more stable and effective citizens.

I believe the Georgia Dean was right then, and based on what he told me so many years ago, I know that he would support a daily school lunch for every child across the world.

If we could achieve the goal of reaching 300 million hungry children with one good meal every day, that would transform life on this planet. Dollar for dollar it is the best investment we can make in creating a healthier, better educated and more effective global citizenry.

One enormous benefit from such an effort is that it would help mightily in breaking down the barriers to the education of girls. Third World parents will send both girls and boys to school if lunches are provided. In six countries where studies have been conducted, it was revealed that illiterate girls who enter into marriage at 11, 12 or 13 years of age have an average of 6 children. Girls who have been schooled have an average of 2.9 children; they marry later and are better able to nurture and educate their children

One significant benefit of an international school lunch program is that it would raise the income of American farmers and those in other countries that have farm surpluses. Every member of this Committee knows that nearly every farm crop is now in surplus. This depresses farm markets and farm income. But if the Secretary of Agriculture-Dan Glickman, a great Secretary-used his authority in the market he can buy everything from California and Florida oranges to Kansas and Indiana wheat, Iowa corn, Montana, Texas and North and South Dakota cattle and hogs, Wisconsin and New York milk and cheese, and North and South Carolina and Georgia peanuts.

I'm pleased that President Clinton has endorsed this concept. In a White House meeting a month ago he told me: "George, this is a grand idea. I want us to push it." I cite Secretary Glickman and Undersecretary Gus Schumacher as my witnesses.

The President proposed $300 million for the first year—largely in the form of surplus farm commodities. If other U.N. countries will consider that $300 million as a 25% share with the other three-fourths coming from the rest of the world for a total of $1.2 billion, that would not be a bad start.

I'd like to yield now to Bob Dole for some comments and then perhaps the Committee will wish to question us.

Governor George Bush has described himself as a "compassionate conservative." The most compassionate conservative I know is Bob Dole. He was terribly wounded in World War II. I suspect partly because of that he has a tender heart for veterans. But beyond this, wherever there are hungry poor people, or undernourished children, or farmers in trouble. Bob Dole is always there.

The late Martin Luther King, Jr. once preached a sermon on the New Testament verse: "Be ye wise as serpents and gentle as doves." Translated into the modern vernacular, Dr. King said this means: "Be ye tough-minded and tender-hearted."

That's Bob Dole.

TESTIMONY OF U.S. REPRESENTATIVE JAMES P. McGovern—July 27, 2000

THE IMPORTANCE OF A GLOBAL SCHOOL FEEDING PROGRAM

I want to thank the Chairman, Senator Lugar, and Ranking Member, Senator Harkin, for the opportunity to appear before your Committee this morning. Your years of service and leadership both on agriculture issues and on foreign aid and humanitarian issues are admired and appreciated by your colleagues and, I might add, the people of Massachusetts. By holding the first hearing to explore the importance of a universal or global school feeding program, once again this Committee demonstrates that leadership.

In the U.S. House of Representatives, I'm happy to report a bipartisan movement is growing in support of this initiative. Congressman Tony Hall, Congresswomen Jo Ann Emerson and Marcy Kaptur and I recently sent a bipartisan letter to President Clinton signed by 70 Members of Congress, urging him to take leadership within the international community on this proposal. I am attaching a copy of that letter to my testimony and ask that it be part of the Record of this hearing.

I would also like to enter into the Record as part of my testimony a letter in support of this initiative by the National Farmers Union. In their letter, NFU states: "The benefits to those less fortunate than ourselves will be profound, while our own investment will ultimately be returned many times over. The international nutrition assistance program is morally, politically and economically correct for this nation and all others who seek to improve mankind."

As Senators George McGovern, Bob Dole and Richard Durbin have just testified, the proposal we are discussing today is very simple: to initiate a multilateral effort that would provide one modest, nutritious meal to the estimated 300 million hungry children of the world. I do not wish to repeat their testimony, but there are points I would like to underscore.

Mr. Chairman, I believe the world moves on simple ideas.

This simple idea is also a big idea, made more compelling in its potential to move us closer to achieving many of our most important foreign policy goals:

reducing hunger among children;

increasing school attendance in developing countries;

strengthening the education infrastructure in developing countries; increasing the number of girls attending school in developing countries;

reducing child labor; and increasing education opportunities for children left orphaned by war, natural disaster and disease, especially HIV/AIDS.

Over the next ten to twenty years, achieving these goals will significantly affect the overall economic development of the countries that participate in and benefit from this initiative. Children who do not suffer from hunger do better in school—and education is the key to economic prosperity. The better educated a nation's people, the more its population stabilizes or decreases, which, in turn, decreases pressures on food and the environment.

Our own prosperity is clearly linked to the economic well-being of the nations of Asia, Africa, Latin America and Eastern Europe. As their economies grow stronger, so do markets for U.S.-made products. The generation of children we help save today from hunger and who go to school will become the leaders—and the consumers—of their countries tomorrow.

This simple idea, Mr. Chairman, might prove to be the catalyst to a modern-day Marshall Plan for economic development in developing countries: A coordinated international effort to create self-sustaining school feeding programs and to enhance primary education throughout the developing world. Our farmers, our non-profit development organizations, and our foreign assistance programs could help make this a reality.

On the other hand, it could also fail.

It could fail, Mr. Chairman, if we in Congress fail to provide sufficient funding for this initiative; if we fail to provide a long-term commitment of at least ten years to this initiative; and if we fail to integrate this initiative with our other domestic and foreign policy priorities.

In its July 23rd announcement, the Clinton

In its July 23rd announcement, the Clinton Administration has made available $300 million in food commodities to initiate a global school feeding program. This is an admirable beginning for a global program estimated at $3 billion annually when it is 100 percent in place, with the U.S. share approximately $755 million per year.

To ensure the success of this initiative, we will need to commit ourselves to long-term, secure funding for this and related programs.

First, new legislation to authorize this program, and the necessary annual appropriations to carry it out, must at a minimum provide for the total U.S. share. These funds would not only provide for the purchase of agriculture commodities, but also for the processing, packaging and transportation of these commodities; for the increased agency personnel to implement and monitor expanded U.S. education projects in developing countries; and for an increased number of contracts with U.S.-based non-governmental organizations (NGOs) implementing these feeding and education programs in target countries.

A significant portion of this assistance will go to our farming community for the purchase of their products, and that's as it should be. Quite frankly, Mr. Chairman, I would rather pay our farmers to produce than watch them destroy their crops or pay them not to produce at all.

Second, the United States must lead and encourage other nations to participate and match our contributions both to the food and the education components of this

Third, we will need to increase funding for development assistance to strengthen and expand education in developing countries. One of the key reasons for supporting school feeding programs is to attract more children to attend school. If that happens, then the schools will need cooking centers, cooking utensils and cooks. Within a year or two, the increase in student population will require more classrooms. Those classrooms will need teachers and supplies. Additional development assistance, delivered primarily through NGOs, will be needed to successfully implement both the food and the education components of this proposal.

Fourth, we will need to secure greater funding for and recommit ourselves to debt relief and to programs that support and stimulate local agriculture and food production in these countries-two important priorities of our foreign assistance programs. Revenues that developing countries must now use to service their debt could instead be invested in education, health care and development. Successful school feeding programs also rely on the purchase and use of local food products, which are in harmony with local diet and cultural preferences. If the ultimate goal is to make these food and education programs self-sustaining, the promotion of local agricultural production and national investment in education are essential WEDDING ANNIVERSARY OF Fifth, our commitment to this effort must be long term. Too often initiatives are announced with great fanfare and then fade away with little notice given. Many development organizations currently active in the field with "food for education" programs are skeptical of this proposal. Many governments of developing countries share that skepticism. They have heard it before. They have seen programs announced, begun and then ended as funding abruptly or gradually ended. Our commitment to both the food and education components of this initiative must cover at least a decade.

Sixth, we do not need to re-invent the wheel to implement this program, or at least the U.S. participation in this multilateral effort. We have a long and successful history of working with our farming community to provide food aid. We have successful partnerships with NGOs already engaged in nutrition, education and community development projects abroad. We also have established relations with international hunger and education agencies, including the Food Aid Convention, the World Food Program, UNICEF and the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organizations (FAO).

Finally, Mr. Chairman, I believe we must also take a good long look at our own needs, and at the same time we contribute to reducing hunger abroad, we must make a commitment to ending hunger here at home. In a time of such prosperity, it is unacceptable that we still have so many hungry people in America. None of our seniors should be on a waiting list to receive Meals-on-Wheels. No child in America should go to bed hungry night after night. No family should go hungry because they don't know where the next meal will come from. No pregnant woman, no nursing mother, no infant nor toddler should go hungry in America. We have the ability to fund existing programs so these needs are met.

If I may, Mr. Chairman, I would also like to add one more comment. As first proposed, this initiative also had a universal WIC component. The United States is already involved in several nutrition and health programs for mothers and infants. I was very pleased to see in the President's announcement that it contained a pre-school component. I hope that we might also expand our assistance in this area and reach out to our international partners to increase their aid as well. We all know how important those early years of development are in a child's life. I fully support the school feeding and education initiative we are discussing this morning. But if a child has been malnourished or starved during the first years of their life, much of their potential has already been damaged and is in need of repair. Surely the best strategy would include health, immunization and nutrition programs targeted at children three years and I believe we can—and we must—eliminate hunger here at home and reduce hunger among children around the world.

I believe we can—and we must—expand our efforts to bring the children of the world into the classroom.

I hope you and your Committee will lead the way.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

IN HONOR OF THE UPCOMING 50TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY OF DAVID AND ARMIDA MURGUIA OF SAN ANTONIO. TEXAS

HON. CHARLES A. GONZALEZ

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. GONZALEZ. Mr. Speaker, it is with great pride, honor and happiness that I rise to recognize the upcoming 50th wedding anniversary of David and Armida Murguia of San Antonio.Texas.

David and Amy were married November 8, 1950 at Our Lady of Perpetual Hope Catholic Church in San Antonio and honeymooned in Allende, Mexico.

Immediately after their honeymoon, David was inducted into the U.S. Army and transferred to Ft. Lee, Virginia, where Amy was able to join him after a short separation. After his military service, the Murguia's returned to San Antonio where they have lived ever since. The Murguia's are members of St. Ann's Catholic Church.

David graduated from St. Gerard's High School and attended St. Mary's University, where he obtained a law degree. He worked at Kelly Air Force Base before starting his own law practice.

Amy graduated from Ursuline Academy in San Antonio, and after raising their children, went to work as David's legal assistant. Both retired in 1998 after a long, productive, and well respected legal career.

As a result of their marriage, David and Amy are the proud parents of eight children, Michael David, Vincent John, Philip Andrew, David III, Theresa Armida, Catherine Ann, Mark Anthony, and Matthew. They have 13 grandchildren, and several great grandchildren. As do all couples, David and Amy have had their joyous occasion and rough times, but through it all, they have stuck by each other, and in a rare occasion in America today, will soon celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary.

On behalf of all citizens of San Antonio, I want to wish them a wonderful anniversary and I hope that they are able to celebrate many, many more. May their love and dedication to each other inspire each of us to work even harder on our own relationships so that we too may someday celebrate as the Murguia's are doing now.

BAY AREA RAPID TRANSIT BART

HON. ELLEN O. TAUSCHER

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mrs. TAUSCHER. Mr. Speaker, as the Congresswoman representing eastern Contra Costa County and the Tri-Valley area of Alameda County, I rise today to express my firm belief that the Bay Area Rapid Transit (BART) system should be extended to Antioch and Livermore, California. While I am aware and understand that there are those who want to extend BART only to the South Bay, I must remind them that the families and businesses of the Antioch and Livermore areas also need BART and have been paying their hard-earned dollars into the BART system for almost four decades.

As a very large number of our commuters know, getting to and around Silicon Valley, more often than not, is a very difficult problem. This year, state and regional planners have begun deciding on the next generation of rail and road improvements for the region to address the traffic congestion problems. Furthermore, it is clear from the Governor's transportation plan and proposed budget that BART to San Jose is going to receive certain consideration. However, that does not mean that Antioch and Livermore citizens, who have made significant financial investments into the BART system, should be overlooked. Moreover, any new communities who seek BART service must first buy into the system.

During the next few months, I will be working closely with the Governor as well as state and Bay Area planners on a regional transit plan. One thing is certain: in order to successfully build any and all of these very expensive extensions, we must unite as a region and accept one common regional transit plan. As the only Bay Area Member of Congress on the Transportation and Infrastructure Committee, I know that regional unity is the necessary key in securing the federal and state transportation funds we need to build these important transit projects. When we are competing for scarce federal dollars with other urban centers, we cannot afford to waste our time and resources arguing among each other.

Mr. Speaker, I am confident that any regional plan will incorporate the history of BART with the equity of its stakeholders. I look forward to working with my colleagues on the Transportation and Infrastructure Committee as well as our Bay Area planners to develop the next generation of transit and road projects to meet the ever-growing needs of our region.

COMMON SENSE FOR THE TRIANGLE

HON. DAVID E. PRICE

OF NORTH CAROLINA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. PRICE of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I would like to commend to my colleagues the following article that appeared in the July 16, 2000, Raleigh News & Observer. Mack Paul, Chief of Staff to North Carolina Lieutenant Governor Dennis Wicker, wrote it. Mr. Paul has been active in local planning and transportation issues over the years as a civic leader, focusing on enhancing the Research Triangle area's quality of life and economic growth. The regionalism issue Mr. Paul addresses is one that will continue to gain importance and deserves the thoughtful attention of the Congress and the nation.

[From the News & Observer, July 16, 2000] COMMON SENSE FOR THE TRIANGLE (By Mack Paul)

RALEIGH.—Spurred in part by intense media attention, the public dialogue on growth in the Triangle has progressed markedly over the last two years. Many now see that gridlock, Code Orange days and dwindling open space bear a direct relation to the low density, auto-dependent pattern of development known as sprawl. The "Smart Growth" principles adopted last year by the Triangle Smart Growth Coalition and Greater Triangle Regional Council embody this recognition.

The next step remains much more problematic: what strategies do we pursue to achieve smarter growth?

Public transportation, downtown revitalization, open space protection, affordable housing and traditional neighborhood development top the list of preferred policy prescriptions. Elected officials say that it is time to act. But we're not acting—at least not with haste. Municipalities still see little to gain within their local context from enacting Smart Growth policies.

We're confronted with the classic game theory known as "the tragedy of the common." In this scenario, herders must share a common meadow. But no herder can limit grazing by anyone else's flock. If a herder limits his own use of the common meadow, he alone loses. Yet unlimited grazing destroys the common resource on which the livelihood of all depends. Therefore, the herders are seemingly doomed to self-defeating opportunism.

In the Triangle, the common meadow represents all those resources that comprise our economic health and quality of life, including our open space, air quality, infrastructure, schools, jobs and housing. As each municipality grapples with how best to utilize these resources in the face of a rapidly growing herd, it confronts the reality that no matter how wise its policies, it has no control over the other herders.

In the tragedy of the common, mutual cooperation represents the only way for the herders to survive long-term. Similarly, mutual cooperation at the regional level—regionalism—offers the best way for the Triangle to ensure long-term prosperity.

Regionalism offers a framework for maximizing our use of common resources in two ways. First, it encourages the coordination of resource systems that cross jurisdictions. For example, a regional transit system cannot succeed unless station-area planning in all of the affected municipalities supports it.

Second and more important, regionalism helps to mitigate disparate impacts that arise from competition for economic growth. If one area captures most of the new jobs but offers little affordable housing, it increases traffic and sprawl in neighboring municipalities. If outlying rural areas attract all of the new development, they can contribute to the decline of a central city, worsen air quality and significantly reduce the amount of open space.

As shown by the tragedy of the common, regionalism poses a real challenge because it requires a shift in thinking. Individuals must see that their personal interests are better served by cooperating with those with whom they compete for a precious resource. It builds over time. With each success comes trust and a desire for bolder action. Experience from other areas provides three important lessons about regionalism.

First, regionalism cannot succeed without a strong civic life. Those regional efforts that have succeeded all enjoy active and ongoing participation by businesses and citizens through a variety of civic organizations. The Triangle Smart Growth Coalition, Greater Triangle Regional Council, Regional Transportation Alliance and Triangle Community Coalition offer examples of emerging regional civic groups. These types of organizations provide our best opportunity for building the strong relationships necessary for regional cooperation.

Second, regionalism cannot succeed without a regional framework for decision-making. Areas that have been successful at pursuing Smart Growth strategies have some form of regional authority. The tragedy of the common demonstrates the difficulty in relying on the voluntary actions of one's neighbors. Regional models vary widely from purely advisory as in Denver to more authoritative as in Atlanta and Minneapolis. Any framework we adopt should reflect and be an extension of the Triangle's civic life.

Third, regionalism cannot succeed without some encouragement from the state. Areas that have adopted effective regional frameworks have benefited from state laws supporting such action. A new law permitting the Triangle's two Metropolitan Planning Organizations to combine would facilitate regional transportation planning.

Next year, the Smart Growth Commission

Next year, the Smart Growth Commission will consider making other recommendations, including financial incentives, to encourage regionalism. The Triangle's leadership should help shape and push for this legislation.

Ultimately, the Triangle cannot fulfill its promise as a "world class region" without regionalism. We will remain a collection of dissonant localities simply exploiting the economic principle that specialized industries tend to cluster together. Once our quality of life wanes, those industries will cluster elsewhere.

Regionalism can ensure that does not happen by showing us where self-interest is self-defeating and by offering a forum for mutual cooperation. It offers the best hope for seeing that our herd continues to prosper.

A BILL TO ENSURE THAT INCOME AVERAGING FOR FARMERS NOT INCREASE A FARMER'S LIABIL-ITY FOR THE ALTERNATIVE MINIMUM TAX

HON. WALLY HERGER

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. HERGER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to introduce the Farmer Tax Fairness Act, along with my Ways and Means Committee colleagues, Representatives THURMAN, HAYWORTH, DUNN, TANNER, CAMP, MCCRERY, ENGLISH, and FOLEY. This legislation will help ensure that farmers have access to tax benefits rightfully owed them.

As those of us from agricultural areas understand, farmers' income often fluctuates from year to year based on unforeseen weather or market conditions. Income averaging allows farmers to ride out these unpredictable circumstances by spreading out their income over a period of years. Last year, we acted in a bipartisan manner to make income averaging a permanent provision of the tax code. Unfortunately, since that time, we have learned that, due to interaction with another tax code provision, the Alternative Minimum Tax (AMT), many of our nation's farmers have been unfairly denied the benefits of this important accounting tool.

Our legislation directly addresses the concerns being raised by farmers using income averaging. Under the Farmer Tax Fairness Act, if a farmer's AMT liability is greater than taxes due under the income averaging calculation, that fanner would disregard the AMT and pay taxes according to the averaging calculation. As such, farmers will be able to take full advantage of income averaging as intended by Congress.

This provision is a reasonable measure designed to ensure farmers are treated fairly when it comes time to file their taxes. I urge my colleague to join me in promoting greater tax fairness for our nation's farmers.

HONORING JOEL PETT FOR HIS 2000 PULITZER PRIZE IN EDITORIAL CARTOONING

HON. ERNIE FLETCHER

OF KENTUCKY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. FLETCHER. Mr. Speaker, It is my honor to recognize today the outstanding achievement of Joel Pett for being awarded the 2000 Pulitzer Prize in Editorial Cartooning.

Since 1984, Joel has served in the capacity of Editorial Cartoonist with the Lexington Herald Leader and has produced cartoons on local and national government. Since that day in 1984—Pett's outstanding and talented work has appeared in many newspapers and magazines around America. This is why it is not surprising that he was recognized with such a prestigious national award.

With keen wit and acute perception, he has been able to highlight subtle perspectives that demand a more careful examination by the public. By presenting difficult topics in a comical way, Joel Pett is able to touch upon the core issues within the daily life of politics and government.

His distinction as the recipient of the 2000 Pulitzer Prize for Editorial Cartooning is one that highlights his creativity, inventiveness and intellect. Joel is a talented professional journalist who is dedicated to his work that he presents to readers throughout the year. I know that the Lexington Herald Leader, Lexington community and Commonwealth, of Kentucky are all proud of his outstanding achievement.

It is a pleasure to recognize Joel Pett, on the House floor today, for his superior work in political cartoons that has earned him the 2000 Pulitzer Prize in Editorial Cartooning.

MORATORIUM NEEDED ON FED-ERAL LAND EXCHANGES UNTIL SYSTEM IS FIXED

HON. GEORGE MILLER

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, land exchanges between private parties and the federal government have long been a source of contention in Congress and in local communities. Exchanges are supposed to provide the federal government a valuable tool to acquire lands with high public interest values, such as enhanced recreational opportunities or wildlife habitat, and to dispose of lands with less or limited public value.

According to a new General Accounting Office study that I commissioned, however, the Bureau of Land Management and the U.S. Forest Service have wasted hundreds of millions of dollars swapping valuable public land for private land of questionable value, and the Bureau may even be breaking the law. In response to this report, I have called on Interior Secretary Babbitt and Agriculture Secretary Glickman to immediately suspend all land exchanges until the exchange programs can be fixed.

The GAO report was prominently covered earlier this month by NBC Nightly News, CBS Radio, the Washington Post, and other media outlets across country. Subsequently, my call for a moratorium on exchanges has received strong support from newspapers, organizations and individuals from across the country as well.

I commend to my colleagues three of the newspaper editorials that have appeared so far endorsing the call for the moratorium. I hope that my colleagues will review the GAO report and the call for a moratorium and will support such a move. The public is being taken advantage in these deals and their wallet and the environment are paying the price. "Let's Make a Land Deal," The Washington Post, July 15, 2000; "Public Land Deals Better Not Cheat The Public," The Bozeman (MT) Chronicle, July 20, 2000; "Land Exchange Programs Troubled, But Well Worth Fixing", Minneapolis (MN) Star Tribune, July 24, 2000.

[From the Washington Post, July 15, 2000] Let's Make a Land Deal

It seems like a simple idea: If the federal government owns some land it doesn't necessarily care to keep, and a private landowner has some land the government wants, and the two are roughly equal in value, then make a trade. The Forest Service and Bureau of Land Management have had the authority to make those kinds of deals for years, with the idea that the exchanges would help the agencies consolidate federal lands and acquire important resources. But the transactions are often far from simple and, according to a General Accounting Office report released this week, the land-exchange program has shortchanged taxpayers by millions of dollars by undervaluing federal land or overvaluing private land in some of its deals.

The GAO said there are so many inherent

The GAO said there are so many inherent difficulties in the land-exchange process that Congress should consider giving up the program altogether, opting for more straightforward sales and purchases. The Forest Service and the Bureau of Land Management reacted sharply to the report, contending that GAO looked at too few transactions to justify its broad recommendation and that many of the cases it cited are old and have already been addressed. They say significant reforms are already underway.

Properly handled, land exchanges give the two agencies resources (public lands suitable for exchange) that they can use to acquire valuable and useful lands, including habitat for endangered species. If they lose that resource and wind up having to compete for funds for every proposed purchase, the likelihood is that their ability to obtain important land or consolidate holdings will be curtailed.

But it is important to be sure that those purposes are being served by the land swaps and that the public's interest is protected, both in terms of what land is being traded away and what value is being obtained for it. Rep. George Miller (D-Calif.), who requested the GAO report, has called for a moratorium on land exchanges until each agency "demonstrates that it can insure all exchanges are in the public interest and of equal value, as required by law." That's a challenge they ought to be able to meet.

[From the Bozeman Chronicle, July 20, 2000] Public Land Deals Better Not Cheat the Public

(By Chronicle Editor)

Intelligent, well-meaning people can disagree over what's the appropriate amount of land for the federal government to own. But when the government strikes a deal to buy, sell or trade land, there should be no disagreement on the necessity of making certain the public is getting a fair deal.

That apparently has not been the case. A recent General Accounting Office audit found that the Forest Service and Bureau of Land Management have lost millions of dollars from land exchanges by either buying too high or selling too low. This is a serious indictment of public land stewardship that should not be taken lightly.

Exchanges have become an important part of Western public lands policy as land managers seek to consolidate fragmented holdings, increase wildlife winter range and improve access

All of these are important public benefits. But it is a serious breach of the public trust if land deals aimed at accomplishing those ends cheat the taxpayers out of land values that are rightfully theirs.

Several major land exchanges have involved Gallatin National Forest in recent years and have accomplished some important land management goals. The problem arises when negotiations and appraisals involved in these land deals are kept secret. Public land managers argue they must be kept secret because revealing proprietary business information from private parties involved in the negotiations could kill the deal.

But if the GAO report is correct in its dismal assessment of the outcome of many of these deals, maybe we'd all be better off if the deals were killed.

Public land managers need to find ways to conduct these negotiations in the open where all can see. If the lands involved are of sufficient value to arouse private parties' interest, then conditioning a trade on open negotiations and publicly revealed land appraisals will not kill deals.

Public negotiations allow anyone with an interest to step forward and point out aspects of the proposed trades that might be overlooked by agency officials. Open negotiations only invite more complete information about factors contributing to land value and reveal the public's priorities for managing these lands.

Public land managers need to remind themselves occasionally that the land they manage is not theirs; it belongs to the citizens of the United States, and those citizens are entitled to a say in how it's done.

[From the Minneapolis [MN] Star Tribune, July 24, 2000]

LAND EXCHANGE PROGRAMS TROUBLED, BUT WELL WORTH FIXING

There are outrages aplenty in a recent congressional audit of federal land-exchange programs: Nevada acreage valued at $763,000 was transferred by the government to private owners, who resold it the same day for $4.6 million. A 4,300-acre Douglas fir forest in Washington state was swapped to a timber company for 30,000 clearcut acres near Seattle.

These are patently bad deals. But do they, and others documented by the General Accounting Office in its recent report, justify ending the programs?

The GAO's auditors think so. Arguing that land-swapping is inherently problematical, they urge Congress to consider abandoning the practice—perhaps replacing it with a cash-purchase system, wherein the U.S. Forest Service and Bureau of Land Management simply sell parcels they don't want and use the revenue to buy others they do.

But it's unclear how this approach would ease the key bedevilment of the exchange programs: the difficulty of establishing fair value for tracts of land that may be remote, undevelopable, depleted, largely unmarketable to private buyers—or all of the above. Appraising such land is a wholly different task from pricing a farm, homestead or business based on recent sales of comparable properties.

This doesn't excuse the agencies' worst flubs, of course, but it does argue for some tolerance in reviewing their overall, performance—3 million acres of unwanted federal land traded, since 1989, for 2 million desirable acres whose acquisition protected habitat, improved recreation, consolidated fragmented holdings, buffered parks or wilderness from incompatible development. The GAO has carefully measured taxpayers' losses in a few dozen swaps, but not their gains in thousands of others.

Moving to a cash-purchase system would almost certainly slow the agencies' acquisition of valuable lands and subject their work to congressional micromanagement. Congress has long been reluctant to fully fund its own land-conservation commitments; in recent years the budgets for the land-owning agencies have come under increasing pressure, reflecting a sentiment against acquisition of public lands—especially in the West, where most exchanges occur.

Moreover, the Forest Service and BLM have adopted significant reforms since 1998, prompted by newspaper reports exposing their failings. Though the GAO audit was commissioned in part to review the effectiveness of these changes, most of the truly terrible transactions cited by the auditors—including the aforementioned Nevada and Washington deals—occurred before they were adopted.

It is certainly true, as the auditors observe, that the agencies' clearer policies, better training and more stringent review of proposed deals can't guarantee perfect performance. But it is also true that the agencies deserve a better chance to show results.

Rep. George Miller, the California Democrat and public-lands advocate who asked for the GAO study, isn't persuaded that the programs ought to be scrapped, but he has called for a halt to new swaps until the agencies can show they have shaped up. There's little chance that Congress will adopt such a moratorium this session, but the agencies shouldn't take that as a reprieve. Having overhauled their procedures, they must now strive to regain the public's trust in the outcome.

IN HONOR OF COMMANDER GREGORY LAWRENCE

HON. FORTNEY PETE STARK

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. STARK. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to honor my dear friend, Commander Gregory Lawrence, a member of the Milpitas, California Police Department. I would like to congratulate Commander Lawrence on his retirement, September 8, 2000.

Commander Lawrence attended high school at William C. Overfelt High School in San Jose, California. Between the years of 1966 and 1969 he served as a Tank Commander in the U.S. Army. He continued his education at San Jose City College and San Jose State University. In 1979 he graduated from San Jose State with a Bachelor of Arts degree in Administration of Justice. In 1995 he earned a Masters Degree in Management from California State Polytechnic University, Pomona. During his 29 year police career he attended the FBI National Academy, the POST sponsored Supervisory Leadership Institute and Command College.

Commander Lawrence began his career with the Milpitas Police Department on June 18, 1971. Through hard work and dedication he rose through the ranks and was promoted to Senior Officer in September 1973, Sergeant in July 1980, Lieutenant in October 1991, and Commander on September 15, 1998.

Commander Lawrence served as a supervisor in patrol, traffic, community relations, personnel, and investigations. He was instrumental in the development and implementation of the first Community Relations unit where he taught drug resistance classes at Ayer and Milpitas High Schools. He was also one of the department's first Crisis Negotiators. He was the first and only Sergeant to ride motorcycles as a duty assignment and researched, developed, and implemented the department's driver training and bicycle programs.

Commander Lawrence served his community extremely well and I cannot thank him enough for his unselfish dedication to the city of Milpitas. He has accomplished a lot in his 29 years with the police department and has set a great example for dozens of other police officers, friends, and members of the community for years to come.

Commander Lawrence deserves great commendation, and I would like to ask my fellow colleagues to join me in congratulating him on his retirement.

HONORING GOULD CONSTRUCTION

HON. SCOTT McINNIS

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 27, 2000

Mr. McINNIS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take a moment to recognize an exceptional group, Gould Construction, as well as its President Mark Gould, whom the Associated General Contractors of America honored with the Design-Build Award for 2000. The Associated General Contractors selected Gould Construction because of their dedication to Colorado and to its community.

Gould Construction succeeded in winning the Design-Build competition, which is new this year, of the 33,000 strong Associated General Contractors organization, because they demonstrated an ability to work under extreme circumstances. The selection criteria included difficulty of the job, project management, innovation, state-of-the-art advancement, sensitivity to the environment, client service, and contribution to the community. Gould Construction excelled in all these criteria when they worked for the city of Glenwood Springs to construct the Grizzly Creek raw water diversion. The Grizzly Creek water diversion dam was experiencing problems after close to a century of operation and after several natural disasters inhibited functionality. Gould Construction worked in a challenging environment to restore the dam operation. The employees of Gould Construction worked nine weeks, suspended high above the narrow Roaring Fork Valley in the White River National Forest, to complete a plan that originally was scheduled for thirteen weeks.

Gould Construction worked endlessly under these treacherous conditions to complete this immense project; workers, food and construction material all had to be air lifted in to the site. The conditions were such that workers had to live in camps for the duration of each workweek. The nature of the project led to other challenges as well, Gould had to deal with environmental permits and had to operate to preserve the historical parts of the old dam; in conjunction with creating groundbreaking design that would deal with avalanches and rockfalls from the steep valley walls. Mark Gould, President of Gould Construction, said this about receiving the award "I'm thrilled for our employees, this award recognizes that we're doing important and innovative work nationally, not just in the Roaring Fork Valley. I think it will help us attract employees who come to the area seeking a challenge."

Mr. Speaker, it is obvious why Gould Construction was chosen as the Design-Build Award winner for 2000. Congress should extend a well-deserved recognition for the award and our thanks for their service and dedication to Colorado and to its outdoors.
